Mrs. E. F Reid, supply secretary, read a letter appealing for clothing from National Council of the church. Mrs. A. Munro, Presbyterial supply secretary, advised members that aid to China is still part of St. Andrew's relief work.

Announcement was made of the Presbyterial meeting to be held at Mark St. United Church Tuesday, January 27. Mrs. H Tremaine and Mrs. R. King were appointed as delegates. Members were also reminded of the World Day of Prayer, meeting to be held at All Saints Church February 13.

Mrs. B. Fowler favored with a solo, and was accompanied by Mrs. Faith of Ottawa at the piano. Devotions were in charge of Miss Dickson's group. Mrs. Tremaine took the Bible reading and led in prayer. Miss A. Moir gave a most interesting review of work of WMS, its aims and objects to enlist all women members of the church.

Mrs. R. King gave a report on home mission work covering school homes and Sunday School by mail. A report of the medical work, hospitals and doctors was given by Mrs. E. F. Reid. Mrs. E. Porteous gave a figurative report of membership covering all Canada.

Rev. M. J. Aiken installed officers for the coming year and addressed the meeting, speaking of the necessity for missionary work at home and abroad.

Mrs. E. Hawley and her committee served refreshments and a social hour followed the meeting.

INDIA'S EXPORTS UP

India's exports to the United States now are almost 100 per cent greater than they were between 1935 and 1936.

NEW WAISTLINE WHITTLER—A good belt is a cinch to do things for a simple dress, as well as cinching the waistline. This dainty belt is just ornamental enough to gently dressup a basic frock. The belt spans the front with folds of gold kid, and nips the waist in back with black suede. A nice change from the wide, wide waistline whittlers.

PRIMITIVE FARMING

About 4,000 years ago ancient Britons planted crops by pushing a pointed stick in the ground and dropping a seed into the hole.

GIFT OF HEAVEN

Chinese legend has it that tea was originally a precious "gift of heaven" to a few serene philosophers and princes.

'Teen And Twenty Meet

T'N'T Club supper meeting was held Wednesday in the YWCA recreation room and members spent a pleasant social hour together. Miss Gladys Coit favored with a piano solo. At a short business meeting, a motion was made to hold a formal dance on April 9. A sleigh ride was also discussed and it will be decided on at the next meeting.

Mrs. Doig presided for a business discussion. Minutes were read by Mrs. G. Rowe, retiring secretary, and Mrs. W. Hocking gave the treasurer's report. It was decided to change the meeting date to the third Monday of each month, in place of fourth.

and Brownies Mothers' Auxiliary of St. Luke's Church decided to disband and become members of the newly organized Local Association. Satisfactory reports of the past year's work were read by the secretary and treasurer. Funds held in the name of the Mothers' Auxiliary were divided in various ways to the satisfaction of all members present. Knitting work on hand will be finished and when completed will be sent to Britain. A review of the past three years' work of St. Luke's Mothers' Auxiliary showed that accomplishments have been highly successful, and on a financial basis this group stands considerably ahead of other similar groups in the city considering the number of members. Work with he new association will commence immediately.

Disguising Failure

Hollywood, Jan. 22 (AP)

A NEW angle on the new look came today from designer Ilyana. She says women dress that way to hide their failure as wives and mothers.

"Petticoats, ruffles, camisoles, corseleteers, padded hips, full bosoms and flannel nighties, she says, are nothing but psychological symbols of modern women's admission of failure as a female." Budapest-born Ilyana declared:

"The female sex is universally retreating toward a great, swollen maternal image of the past. Clothes are sex symbols. Our mothers and grandmothers seem to hold the key to successful marriage and motherhood far better than we, so like little girls we are dressing up in their clothes and pretending to be our own maternal forbears."

HOW TO HOLD HUSBANDS

Wife's Trump Card Is Having Happy Home

A young woman who is about to be married wants to know what are the things that wives do that get most on their husbands' nerves. She says that she does not wish to be just a good wife. She wants to be the kind of a wife who will keep her husband glad that he married her.

Dorothy Dix

That is a hard question to answer because there is no infallible rule for making a good wife, as there is for making good cupcakes. Different men have different tastes in women and what is one husband's sweetie pie in a wife may give another husband stomach ulcers. However, while every wife has to learn how to handle her husband by the old rule of trial and error, there are certain basic gripes common to all husbands, which the wife, who wishes to be popular with her mate, does well to bear in mind.

The first of these is not to be bossy. Leave your bridegroom his pants. If you have an uncontrollable yen to wear the britches, don't do it in public and don't flaunt them in your husband's face. You see, there is an old tradition in which men still believe that the husband is the head of the house. If he finds out that this isn't true and that his only authority is that of a bill-payer, it gives him a shock from which he never recovers.

Ask His Advice

So play canny. Whatever your intentions are as to ruling the roost, camouflage them. Don't be skimpy in your use of soft soap. Ask your husband's advice, whether you take it or not. He won't care what you do. All he wants is that little gesture of deference.

Be your husband's press agent. That not only will insure happiness in the home, but money in your pocket. Any wife, who goes about criticizing her husband and calling attention to his faults and weaknesses, kills the goose that lays the golden egg. A wife writes her husband's price tag and the world takes him at her valuation.

Don't argue with your husband. That is the surest and quickest way of starting adomestic brawl. No matter how ignorant and foolish his opinions are, let him enjoy them in peace. You have the same privilege. Just bear in mind that a wife doesn't endear herself to her husband by being right in a discussion.

And if you wish to stay persona grata with your husband, put the skids under Mama. There is not one in a million who can stand having his wife quote what Mama says and does, and who doesn't get sick and tired of having his wife continually throw her family in his teeth.

And don't forget, dearly beloved little bride, that your trump card is always going to be making a happy home for your husband and children — a clean hearth, a warm fire, a savory meal on the table, a woman who is gay, tender and kind and who makes her home the pleasantest spot in all the world for a tired man to come to at night. That is the answer that never fails to the question of how to hold a husband's love.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, January 23

A generally adverse and inharmonious range of planetary aspects make for a dangerous, unprofitable and hazardous day in which a tendency to impulsive, indulgent and extravagant tactics may exact excessive penalties. The emotions and impulses are likely to run away with good judgment or to swerve right action from sane and practical commitments. There may be agitation, error and loss through rash and erratic moves. There might be escape from disaster and regrets through pausing before any wild actions or emotions. In this there is some support from certain astral sources. Heed it.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a hectic and perilous year in which riotous emotions, impulses and urges may be responsible for runaway thoughts, words, deeds and commitments. These extravagant, ungoverned and indulgent moods may create personal, domestic, social and financial hazard, with a radical upheaval or regrettable estrangement. Loss may be averted, and progress in minor degree may be in store, by reasonable and cool judgment, putting the brakes on twisted and turbulent impulses. Shun all excesses.

A child born on this day may be disposed to many forms of excess and self-indulgence, inciting strife, jealousy and revenge, personal and financial loss. It has, however, a fairly studious and introspective undertone—to be cultivated.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

(CHAPTER 10)

I liked Dartmouth better than Osborne, and my growing happiness was in no small part associated with the increase in privileges that came with seniority.

Besides, I was growing up, and during the glorious holidays I was treated less as a child.

I had begun to make some real friends among the boys of my term, with whom I shared those unique experiences that make boyhood such a precious thing; and stretching before me was the prospect of a Navy career, with all its glamor and traditions, the promise of travel on the seven seas, and an end, I hoped, to the tutors and constraints of Court life.

The first week of May, 1910, found Bertie and me at Marlborough House, preparing to return to college after an Easter leave at Frogmore, unmarred by a single melancholy note. However, my grandfather had just returned to London from his annual visit to Biarritz in poor health and subject to severe fits of coughing. He was then rising 70, but it was unthinkable that mere advancing age could halt that gay spirit.

My father sent for us the morning we were to start back and said: "I have wired the captains of your two colleges that I want you both to remain with me here for a little longer. The King's condition has taken a turn for the worse, and the end may not be far off."

Death of King Edward.

My grandfather died at Buckingham Palace a few minutes before midnight on May 6, 1910. That afternoon one of his fillies, Witch of the Air, won her race at Kempton Park, and I remember the sad pleasure with which my father walked over from Marlborough House to convey this information to his dying father, the last bit of terrestrial news I believe the gallant monarch was able to understand.

Next morning I was awakened by a cry from my brother Bertie, to-day the King. From the window of our room he cried, "Look, the Royal Standard is at half-mast." I jumped out of bed to see for myself. Across the Mall, Buckingham Palace stood grey and silent, and on the roof in the bright morning sunlight the Standard hung limply on the mast. And then I knew for myself that Edward the Seventh, Victoria's eldest son, had died, aged 69, after a reign of nine years.

It was my grandfather's fate that his lighter side should have obscured the fact that he had both insight and influence. But from a small boy's view—as distinct from the impersonal biographer's view—he loomed as one of the best of men, and I sometimes think that he was the last Englishman to have an uninterruptedly good time.

Standard At Half-mast.

That morning, while Bertie and I were dressing, our valet Finch appeared with the morning tea, and word that my father wished to see us both downstairs. My father's face was grey with fatigue, and he cried as he told us that Grandpapa was dead. I answered sadly that we had already seen the Royal Standard at half-mast.

My father seemed not to hear as he went on to describe in exact detail the scene around the death-bed. Then he asked sharply, "What did you say about the Standard?" "It is flying at half-mast over the Palace," I answered. My father frowned and muttered, "But that's all wrong," and repeating as to himself the old but pregnant saying, "The King is dead, Long live the King," he sent for his equerry, and in peremptory naval manner ordered that a mast be rigged at once on the roof of Marlborough House. An hour later the Royal Standard was broken and flying close hauled over our house, as it was to do wherever my father resided during the 25 years of his reign.

The strain thrown upon my father by the King's death was indescribable. For across his grief thrust the urgent demands of a constitutional crisis arising out of the quarrel between the Liberals around Mr. Lloyd George and the House of Lords. Harder still for him, the Government decided to postpone the funeral for a fortnight, in order to give the rulers and representatives of distant nations and possessions time to reach London. During that prolonged wait, while the dead King lay unburied, Marlborough House became a vortex of activity, with the comings and goings of Court officials. We children were pushed into the background, emerging only for the melancholy afternoon calls upon our bereaved grandmother, Queen Alexandra.

My grandfather's body lay in the Throne Room of Buckingham Palace, with the massive bejewelled crown upon the coffin. Four tall Grenadier Guardsmen of the King's Company stood rigidly at each corner, resting on their arms reversed, their bearskin-capped heads inclined as in sorrow.

My grandmother could not stay out of the room, and was constantly rearranging the flowers.

To Make Japan Self-Supporting

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. — (AP).—The United States notified the Far Eastern Commission today that it is planning to undertake measures to make Japan "self-supporting at the earliest possible time."

An American statement presented to the 11-power agency which runs allied policy on Japan disclosed that the army will ask Congress soon for funds for the 12 months beginning July 1 not only to provide bare necessities for the Japanese people but also to supply industrial raw materials, spare parts, and other items required for expansion of peacetime Japanese production.

"The United States Government, recognizing that the co-operation of the Far Eastern Commission and its member states is essential to the successful accomplishment of a program for bringing about a self-supporting economy to Japan, requests favorable consideration of future policies to be presented to the commmission toward this end."

Little Co-operation

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 — (CP) — Hon. Leslie Blackwell, Ontario Attorney-General, said in an address that lack of co-operation between the federal and provincial attorney-general's departments was making law enforcement difficult and expressed the hope for greater co-operation in the future.

Want To Know Import Policy

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—(CP).—A three-day meeting of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association ended yesterday with adoption of a resolution which asked the Federal government to declare a 1948 policy on vegetable imports as soon as possible.

The resolution added that members felt they should maintain present levels of fruit and vegetable production unless assurance were forthcoming of markets for extra products.

In past years, a large proportion of vegetables and fruit used by Canadians during winter has come from the United States. This year, dollar-conservation measures barred the imports and increased demand for domestic supplies.

Another resolution asked that date for free entry of onions from the United States be set each year after consultation between Federal officials and representatives of grower organizations. Association members also asked that no change be made at present in potato grading regulations.

PERFECT declarer play for some contracts is similar to the work of the police when they have left unguarded. Incidentally, if they had to leave some egress unpatrolled, it would be smart to make that the one he was least likely to try. And it is exactly like that in the play for a contract.

One of two declarers on this team deal gave himself the maximum number of possible chances for that contract after the heart 4 was led. He was Lee Hazen, brilliant New York attorney. Note the lengths to which he went to prevent a heart loser, since he was sure to lose a trick in clubs and possibly one in trumps.

The other declarer muffed his contract by taking two trump tricks quickly, which left him shy of enough dummy trumps for ruffing hearts when diamonds failed to break. Mr. Hazen's plan would have been still valid, even if clubs had not divided and West had trumped the third, as a trump would have remained in dummy then to ruff a heart lead, and there would have been the extra chance of trying the spade finesse as an additional means of striving to shed a heart. That it would not have worked does not alter the principle, since it might have for all he could know.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 22 — (ENS). — Gay and charming at 91 and still the life of the party, Mrs. Phoebe Bedford entertained her friends at a surprise birthday party given in her honor Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. F. I. Peters.

Although confined to a wheel chair Mrs. Bedford insists on making her bed and tidying the room each day. She reads and crochets without the aid of glasses and spends much of her time reading to other less fortunate patients.

Mrs. Bedford seemed thrilled over the lovely presents and cards she received from her many friends. Guests at the party were Mrs. Marshall West, Miss Lillian Benor, Miss Gertrude Maynard, Mrs. Williams, Rev. W. J. and Mrs. Lennox, Dr. A. B. Longmore, Mrs. Wilbert Wood, Miss Jenny Martin and Mrs. Fred Linton.

Hirohito Pays $66 Millions In Taxes 1947

TOKYO, Jan. 22—(AP)—The Japanese people in effect have given Emperor Hirohito another vote of confidence.

They did it by showing obvious and genuine relief as former Premier Hideki Tojo whitewashed the emperor before the International War Crimes Court.

Fighting for his life, Tojo insisted that Hirohito had no responsibility for the war, even while giving evidence that seemed to indicate the emperor had a part in reaching the decision to fight.

Newspapers throughout Japan bannerlined "Emperor Free of War Responsibility" and Japanese everywhere seemed highly pleased. Tojo's word was generally accepted by Japanese as assurance that Hirohito could not be incriminated.

This adulation is one of the few perquisites retained by the imperial family after its conversion into taxpaying individuals forced to live for the first time on a fixed and closely supervised income.

Hirohito — the Japanese Government said—started the New Year as one of the few Japanese who paid all of his tax bill. It totalled 3,338,206,702 yen ($66,764,134) or 90 per cent. of his assessed assets.

He paid it by turning over imperial palaces, vast tracts of forests and other income estates owned for generations by the imperial household. He retained an estimated 400,000,000 yen ($8,000,000) worth of personal possessions and imperial treasures.

The Diet voted the imperial family 45,000,000 yen ($900,000) as its first year's fixed income. From this budget, the imperial household ministry must maintain Tokyo's imperial palace and such detached palaces as the emperor chooses to occupy with the Government's permission. The Tokyo palace staff recently was reduced to about 1,000 persons—about a fourth of what it used to be.

Is Allied Policy

Only the emperor and his immediate family, of the formerly extensive Japanese royalty, retain that status.

Hirohito and his descendants do retain unsual security on the throne, so far as the Japanese people are concerned. No political leader of any consequence yet dares to advocate abolition of the emperor system. It will continue, unless the Allies force its elimination.

It is also unlikely that the Emperor ever will feel any real financial pinch. His subjects are not likely to tighten the purse strings further, of their own volition.

Even today, volunteers are booked through next fall for the "opportunity" to rake leaves and clean the palace grounds here—at a consequent saving to the emperor's purse.

Hirohito's many trips throughout Japan, incidentally, are also no drain on his funds; they are financed by local governments. The local governments also maintain some of his villas, including one in Kyoto which has been kept in top condition for years without ever receiving an imperial visit.

The emperor business is still a paying proposition in Japan.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 22—(ENS)—Annual meeting of the Millbrook Agricultural Society was held in the council chamber Monday. L. C. McNeil, president, was in the chair.

P. I. Bentley is secretary-treasurer, having been elected at the last directors' meeting in 1947.

In his address, the president stressed the fact that, by providing a show that is well known throughout the province for the high quality of the stock exhibited, the society is serving the public to the best of its ability. He mentioned improvements to be carried out at the fair grounds, including levelling, increased space for classes shown, and further sanding and gravelling.

S. S. Staples, managing director, explained that if data can be obtained to prove that the society has a history of 100 years—and it is believed this can be done—a government grant of $1,000 will be available to erect handsome memorial gates at the grounds' entrance. These will honor the pioneers whose initiative and energy established the fair as a local institution.

The financial statement listed total receipts of $2,917.76. Total expendtures were $2,475.19. The net balance is $828.18.

Reports were received from the heads of departments, showing quality and quantity in the exhibits secured for the fair, with an optimistic outlook for 1948. The date set for the fair was June 9. The president was appointed delegate to the Fairs and Exhibitions convention in Toronto.

Elected officers were: Hon. presidents, Hon. Dr. Vivian and Charles Stevenson, M.P.P., Port Hope; honorary directors, Reeves H. D. Bigelow, Harold Cathcart, Melville Johnston, Jay Whittington and W. W. Dawson; A. E. Simmons, agricultural representative; president, L. C. McNeil; vice-presidents, Gordon Staples and Jay Whittington; secretary-treasurer, P. I. Bentley; managing director, S. S. Staples, with an assistant to be chosen.

WCTU Honors Mrs. E. Milburn

FAIRVIEW, Jan. 22 — Mrs. Elmer Milburn was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the local WCTU and the president, Mrs. J. Gordon Mann, presided.

The Lakefield ladies had charge of the devotions led by Mrs. G. F. Kelly. Mrs. Roy Brown read the scripture, Mrs. Kelly read the lesson, and Mrs. W. W. Yale led in prayer. The president led a short memorial service in memory of Mrs. M. Jory, Lakefield, who died last week. The ladies also sent a letter of sympathy to Mrs. B. W. Manning of Peterborough.

A discussion on the temperance work was followed by the use of the slip sheet when Mrs. Roy Brown, Mrs. Max Archer, Miss Margaret Milburn, Mrs. Haverstock, Mrs. F. Bell, Mrs. Elmer Milburn and Mrs. Albert Armstrong took part.

Mrs. G. F. Kelly favored with a piano solo.

At this point Mrs. Elmer Milburn was called to a seat of honor when Mrs. Fred Bell read an address and Mrs. Reg. McMullen made the presentation of a lovely silver tea set in recognition of the work of Mrs. Milburn in correcting more than 100 papers which were written by pupils of the five neighboring public schools Mrs. Milburn, though completely taken by surprise, graciously thanked the ladies.

Cripps Fights To Keep Franc Stable

French Determined To Devalue Money; Hold Paris Talks

PARIS, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, arrived in Paris by air this afternoon and drove straight to the official residence of Premier Robert Schuman.

Sir Stafford was expected to see Rene Mayer, French Finance Minister, for talks on the Anglo-French differences over the proposed devaluation of the franc.

Sir Stafford was accompanied by Sir Wilfrid Eady, Second Secretary of the Treasury, and Cameron Cobbold, Deputy Governor of the Bank of England.

Sir Stafford is likely to make only a short stay in Paris and will probably leave for London sometime to-morrow — but possibly this evening.

The Embassy spokesman described the purpose of Sir Stafford's visit as a renewal of the conversations the Chancellor had last week in London with Mayer.

Stand Pat

Meanwhile, Pierre Mendes-France, French delegate to the international monetary fund, was given firm instructions to fight for the devalued external franc, despite British opposition.

Agreement on the international monetary fund is necessary for changes of more than 10 per cent in intrinsic value of currencies of member nations.

The franc plan, as outlined by a government source several days ago, would permit French exporters to lower dollar prices on their merchandise more than 50 per cent and would enable the government to regulate imports.

A finance ministry source said the British representative with the fund objected that devaluation of the export franc would cause financial disturbances in other European countries, tend to force Britain to devalue the pound to meet French export competition and complicate the task of the fund itself.

The district's Big Freeze of the year descended Thursday night which shot local temperatures from 20 degrees above zero Thursday to 22 below in Peterborough today at sunrise. It was not the coldest in the district for Apsley won some sort of distinction with minus 38 followed by Marmora at —29 and Roseneath—28. There is no use hollering about it for the cold high pressure area stretches from the prairies east to Quebec and well into the United States. If reports are correct, Apsley and Port Churchill hit the low record for the night, each recording minus 38, while the good old standby, White River came up the scale into the same class as Gore's Landing.

Must Unite Before USSR Gets A-Bomb

Urges Opponents Rise Above Party For European Unity

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

LONDON, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Winston Churchill warned today that the present international situation holds a "very real danger" of war. He called on western democracies to unite and force a showdown before Russia has atomic weapons.

Speaking in a Commons debate on foreign affairs opened yesterday by Foreign Secretary Bevin with an attack on Russian expansionism, the wartime prime minister said he believes the best chance of preventing war is to bring matters to a head and come to a settlement with the Russian government "before it is too late."

"This would imply that the western democracies, who should of course seek unity among themselves at the earliest moment, would take the initiative in asking the Soviet for a settlement.

"When this parliament first assembled I said that possession of the atomic bomb would provide a three- or four-year breathing space. Perhaps it may be more than that. But more than two of those years have already gone.

"I can not think that any serious discussions which it may be necessary to have with the Soviet government would be more likely to reach a favorable conclusion if we wait until they have got it (the atomic bomb) too."

There were "very grave dangers" in letting things pile up until something happened, Churchill said in bolstering his argument for a prompt demand for a settlement. And even a settlement, he added, would not guarantee that war would not come.

"But I believe it would give the best chance of prevention and, if it came, we would have the best chance of coming out of it alive."

Princess Elizabeth, making her first informal visit to the Commons, though she had been there before on ceremonial occasions, sat in the crowded gallery as the former prime minister spoke to an intent house.

Prime Minister Attlee, following Churchill, spoke in perhaps the coolest voice of the two-day discussion, saying he does not believe war is "imminent."

"I do not think it is good to be talking of war," he told the Commons. "On the other hand, there is no good shutting our eyes to the possibility."

The Conservative party leader endorsed the Labor government's proposal for unification of western Europe as a barrier to the spread of Communism. But he appealed to his political opponents to rise above party in fostering

Actress Very Ill

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23 —(AP).—Kay Francis, the actress, became seriously ill under mysterious circumstances today and her stage manager, Howard Graham, 37, was booked at police headquarters "for investigation of assault to kill."

They were here with the stage production, "State of the Union." Miss Francis was removed early today from her hotel to hospital, where her condition was described as "just fair." She was still unconscious several hours after her arrival there. Police said they found evidence of a "wild party in the hotel room.

Million Workers Paralyze Most Of Bavaria

MUNICH, Jan. 23 — (AP). — Most of Bavaria was paralyzed today by a general strike of up to 1,000,000 workers. They were called out by union leaders to protest food shortages.

The strike started at midnight and was to last 24 hours. Indications in many areas were that it would continue through Saturday and Sunday. It was the largest mass labor walkout in Germany since the war.

No violence was reported by early afternoon in any major cities — Munich, Nuernberg, Wuerzburg, Augsburg, Passau, Coburg or Hof. Strikers occasionally were rough with small stores which stayed open in two areas, but generally the Bavarians used the strike as a day of rest.

Some 90,000 Munich workers demonstrated here, marching with red banners demanding "liberty." United States military government observers said Communist elements took part.

Earlier, hundreds of angry German commuters had stormed military trains trying to get to work. Rail authorities finally put on emergency trains.

Joseph Cardinal Frings of Cologne asserted the strikes were a "spontaneous outburst of the people." He urged allied occupation authorities to increase imports of food, saying "the situation is desperate; it cannot long endure."

Lawrence Wilkinson, director of the United States military government economic division, said in a broadcast last night that $750,000,000 worth of food will be imported at the expense of the United States and British governments into the two western zones this year. This marked a 50 per cent increase over last year.

New Resort Destroyed By Flames

Say Cigarette Butt In Bedroom Caused $600,000 Fire

ST. MARGUERITE STATION, Que., Jan. 23 — (CP). — Three chimneys standing in the middle of still smouldering rubble were all that remained to-day of the $600,000 Roney Terrace resort development which was destroyed by a flash fire last night at this Laurentian Mountain village located 60 miles north of Montreal.

Sixty-five workmen, many of them barefooted, were forced to flee the blazing five-storey wooden structure in scanty night attire.

Cliff Butler, manager of the resort and well known Montreal sportsman, described the development as a "total loss."

He said the blaze originated in one of the bedrooms from a cigarette butt and that within 20 minutes the entire structure and five adjoining cottages were engulfed in a "solid sheet of flames that at times reached four times the height of the building."

The development, started last November, was scheduled to open within two weeks.

Onlookers Helpless

Onlookers were helpless to fight the blaze owing to the lack of proper fire fighting apparatus and sub-zero weather.

Provincial Police reported that no one was injured.

"We had just finished installing the sprinkler system and were going to connect it with the water main to-day," said Butler.

"All I had time to do when I heard someone yell 'Fire' he said "was to grab $2,000 from the hotel safe and run."

Fire Destroys Double Block

HULL, Que., Jan. 23—(CP).—Firefighters from Ottawa and Hull joined forces today in a vain effort to quell a $150,000 blaze which broke out in a double business and residential block today, leaving 11 persons homeless and destroying six business establishments.

It was the second fire this month in the block at 115 to 125 Hotel De Ville street and among those driven to the street in 20-below-zero weather was J. A. Robert, director of the Hull police department.

Mr. Robert first noted the blaze about 5.30 a.m., turned in the alarm and managed to arouse sleeping tenants of upstairs apartments. All escaped without injury but were unable to save any belongings.

The fire, which destroyed the adjoining, three-storey Farley and Laverdue blocks, apparently broke out in [illegible] quarters [illegible] themselves and their uniforms in ice although the heat from the blaze at one point was so terrific it melted ice and snow on buildings across the street.

Luxuries In Peterborough Astound 14 Women DP's

One of the outcomes of war — the transition of people thousands of miles from the scene of their birth, families and friends, to a new land having new language, standards of living and manners—was personified at the CNR station Thursday night, when 14 girls and women of Europe stepped from the train to start life again in Peterborough, Canada.

"DP" is the label given these victims of a global war—"displaced persons." The impersonal term, used in news dispatches from distant places, came to life here as these arrivals stepped into their places in the city. The majority of them were young—late 'teens or early twenties — and all looked strong and healthy. From the ravaged countries of Poland and Yugoslavia, these women provided a visual education to Peterborough citizens if they had been on hand to witness their arrival.

Stirling Youth Shot In Barn

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 23. — William Garfield Chambers, 22-year-old son of William Chambers, was found shot to death in his father's barn on the outskirts of nearby Stirling early Thursday. Nearby a .22-calibre rifle hung from a nail on the barn wall

The shooting was believed to be an accident. Police pointed out that if the gun had been hanging on the nail it would have required very little pressure to discharge it, sending the bullet into the young man's head. There were Powder burns on the forehead.

Capture Bandit After 3 Holdups

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Jacques Martin, 28, admitted in Magistrate's Court to-day that he is the bandit who last night carried out three hold-ups in adjacent places in North Toronto within 15 minutes.

Pleading guilty to four charges of armed robbery, one of attempt- [illegible] proceed at once. His only other comment to Magistrate Roberts Browne was that he had never been in trouble with the law before.

Swift concentration of police officers from several parts of the city resulted in capture of Martin in the washroom of the Glendale theatre on north Yonge St. Police said he told them he had planned to hide out until the theatre closed.

Police saiad they had recovered $142 in cash and had taken from the accused a revolver which had one chamber empty. One shot had been fired by the holdup man, hitting a showcase.

A grill on north Yonge St. had only one employee on duty at the time a bandit entered, threatened the cashier with a gun and scooped up some loose bills and change.

Five minutes later the same bandit poked a gun through the opening in the cashier's cage at the Bedford theatre and escaped with about $90. Seven minutes after that the bandit entered another grill further up the street, threatened an employee with a gun and fired into a showcase, scooping up the money in the cash register.

Greater Education [illegible]

[illegible] gram for bringing home to Canadians both foreign and native-born, what citizenship entails, as a means of combatting Communism.

In an address prepared for delivery to a meeting of the Canadian Citizenship Council, Mr. Gibson said some Canadians "are subject to intense propaganda and pressure advocating other forms of government, and yet little is being done throughout the country to remind our people of the advantages under which we live.

"Of the 78 foreign language papers printed in this country, no less than 19 are teaching Communism and for those who do not understand our language these papers are their only sources of information.

"I do not consider that banning the papers, or outlawing the Communist party, is the answer to this challenge. If we have nothing better to offer than the Communists, then we have no excuse for opposing them; but if, as we generally believe, our system is superior, then our people have a right to know in what ways they benefit by supporting our democratic system."

Drew Says Customs Too Hard On Tourists

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Premier Drew of Ontario last night criticized tactics of Canadian customs officers at border points and the harmful effect they have on the tourist business as he addressed the annual dinner meeting of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

Condemning what he called the utterly unnecessary restrictions imposed by the federal government in its austerity program, Premier Drew said that along with these restrictions is the "humiliating and equally unnecessary type of examination at the port of entry."

He added: "Unless steps are taken to curb them, the tourist business may suffer a loss in trade instead of the increase which was expected this year."

Princess Anne Reunited With Sweetheart Michael

The princess arrived by train with her mother, Princess Margarethe, for her first meeting with 26-year-old Michael since he quit the throne of Romania nearly a month ago. He was waiting for her in a jeep.

Maj. Jacques Vergotti, aide to Michael, told reporters there would be no "secret wedding" in Davos.

Michael and the major came secretly from Lausanne to this famous winter sports centre last night for a skiing holiday. Former Queen Helen of Romania, Michael's mother, remained in Lausanne but was expected to join the royal party in Davos later.

Michael and Anne met at the London wedding of Princess Elizabeth last year. There were reports that they were engaged but that Romania's Communist-dominated government opposed a royal wedding. On Dec. 30 Michael abdicated and Romania became a "democratic people's republic." Both the government and the royal household said the abdication was for political reasons.

Predict More Earthquakes For Southeastern Canada

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP). —An increasing number of earthquakes in the Northeastern United States and Southeastern Canada is predicted by L. Don Leet, professor of seismology at Harvard.

Dr. Leet defines the area as New England, New York, Eastern Pennsylvania, Northern New Jersey, a large area of Canada north of Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river to its mouth, and Nova Scotia.

The reasons are seven widespread earthquakes since 1909 in this great area. The region went for a century without a quake of importance after the Boston earthquake of 1755. In 1860 and again in 1870 Canadian shocks were felt over 700,000 to 1,000,000 square miles. There were no more general earthquakes in the region until 1904.

Dr. Leet says the present epoch of increasing quakes probably has not yet passed a climax. He describes planes of weakness, lines where the earth can slip, one side of the line in one direction, the other in a different direction.

Dr. Leet says there is a steady shoving from below all through this region, due to the earth's crust readjusting its pressures.

"There are," he concludes, 'deep-seated forces at work in that zone which gives evidence of ample energy for destructive effects on any large community which has the misfortune to be located near the point at which it is released."

Rule 'Dusty' Miller On Trial For Holdup

HAMILTON, Jan. 23.—(CP).—Garth (Dusty) Miller, 45, formerly of Toronto, was committed today for trial on a charge of armed robbery in the $5,000 hold-up of the Canada Bread offices here last Sunday. He was admitted to $15,000 bail.

Thomas Mitchell, 55, one of the two night-shift employees trussed by a pair of masked gunmen, said he was "jumped" by a man who appeared from a stairway and held a gun at the side of his (Mitchell's) head. Another man sprang from behind and pushed a gun in his side, he said.

The bandits worked two hours to open a safe, from which they stole $3,200 in cash and $1,700 in bonds.

Canada Will Ban Visits Of Russian Officials To Dominion Army Camps

When Soviet Permits Canadian Military Men To Inspect Their Installations

Ruling Will Be Relaxed By Government

By H. L. JONES

OTTAWA, Jan. 23—(CP).—Canada has clamped a ban on visits to her military establishments by Russian military representatives in this country with the declaration that it will remain until the Dominion is afforded such privileges in the Soviet Union. This latest development in the recently-stiffened attitude of the Western democracies toward Russia—it came just two days after an anti-Communist blast by Prime Minister Mackenzie King—was disclosed last night in a statement jointly prepared by the Defence and External Affairs Department. It announced a visit to Canada's big artillery camp at Shilo, Man., next week by a group of nine foreign government representatives but said that this time no Russian representative would be included.

Policy Changed

The statement noted that the Russians had been included in previous visits to camps but this policy now had been changed because Canada's military representatives in Moscow are not permitted to visit Soviet military installations.

"In accordance with the principle of reciprocal treatment, it now has been decided that the Soviet attache will not be invited to visit military establishments in Canada unless similar privileges are extended to the Canadian military attache in Moscow," the statement said.

There was no immediate reaction from Russia's two military representatives in Ottawa — Lt.-Col. Nikolai N. Serov, the acting military attache, and Lt.-Col. Ivan N. Pavshoukov, assistant military attache. Telephone calls to their residences brought this answer, "Not available."

St. Laurent Says He's Prepared To Lead Party

By JACK AVESON

WINNIPEG, Jan. 23 (CP). — Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Minister of External Affairs, today was on record as being prepared to accept national leadership of the Liberal party at such time as Prime Minister Mackenzie King retires, provided such acceptance will "further rather than retard Canadian unity."

The disclosure, made at a press conference yesterday, was followed by an address to the Manitoba Liberal-Progressive Association at which the 65-year-old cabinet minister stressed the importance of national unity and outlined measures taken by the Liberal administration to achieve this state.

His speech, heard by the largest audience ever to attend an annual banquet of the provincial Liberal group, marked the first time Mr. St. Laurent had visited Western Canada since he assumed a cabinet post in 1942.

While he briefly discussed his possible political future at the press conference, no direct mention of it was made in the evening speech.

Won't Have Split

In his press interview, in response to a direct question by The Canadian Press, he said: "If it (leadership of the Liberal party) is something which would further rather than retard Canadian unity I don't see how I could refuse. On the other hand, if there was any indication of a split in the party on religious or racial lines I would not like to be a party to such a split."

Whatever does happen when Mr. King retires, it "will be a matter for the national convention to decide and I am certain all Liberals will abide by convention decisions."

Should the immediate choice fall upon Mr. St. Laurent, he would be following in the footsteps of Laurier, whose seat of Quebec East he has represented since 1942.

Tracing steps taken by the Canadian government in the interests of national unity, Mr. St. Laurent's speech opened last night with reference to financial aid the Dominion has given the United Kingdom.

"I am . . . convinced that it is a fortunate thing for Canada that we did agree to make this loan and that the United States did likewise.

"Had we not extended this credit to the United Kingdom we would not have extended credit to any other devastated country and public opinion among our neighbors to the south was such at that time (1946) that there is good reason to believe they also would have refused . . .

Approve Speech

Speaking in foreign affairs debate initiated yesterday by Bevin, who loosed the Labor government's sharpest attack yet on the Soviet Union, Churchill declared:

"We welcome everything which was said by the Foreign Secretary about the more intimate relations we should keep with France, the Benelux countries (Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg) and, I presume, with Switzerland, if she should wish it, and also with Italy."

Churchill called for speedy action to implement the Bevin policy and urged that it be kept above party politics.

"Let us try to place this above party and bring the personalities of anxious states and nations as a whole into the larger harmony on which their future prosperity and, indeed, their life, may well depend," he declared.

Churchill himself launched a campaign for a United Europe about a year ago, after he returned from the United States, where he called for a close British-American alliance in a speech at Fulton, Mo.

Miss Silvia Pedak, an Estonian who arrived in advance of the group some time ago, was on hand and because of her knowledge of European languages gave valuable assistance to the officials. She is now working in Peterborough.

To Get Citizenship

The first group to arrive in Peterborough, the girls are part of the general scheme for placement of DP's where their services can be used and where they may fit into the national pattern of their adopting country. After a set period, if their work and conduct has been satisfactory, they will be granted full citizenship in Canada. Many of the arrivals left no one at home—because there was no one to leave. The onslaught of armies and the Gestapo saw to that.

Six of the girls will take up work in the Peterborough Civic Hospital, six will enter the service at St. Joseph's and two will remain at the YWCA. General nature of their work will be as kitchen assistants and maintenance staff members.

The 14 were met at Port Hope by Miss Gladys Costello of the Peterborough office of the National Employment Service.

Nearly a dozen languages and combination languages were spoken by the group: Slavic, Italian, German, Slavic-Croat, Russian, Polish, Polish - German, French and English.

Assigned to St. Joseph's Hospital are: Julia Marko, Polish-Ukrainian; Marija Petelin, Ivana Zidanek and Medved, all Yugoslavs, and Anastazja and Joanna Nowak, sisters, of Poland. Joanna is the sole member of the group which ties by language their party and the English-speaking city.

To the Civic Hospital will go six Yugoslavs—Ema, Ivana and Ada Hren, all sisters; Ivana Merhar, Josefa Pugelj and Francka Zidar.

Dairymen Told Price Control Now Inevitable

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 23 (CP).—Prof. David L. MacFarlane of Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., told the annual convention of the Dairy farmers of Canada that controlling prices sometimes tends to encourage a regimented economy but he believes control of some commodity prices in Canada is almost inevitable.

Milk is one product on which price control often is in the public interest, he said in an address last night.

Facing the prospect of price control over some agricultural products called for greater knowledge of economic processes by farmers in general and by farm officials in particular, more tolerance on the part of producers, distributors and consumers, and considerable economic fact-finding.

On the fact-finding score, some provincial milk commissions had fallen down. Data provincial authorities used on cost of production often failed to provide the information they most urgently needed in determining fair milk prices.

"Unquestionably, with the United Kingdom and most of the European countries which constitute Canada's markets using controlled prices, there will be a tendency for Canada to exercise greater control. Furthermore, some organized farm groups are placing their hopes of improving their relative position in the national economy of government marketing schemes."

Regardless of whether marketing schemes were a wise approach to the problem, in Prof. MacFarlane's opinion the groups were attacking a real agricultural problem.

Firming Tendencies Noted On Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(CP).—Selective buying brought firming tendencies to the stock exchange market today in a reversal of yesterday's weak trends. Key industrials moved ahead fractionally and small-lot trading in mines resulted in narrow gains for several issues.

Volume for the first three hours was 415,000 shares, about 68,000 below yesterday's similar period.

Activity in the industrials was narrow and modest gains were scattered through the list. Key issues ahead were Abitibi, Algoma Steel, Argus, Burlington Steel, Famous Players, Ford, Walkers, Simpson and Brown Co.

Golds were mixed on narrow changes. Better issues were Central Patricia, El Sol, Giant, Kirkland Lake, Macassa and Madsen. Base metals were firmer on gains for Smelters, Hudson Bay, Noranda, Steep Rock, Quemont, Noranda, Osisko, MacDonald, Labrador were modest losers.

May Permit U.S. Cars Brought In On Quota

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Importation into Canada of United States-made automobiles, now completely banned under the Dominion's dollar-saving program restrictive imports, may be placed on a quota import basis within the next two weeks, a source close to the Import Administration said last night.

The ban on importation of American cars was made effective last November when Canada's dollar-saving program was announced. At that time Finance Minister Abbott said that it was hoped, however, to allow these automobiles entry to Canada on a quota basis at a later date.

The main speaker will be Major Walter E. Harris, K.C., MP, representative of Grey-Bruce in the Commons. He served with distinction in the Canadian Tank Corps, was wounded shortly after the D-Day landing in France, and is now recognized as one of the outstanding young men of the Dominion government.

The executive of the association is planning an active program for this year, and is hoping that it will begin with a large attendance for the annual meeting.

Eisenhower Rejects Nomination Plans

Cattle Prices Drop 25 Cents On Quiet Market

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP).—Cattle prices dropped 25 cents or more a hundredweight, while hogs, calves and lambs remained steady in a quiet Livestock Market here this week. Sheep opened 50 cents to $1 higher, but lost the advance by the week's close.

A fresh cattle run of some 4,800 head was about the same in volume as the corresponding week of 1947, but added to the supply are 1,000 head carried over from the last week.

Consumers' resistance to higher beef prices, as well as heavy cattle supplies from Western Canada, slowed the market to dull trade, especially towards the close.

Weighty steers closed at $14.50-$17 cwt. with butcher steers and heifers at $15-$15.50. Butcher cows brought $9.50-$12, with canners downward to $6 cwt. Bulls were $8.25-$12 and fed yearlings $14.75-$17. A few stockers sold at $9-$12.50, with better kinds scarce at $13-$13.50. Plain to medium quality milkers and springers brought $90-$125 each.

Only 800 head of hogs were offered, but these remained firm at $21-$22 for choice vealers, with plains downward to $12 cwt. Heavy grassers sold at $10.50-$11.50 cwt.

The general tone of the hog market was weak on small receipts of some 2,500 head. Prices remained steady at $28.50 for Grade A and $28.10 for Grade B1, while sows were $21.50 dressed.

Good lambs from a sheep and lamb run of some 1,000 head sold at $18.50, with plain to medium kinds bringing $13-$17 cwt.

Sheep opened at $5-$10.50 cwt. with higher prices being paid for Western ewes. The close showed prices dropping back to $9-$9.50 for the best Westerns.

Dewart Outlines Life, Work Of Robert Burns

"He showed the peasants that they were important people," said Col. J. A. Dewart of Robert Burns, at a Burns' night meeting of the Kinsmen Club Thursday night.

It is necessary to examine the social conditions in Scotland during Burns' life to understand his work, said the speaker. The two dominant forces of the times — the state and the church — were alike pressing on the peasant class, of which Burns was a member. Under their almost hopeless conditions of poverty, the poorer classes could see but two means of eleviating the misery to some extent — "the conviviality of the bowl" and the "companionship of those of the opposite sex." Burns, he added, participated in both to the full.

Because he was born to the cottage, Burns resented this inequality, a resentment which shows in his work. He taught the peasants that they should not accept the tyranny of the landlords and church leaders and he tried to teach them to think independent of others.

"He wielded the weapon of ridicule extremely well," declared the speaker, mentioning that in those times Burns was regarded as an agitator.

In his address, Col. Dewart described a visit he made in 1945 to the scenes of Burns' life in Scotland.

Burns' grip on the hearts of the common people, he said, was due to the fact that he himself had human weaknesses and could sympathize with others. For those who criticized Burns' personal habits and morals, the speaker quoted a tribute to the Bard of Scotland from Wordsworth:

Enough of sorrow, wreck and blight.
Think only of those moments bright
When, to the consciousness of of right,
His course was true.

The meeting, held at the Kawartha Club, was fittingly opened with the traditional piping in the haggis. Pipe major Robert Webdale and Piper Harry Keith of the Peterborough Pipe Band were the escorts to the haggis.

Burns' tribute to the haggis was read by Adam Sands. The toast to Burns was given by Vern Selkirk.

Outlines High School Area To United Counties Council

COBOURG, Jan. 23.—(ENS).—Operation of a high school area in these counties and how the municipalities might be grouped, was discussed by the Northumberland and Durham Counties Council by S. D. Rendall of the Ont. Dept. of Education. In outlining the functions of such a system he emphasized that he was not trying to tell the counties council to adopt it but was providing the members with information to guide them should they consider it.

The movement to establish high school areas gained momentum from 1944 and had its origin in the fact that rural people had begun to realize that their children were not getting as good a chance for education along secondary school lines as children in urban schools. It was realized that more practical courses were needed in high schools, Mr. Rendall said.

There was better equipment in town and city schools and better accommodations while rural areas were far behind. One reason was lack of money in rural areas and when money was plentiful country folk were cautious and when money was scarce there were not sufficient funds in any event to improve educational facilities. Rural people did not have the chance to give their children the courses available in towns and cities. There were too few pupils in some rural schools to make it worth while to teach these subjects. It was hard to get good teachers and to keep them, due to lack of money available to the school boards. Transportation was another drawback, he said. Up until the amendments to the High School Act, the rurals did not have representation on the high school boards nor much to say in the operation of these schools.

For the reasons outlined, continued the speaker, high school areas had been set up and were completed in nine counties in Ontario with ten just about finished. Northumberland and Durham, he noted, had not started. Under the high school area the dept. would subsidize transportation to the extent of 75%. A high school district should have about eight to ten thousand people resident there and an assessment of seven to eight millions, in an area of about 200 square miles. Fifty-seven districts have been established on that basis. In Northumberland and Durham there could be five high school areas. Where two good schools were situated only about seven to ten miles apart there was a reluctance to give up these schools. The Dept. didn't favour building new schools when it meant empty class rooms in the ones already established. However the schools could co-ordinate their courses and this had been worked out satisfactorily by sending one group to one school for a group of courses and a senior group to the other school.

Makes Suggestions.

Getting down to cases, he suggested that Seymour and Percy Townships might form one part of the area. Murray Township of Brighton and Cramahe Townships could make up another. Haldimand, Hamilton and Alnwick could some in with Cobourg. Perhaps Port Hope might feel it should get part of Hamilton Townships, but this could be adjusted later. Cobourg might say "leave our school alone" but there was nothing to fear that bringing in outside pupils would mean giving up control of the school. South Monaghan might want to use Peterborough high school but it should not be forgotten that the Peterborough schools were for the city, he said. Port Hope High School could have an agricultural course for the pupils from South Monaghan. Millbrook was about equidistant from Port Hope and Peterborough and students could attend at Port Hope. Clarke, Darlington, Manvers and Cartwright could combine and attend the High School at Bowmanville with a second feeder school at Orono and another one at Blackstock. Some arrangement could be made to get the Manvers pupils somewhere. Until after the Royal Commission on education had brought in its findings, he din't see it advisable to consider a part of one county going into another county for high school education. Transportation problems were working out very well in the high school areas with nobody having to walk any further to the source of transportation than he or she did in going to their country school.

The road superintendent, J. M. Jordan, recommended an outlay of $304,000.000 for 1948 of which the government would pay $162,-500. The total in 1947 was $293,-800.00. However, the increase in the 1948 estimates includes bridge construction on which there is an 80% government subsidy, which will reduce the counties share of the entire outlay to the same amount as in 1947.

While it was good business to keep construction as low as possible in view of high costs, it was poor economy to let roads deteriate too much, Mr. Jordan told the council after presenting his report. There were some old bridges that had to be replaced and should be done while the 80% subsidy was in effect. Some of the paving done in 1940 was in bad shape and needed replacing, he said.

Wants Paving.

W. Flynn, chairman of the Suburban Road Commission, told the council that the commission would need around $6,330 in 1948 and would ask for $7,800, being the maximum to which they were entitled in order to have enough extra for future improvement. Of this the Dept. would pay, $3,900; Northumberland County, $1,950 and the town of Trenton, $1,950.

E. Marsden, district engineer of the Dept. informed council that the Dept. favoured some permannet paving being done each year so long as it could be handled without issuing debentures. Northumberland and Durham, were the only counties in his district, he pointed out, that operated with a three-man road commission. Ontario County was one of the counties which had increased its commission from three to five men and he recommended that the same be done in Northumberland and Durham. The Road Commission, as thus constructed, would consist of four members and the warden.

Speaking in the Road and Bridge Committee yesterday afternoon, Reeve Harold Bigelow of Millbrook referred to the subsidy of 50% received by the rurals from the Dept. of Highways while the towns and villages got nothing. He said that the urban municipalites should get some of the rebates. Chairman C. B. Jandrew, reeve of Murray Township, said that the counties did strips 20 feet wide on connecting links through urban municipalites where the need was evident. It was expected that some would be done in Millbro[illegible] this year.

Mr. Marsden [illegible] point, he said that the Act had been amended whereby county road rebates were no longer applicable but the Department compensated the urban municipalities directly on a subsidy paid on operation of equipment but not on purchase of equipment.

The 1948 road estimates consist of commissioners fees, etc., $7,000; administration, $13,000; equipment, $35,000; snow ploughing, etc., $35,000; frost boils, etc., $7,-000; gravel, resurfacing, $20,000; grading, etc., $15,000; brush and weed control, $5,000; stabilizing and dust laying, $10,000; pavement patching, $3,000; guide rail and signs, $1,000; bridge and culvert repairs, $5,000; priming and surfacing primed roads, $18,000; contingency reserves, $10,000; suburban road commission, $2,000; bridge and roads, $94,000.

UNITED COUNTIES WARDEN—Reeve Alex Stephen of Haldimand township was elected warden at Cobourg at the January session of Northumberland and Durham Counties Council. There was a brisk election and six ballots were cast before a clear majority was obtained.

Ask County Council Help Hospital Deficit

WHITBY, Jan. 23—The Oshawa General Hospital, faced with an increasing deficit in its operating costs, today appealed to the Ontario County Council for a grant of $6,000. H. P. Schell, representing the hospital board of directors, told council that the hospital rates had been raised twice during the past year and that a deficit well in excess of $20,000 was expected in 1948.

The request was finally referred to the finance committee for a report after representatives from the northern section of the county claimed that their municipalities were largely served by hospitals in Lindsay and Orillia. "Such a move would set a precedent which would bring similar requests from other hospitals at our next session," stated Reeve G. C. Wilson, Cannington.

Deputy-Reeve D. B. McIntyre, Whitby, suggested that it might be advisable for individual municipalities in the southern half of the county to consider making contributions on a proportionate basis.

Council heard an annual report from the county home board of management recommending that "further committals be refused until more room is made available."

Market Action Shows Contradiction Results

By The Canadian Press

The construction between increased earnings and dividends, higher wholesale and retail sales, and falling stock prices was again indicated by market action yesterday.

Since corporate earnings show no signs of contracting in the forseeable future, and since stock prices are largely determined by anticipated dividends from corporate earnings, some market analysts are turning to the international scene for explanation of the current downward trend in stocks. These analysts relate the weakening price line and the drop in market activity to the continued deterioration in international relations.

The European recovery program is listed in these studies as an important element in the economies of Canada and the United States. In New York, the stock market remains unsettled while Congress considers the various aspects of the program.

For Canada, in addition to the boots to exports, an important phase in Canadian prosperity, there is the possibility that the program will solve the shortage of United States dollars.

YMCA Directors Re-elected At Annual Meeting

No change was made in the board of directors of the Peterborough YMCA at the annual meeting held Thursday night. The following members of the board were re-elected for a term of three years: Charles Lacheur, H. L. Garner, I. F. McRae, G. S. Matthews, P.M. McCarrell, and W. A. Richardson.

The board of directors were guests of the Y's Men's Club for dinner. Chairman of the club, Ken Jackson, presided, and being near Burns' Day, the songs sun had the flavor of tunes North of the Border.

Miss Lenore McIlvena, who has worked with the YMCA for a number of years, was presented with a gift on the event of her forthcoming marriage. She responded to the good wishes from the Y's Men's Club.

The president in his report told of increase in membership in the Boys' Department, which on December 31 totalled 383. Renewals of membership were 231 and new members were 152.

147 Boys At Camp.

Speaking of Camp Kawartha, sponsored by the Y's Men's Club during July and August, and directed by Nihill Munro, there was a capacity registration of 368 weeks as compared to 361 weeks for the preceding year. The fine holiday was enjoyed by 147 boys.

At th public school swimming classss, 176 boys took part in th classes, and 749 people attended the competitions.

The physical department reported that a program of swimming instruction had been carried out during the year for boys, starting with non-swimmers and progressing through the Tadpole to Junior Swimming Club. In the fall the club reached its highest peak with as many as 35 boys turning out.

World Service Fund.

The report of the general secretary intimated that the most important undertaking of the association during 1947 was the campaign for the World Service Fund in co-operation with the YMCA's of Canada and the United States to help restore the work of associations in the countries devastated by war. Early in the year they accepted the responsibility of raising $5,000 payable during 1947 and 1948.

It was decided to combine with this the World Service budget of $1,000 for each year, making a total of $7,000. Over $5,000 has already been forwarded to the international commimttee.

The total number of members in the association has been at a high level, with the gratifying increase in the Business Men's section. The total men's membership is 685 and the Boys' Department 383, making a total membership of 1,068. Revenue from membership was $6,273.30 in the men's department and $995.15 in the boys', making a total of $7,268.45. Last year the total was $7,357.85.

Rooms in the dormitory have been in great demand, and the revenues from such reached an all-time high figure of more than $7,000, being $1,000 more than in 1946.

Both the Friday Night Club and the Y's Men's Club reported a successful year. The Rotary Club is planning to co-operate with the Y's Men's Club in extensive improvement to the fine camp property on Clear Lake.

Rod Blackwell took over from John Turner the chairman's duties in the Friday Night Club. The outstanding feature of the club was the Christmas carol service in the Collegiate Auditorium, with more than 300 people unable to find accommodation.

The Triangle Club was formed in the fall [illegible] the Sunday Afternoon started in the spring comprises a group of more than 40 young people who meet for a period of devotion and friendship between 4:30 and 6:45 p.m. Joe Cooke is chairman and Art Jones song leader.

The operating account of the association for the year stood at $32,023.95. The following analysis is given: By membership $7,-268.45, subscriptions $10,500, dormitories $7,011.75, bowling $1,-755.75, billiards $694, baths $3,-562.14, activities $794.95, World Service $251, miscellaneous $186.27; total $32,023.95.

LINDSAY, Jan. 23—(ENS)— A 3.75 mill rate was set by Victoria County Council in committee yesterday afternoon for county road purposes. This will be levied in the six southern townships, Eldon Mariposa, Verulam, Ops, Fenelon and Emily which make up the county road system constituency and will bring in $105,750. Total estimated expenditures were set at $149,000 with the provincial subsidy reducing the amount to be levied to $105,750. Of the levy $48,000 was set aside for a road building program, county engineer H. D. Wilford pointed out the $48,000 figure had been estimated on the assumption that snow removal expenditures would be much lower than last year when they reached the unprecedented height of $34,000.

Reeve Chas. D. Logan of Verulam wanted the rate to be struck at 4 mills with the additional $9,-300 so levied to be used on a road building program. He said Verulam had stood aside while roads were built in Ops and Emily and now felt they were entitled to better county roads. "Taxes are easier to collect now and this is the time to carry on an extensive program", he declared.

County Clerk F. L. Weldon disclosed the debenture debt of the county was approximately $50,-000 and none of that was charged to county roads.

In his annual report county engineer H. D. Wilford said a sharp decrease in the road building program last year was caused by the heavy costs of snow removal. Only $4,119 was spent in construction of an alloted $35,-000.

Maintenance of roads cost the county $86,601. Mr. Wilford told members the county owned 220.2 miles of road in the county of which 36.2 miles were paved. There is also 103 miles of King's highway in the county. Broken down into townships there is 51.2 miles of county roads and kings highways in Eldon township, 71.1 miles in Mariposa, 39 miles in Verulam, 56 miles in Ops, 55 miles in Fenelon and 50.9 miles in Emliy township.

The road and bridges committee, under the chairmanship of Reeve W. S. Worsley made a grant of $400 to the township of Somerville to continue the road into the county forest. A request from Fenelon Falls for a $400 grant to assist the village to install a lighting system on the proposed Fenelon Falls Bridge was ordered filed. A further request, this from the town of Lindsay, asking that the county widen its half of the Lindsay street bridge was filed for future reference.

The county engineer asked for a salary increase from $3,600 to $4,-500 and an increase in car allowance of one cent a mile. In view of his 18 years service with the county and the increased work involved in the inspection and repair of the bridges taken over and to be taken over by the county, Mr. Wilford's request was granted.

A deputation from the Victoria County Plowmen's Association yesterday asked county council for a grant of $4,000 to help defray expenses in connection with the coming of the International plowing match here this fall. Mr. Chas. Shier, one of the deputation, said that if possible all of the grant would be rfunded the county following the match.

M. H. Winter pointed out the only income from the match for the association would be from parking. $8,000 was realized from that source last year at Kingston, he said. Others who spoke in support of the garnt were Provincial Director John A. Mark, president of the association, Jas. Clyley, Mayor Chas. Lamb, D. McQuarrie, R. Butler, Bruce McNevin.

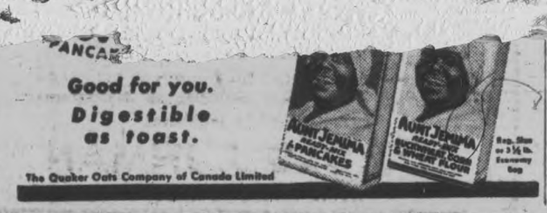
Quebec Refuses Pressure Pact; Debate Near End

QUEBEC, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Financial considerations will not force Quebec to accept Federal proposals on taxation, Hon. Paul Beaulieu, Quebec Trade and Commerce Minister, told the Legislative Assembly yesterday as debate on the Throne Speech neared its close.

Mr. Beaulieu said the province's finances had risen to a level where Quebec does not have to sign any unwanted agreement with the Federal authorities on taxation.

He described "formidable" development in Quebec and expansion of Hydro-Electric facilities beyond wartime increase of capacity which had been expected to suffice for immediate post-war industrial needs.

Quebec was receiving a large share of investment in Canada of British, United States and other foreign capital because of the firmness of the Provincial Government, said the minister.



"Quebec does not have to kneel and sign an agreement it fears," he added.

The Perversion Of The Amusement Tax

Mr. Abbott, the Finance Minister for the Dominion, has said that the Amusement Tax will shortly be returned to the provinces, for levy and use as they see fit. As a result there have been many rumours about what the provinces will do with the money which they raise through Amusement Tax (which has amounted to $5,000,000 annually from Ontario alone) and it has been suggested that this tax money will be devoted to provincial hospitals.

* * *

We hope that not all of this large sum will be frittered away on charities and good works of one sort and another. The tax is levied on amusement, and we should like to see the whole sum devoted to the encouragement in this province of amusement and entertainment of the highest kind. In Canada the taxing authorities regard amusements of all kinds as easy marks for a large and easily collected tax, not a single penny of which is devoted to the cultural development of the country. In our opinion the Amusement Tax should be earmarked specifically for that purpose.

* * *

Outside of Toronto has Ontario a symphony orchestra, or a living theatre, or an art gallery of any consequence, or a museum which is more than a collection of curios? No, it has not. With money collected by Amusement Tax Ontario could send a symphony orchestra to its principal centres two or three times a year. It could support a theatrical company which could travel, playing a repertory of great plays in every town with a decent hall. It could send a special train containing some of the best things from the Royal Ontario Museum all over the Province, so that everyone could see them. It could make the Toronto Art Gallery one of the best small galleries on this continent, and send loan exhibitions to centres where they could be seen and enjoyed by the people of Ontario. It could make grants to local historical societies which showed particular promise. It could, in fact, do the work which the British Council does in England.

* * *

It is vital that some work of this kind be done in Ontario. Any project which appeals to the public as charitable—such as hospitals—can get money from the public purse. But perhaps if we gave our people more to think about, more to enjoy, and a more abundant intellectual life we would not need so many hospitals. The people of Ontario live a good life materially, but intellectually they are kept on a Belsen diet. If the money derived from Amusement Tax is perverted to other uses than cultural ones a great opportunity will have been missed, and political opportunism [illegible] sentimentalism will [illegible]

Manners In Ministries

The Manchester Guardian notes that the British Ministry of Labour is distributing a small book among its staff pointing out the virtues of good manners and clear English in the writing of letters to the public. A "patronizing or condescending manner" is condemned and a horrible example quoted:

"If you care to call at this address an officer will be pleased to grant you an interview".

"I have received your registration form and would like you, if possible, to come for an interview in the near future, any time between 11 and 12".

We have ceased to let our hair bristle over letters we get from Ottawa or Toronto, for we have long since become hardened to the so-called "business English" of secretaries and clerks. We do think, however, that politeness requires that a letter sent to Ottawa asking for information urgently required should receive some kind of reply before a month has elapsed. Telegrams are speedier: a reply to one will often come in a week or two.

The kind of letter varies with the Department. The National Revenue people, for instance, seem to have an unlimited supply of nasty-worded secretaries. They can write letters about your income tax for 1942 (unpaid, according to them) which are calculated to make you feel like a centipede lousy with guilt. Or like a boiling lobster red with futile rage. In the Department of Mines and Resources there is lady (young, we hope) who replied in most chatty, affable phrases. "Do let me know if we can be of any further assistance to you", she says. That, now, is a nice, personal touch. You never catch the National Revenue blokes saying things like that.

It is a remarkable commentary on democratic government that a letter of complaint gets a speedy reply from an official in the hierarchy. A really scalding letter sometimes brings a placating letter from the Minister himself, who ends it most flatteringly with "Your humble servant". But if something has moved you to commendation (like an affable customs man at the border or an unusually sane departmental decree), your letter goes unacknowledged for weeks, and then comes a brief reply from some crisp sixth secretary. What is the matter with our Ministers? Do they think that there is a worm in every apple? Does praise embarrass them? Maybe they are so used to adverse criticism that one letter of commendation fluffs them into a week's twittering, speechless delight, and only a remote underling can be entrusted with a "Thank You" which doesn't reveal a minister drunk with praise.

There are no machines yet which can read letters. The style and tone of letters written to government offices, or coming from those offices, would be greatly improved if the writers remembered that some person is going to read them. The person might even be literate.

How Not To Interpret The News

Mr. Mackenzie King made a speech in Ottawa announcing his intention of retiring from the Liberal Party leadership. Some people seem unable to believe a word Mr. King says, or they think that he has said more than he did. That is strange, for there is no man in Canadian public life who speaks with more careful clarity than the Prime Minister.

Several newspapers emphasized the news that the Prime Minister would retire in August. Mr. King said not a word about the date. Perhaps the headline writers were merely presuming, and dating the event on the date of the National Liberal Convention. There was no date mentioned for the calling of the convention.

Some editorial writers, even of papers which carried the date of the Prime Minister's retirement, said that Mr. King had not definitely stated that he would retire. The Globe and Mail commented that: "His own intentions as leader and Prime Minister were left concealed in the remainder of a three-thousand word maze".

If professional doubters read Mr. King's alleged "maze" of words even cursorily they would notice these words:

I stated at the commencement of the last general election, and repeated at different times in the course of the campaign, that, come what may, the general election of 1945 would be the last general election in which I would lead the party.

I have, as you know...made similar statements from time to time, both to our own party organizations and in public. I should not like now to be accused of never having meant what I said; to have said what I said for what might be termed party political reasons.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We read that the Arabs who are permitted four wives by their religion, are limiting themselves to one. There's austerity for you!

There is a boy in Alaska who can whistle through his ear, and the Ottawa Citizen very properly comments that this lucky lad is able to let the hit tunes come in one ear and gc out the other.

Nobody would argue against the use of the tender system by public bodies in letting contracts. But there have been innumerable cases, in recent years, where business houses refused to tender—because of uncertain costs or shortage of labour or both—and then, if the work is imperative, an agreement with some reliable firm to do it on a cost-plus basis is the only solution.—Ottawa Journal.

By PAUL SCOTT MOWRER

"JUST what is this Third Force everyone in France seems to be talking about?" asked my American friend.

"It's a new political group advocated by the socialist leader Leon Blum", I said. "It's an attempt to build a permanent majority on what is generally called the left centre, equally opposed to dictatorship of the right and dictatorship of the left."

"Meaning, I suppose," said my friend, "Communists and Gaullists."

"Exactly. It grew out of the unexpected and astonishing success of the Gaullists in the recent municipal elections. They became overnight the biggest single party in France. Most conservatives, most Catholics, many moderates, and apparently even some socialcialists and what was the left of the once large Catholic party to survive has to get together in a combination, if possible, with the liberals."

"And are they succeeding?"

"TO some extent. A New Third Force bureau has just been formed to begin serious political organization. It consists so far only of Socialists and Catholics. The liberals are watching and waiting. The liberals were the only party except the Gaullists who gained in the municipal elections. They don't want to lose their identity just when they are beginning to stage a comeback."

"Isn't that a rather odd combination—Socialists, Catholics, and liberals"?

"Yes" I said, "For years the Socialists and liberals have opposed the Catholics. Also the Socialists and liberals disagree completely on a controlled economy. But necessity is the mother, not alone of invention, but also of compromise. The present Shuman government is a Third Force government. Its success against the Communist-led strikes brought it considerable prestige. On new financial measures with both Communists and Gaullists in opposition it has been able to put through a rather unpopular program with small but sufficient majorities."

"HOW strong is it really?"

"I don't know. Nobody can tell. People take strange swings in times like these. The last test was made in Havre which is supposed to be a fairly red town. The Communists got 40 per cent. of the votes, the Gaullists another 40 per cent. and the Third Force only 20 per cent. In the previous municipal elections as a whole the Gaullists won still more and the Communists considerably less. This led to the Gaullists wisecrack that the Third Force is certainly third, but is it a force. One Gaullist leader has said the idea that a Third Force should take the lead in France is the same as if the liberals should announce their intention to take the lead in England."

"Yet you say the Third Force is strong enough to govern at present."

"YES, because when the assembly was elected the relative strength of the parties was very different. Gaullism didn't even exist. That's why the Gaullists are demanding that the assembly dissolve itself and call for new elections. But whoever heard of elected persons freely submitting themselves to possible political suicide. So the Gaullists will have to wait. They might win an election held now but can they win a year or two from now? That's the whole question. Their only chance of gaining power sooner would seem to lie in the outbreak of new disorders or a prolonged political crisis."

"But aren't new disorders inevitable this spring?" asked my friend.

"Everybody says so. Personally I doubt it."

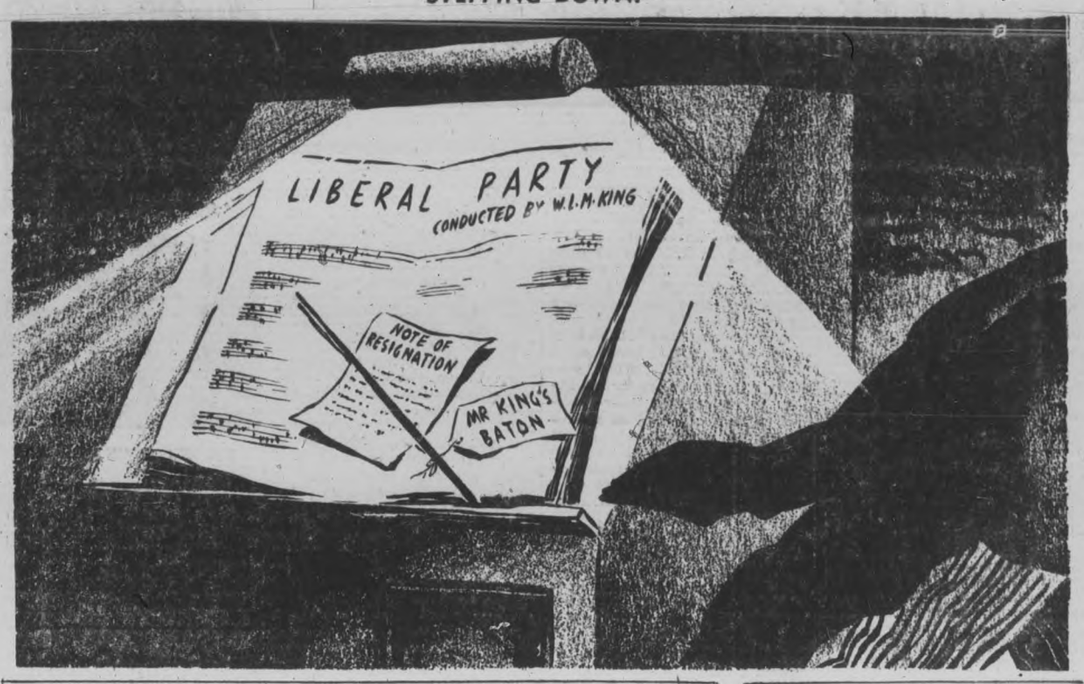
"But you agree de Gaulle wants to be a dictator."

◇ ◇ ◇

"ACCORDING to his opponents, yes. That's their story and they will stick to it. The socialists now say de Gaulle's rather syndicalist social program as explained by him at Saint Etienne is more reactionary than Petain, more fascist than Mussolini, and more statist than Stalin. But Gaullists deny all these and other charges, including that of being reactionary and dictatorial, with deepest indignation."

"There does seem to be a lot of feeling", said my friend.

"Yes, on both sides or rather on all sides".



"And people keep asking me", I said. 'It's France's business. In present circumstances almost any non-communist French government is likely to be very friendly toward the United States and it toward them. What more can either America or they ask?"

The Windsor Articles

[illegible] pattern about [illegible] Kn[illegible] gaoms] dull but dissi[illegible] ically correct George III as successor. After the wildly rakish sons of George III comes that model of all the virtues, Queen Victoria. The eldest son of Victoria and Albert the Good is the gay Edward VII, whose conduct as Prince of Wales earns the rebuke of the Archbishop of Canterbury, not to mention the severe displeasure of his father and mother. In George V we get back to propriety and stern discipline which, as the articles the Duke of Windsor has now contributed to the American press show, produces in his son the frustration which leads in time to the Abdication. The Duke gives more than a hint that it was the quarterdeck behaviour of his father that drove him to revolt, just as it was Albert's unsympathetic severity that made Prince Edward kick over the traces. I remember Margot Oxford telling me a story which illustrated King George V's unwise behaviour to his son. The Prince of Wales came into the room in a knickerbocker costume which his father thought unsuitable. He shouted at him as a naval officer might at an A.B. who had come improperly dressed on parade. The Prince blushed and stammered and left the room. Margot said that she ventured on this occasion to remonstrate with the King, pointing out how sensitive a boy in his teens must be to a public rebuke in the presence of visitors.—New Statesman.

Letters To The Editor

SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

Sir: May I ask you to spare a little space in your valuable and much appreciated paper, to express my forecast of "things to come". Should the present situation regarding skyrocketing prices prevail. Here you have in a unique but sincere presentation:

Depression Nightmare

We owe bills we cannot pay,
And the worries pile up day by day:
And skies are dark and grim and gray
So there's no sun or cheerful ray.

The house is cold and the woodbox there,
Now is old and very bare,
While the coalbin yawns in dreary gloom
And an icy chillness fills the room.

Our clothes are threadbare, patched and worn
And the shoes we wear are most forlorn,
Misfortune seems to dog our path
And haunts our thoughts like the "day of wrath".

The pantry shelves that groaned with food
Are empty now, and shadows brood
Where once Lucullian feasts were planned
By active brain and skilful hand.

The only man I'd like to curse,
Is the one who says: Things might be worse!
Or the one who talks about the dawn,

I'm tired of worry and gloom and tears,
Of blasted hopes and ghosts and fears;
Of endless days and sleepless nights
That addle the brain and dim the sight.

But the only thing in all this gloom,
Is the gruesome thought of an empty tomb!
No rent to pay, no food, no fuel — is needed there—
But—the end is cruel!

DISAPPOINTED IN PRIVATE BILL

Sir: A large number of people is disappointed that the petition for the private bill submitted by the City Council has not contained a provision for taking over the Exhibition Park and using this for municipal, civic and community purposes.

When the annexation took place, a delegation of the people in the annexed area specifically asked the members of the council that George street be extended through the Exhibition Park to furnish an artery of communication for all those people living south of the Exhibition Park and my recollection is that all the members of the council that were present at that meeting gave the assurance to those people that they personally were in favour of that plan.

The Memorial Centre money is still standing in the bank unused and there does not seem to be any movement toward utilizing this large fund towards building a Memorial Centre, although some years have passed since the scheme was first promoted. The committee can hardly be blamed for this delay as they have been beset with a great many difficulties and problems by reason of the necessity of changing plans through the increased cost of construction and the difficulty in locating a site.

The people are disappointed that the City Council did not introduce into the petition a provision for this Memorial Centre to function with the monies we now have or which may come from the citizens of Peterborough.

The people at the south end of the city are emphatically protesting that nothing is being done about the Exhibition Park since the Exhibition Board has ceased to function as a Board and the property is taxable because it is being used for commercial purposes. Many citizens from the south end of the city are very definite in the statement that unless this matter is dealt with at the February session of the Legislation there will be many new faces in the City Council and there are enough votes in the Park Street-Lansdowne-Lock Street areas to change the complexion of the council very materially.

I do not wish to be considered as criticising the council because there may be another meeting at which this matter will be dealt with but I have been asked by a substantial number of ratepayers to state these facts to the public and to give their views, not only to the council but to the public too.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

BARRIER TO SOUTH END PROGRESS

Sir: The question of the Exhibition Grounds is occupying the minds of quite a few people both in and out of the city. I would like to express some of the views I have heard on the subject. This unsightly piece of property surrounded by a dilapidated board fence is no longer suitable for its original purpose.

The approaches to the city on Highway 7, which is becoming one of the most travelled in Ontario, are completely marred by this unsightly property, on what would otherwise be a beautiful avenue. Travellers on No. 7 must think this a one horse town to permit this, not forgetting the tumble down "main gate" at the end of our main street. It seems strange that this extremely valuable land given by a civic-minded gentleman in good faith cannot be used for what it is most suited for, namely a park with tourist accommodation, Memorial Sports Centre at the east end and facilities for every kind of outdoor sport. How in the name of common sense this project (the Memorial Centre) with no commercial or profit making motives attached could conflict with Mr. Morrow's wishes, I can't for the life of me tell.

All the explanations published so far leave the public just as much in the dark as ever. When at the time of annexation of the Claraday district I lead a deputation to the City Council all were agreed that George St. eventually must be carried through the property. Nothing has yet been done.

I would like to state that if the City Council can't make better use of the park let it go back to the Morrow estate who would no doubt put it to better use.

As an Exhibition Grounds many are agreed that this is no longer the proper place for it. Make it a real agricultural fair outside the city where the space for all its activities would be easily available. We can have a midway on any vacant lot in the city at anv time as this is the main attraction as far as many city dwellers are concerned.

As for the thoroughfare through the grounds, I would like to hear from persons interested with a view to waiting on Council to decide this matter once and for all and remove this barrier to the progress of the south end.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 11

My grandfather was buried on May 20, a hot and sultry day. Nine monarchs on horseback, led by my father as King, rode in the funeral procession from Westminster Abbey to Paddington Station.

Emperor William II. of Germany, on a white charger and in the uniform of a British field-marshal, was at my father's side. With his spiked moustache and glittering eye he was an imperious figure. Knowing my family regarded him with some suspicion, I could not take my eyes off him.

Mary and I rode with my mother in a state coach. A hush lay over the dense, perspiring, and fainting crowds, broken only by the sounds of the horses' hoofs, the mournful funeral marches, and the laments on the bagpipes. It was all overpowering and even a little eerie. And in the atmosphere at Windsor there was the same chill that had been experienced in this place when my great-grandmother Queen Victoria was laid to rest.

With my grandfather's death, my parents moved out of the satellite orbits which they had occupied until then.

Prepare to Move

Buckingham Palace, Windsor, and Balmoral passed now to them, and as soon as my grandmother's grief subsided preparations were started for tranporting her possessions from the Palace to Marlborough House so as to make room for us.

In one important respect, however, our lives did not change. At Sandringham, in Norfolk, we continued to live on in York Cottage, leaving my grandmother in possession of the Big House. This was a real inconvenience to my parents for there was no room in our already overcrowded establishment for the extra staff which in the discharge of his royal duties, my father required.

Yet he could not bring himself to ask Queen Alexandra to exchange houses. His attitude caused my mater to point out that, as a practical mother, it was rather ridiculous for one old lady to reside in grandeur in that vast mansion while the King and Queen lacked room in the congested Cottage for a single guest.

But my father always insisted, "It is my mother's home. My father built it for her." So Queen Alexandra remained at Sandringham until her death in 1925. She closed off my grandfather's room, leaving everything in place exactly as if he still were alive. No one ever slept there again as long as Queen Alexandra lived. Whenever I returned to Sandringham, even when I visited there briefly as King, the very air still seemed to be alive with the throb of King Edward's powerful personality.

Anxious to allay my debut in official life until I had at least completed naval college, my father sent me back to Dartmouth when the funeral ceremonies were over. By then I had lost three weeks of the summer term, and I was desperately worried over falling behind in my work. My one thought was to resume as quickly as possible my ordered cadet life. My termmates welcomed me with appropriate condolences, yet in a way difficult to express there grew up unconsciously among them a subtle respect for my new status as heir apparent. As my father had moved up, so by the law of succession had I. With my grandfather's death I succeeded to a number of titles, of which one, Duke of Cornwall, immediately became my name, the one to which my correspondence was addressed and to which I answered on parade and in classroom. However, my classmates continued to call me Prince Edward.

Duke of Cornwall

Whereas my other titles carried neither income nor duties, my becoming Duke of Corwall conferred immediate practical advantages. Created six centuries ago for the Black Prince, the Duchy is the personal estate of the King's eldest son, the income of which serves the purpose of making him financially independent.

Still, I do not recall that this new wealth gave rise to any particulare satisfaction at the time. The discovery that little could be done without money was reserved for a later stage of my education.

Contrary to popular belief, the King's eldest son does not by right become Prince of Wales. If the King should decide that his first son were unfit to bear the title he could withhold it. And in point of fact my father, a stickler for form, did not create me Prince of Wales until some six weeks after my grandfather died.

On my 16th birthday I was summoned to Windsor Castle from Dartmouth, and in a conversation lasting but a minute, my father informed me that he deemed me worthy to assume the title of Prince of Wales.

Next day the Archbishop of Canerbury arrived, and, with the choir singing "Fight the Good Fight," I was confirmed in the private chapel with my parents, grandmother, and other relatives as congregation.

My life now streched like a straight road before me. Nothing, save death itself, was likely to prevent my one day becoming "By the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Dominions Beyond the Seas King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India."

Arrest Doctor For Assault

DETROIT, Jan. 23—(CP)—Dr. Henslee Tann, 41, twice acquitted on charges of performing illegal operations, was arrested early today for allegedly criminally attacking a 25-year-old Canadian woman.

The unmarried woman, who identified Dr. Tann in a police lineup, said the incident took place last night when she went to the doctor's office to discuss an illegal operation.

Police withheld the name of the complainant although she is understood to be from Sarnia, Ont.

Prosecutor James McNally said the complainant told him she became frightened after meeting Dr. Tann but did permit him to conduct an examination. After the alleged assault she said she rushed from the office and went to receiving hospital where physicians confirmed that she had been attacked.

In an informal statement to police, Dr. Tann denied attacking the girl but refused to make a formal statement to Prosecutor McNally.

Dr. Tann is free under $10,000 bond pending trial on another illegal operation charge and a hearing scheduled for March 17.

30,000 Workers Use 17 Rinks

A total of more than 30,000 skaters attended the seven major rinks in Peterborough since the beginning of January.

Riverside is tops with 8,585. Then come King Edward, 4,653, Orphanage, 4,484; Confederation, 3,831; Bonnerworth, 3,725; Turner, 3,650; Inversea, 1,883. Of this number 11,891 were girls, 13,132 were boys, and 5,788 were adults (over 16).

Reports show that good clean ice is available most of the time and maintenance has been excellent. Music on Riverside is very popular and the musical experiment at Turner Park has proven successful.

Separate hockey and pleasure skating rinks have eliminated many of the disputes that arose previous years. Children have maintained good discipline, and have helped to clear the rinks.

How better radio tubes create employment for Canadians

In the very earliest type of three-electrode radio tubes produced about 1906-7, various metals were tried. Some of these were too expensive. Others corroded, or were difficult to keep clean during the manufacturing process.

Lee DeForest, the inventor of the Audion tube, found that Nickel has become the heart of long distance telephone service. The development of motion picture films with sound tracks, as well as amplifiers for public address systems, have been made possible entirely by vacuum tubes.

Previous to 1906 not a single pound of Canadian Nickel was being used in vacuum tubes. Today hundreds of tons of it are used in [illegible] of radio and telephone [illegible] tubes.

So today the metal parts of vacuum tubes are being made almost entirely of Nickel or some alloy of Nickel. The International Nickel Company's research department has co-operated with the radio industry in the development of the best Nickel alloys for use in radio tubes.

Improvements in the vacuum tube have steadily increased its uses. It [illegible] Canadian Nickel, brought about through scientific research means jobs for hundreds of men in the Canadian Nickel industry. The expansion of the radio industry, in which Nickel has played a part, has also provided employment for thousands of Canadians. Thus does research develop better products, create more employment.

NHL Leaders Face Trouble Meeting Tail-end Teams

By The Canadian Press

The two bottom teams in the National Hockey League are going to have a big say in the league leadership question this week-end. The Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings, tied for the leadership, each have a double engagement. Leafs entertain Chicago tail-end Black Hawks Saturday and then travel to Chicago Sunday. Detroit goes to Montreal Canadiens Saturday and then takes on the Canadiens at Detroit Sunday.

The fifth game of the week-end has the New York Rangers at Boston Sunday night, where a victory for Bruins would pull them into a tie for third place with the Rangers.

As the two-thirds mark of the schedule approaches—all teams now have completed 37 out of 60 games—every contender appeared in good shape except for the Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins. The Canadiens have been managing with Billy Reay in place of old Toe Blake on their punch line since the veteran Blake suffered a double leg fracture recently. Boston still is getting along without defenceman Johnny Crawford, whose leg was hurt, but Crawford should be back next week.

Take No Chances

Getting back to the leaders, it may sound like the old malarkey but this time it's the truth—neither Toronto nor Detroit can take any chances whatsoever with their opponents this week-end.

On their last appearance at Toronto the Hawks lost 6-4 to the Leafs, but it was a lot closer than that. Chicago beat Canadiens 3-1 at Chicago Wednesday and they've been going like a house afire since Charlie Conacher took over the coaching duties.

Leafs have lost fewer games than any team this season, but one of those losses was to the same Hawks and the Hawks now are considerably improved. The only really vulnerable spot would appear to be in goal, where Emile (Cat) Francis of Regina has had some harrowing nights.

King Edward Loses

May's and Confederation school opened the Junior School Hockey League at the Turner Park rink on Thursday evening.

The teams opened the game cautiously, trying to guess the other's strength. Confederation scored on a long shot by Dustan, to be closely followed by one from R. Bryan. Both teams worked hard and at the end the score was May's 0, Confederation 5.

Bob Faiers was a standout for the losers. R. Bryan scored two and Dunstan three. Teams:

Referee—J. Barnard.

It's a long way till spring but the lacrossers are a-stirrin' already. The other e'en they organized the Peterborough Minor Lacrosse Association. It will include four bantam teams of boys 12 to 14 years of age, four midgets of 14 to 16 years, and four juveniles of 16 to 18. Latter will take in also any 19-year-olds who were playing last year—so they won't be lost. They'll have an OLA affiliation and work under the senior "B" club, provincial champs. Ken Kingston is chairman of this setup and the directors are: Juveniles—Walt Murphy; midgets—Harry Tudhope; bantams—Vert Reynolds. These chaps will work with the minor team managers, while senior "B" coaches will rotate on the job under general supervision of an imported senior "A" coach.

A Full-Time Job

It might be emphasized that this senior "A" star—who will play for the Petes—will do nothing all summer but drill and coach these minors on a full-time job. Petes' players will take turn about coaching under him so the kids will get all angles of tutoring, that is centre, rover, wings, defence and goalie. Boy Scouts already have indicated they want to enter and other clubs, manufacturers, etc., will be invited to sponsor teams. The PMLA teams will have full use of Miller Bowl for drills and games and will have complete equipment as well as a big spring school of instruction. Recreation Commission will be asked for a grant, a bingo will be run for them, and five per cent of all home senior "B" games will go toward the financing of the PMLA. Good going.

No need to say much about the Legion-Petes' senior "B" puck fixture tonight at 8.30 in Omemee. It's another "natural" as fans of both classy local clubs (as well as Omemee and Lindsay folk) well know. On good ice, they should dish up a dandy duel again before a full house and anything can happen. Legionnaires figure it's their turn this time while the Petes figure they can't lose on Omemee ice, but in any case it'll be a sweet scrap—and with no love lost, betwixt these fast-stepping squads. Local fans should get there early (unless they have reserves) if they want a good seat.

Harold Luke of Oshawa, past prexy of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, and others have been invited. So there it is, folks.

Return Of Joey

Joe Catlin returned to the puck wars for Kingston Saints the other gloaming on home ice and led them to a surprise 11-7 OHA senior "B" win over Belleville Vets. He scored three goals and set up six more for nine scoring points. The Vets were jarred right down to their heels as they figured the Saints as a setup. Looks like we're in a real solid grouping all the way through now. Petes lead with four wins and a loss, Legion are next with three and three, Belleville have two victories against three reverses, and Kingston two nods and four nays. Petes have a postponed game with Belleville yet. Kingston play in Belleville tonight.

Lakefield Lions Bow 10-7 To Bobcaygeon

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 23.—(ENS).—Lakefield Lions bowed for the third time of the season to the husky northern Kinsmen from Bobcaygeon in a close 10-7 battle last night on home ice.

Lions put up their best battle of the season before a packed rink against the smooth-working 'Caygeon crew, edging them 2-1 in the first, holding them 5-all in the second, only to have weight count in the last when the invaders ran in five goals to their two, despite brilliant efforts of the little Lion red-headed goalie Wasson.

The initial fracas saw Lions jump into a quick lead at the five minute mark as Birch scored on an assist by Dracup. Brandt Phillips, assisted by Nicholls, evened it 12 minutes later, and Ross Calberry put Lakefield one up five minutes after with an assist going to Morrison.

Lions' centre, Birch, on a lone burst, put the Lions two up to open the second. Westlake reduced it one for the Kinsmen three minutes later only to have Morrison, assisted by R. Calberry, put Lakefield two up again a minute later. Westlake and Fawcette returned one minute later to turn the light on and the battle see-sawed for 13 minutes before Nicholls scored to even it. Kimble put Kinsmen one up two minutes after on an assist from Downey, but Knox came through as the period ended with an assist from Birch. Score 5-5.

The northerners went out for a killing in the final round as the Philips brothers teamed up to take the lead. Kimble, assisted by Parker, added another, with the Phillips team combining again, this time Ralph scoring. Jerry Nicholls made it four three minutes after to be followed by the third goal for the Phillips brothers in the period. Things looked dark for the Lions, down five goals, but they kept punching away and Hockaday beat Poole on a solo and three minutes later Evans whipped in another, assisted by Birch just in time to beat the gong.

Referee—McIntosh.

Bobcaygeon—Goal, Ross Poole; Defence, Gordon Downey, Don Parker; centre, Brandt Phillips; wings, Jerry Nicholls, Ralph Phillips; alternates, Dawson Kimble, Bryce Adams, John Westlake, Jim Fawcette.

Confederation Wins

Confederation Jrs. and King Edward Jrs. played an interesting league game on the Confederation rink. Confederation had their second win of the season to the tune of 3 to 1.

Exchanges were fast and dangerous, with Confederation getting the first goal by R. Bryan Buchan immediatelly tied it up to end the period.

Ron Bryan added another in the second period, while Dunstan finished the scoring in the third.

Standouts for King Edward were Marv. Buchan and Tiny Hunt. Teams:

Confedertaion—Goal, M. Bryan; defence, R. Bryan, R. Miller, forwards, E. Dunstan, B. Bryan M. Parry; subs, B. Bolton, D Stone, B. Davies.

A $50 bill—or the lack of it—may keep Canada's four-man speed skating team out of the Olympics. That's the amount of back dues owed by the Canadian Speed-Skating Association to the International Skating Union and at St. Moritz, Switzerland, ISU officials said unless the $50 is forthcoming by Jan. 29 the Canadian team may watch the events from the sidelines. The sum represents the Canadian group's dues for 1948.

The Canadian ski team at Davos, Switzerland, now near the bottom of its pocketbook, was informed that $1,400 is en route from the Canadian Amateur Skiing Association.

Oshawa Gens Edge Guelph In 3-2 Triumph

By The Canadian Press

It's an ill wind that doesn't blow somebody good—or, to state the case differently, Oshawa Generals move within 1½ games of first-place Windsor Spitfires in the OHA Junior A race as Guelph Biltmores sank deeper into the mire of eighth place.

With no Senior A games scheduled, the Generals last night at Galt gained a narrow 3-2 victory over the Biltmore in the only Junior A tilt of the evening.

Fiery Eric Pogue netted twice in the first period for the Generals and in the third frame Lucky Brandow's shot bounced off a skate and into the net for Oshawa's finaly tally. Yacker Flynn and Neil Gordon scored for Guelph.

Defeat virtually cancelled all Guelph hopes for a playoff berth. With only seven games to play, the last place Biltmores are 3½ games behind the sixth-place Toronto Marlboros—holders of the last playoff spot.

Only untoward event of the night came in the second frame when a spectator slapped Oshawa's Joe LaFrance with a program. LaFrance threw a punch at the spectator and a policeman escorted the irate fan to a seat well out of slapping reach.

Three Senior A clashes are scheduled for tonight—Brantford at Toronto Marlboros, Owen Sound at Stratford and Kitchener at Hamilton. The junior Marlboros journey to St. Catharines for the only Junior A game of the evening.

See Little Hope Of Settling US Hockey Split

Aboard the Queen Mary En Route to England, By Telephone to London, Jan. 23. — (AP).— Hopes of settling the United States' Olympic hockey contoversy appear no brighter after a conference of the two central figures in the dispute — Avery Brundage and Walter Brown.

Brundage, president of the nited States Olympic committee, and Brown, vice-president of the Amateur Hockey Association, talked the matter over aboard ship yesterday.

Brundage said the two-hour session was "amicable" but added he thought a solution was impossible.

The A.H.A. team has been recognized as the official United States entry in the winter games by the Swiss Olympic. organizing committee and the International Hockey Federation. The United States Olympic committee has sent across another team and has threatened to withdraw completely from the games if the A.H.A. agregation is permitted to compete.

"Unfortunately this has gotten beyond a mere hockey controversy," Brundage stated after the conference. "It is a challenge against the organization of the Olympic games themselves."

The case will be laid before the executive committee of the International Olympic committee next week a St. Moritz, Switzerland, where the games will open Jan. 30.

Gene Tunney, who retired undefeated after taking the heavyweight boxing crown from Jack Dempsey in 1926, gained his first championship 25 years ago tonight by outpointing Battling Levinsky in 12 rounds for the United States light-heavyweight title. Tunney lost it to Harry Greb four months later, regained it the following year and soon after entered heavyweight ranks.

Local Curlers Remain In Big 'Spiel

(By HERB MARTIN)

In the second round of the Warne Trophy, held on Thursday, there was some real fine curling. Mrs. R. McIntosh, Bobcaygeon, last year's winner of the trophy fell to the strong Granite Club rink skipped by Mrs. Midland.

Mrs. Gooch, Hamilton, won a nice game from Mrs. Selkirk of Peterborough.

Mrs. Metcalfe, Peterborough nosed out Mrs. Bowman, Midland 9-7.

Mrs. G. Scott, Lindsay, just managed to hang on long enough to take the verdict from Mrs. Bishop Haliburton 8-7.

Mrs. J. Kearns, Toronto Granite, had to go all out to win from Mrs. Westbrook of the local club.

In the third round the pick of the games was the Mrs. Millar, Kingston and Mrs. Brereton, Toronto Granite game, the Kingston rink winning out on the last end 8-7.

Another smart game was Mrs. Bruce, Peterborough vs. Mrs. Carveth, Toronto Ladies, the local club winning out by the extra end route. And so it went on from one ice to another. The bonspiel concludes this afternoon.

The visiting rinks were tendered a complimentary banquet on Thursday evening by the local club at the Aragon Club.

Hornets Knock Out Indianapolis 4-2

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Hornets are once again the toast of the American Hockey League.

The Flying Wasps started this season in high gear and gave all indications of setting a new record. However in mid-season, they hit a snag and Buffalo Bisons replaced them atop the loop's western division. But now Hornets appear to have recovered their early season form and once again head the loop.

Last night in Indianapolis, Pittsburgh turned aside Indianapolis Capitols 4-2 to boost their lead to four points. In the only other game played, the second-place Bisons proved no match for New Haven Ramblers, finishing on the short end of a 7-2 count.

Ventilating Shades Beats Nashua, 8-2

Ventilating Shades took an 8-2 Industrial Hockey League victory over Nashua last evening at the Quaker rink in a speedy and clean contest. He got one of their goals and McMaster the other. Teams:

Ventilating: Goal, Piercy; defence, McIndoe, Althouse; centre, Henwood; wings, Boyle, Broadhurst; alternates: Peters, Smith, Brown, Simpson, Brough.

Mexican League Talks Progress; Stars May Return

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP). — Walter W. Mulbry, assistant to baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler, is combining a Mexican vacation with business and on the outcome of the latter venture hinges the possible return to organized baseball of such former major league stars as Max Lanier, Mickey Owen and Luis Olmo.

Mulbry, acting as the official representative of George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs (the minors), stopped off in Mexico City and conferred with Alejandro Aguilar Reyes, commissioner of the outlawed Mexican league earlier this week.

The two discussed the problems between the United States and Mexican circuits and Mulbry described the talks as "friendly."

"Our talks probably will be the forerunner of other conferences. None of the problems are insurmountable," Mulbry said.

The Mexican league issued an even more optimistic bulletin yesterday, however, asserting, "absolutely all differences have disappeared between the U.S. organized baseball and the Mexican league."

"Passing The Buck"

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP) — Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said yesterday that Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the government, by proposing to establish a committee that would investigate reasons for rising living costs, were "merely passing the buck to parliament."

Lakefield Victors Over Campbellford

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 23.—(ENS).—Lakefield High trimmed Campbellford quite handily in a fast game on home ice for the second time by a score of 9-3. The game was fairly clean, with only four penalties handed out.

Campbellford made a desperate effort in the second when they changed their goalkeeper in an effort to check the high-scoring Lakefield squad. Bill Batten was high scorer for the winners with three goals. Birch and Knox ran a close second with two each.

Knox opened the scoring for Lakefield. Doherty evened the score for Campbellford. Batten scored twice for LHS in seven minutes, assisted both times by Morrison and Birch added two others.

Knox started the second with a quick one alone. P. Doherty came back for one for the visitors and Taylor added another, only to have Hockaday balance it, to hold the four goal lead.

In the third Kelly assisted by Batten piled up one more, and Batten whipped in the final aided by Morrison.

CobourgLawyers Complain Lack Of Room

COBOURG, Jan. 23 — (ENS) — Northumberland and Durham Counties Council settled into the routine business of the January session when the meeting resumed Wednesday.

Application from W. H. Osborne for corn-borer inspector and also one from W. Bentley were received and tabled. In addition Percy Gooding filed an application for weed inspector and this was tabled along with the rest. A letter from the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities asking for membership fee was referred to finance committee. Request for increase in salary from Jack Duncan, caretaker of counties offices was referred to finance. Also referred to that committee was the request for a grant made by the Ontario Reforestation and Conservation Association.

Peterborough Civic Hospital advised the council that the $2,500 grant of last year, to subsidize the rates charged counties patients in this hospital, had now been exhausted and unless the counties advised of another grant the rates charged would have to revert to the higher figure. This matter was referred to the finance committee. Several requests for grants from various welfare organizations were referred to finance. A letter from the Ontario Agriculture College setting forth the Act as is applied to appointment and payment of corn-borer inspectors, was tabled.

Resolutions of Lanark County Council relative to depletion of hogs, poultry, and beef cattle because of high cost of feed, and which urged that it be forwarded to the proper authorities for consideration, was handed over to the Agriculture Committee.

Council was advised by the Northumberland and Durham Law Association that it had passed a resolution asking for relief of a situation which had occurred due to lack of quarters for witnesses attending trials. The law library had been used for this purpose and it interfered with the functions of the library for use by the lawyers. The benches in the town hall lobby were too few and those that were located in the lobby were used by "The Senate."

(The Senate is a famous body of men of leisure who in the winter frequent the lobby benches in the town hall where they proceed to conduct affairs both local, national and international.) The letter from the law association went on to point out that it was in the best interests of all concerned that more adequate provision be made to look after these witnesses; referred to the counties property committee. Other resolutions dealt with were as follows:

From Elgin County re amendment of the statute so as to affect re-imbursement by the government of monies paid by the counties as compensation to jail officials; referred to legislative-and-by-laws. Simcoe County resolution asking that dates of supreme court sitting and county court be staggered so that they would not conflict; referred to Legislative-and-by-laws. From Oxford County asking for a survey to provide establishment of hospital areas to facilitate fixing of amount to be paid by municipalities; to Legislative-and-by-laws.

From Oxford County re retaining the ban on oleomargarine; referred to agriculture committee. From Grey County asking for amendment of the Highway Traffic Act in regard to parking on roads from which snow was being removed; referred to legislative and by-laws. From Elgin County Council asking legalization of hospital sweepstakes. From the Christian Social Council of Canada asking that county councils oppose legalizing of hospital sweepstakes. Both resolutions were referred to the by-law committee.

A letter from the Ontario Good Roads' Association asked council to protest restrictions on sale of gasoline and oil and hours of clos-

House To Aid Colleagues Down On Luck

LONDON, Jan. 23 (CP). — House of Commons members soon are expected to make better provision for former colleagues who have fallen on evil days.

Following a recent debate, the government probably will introduce a bill increasing benefits payable from a Members' fund. Present members decided some alteration was necessary following complaints of poverty from ex-members, including J. R. Clynes, former Labor cabinet minister.

Every member contributes £12 ($48) annually to the fund designed to maintain former parliamentarians and their dependents with some degree of dignity. But those in need of help found the level of income at which payments might be made so low that the fund could not help them.

Expect Changes

Changes in fund regulations are expected to follow recommendations presented by a select committee. It suggested that the amount of payment to any former member should not exceed £250 instead of £150 at present, or such sum as would bring his income up to £325, instead of £225 annually.

Similar increases would be made in payment available to dependents.

The committee said that the £12 payments by members had built up the fund to the point where it had reserves of £50,000. Even if the proposed increased benefits were made available, the contribution per member could be reduced to £9.

At present 17 persons receive payments from the fund—eight former members and nine widows.

Home Secretary Chuter Ede said the fund was designed only to permit members to' "make a moderate contribution to ensure that the worse evils of poverty—it is little more than that—shall not fall on ex-members or the widows of ex-members."

TRANSFERRED — Louis A. Duplan, consul - general of Mexico in Canada who is being transferred to a similar post in Guatemala. He will be succeeded here by Antonio Mendez Fernandez, now assistant chief of protocol in the Mexican Department of External Affairs.

Union Wants To Be Consulted

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(CP). — Arrival at Welland yesterday of 34 qualified textile workers from European displaced persons camps brought a charge from the United Textile Workers (AFL) that the company hiring them had barred Jews and Germans from the ranks of those selected.

A. Delaney of Brantford, union organizer, said that only last Sunday the Central Ontario district of his union at a meeting at Welland affirmed the union's stand "against company supervision and direction of immigrant plans, and asking that labor representatives be included on all boards screening displaced persons for employment in Canada".

Claiming 98 per cent of the Welland company's employees are union members, the organizer said: "This splendid union achievement could be weakened at one blow by bringing in a large number of new workers".

C. S. Cox, general manager of the company, said that "this move to increase production in the important Canadian textile industry was made after consultation with the officials of our local union in Welland, with whom the company enjoys the best of relations."

1947 Highest Year Plan New Activities

MILLBROOK, Jan. 23—(ENS) — Supper preceded the St. Andrew's United Church annual meeting Monday. The minister, Rev. G. C. R. McQuade, conducted the business period. The recording steward, P. I. Bentley, read the report of the Session. Average number of communicants at the quarterly observance of the sacrament was 175, the highest on record. The Easter communion of 250 participants was also the highest yet. A member of the session for many years, A. J. Henderson, had been lost through death. Three members, due to retire this year, Messrs. A. J. Brown, W. F. Fallis and W. A. O'Brian, were re-elected for a five-year term.

Installation of the Memorial Sound System, with its weekly broadcast of hymns, had also been an outstanding feature of 1947. Mr. McQuade reported that recordings of organ music will be added.

The treasurer, G. E. Burnham, reported total receipts of $5,510.60, including the anniversary offering of $1,260.97, weekly offerings totalling $2,314.80. Expeditures were $4,711.17, leaving a balance of $799.43. The pastor reported 20 baptisms, an increase of four; 10 burials, an increase of one; nine marriages, increase 5; 25 had been received into church membership on profession of faith, and 20 by certificate; the roll now for the Millbrook charge is 361, an increase of 30.

Various church organizations reported increases in membership and receipts. Mrs. Hobbs reported on the Golden Links Mission Circle, stating that in the efficiency contest it had won the Presbytery banner. The Circle had met its allocation of $60, and had raised enough extra by voluntary givings to buy books for its missionary library, given the Mission Band $10, and contributed to the building fund of the Girls' High School at Chengtu, China. Mrs. H. W. Gray reported for the Mission Band.

Homer Ouellette, secretary-treasurer of the St. Andrew's Men's Club, mentioned work in view including renovation of the outside of the church, a successful banquet in December, and a bank balance of over $300. He also paid tribute to the church organist, Miss E. L. Hetherington. The Men's Club plans to present an operetta in the spring, with the assistance of the choir. Funds will go to the church renovation scheme.

Mr. Bentley gave the report of the cemetery board, which has trust fund investments amounting to $5,779.77; a raise in rates has become necessary due to mounting costs, he said.

Added to the list of stewards were M. W. Ball, Gordon Baker and Ernest Harker.

both motorists and service stations; referred to by-laws.

Before council adjourned until 2.30 Thursday afternoon a resolution was passed to authorize the warden and clerk to request the Ontario Dept. of Highways for the statutory grant for expenditures last year on the counties road system.

Council Finds Many Groups Seeking Grants

Reports on insurance policies and agricultural matters in the county was the main business of the Peterborough County Council when they resumed the session Thursday morning.

The first discussion brought before the Council was the renewals of insurance policies with respect to employees of the County Council. The main policies discussed were as follows: Policy covering employees on road and bridges maintenance work. Also covering legal matters pertaining to such insurance claims that may arise. The premium on a 20,000 was established at $495.

Insurance policy on trucks, graders, tractors, and other machinery covering bodily injury, public liability, property damage and fire and theft. The premiums on this policy was $519.52, which was an increase on the premium over a similar policy for the preceding year, but was explained that such arose due to the purchase of extra machinery and equipment.

It was stated that claims paid out in 1946 were in the sums of $246.42, and for 1947 $279.25.

A third policy discussed was to cover employees using their own cars on council business. This ownership policy also covers all acting for the council, both employees and committee members. It was moved that all matters pertaining to insurance should be referred to the Finance Committee.

Lorne Reynolds, president of the Peterborough County Federation of Agriculture, read his report on the work done during the past year. He said that the Federation had organized a campaign to take the vote of the cream producers, and this resulted in more than 350 cream producers voting out of a total of 760. "This does not seem a big percentage," said Mr. Reynolds, "but in comparison with other counties across the province, Peterborough County stood first in the percentage of producers that voted." Mr. Reynolds reported that in the fall when the emergency arose regarding the Western grain situation, the Federation held a meeting and sent petitions to the Dominion Minister of Agriculture protesting the situation. The Federation did much to promote the success of the Junior Farmers Association, it was reported, and supported the county health unit or hospitalization work.

Main disbursements were: $500 as affiliation fee to the Ontario Federation of Agriculture; $375 as paid to the National Film Board, and $176.56 with respect to expenses incurred in cream meeting and canvassing. The fee to the Ontario Federation for this year had not been paid which would reduce the bank balance considerably. James Gifford commented favorably on the excellent report of the president of the Federation and the clear statements on the financial situation. He remarked that the Federation had done excellent work in the community during the past year and were to be complimented.

Another deputation on agricultural matters was from the Quinte District Seed Fair Association. The report was read by Vern Campbell (Douro) who said that later on Frank Paterson would have something to say about this Seed Fair.

Mr. Campbell asked that his Association might receive support from the County Council of a $200 grant. He spoke about the work that the association was doing in the matter of improving the seed for the farmers in the community. A seed fair would be held in the drill hall at the Agricultural Grounds in Peterborough on March 17, 18, 19, and 20.

Praised Seed Fair

Frank Paterson then addressed the Council and said that he felt there should be some reason given why the name of the association had now been changed to "Farmers' Week." "The Association," Mr. Paterson explained, "is the amalgamating of three separate bodies. The Quinte District Seed Fair Association; the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen, and the Peterborough Crop Improvement Association. There have been two or three fairs lately but they have not been well patronized by the public.

"During the week that the seed fair will be held in Peterborough," continued Mr. Paterson, "the Fair will be known as 'Farmers' Week' and it is hoped that every farmer and his family and the public will attend if possible to make it a success. The Seed Fair is a non-profit project and no member receives any remuneration. There is no charge to the public. There will be exhibits of farm machinery and equipment, and at the end of the Fair there will be parcels of seed for sale. This fair is the means of supplying the farmers with the very best seed for their crops that it is possible to get."

It was moved that the request for a grant be referred to the Finance Committee.

Miss R. Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society addressed the Council and gave a report on the work done by the Society for the year. The least number of children in the shelter at one time was seven and the most was 18. Speaking of the work done by the Family Court, Miss Young reported that due to this court 23 children would have become wards of the Society but for the bringing again together of the parents. "This would have meant a very big expense to the County and the Family Court is to be commended for the good work it has done in this respect," said Miss Young.

A letter from the Peterborough Holstein Breeders Association requested a grant of $200. M. Johnston said that he had attended both field days put on by this association, and they were doing good work which resulted in bettering the breed and assisting agriculture as well. Gilbert McIlmoyle felt that the Holstein Breeders had done more than any other breeders association in improving stock in the province.

It was the opinion of the Council that if a grant was made to this Association there was every reason to believe that other breeders associations would also approach the council for a grant. Warden James Humphries moved that no action be taken in the matter for a grant. Seconded by W. E. Griffith the motion was carried.

The request for a $200 grant to the Quinte Seed Fair Association was dealt with. In this case it was felt that no one body benefitted more than another and that the Association was doing an excellent work in improving the quality of seed which was of great importance to the community at large. W W. Dawson said that the Council should support such a project in as much that it gave the farmers the chance of getting the best seed for their crops possible. It was moved that the grant of $200 be made.

Russian Grain May Be Shipped To East Germany

By EDWIN SHANKE

DRESDEN, Soviet - Occupied Saxony, Jan. 19.— (Delayed). — (AP).—A difficult food situation may force the Soviet Union to ship grain into the Russian-occupied eastern zone of Germany, which is being woven into a so-called Molotov plan of economy for Eastern Europe.

"Soviet officials think they will have to import grain from the Soviet Union, but a final decision has not yet been reached," Maj.-Gen. Timoffei Dudarov, acting military governor for Saxony, told the first American correspondents to tour the Russian zone since last June.

"As deficiencies in the food supply come up they will be taken care of," he said. "You can be sure, however, that if we decide to bring in grain it will not be an outright gift."

This is the first time the Russians have spoken of shipping fod into their zone. Their army lives mainly on German food, particularly perishables, and the American - and-British licensed press in Berlin have accused the Soviet Union of exporting trainloads of German food eastward.

In Moscow Scheme

For the first time, too, the Russians revealed how eastern Germany is being drawn into the Moscow scheme of economy for eastern Europe, after turning down co-operation with the Marshall plan for European recovery.

To meet a "very bad" situation, raw materials are being drawn not only from Soviet Russia, but also from Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, Russian officials said. Most of the finished products processed from these materials are exported eastward as reparations.

"The Germans will pay for raw materials because you can be sure we are not engaging in any philanthropic deals," saaid Maj. Ivan Sohinkevich, head of the industrial branch of the Soviet military administration.

Mark Feast Of Lights

NORWOOD, Jan. 23—(ENS)—Last Sunday evening more than a hundred people joined in the Epiphany service, "The Feast of Lights," at Christ Church. This was presented by the choir and the AYPA of St. John's Anglican Church, Havelock. The "Feast of Lights" depicted the Bible story from the prophecy of Isaiah to the "Word being made flesh," the stable at Bethlehem with Mary and Joseph, and the Light of the world, Christ, with the attending angels. The magi presented their gifts and with them the offering of the people was received. The biblical narrative told of the calling of the apostles and the conversion of St. Paul. These in turn received their light from the Christ candle off the altar. The Christ candle was flanked on either side by a taper representing Christ as both human and divine.

When darkness falls, the owls take over from the hawks and other predators in the destruction of harmful rodents. The Great Gray Owl is essentially a northern bird, living as far north as the tree line, and comes south to the settled parts of Canada only during severe winters. Because of the ease with which it can be captured (it can sometimes be caught in the hand) it has unfortunately become very rare and every care should be taken to protect this useful rat- and mouse-catcher. To help the public recognize the need for conservation of our natural resources, authoritative literature on this subject and full-colour reprints of wildlife illustrations (without advertising) are available free by writing to The Carling Conservation Club, Waterloo, Ontario.

Discovered in 1741 by Commander Bering, the Pallas Cormorant became extinct around 1852 — another bird which will never again be seen.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

COLD AND CRIME

For the first time in nearly a year, there were no cass awaiting the magistrate in police court this morning. Station philsophers have been endeavoring to trace the connection between the sub-zero temperature and the zero charges in court.

DIES IN SUDBURY

Charles William Evans, 58, native of Port Hope, and well-known Northern Ontario commercial traveller, died of a heart seizure at Sudbury. He was a representative of the Canadian Chinchilla Company of Toronto. Surviving are his widow and one daughter.

ATTEND MEETING

Two Peterborough business men, L. H. Ingram, Quaker Oats Co., 1st vice-pres., and J. H. Vernor, Western Clock Co. Ltd., past president, attended Thursday's meeting of the administrative committee of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association held in Toronto. It was reported that there was a ten per cent. increase in industrial accidents in 1947 over the previous year.

CLEAN EATING ESTABLISHMENTS

Sanitary Inspector R. M. MacPherson reported at the monthly meeting of the Board of Health that at the present time all restaurants and refreshment booths have satisfied the physical requirements of the sanitary code. All have good storage facilities, good refrigeration, and proper and adequate means for washing and sanitizing utensils, also sufficient kitchen and dining room to ensure safe foods.

THREE FIRE ALARMS

There were three fire alarms Thursday as citizens stoked their furnaces against the latest cold spell. In mid afternoon a chimney fire was reported at the home of J. Thompson, 464 Parnell St. Another chimney fire brought firemen early in the night to 474 Aylmer St., owner Fred T. House. Late at night an overheated furnace was responsible for a call from J. Jordan, 210 London St. No damage resulted in any of these three.

USE THE CAR OR TRUCK

Snow may be hugging the top rails of snake fences along the back forty and the concession lanes, but along city streets it is another story. A farmer with a team and sleigh and a ton of hay found it tough navigating on Water St. Thursday afternoon. Downtown streets are bare, and only a narrow fringe of ice remains along the curb to aid the horses. Parked cars often complicate things too, so farmers hauling loads better stay on wheels.

Woman 90, Tends Furnace Says It's a Simple Chore

"Peterborough was a very small place when I came here 64 years ago," Mrs. Margaret Wilson, 243 Westcott St., recalled when interviewed on her 90th birthday Thursday. Though born in Hudson, Quebec, a suburb of Montreal, she came to live in the town of Peterborough in 1883, and on December 1 married Mr. Alvah Wilson. The couple took up residence in one of the six houses then on Westcott Street, which is next door to the house Mrs. Wilson now occupies, having always lived on the same street.

"There were no electric lights then and no sidewalks or pavements," she says. To get her household supplies, Mrs. Wilson followed the winding footpath to a small grocery store at the corner of George and Lake Sts. If she went uptown she shopped at Turnbull's store, which was on the present site of Zeller's at the corner of George and Simcoe Sts. On the block below and across the street there was a grocery store and a butcher shop. Another small store stood at the corner of Charlotte and George Sts.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were faithful adherents of the Methodist Church and each Sunday would follow the paths leading to Charlotte St. Church on the present location of the Standard Medical Clinic. As streets began to be built up in a southerly direction, many thought the distance too great, for cars were just an idea then, so a tent was set up at Romaine St. and Sunday services taken by Rev. Manning. This was the beginning of St. James' United Church where Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are charter members.

Organized W.A.

The Ladies' Aid, now known as the WA, was organized with Mrs. Wilson as president, and she held this position until health would no longer permit her to accept the responsibility.

During this time Mrs. Wilson was responsible for patching and quilting an innumerable number of beautiful quilts. Each year that the Peterborough Exhibition was held, she was in charge of the booth where hot meals were served, and the substantial profits realized from this effort went toward the building fund of St. James' Church. With her heart and soul devoted to furthering the work of her church, Mrs. Wilson was also an active member of the WMS for many years.

To honor the birthday of such a valued member, WA members placed a large basket of 'mums at the altar for the Sunday morning service, and afterwards presented them to Mrs. Wilson. A birthday tea was arranged by the association and Mrs. G. Harris, president, with 22 other members, gathered at her home Thursday afternoon. A beautifully decorated birthday cake centred the table from which refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Turner and Mrs. J. Roberts.

Lives Alone

Mrs. Wilson has lived alone the past 23 years since Mr. Wilson's death, which came on their wedding anniversary. He had been in charge of repair work at the Toronto Savings and Loan Company for more than 40 years. She takes full charge of her housekeeping uties and goes to the stores herself when streets are fit, as she prepares meals for a dinner boarder each day. Many a younger person shirks furnace tending as being heavy work, but Mrs. Wilson says "there's nothing to it." A neighbor takes the ashes out, but should he fail, there is no doubt they would be disposed of in an able manner by the lady herself.

A shower of cards and messages and many bouquets of flowers came to Mrs. Wilson on her birthday. Among them, remembrance from her son Ernest of Lethbridge and daughter, Mrs. Florence Geary of Owen Sound. Another son, Lionel, was nearing fulfillment of his ambition to be a druggist when the 1918 'flu epidemic claimed his life. Mrs. Wilson is proud of seven grandchildren and ten great grandchildren, and is looking forward to visits from them during the summer. It is seven years since she last visited Lethbridge, and a strong liking for the West, makes her wish to go again.

Labor Council Wants Action On New Centre

Labor in Peterborough reaffirmed its "unity" position at the annual meeting of the Allied Labor Council held in the Union Hall, George street, Tuesday, January 20.

The session was a stormy one. Two notices of motions, one to disband the council and the second to split the council and affiliate the C.I.O. section to the C.C.L., were sharply criticized by the delegates. Although Chairman John Beggs had ruled both motion ultra vires, the delegates insisted on discussion.

Sponsors of the motions were sharply questioned as to their motives as speaker after speaker took the floor in opposition.

W. R. Cambers, District Representative of the U.E., described the motion to disband the council as "a shameful motion which would do for nothing what employers would pay thousands of dollars to accomplish." Other speakers, including delegates F. Gandy, J. Whalen, R. Harvey, J. Southgate and F. Wallwork took the floor in opposition pointing out "the necessity of preserving unity, the lack of jurisdictional disputes in Peterborough and the contribution that the Allied Labour Council had made to the community as a whole.

The second resolution designed to split the council was similarly opposed. Reference was made to the recent visit of C.C.L. Secretary-Treasurer Pat Conroy who stated at a public meeting at the Collegiate that the Canadian Congress of Labor would not be in favor of such a move. The debate terminated with the passing of a resolution, unanimously adopted, that the Allied Labor Council of Peterborough remain as constituted and continue to affiliate both A.F.L. and C.I.O. locals. Other important items dealt with by motion and resolution were:

1. That the council go on record as demanding that the present Memorial Centre Committee withdraw and allow the City Council to select a more energetic committee. Since, in the opinion of the council, ex-servicemen, labor and other organizations and citizens of Peterborough in general had lost confidence in the present committee.

2. That the council send a delegation to the City Council requesting that the matter of the bus franchise be held in abeyance until labor and other groups had an opportunity to study the question and make their representations to council in the matter.

3. That the Allied Labor Council seek through the City Council to have the anti-noise by-law amended so as to permit unions to use sound-trucks for plant gate meetings as formerly.

4. That the council undertake from time to time to bring in Union officials both A.F.L. and C.I.O. to address meetings.

Chairman John Beggs commended the delegates on the excellent turnout, 40 delegates representing 12 Locals and announced that at the next meeting, the first Tuesday in February, that general business would be suspended to permit the nomination and election of officers for 1948.

HOME MADE, HOME GROWN

A custom that has never outgrown the years in Peterborough from its pioneer days is the sight of an elderly Indian peddling homemade axe handles on the street corners. It seems to be an old man's handicraft for the free enterpriser, in each generation, is probably in his 70's, his seamed dark face set in a trader's "poker-face" expression. He wipes the icicles from his straggly moustache and his old eyes light up as some prospective customer stops to fondle the axe handles which he keeps by his side in an old grain sack. Hickory handles made from choice wood, smoothed out laboriously with a spokeshave and bit of glass. The heft of the handle carries a sliver of bark, his trademark of handcraftsmanship. The customer squints down the wood and fits it into the palm of his hand. He is sold on the spot without any sales talk from the Old Man who grunts his thanks as he pockets the handful of silver. Time is nothing to the native merchant, he may stand on his corner all day before his sack is empty, just in time to catch the last bus home to Curve Lake.—N.

Flower Growers To Meet Next Monday

Mrs. Gerald Dunford, 376 Stewart St., is the first member of the Horticultural Society to renew her membership for 1948. She has been interested in the society for years, and is manifesting her continuing support by forwarding to the secretary, Mr. W. C. Wilks, the first contribution to the treasury for this year.

The annual meeting will be Monday, January 26 at 8 p.m. in the Y.W.C.A. at Simcoe and Aylmer streets. A large attendance of members is urged by the executive who would welcome additional directors to assist in carrying on the increasing affairs of the society. The program will include motion pictures shown through the courtesy of Hon. H. R. Scott. A list of meetings has been drafted for the first six months of this year, and members are promised competent speakers and generally an interesting and educational program leading through the preparations for the flowering year of 1948.

Business Men Plan Monster Bingo

City Council and the Peterborough Business Men's Association have agreed to share the expenses in connection with taking space at the Cleveland Sportsman's Show. This show is scheduled for the first week in April, and tentative plans call for sending two men to man a display booth similar to last year.

In order to obtain sufficient money for the venture, the Business Men are staging a monster bingo at the Brock St. Summer Gardens on Monday next. Merchants are cooperating in a generous manner, and excellent prizes have been provided. The Lions club is also cooperating in the loan of equipment and assistance of the members in running off the bingo.

Children's Aid Property Recommended As Site For New Memorial Centre

The Children's Aid Society's property, George St. South, was recommended Thursday night to the City Council by the general committee of the Memorial Community Centre for investigation as an available and suitable location for the Centre building which has been "shivvied" around town from one prospective site to another for more than three years.

Two other secondary or alternate locations were also proposed in a motion by Herbert I. Bradburn and R. M. Glover. They are, in the order of recommendation, the east side of Burnham Street (opposite the Bowl) between Hunter and Robinson Streets, and the Nicholls Oval.

The meeting was called to consider a reference from the council suggesting as a site the south end of Riverside Park fronting on Burnham Street.

To obtain sufficient ground space in that locality the Centre building would occupy the southerly section of the park with several adjoining property which would have to be bought from the owners. The council's letter reached the committee with ecchoes of opposition from the Ashburnham neighborhood.

Mr. Glover said that if that location was chosen the Centre would have to be built fronting on Burnham St., with its rear to the park and the Hunter St. bridge. In his opinion that layout would spoil the general appearance of the entire park area. "The other side of Burnham St. appeals to me as a more ideal spot."

J. A. Jebson, chairman, said that location had been considered nearly four years ago, but had been passed by as enquiry turned to other sections of the city.

"We got information about that property, but it never came before the council," Mr. Bradburn recalled. He is the vice-chairman of the Centre committee.

Mr. C. B. Neal moved that the council be informed that the committee did not feel inclined to proceed with any further consideration of the location on the west side of Burnham St. His motion was seconded by Mr. Glover, and carried.

Ross Dobbin asked whether any thought had been given to the west end of Charlotte St., particularly the property owned by Montgomery brothers. He said there appeared to be plenty of room in that locality if it was otherwise acceptable. Mr. Jebson replied that the land south of the Hatton housing area had not been previously mentioned.

Site Is Large Enough

In the preliminary discussion of the letter from the council, the Children's Aid Society block cropped up with supporting opinions as to its accessibility, and moved into the foreground of appraisal in comparison with the Riverside Park proposal. Two points of doubt were raised about the south end place. One was in regard to the adequacy of its area. Ed Riley telephoned Assessment Commissioner Bert C. Graham and obtained the information, from memory, that the C.A.S. block had 187 ft. frontage on George St. and 400 ft. in depth to Lock St.

Those dimensions were tentatively accepted as ample, and Mr. Dobbin suggested that, if more frontage was required, a ten foot strip could be taken off the south side of King Edward St., increasing the width of the block to approximately 200 feet.

There was also the question of substitute accommodation for the Children's Aid Society shelter. Mr. Dobbin said the society owned the block bounded by George, Princess, Lock and King Edward streets. It was purchased years ago with funds received as bequests to the C.A.S. from time to time.

Opinion of the committee fixed on that location. Finally Ian McRea moved that the C.A.S. property be proposed to the council for its investigation, especially as to whether satisfactory arrangements for its acquisition could be made with the Society.

Mr. Glover suggested that it might be advisable to mention one or two alternative sites to the council. He named in second position the east side of Burnham St., and Nicholls Oval was dubiously tacked on as third. Discussion of the two ideas ended in Mr. McRea declining to alter his motion, and the three properties were listed in the Bradburn-Glover proposal. It is a recommendation to the council that the three areas be investigated as to whether they are available and suitable as selective sites for the Centre, that the question of location be then considered at a joint meeting of the council and the Centre Committee.

In the meantime the committee is arranging to obtain on its own initiative exact facts about the several locations which have now been put forth for consideration. The members attending last night were: Messrs. Jebson, Bradburn, Glover, McRea, Riley, Neal, Rowell, Ald. Max Swanston, Stan Payne, Harold Dormer, R. L. Dobbin, Frank Buckland, J. J. Dorris.

Mr. Rowell made the ironic suggestion at one stage of the discussion: "It appears that wherever we propose going we run into objections and threats of injunction. Maybe we ought to go out into North Monaghan and try to escape both."

Exhibition Board To Hold 1948 Fair

Will Retain Tenant Rights On Morrow Trust Property

Peterborough's Agricultural Society decided to retain its tenant rights on Morrow Trust property, and run an agricultural fair this year, in a well-attended meeting held in the Council Chamber Thursday afternoon. Election of a new Board of Directors was also reviewed the financial statement of the society for 1947. The auditors' report showed that disbursements exceeded receipts by $206.26; but the treasurer pointed out that there was a sum of $1,383 in accounts outstanding not mentioned.

Main so[illegible] held in Peterborough even if the date coincided with the one in London. He said he believed there was enough local stock to make it worth while.

Treasurer was instructed to forward fees in order to join the [illegible] Association.

the Exhibition grounds; also that an agricultural fair be held this year. The motion was carried with but one negative vote.

More than 70 persons from scattered points in the county were represented at the gathering which heard President Gord Hancock tell members that they should go ahead and decide to use the grounds or disband.

By allowing six Junior Farmers to become Directors it was legally possible to list a slate of 24 Directors. Junior Farmers included Don Milburn, Manson Cathcart, Barrett Mann, Ron Frankish, Morris Telford, Allan Drummond.

The presidency will be decided upon at a meeting of the Board of Directors, Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, to be held in the near future.

Treasurer Richard J. Ward then that site were used for storage and other purposes—yielding a sum of $5,429.31 altogether.

President Hancock recapitulated the story of the Morrow Trust and the complications which arose when a Memorial Centre was proposed on that property. He said that early last year the Society had agreed to vacate its tenancy of that property if the city decided to build there. The negative result of the legal opinion on that plan meant, he said the loss of practically a whole year.

Hugh Stewart urged those present to stop "hedging around" and declare openly if they were in favor of putting on a fair this year or not. He said he personally supported such a plan. It was then that the motion for retaining the Exhibition grounds and putting on a fair was made by Jack Walsh and Allan Mann.

Claude Bottum, president of the Lindsay Exhibition, addressed the members and told them that he thought they had the grounds, the money, the territory, and the backbone to carry on. He urged them not to disband but carry on.

Athur Brethen, manager of the Norwood Exhibition, said he believed a successful fair could be coming Directors.

Urge Diabetics Help Dr. Best Get Laboratory

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(CP)—A modern, new research laboratory for Dr. Charles H. Best of Toronto, co-discoverer of insulin, to be financed largely by contributions of American diabetic patients, was proposed here Thursday night by Dr. Edward S. Dillon of Philadelphia, president of the American Diabetes Association.

In a speech to the District of Columbia Diabetes Association, Dr. Dillon said such a laboratory "has been a dream of Dr. Best and of every diabetic and every physician interested in treatment of the disease."

He suggested that every diabetic send a contribution, large or small, to Dr. Best to assist him.

Dr. Best was the co-worker of the late Sir Frederick Banting of Toronto when they discovered the miracle-working insulin at University of Toronto laboratories in 1921. Sir Frederick was killed in an air crash while serving in the Canadian Army in the Second Great War.

Although approximately $60,000,000 worth of insulin is sold each year throughout the world, Dillon said, "neither Dr. Best nor the University of Toronto has ever at any time received one cent from these sales."

He said Dr. Best had planned a new laboratory to improve insulin development, but the war intervened, and now increased costs mean that $1,000,00 must be raised.

"Who is more worth of support, than Dr. Best?" Dillon asked. "Should not every diabetic send to him, at Toronto, some contribution, be it large or small, for erection of a new laboratory?"

UNIVERSITY NOT A "SOCIAL EXTRAVAGANCE" — James S. Thomson, Scottish-born president of the University of Saskatchewan, told a big meeting of farmers in Saskatoon recently that a university "must not be regarded as a social extravagance, something to be considered after all other needs have been met." He expressed the view that a single department, that of field husbandry, had returned to the people in actual cash value "many times the 20 million dollars spent on the university in the 40 years of existence." Never Joined Army Gets Benefits, Pay

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP).—The United States army admitted yesterday it had discharged, with mustering-out pay and other benefits, a man who never was legally in the army.

It was unable to decide yet, it said, whether the "Fred Phillip Bast" it mustered out had, as he claimed, been "shanghaied" into service by American military police in England who asserted he was a deserter from the United States army.

An army statement said "Bast" had sworn to a service record under oath.

The incident on which the army's statement was issued grew out of a story published by the New York Daily News. The story said that Alistair Nicholson, 23, a native of Scotland who has relatives in Niagara Falls, Ont., was picked up by military police in Southampton in 1946 and eventually shipped "home" to the United States as an American soldier.

Release Text Of Veterans' Brief To Gregg

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP). — The National Council of Veterans Associations in Canada released today the text of a brief to Veterans Minister Gregg, urging upjustment of compensation rates to disabled veterans and their dependents and recommending appointment of a parliamentary committee on veterans affairs.

Suggestions in the brief were approved unanimously at a council meeting Jan. 13. Members of the Council are the army, navy and air force veterans, Canadian Corps Association, Canadian Paraplegic Association, Canadian Pensioners' Association of the Great War, the Sir Arthur Pearson Association of War Blinded and the War Amputations of Canada.

Recommendations include:

A $100-a-month minimum basic compensation for 100-per-cent-disability veterans; a $35-a-month minimum wife's allowance and proportionately greater children's allowances; an $80-a-month minimum widow's pension and a $30-a-month "orphan's rate" allowance for children being supported by widows; a $1,200-a-year minimum helplessness allowance instead of the existing $750, and that the rate for widows not eligible for pension in respect to the death of a husband, compensated at 45 per cent or less—and for widows of non-pensioners—be increased to $50 a month.

Want Rent Controls

Council also asks thta rent controls be maintained "until a more adequate supply of housing is available," and that the pensions act be amended to eliminate "means test discrimination" against totally-disabled officers above the rank of Lieutenant.

A further recommendation is that the term "war disability compensation" be substituted for the word "pension" in the pension act, to avoid "public confusion."

"With the First Great War compensation bill now substantially augmented by provision for the disabled of the second great war. . . every precaution must be taken to ensure against confused thinking and ill-conceived economizing attempts certain to work hardship on the war-disabled.

Says General Election Possible In Summer

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, hinting at the possibility of a general election in Ontario next summer, yesterday appealed for continued support from provincial Liberals "so that when the testing time comes, we will be ready to meet the challenge."

He told the Toronto Womn's Liberal Association:

"That testing time may not be long delayed. Certain issues are fencing the present government into a point where they may like to ask the people to return them to power for another five years.

The life of the present legislature, in which Premier Drew's Progressive Conservative administration holds 65 of the 90 seats, would not normally expire for another two years.

Order New Trial

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal yesterday ordered a new trial for Frank Bluske, sentenced to 20 years by Judge J. E. Fuller in Wentworth County court, on conviction of a charge of wounding and assault, with intent to rob while armed. The conviction was quashed.

TOO MUCH PIANO—"They made me practice eight hours a day," was the complaint that Jacqueline "Jackie" Horner said prompted her to run away from her Hollywood home. The 14-year-old piano prodigy of stage and screen was discovered after a week-long search in a San Francisco hotel with a sailor identified as Wallace Wells of San Francisco. Wells was booked on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Demand Action On Russ Wives

LONDON, Jan. 23 — (Reuters). — A resolution calling for "appearance and effective action" by the British government as result of the detention of British wives by the Soviet government was adopted by the House of Lords yesterday.

Lord Vansitttart, who submitted the resolution, had proposed that a final appeal should be made to Prime Minister Stalin. If these wives had not been returned to Britain by the end of January, the British government would equalize the number of Soviet women and children in Britain with the number of British women and children in Russia, excluding embassy and consulate staffs.

Lord Pakenham, replying to the government, said he could not commit the government any further than to promise that all that had been said would be "studied with care."

Accidents Increase

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP) — James Preston of Stratford, president of the Industrial Accident Prevention associations, said yesterday there was a 10 per cent increase last year in the number of accidents reported by 17,300 member firms. Mr. Preston told the associations' administrative committee that the Workmen's Compensation Board reported 24,422 accident cases last year as against 22,203 cases the previous year.

Ottawa Policy Aids Profiteers Bracken Charges

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP). — John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, charged last night that government policies had made it possible for speculators and profiteers to increase food prices in Canada.

In a speech prepared for delivery over a national network on free time provided by the CBC for political broadcasting, Mr. Bracken said that when parliament met last month the government announced that new food contracts at higher prices had been signed with Britain.

Some two weeks after the session adjourned Agriculture Minister Gardiner disclosed the new prices and it was shown they were about 25 per cent higher than in the previous contracts.

"The government had announced that prices would be increased," said Mr. Bracken. "But it was many days before it told what the increased prices would be. Are any of us surprised when the government set such a stage for the speculator and the profiteer that some people took advantage of it?

"Are we surprised under such circumstances, if some people stock up goods or hold back sales when the government gives a clear indication of higher prices to come?

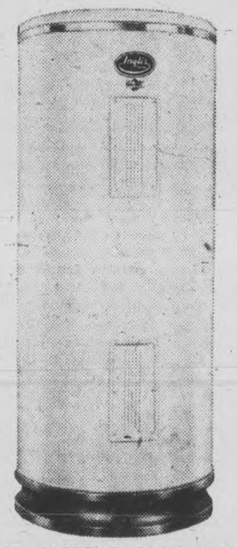
"I make no general indictment against the producers and business men of Canada, but I do against the government. I indict them for providing the set-up that permitted anyone who was so inclined to take advantage of the situation to their own benefit. I indict the government for such price mark-ups (margin of profit) as may have been illegal."

Say Thousands Saved On Callable Bonds

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Ontario Municipal Affairs Minister George Dunbar said last night that all bond issues of the Ontario government, other than short-term bonds or short-term serials, are callable, and that thousands of dollars have been saved because of this feature.

He was commenting on a charge by Toronto civic officials that that Ontario government would not permit municipalities to sell bond issues without the callable clause but that its own provincial bonds lacked this feature.

Mr. Dunbar said that every one of the new debentures issued by municipalities which because of default are under government supervision are callable issues, but the government obtained for these municipalities some of the lowest interest rates in the province.



The callable feature does not affect the price of the bonds, he added, and there had been no trouble selling either province of Ontario or Ontario Hydro Commission bonds which contain this clause.

Grant Of $500 Sought For The Blind

A blind speaker addressed the Peterborough County Council, when they resumed the afternoon session Thursday. He was E. G. Brown, the District Field Secretary of the Peterborough Institute for the Blind. Mr. Brown outlined the work of the Institute and also explained in what manner they received their various funds. He said that in the county most of their funds were resultant from tag days. "Blindness need not be the handicap many people think," said Mr. Brown, "and the Institute teaches them many ways of ameliorating their hardship by learning various trades." Mr. Brown appealed to the Council to grant the sum of $500 to the Institute. The matter was referred to the Fianance Committee.

Purchase of Page Asked

Mr. Robert Garner, representing the Advertising Department of The Peterbrough Examiner, put a proposition before the Council in respect to taking a full page advertisement in the rotogravure section of the Vacation Edition. He outlined how this edition benefited the county in respect of the tourist trade. The quotation of $250 for the space allotted was an increase over last year but this was mainly due to the fact that the circulation would be more than 30,000 this year instead of 26,000. It was moved that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee.

A motion that 1/5 of a mill be levied on the total equalized assessment on the county this year for the Peterborough Federation of Agriculture purposes was carried in Finance Committee.

Family Court

At the morning session Miss R. Young, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, spoke about the Family Court. Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., was invited to address the Council.

"The Family Court," said Mr. Philp, "has been in operation slightly over one year. In respect to the actual amount that this Court has saved the county, it is hard to state, as in many cases one is dealing wih intangibles. In the past a woman who has laid a charge against her husband for assault or desertion, had to have such cases tried in the Police Court. This was not pleasant and in many cases when she saw her husband in the dock and the public galleries full of people who would be compelled to hear all the sordid and unhappy story of their married life, would prefer to drop the charges. This was done rather than face the unhappy experience of having a lot of dirty linen washed in public."

"The result was that the man got off and if a charge was not pressed the woman invariably had to go to the Children's Aid Society for help. On the other hand when such cases came before the Family Court it was found that by talking matters over quietly conciliation was often effected. Another saving that was made was unless a maintenance order was made by the Court the wife would be in distressed circumstances and the children would become wards of the Society. There was also the saving in the matter of witness fees. In the Family Court, everything was private, neither the press nor the public were allowed and there were no witnesses as the cases were heard only between the husband and wife.

"Cases where the savings to the community is undoubtedly great but it cannot be commuted in dollars and cents," said Mr. Philip, "is in the case of a juvenile delinquent. When this youth is brought before the Family Court, it has been proven many times that a quiet talking to with warnings has brought the offender to his senses and made him realize the seriousness of his misdemeanour. Were he not treated in this manner and brought to the Family Court, it is quite likely that receiving a punishment might have another effect upon him entirely and he might turn to be an habitual offender. The saving in these expenses in these cases is of course an unknown quantity, but in the long run is nevertheless a saving to the community.

YOUTHFUL SLAYER GETS 25 YEARS — Fifteen-year-old James Hartmann clenches his hands and closes his eyes as a deputy sheriff opens the door of his cell at the Cook county jail in Chicago. The youth was found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Gracelyn Bush, 32, a minister's wife. Young Hartmann was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

Dolan Asks Hotels Help Convince US Lots of Food

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.— (CP).— Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, said today thta efforts are being made to clear up a misconception among American tourists of the effect of Canada's austerity program.

He was commenting on a Toronto speech by Tom C. McCall, Ontario deputy travel minister, who said the tourist business in Canada was threatened by the Dominion Government's "mishandling of its austerity program announcements."

Some agencies, said Mr. Dolan, now were working to eliminate the misunderstanding in the minds of some Americans as to the extent of the austerity program. However, the misunderstandings were not something which could be remedied overnight.

He hoped it would be possible to make an announcement soon on the steps being taken to put the minds of American tourists at rest and to attract them here during the summer months.

Mr. Dolan said some Americans were under the impression there was a shortage of food in Canada. To help clear up this misconception he had recently suggested to a hotel association that once or twice a month or even more often they should send a copy of their menus to former American guests or to American friends.

When the former guests or friends saw the type of food available and the Canadian prices they would realize they had been wrong in believing there was a food shortage in Canada.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, January 24

Although there may be some tendency and opportunity for an energetic attempt to build firm foundations with practical techniques for developing ambitious objectives, and with prospect of success and cooperation from influential sources, it appears that the disposition may be drawn more to the pursuit of pleasure, to social and domestic diversions, rather than workaday activities.

Birthday Forecast

Those whose birthday it is may be disposed to concentrate their energies and ambitions on the easier and more seductive pathways of life than in utilizing their energies and resources for promoting constructive programs. The lure of pleasure and self-indulgence may swerve from the practical to ways of confusion, deception and glamor, to the loss of prestige, good standing and personal integrity. Strange attractions and doings may intrigue into dangerous fields.

A child born on this day may have good equipment for a sound and happy career, but it may be led into dangerous associations.

Curlers' Banquet at Aragon Enjoyed by Bonspiel Guests

True to Scottish traditions of the sport, Peterborough Ladies' Curling Club members and their out-of-town guests were "piped" around the hall to their places at banquet tables laid in Club Aragon Thursday evening. Place cards carried out the theme with Scotty dogs and bows of plaid ribbon. Mrs. Tommie Williams, guest soloist contributed "A Highland Lad" and "Comin' thru the Rye." With Bobbie Burns' day so near it was inevitable that the sing song, led by Mrs. Maurice Holt, would be all the old Scottish songs, "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" "Loch Lomond," "I Love a Lassie," and so on until the final "Auld Lang Syne." Mrs. Adam Sands was the pianist, Mr. U. E. Waterman the piper.

Mrs. O. M. Steer, president, called upon her guests at head table for salutations from their clubs: Mrs. J. Medland, Granite Club; Mrs. F. Nobes, Kingston; Mrs. B. Austin, Haliburton; Mrs. S. Graham, Toronto Ladies' Club; Mrs. T. G. Bosworth, High Park; Mrs. J. Cummings, Midland; Mrs. Devett, Bobcaygeon; Mrs. C. Gooch, Hamilton Victoria; Mrs. G. R. Scott, Lindsay; Mrs. D. Bowls of spring flowers and bouquets of daffodils were delightfully refreshing, and the turkey dinner and entertainment were excellent. One hundred and thirty ladies agreed it was one of the most enjoyable events of its kind they had attended.

With Rising Food Prices Wartime Recipes Necessary

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Food prices may climb, but should the housewife dig her wartime cooking recipes out of the kitchen cupboard, she may find it's still possible to save a little money.

Take butter for instance. At more than 70 cents a pound, the mother of a large family now finds this stable product a luxury. Here's a wartime recipe for expanded butter, which will make her supply stretch farther.

Ingredients: one cup butter (one half pound); one cup cream; one teaspoon of gelatine in one tablespoon water; one-half teaspoon salt; three drops coloring.

Make butter soft, but not melted; put the coloring and gelatine in cream and mix into butter a spoonful at a time.

To Save Butter

1. Instead of using butter in baking cakes, cookies, try other mild-flavored fats.

2. Grease pans with mild-flavored fats.

3. Drippings from beef and lamb roasts can be used in meat and vegetable dishes for pan-frying.

4. Mix butter with vegetables after they are in the serving dish. In this way there will be none lost in the saucepan.

5. Use grated cheese on vegetables in place of butter.

6. For table use, make individual servings as butter balls or squares.

7. For sandwiches beat one-quarter cup milk or water into one-half cup soft (not melted) butter. Butter one slice of bread with this spread and the other with filling.

Nutritionists of the health and welfare department have found that only one Canadian housewife in nine known how to cook her potatoes to retain as many as possible of their elusive vitamins and minerals.

About half the vitamin "C" in a potato is lost if it is peeled, boiled and then mashed, say nutritionists. The loss is 20 per cent if it is just peeled and boiled. On the other hand, potatoes baked, or cooked in their jackets in a little water in a tightly-covered dish, will keep most of the vitamin "C".

Ingredients: two cups apple sauce: three egg whites; one-half cup cake crumbs (preferably spice cake). Add cake crumbs to apple sauce. Fold into stiffly beaten egg whites. Serve in sherbet glasses. Sprinkle a few cake crumbs over dessert. Serves six.

SIDELINE PHILOSOPHY

Making Best Of Things Is Secret Of Happiness

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young married woman with three children. My husband is a good man. He works hard, but we have to strain every penny to make both ends meet. No matter how sick I am, I have to cook, wash and iron to keep the house going. And I am always shabby.

I have several rich friends, who have all the good things of life, and they continually are advising me to "make the best of things." I am thoroughly fed up with this kind of advice from people who are sitting pretty in this world. Wouldn't it get on your nerves, Miss Dix?

CONSTANT READER

ANSWER: It certainly would. It surely does make us want to throw things at those who stand on the sideline and bear our misfortunes so philosophically. It is always so easy for the well and strong to tell the sick how patiently they should bear their sufferings and so easy for the rich to perceive the blessings of poverty. But, when it comes down to brass tacks, the great secret of happiness is to be found only "in making the best of things" as they are.

We have to make our happiness as we go along by making the best of what we have and squeezing every drop of pleasure out of it. This is a hard thing to do when one is sick, tired and overworked and lacks the luxuries for which everyone's soul craves. But we make things better or worse by our attitude towards them.

Depends On Attitude

Nobody will deny that it is nerve-racking to take care of little children, but whether motherhood is a curse or a blessing depends entirely upon how you take it. You can make the best of it. You can find joy in your little children's arms around your neck. You can find interest in watching their little minds develop. You can enjoy them now instead of waiting for them to grow up.

You have your husband as no rich woman has her husband. You are necessary to him as no rich woman is to her husband. Your life is fuller and far more interesting than any millionairess. I have heard many a rich woman say that the best years of her life were those in which she toiled to help her husband get his start in the world.

You have youth. You have a husband who loves you. You have little children. The gods have been good to you. Enjoy your blessings while you may.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widow in my late fifties. I have two boys, one of whom is about to be married and the other who is still in college. I am very lonely as my children are out every night with their young friends.

There is a man, an old friend of mine, who comes to see me and who has expressed the desire to marry me, but my boys object very much to my thinking of marrying, even though the man can give me a good home. What should I do?

A LONELY WIDOW

ANSWER: One of your children is about to leave you. The other will be gone in the course of the next few years. They will not consider it their duty to stay at home and bear you company. In that they are right, because the young should not sacrifice their lives to the old, but you should consider yourself also.

Your children have no more right to blihgt your life than you have theirs, so don't listen to their objection to your marrying. Marry your many and be happy.

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it possible for a woman to love two men? I have been married for 10 years and I honestly feel that I love my husband, but recently I have met another man whom I adore. My love for him hasn't changed my feelings or actions towards my husband and I do not feel that I have hurt him because he doesn't know it. Somehow, I cannot think that there is any real harm in what I am doing. Can you?

WONDERING

ANSWER: We always make excuses for ourselves and find justification for doing what we want to do, but that doesn't alter the status of the case as far as the rightness or the wrongness of it goes.

Your unfaithfulness to your husband is a black sin. Nor does the fact that he doesn't know it salve your conscience. As a matter of fact, it makes your disloyalty all the blacker. Perhaps there are few men and women who at some time during their married lives are not assailed by some temptation, but the strong and honorable ones do not yield as you have done. They resist it.

Howe Requests Manufacturers For More Goods

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Canadian manufacturers had a challenge from the Dominion's new Trade Minister, Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, to-day to expand their activities and provide more goods for export to help shoot to still greater heights the record Canadian 1947 export total of $2,775,000,000.

The 1947 figure, Mr. Howe said in a statement yesterday, was fore than three times the average of the 1935-1939 peacetime period and 20 per cent ahead of 1946. The United States and the United Kingdom continued to provide Canada's principal markets, the US taking 37 per cent of the total and the UK 27 per cent.

But the minister said the need for more exports, both primary products and manufactured goods "is doubly great at this time."

They are required not only for assisting in recovery in Europe, but in helping Canada balance her account with the United States.

Canada's great agricultural, forest and mining and metallurgical industries still provided most of the goods in demand abroad, but Mr. Howe said the small proportion of the export trade that can be ascribed to the output of the manufacturing industries provides the Canadian economy with a challenge in 1948.

Mr. Howe said that US purchases during 1947 were valued at $1,034,000,000, about 16 per cent above 1946. More than half consisted of forest products, with newsprint the largest single item. Exports to the UK were $751,000,000, 27 per cent above 1946, with food products dominating.

Wheat and flour, taken together were Canada's principal export item, valued at $461,700,000, 1946. There was a sharp increase in newsprint exports from $265,900,000 in 1946 to $342,300,000 last year.

CANADA'S DELEGATE PONDERS DEEPLY—General A. G. L. McNaughton, Canada's delegate to the United Nations, obviously has weighty matters on his mind in the course of a conversation with Philip J. War Department Secret Files Would Scare U.S. Congressmen

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(CP)—A responsible official with access to the United States Government's most secret conferences, talking off the record the other night, said the War Department had information that would "scare the daylights" out of congressmen. Probably he was exaggerating a little but there is still likelihood that in this presidential election year Congress will be stampeded into doing anything approaching what the occasion demands, no matter what the year.

If both parties in Congress agreed to do what the overwhelming evidence indicates they should do this year, they would have to restrict election campaigning to minor domestic issues or decide the outcome by the toss of a coin.

Congress has been told by the President, State Secretary Marshall and other who are supposed to know about such things, that unless the country spends upward of $17,000,000,000 on European aid in the next four years, it might as well be prepared to spend far more and also sacrifice American lives in a third world war.

That's pretty grim stuff but many congressmen tend to dismiss it and even those who swallow most of it temper their belief with the suggestion that proponents of the plan are making the outlook blacker than it is.

Difficult Progress

Thus the European rehabilitation plan, so urgently demanded to stem the totalitarian movement in Europe's remaining free countries, is making laborious and difficult progress through Congress.

Now, Bernard M. Baruch, 78-year-old financier, philanthropist and adviser to presidents since the First Great War, has come along with his own idea of what faces the country and what can be done to save it.

Politics - ridden Congressmen thanked him and commended him but obviously had not the slightest intention of adopting his plan because it is packed with political dynamite.

Baruch offered a blueprint for saving Europe and preserving home economy. It involved organization of the freedom-loving European countries into a union for defence, trade, and balanced monetary relations; a guarantee by the United States and other friendly powers to protect such countries if attacked by any aggressor.

On the home front he would have government controls sufficient to ensure a two-year "peace production drive" with longer hours if necessary, freedom from strikes, controls on prices and wages and rents.

Keep Down Prices

He would keep down food prices by giving farmers instead a guaranteed floor price over the next three years.

The raw products buying program would create an industrial urge all over the world. The temporary controls would increase production of consumer goods for the needy countries and home markets, and prevent inflation.

"What about free enterprise?" Baruch asked himself, and his answer: "You cannot save free enterprise if you let the system that protects it go to ruin."

"The time has come to organize, to mobilize, for peace. It cannot be put off safely any longer. The time for courage and decision is here."

Plant Manager Claims Benefit From Daily Glass Of Ovaltine

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—A. H. Friedgut, special prosecutor for the Department of National Health and Welfare, began his cross-examination of Horace Steggles, manager of the Peterborough branch of A. Wander Ltd., makers of Ovaltine, today.

In its sixth day, the hearing deals with a charge of false advertising against the Canadian manufacturers of Ovaltine and was brought against the company by the Federal Department.

Mr. Steggles told the court he has been the general manager of the Peterborough branch since July, 1944. "Before that time I was with the company in various positions. Altogether I have been with the company 29 years," he testified.

"Your salary enables you to eat normal meals, no doubt?" asked Mr. Friedgut—"Yes."

"You drink Ovaltine?"

"Yes, every day. I have a glass —every morning in the office."

Quit During Hearing

"Have you had the two required glasses every day since you have been in Toronto for this hearing?"

"No, I haven't."

"Are you afraid you may be suffering from a lack of vitamins?"

Defence counsel objected vehemently. "There is no reason for the Crown to be facetious," he declared.

The witness answered the question after the Crown convinced the court that the question was relevant to the charge.

"I think I would have been better off with the Ovaltine here," said Mr. Steggles.

"You are not a medical man, chemist or nutrionist, are you?"

"No."

"How then can you have an opinion as to whether you would be better with it?"

"Over a long period of time I think I have benefitted by using it."

"You think."

"I know," was the reply.

Chemist Testifies

Dr. Benjamin Harrow, of New York, called by the defense, testified he was a professor of chemistry and in charge of biochemistry at City College, New York.

He said he graduated from a technical college in England and then came to the U.S. and received three degrees from Columbia University, New York.

"When you say you came 'here' you mean the United States, don't you?" suggested defense counsel.

"I almost feel I should have come here, to Canada," returned the doctor.

He pointed out also that he has published some 50 technical papers on biochemistry, over 100 popular articles and several books.

Dr. Harrow asserted that Ovaltine plus milk would tend to make a person "totally more protected" nutritionally.

"It is an insurance. It may do you good if you need the vitamins and then again it wouldn't do you any harm if you don't need them," he stated.

"Ovaltine has certain advantages," the doctor went on. "It has a constant composition, and man's body wants to build up an insurance for that body."

T. J. Carley, counsel for the makers of Ovaltine, turned Magistrate Gullen's court into a "science laboratory" by introducing chemical balance scales, instruments and a president of a research laboratory to conduct the experiments to determine the weight of three teaspoons of Ovaltine.

Chemist Testifies

Dr. A. J. Zeidler, consulting chemist, testified he came from Argentina to Canada 25 years ago and was a member of the Canadian Institute of Chemistry and the American Society for the Advancement of Science.

A set of laboratory scales was brought into the court room and the doctor proceeded with his experiment He was asked by defense counsel to weigh out three teaspoons of Ovaltine.

Crown Counsel A H. Friedgut objected, claiming the scales "might not be accurate." Dr. Zeidler pointed out they were only to the first decimal.

"These experiments should have been made before coming to court and the results produced in court and evidence given of those results," remarked the magistrate.

ears Variation

"The teaspoons might vary with regard to size, if we are to determine the kind of teaspoon the average householder would use; and the amount used by an individual housewife might vary," his worship noted further. "It should be noted thta what happens here is just a relative result."

As Dr. Zeidler continued his experiments, defense counsel instructed him to "do it the natural way when you dip the teaspoon into the can of Ovaltine—just as if a housewife was doing it."

The doctor finally explained that the mean value of a teaspoonful of Ovaltine was 7.45 grams and in another experiment with a different can of Ovaltine the mean value was 6.23 grams. Crown counsel and his chief witnesses crowded around the witness box to watch the experiments being conducted.

Dr. Rudolf Bonkfeldt, director of research at the Ovaltine plant in Chicago, told the court he was a doctor in biochemistry and received three degrees from the University of Winconsin.

Granular Size Differs

He testified that the granular size of Ovaltine is larger in the U.S. than in Canada; the density of the Canadian Ovaltine greater, and as a result there was a tendency to get more Canadian Ovaltine on a teaspoon than with the American product.

The witness stated that in a chart prepared by the company, 59 per cent. of the total of vitamins came from the dry ovaltine and 41 per cent. for milk after both were mixed. He noted that 23 per cent. of the protein came from the dry ovaltine and 77 per cent. from the milk, but on the other hand, 96 per cent. of the iron came from the dry ovaltine and 4 per cent. from the milk.

Say Albanian Forces Gather At Border

ATHENS, Jan. 23— (AP) — News dispatches said today regular Albanian forces were assembling across the border from Konitsa in northwestern Greece. They reported such concentrations southward from Leskovic, Albania. Th estoresies were not confirmed officially.

Meanwhile, to the south and west of Konitsa, the reports indicated that guerrilla bands were looting villages and recruiting the inhabitants by force, apparently without opposition.

Dispatches yesterday showed that the Greek army had been active against guerrillas to the north and east of Konitsa, which the insurgents tried in vain to take just after Christmas.

A Salonika court martial trying 26 guerrillas sentenced four to death. A drama court passed a death sentence on another rebel.

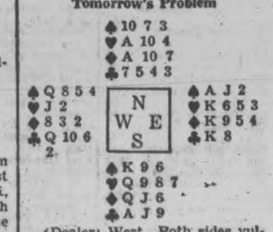
WHO HAS THE HONORS?

ONE simple principle which every declarer understands is that it is wise to play the defender who made a bid as likely to hold any high honors which are out against him. An equally sound, but less realized, principle is that the partner of the bidder is more likely to have any low honors which were not required for the bid made. Here is an easy way to appreciate that—there are very few blank hands, totally lacking honor strength. Hence if one player is pretty sure to have the missing high honors, his partner is pretty likely to have the low ones.

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT



With perfect defense from Charles Lochridge in the West and Samuel Fry, Jr., in the East, Sherman Stearns in the South and John R. Crawford in the North made a top score on this tournament deal. In view of the vulnerability, Mr. Stearns decided to count East for the missing ace and three kings for his opening bid and West for the missing jacks on the principle of "almost never an honorless hand." That enabled him to make his contract plus an extra trick.

The club 3 lead was won by the A and Mr. Stearns finessed the spade Q against one K. Then he finessed the diamond Q against a second K. Now he led the heart 8 and finessed it against a J to force out the A. Mr. Fry made a smart return, the club J, hoping Mr. Stearns would decide from this that West probably held the K, in which event the lead could steal an important trick. But the declarer stuck by his sound plan and put in the Q. That assured him his extra trick, as he now was sure of four tricks in hearts, two in spades, two in diamonds and two in clubs.

At the other table of the match, South reached only 2-No Trumps and made just barely enough tricks for that contract, so was beaten by two tricks.

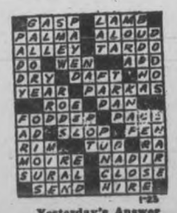
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

If East opened with 1-Heart and leads the diamond 4, what is perfect play and defense with North in 1-No Trump?

Name Delegates To Convention

Ten delegates were elected Wednesday to represent Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, at the District 4 Winter Convention to be held in St. Catharines on January 24-25.

Five members were elected as permanent delegates to attend all UE District Conventions during 1948. They are C. O'Donnell, recording secretary of the local; K. Chiles, financial secretary; J. Wilson, executive member; J. Grierson and J. Morton, members.

Temporary delegates, for the St. Catharines convention only, are R. Walsh, president; W. Whibbs, vice-president; J. Murphy and C. Williamson, executive members; and J. Southgate.

Discussion of a wages policy for 1948, and a program for political action are expected to be the feature items on the agenda.

Several resolutions approved at the recent meeting will be submitted by the delegates at the St. Catharines convention. One was the endorsement of the Canadian Congress of Labor appeal for reducing consumption of meat and dairy products to a minimum. Other resolutions approved by the membership included urging the government to reimpose milk subsidies, and the introduction of oleomargarine as a substitute for butter.

Insurance Faces No Trade Barriers

"Tell your friends Canadians are in the widest, most competitive insurance market in the world, and consequently enjoy all price advantages," said R. Leighton Foster, KC, former superintendent of insurance for the Province of Ontario, and now general counsel for the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association, in addressing Thursday's meeting of the life underwriters. "There are no trade barriers, with American companies writing in Canada, and with Canadian companies securing 45 per cent of their business outside Canada. Rates must be fair and policies liberal or Canadian companies could not write to this extent in the foreign field."

The speaker reminded his audience of the various examples of governments and combines entering into the life insurance field, and they had scarcely got started when rates were at almost the same level as established companies, thereby refuting the statement that companies were not providing rates at lowest cost possible. He felt these are among the things that the public should know, and if the public had the facts, nine out of ten criticisms would vanish. It was therefore up to the agent to avail himself of every opportunity to acquaint the public with the true picture. "Ours is the greatest business in the world—I am sure it is the cleanest—and the only thing the business has to fear is ignorance."

John Nornabell introduced the speaker and Gordon Minty expressed the thanks of the gathering. Roy Irwin was the lucky recipient of the booster prize donated by the Examiner.

22 Indian Teachers Get Permanent Jobs

OTTAWA, Jan. 23—(CP).—A first group of 22 Indian day school teachers, scattered in Indian schools across the nation, have been appointed to permanent positions within the Indian Affairs Branch with benefits similar to those afforded the teachers in Canada's public schools.

In making the announcement today, Resources Minister Glen, whose department administers the Indian Affairs Branch and its 350,000 Indian wards, hailed the passage of an Order-in-Council giving the Indian day school teachers permanent positions as a "significant development in the annals of Canadian Indian administration."

Departmental spokesmen said that there are 360 Indian day school teachers in the branch and the new policy of offering permanent positions has been afforded to all where they can qualify. Qualifications include a teacher's certificate and employment as an Indian day school teacher for at least two years.

Corner Stone For Hospital Laid At Bancroft

BANCROFT, Jan. 23 (ENS).—Laying of the corner-stone for the new North Hastings Red Cross Hospital being erected at Bancroft, took piace Wednesday afternoon, when many citizens of the village, along with distinguished visitors and High School children were present. The stone was Indiana limestone, and inscribed, "North Hastings Red Cross Hospital, 1947." C. A. Eddy, immediate past president of the Bancroft executive board for the Red Cross, acted as chairman, and in his address stressed the urgent need for the new 20-bed hospital, total cost of which will be $150,000.

Walter E. Wiggins, first president of the North Hastings Red Cross executive at Bancroft, spoke, and then deposited a scroll of the past presidents in the corner-stone crypt, containing the following names: W. E. Wiggins, Miss Eudora Jones, Mrs. Marjorie McCaw, the late Edward Maxwell, Mrs. G. W. Jones, Dr. D. M. Rouse, E. J. Follis, Mrs. O. W. Anderson, C. A. Eddy.

H. H. Loucks, president of the local board of executives, was then called upon and spoke briefly. He deposited a scroll comprising the names of the local hospital executive, which was as follows: H. H. Loucks, president; Mrs. R. W. Blatherwick, first vice-president, Mrs. Florence Russell, Dr. D. M. Rouse, S. W. Palmateer, W. T. Hopper, M. J. McAlpine, C. T. Collins, P. A. Kellar, D. Goodwin, C. A. Eddy, Mrs. Lydia Robinson, president of the Women's Red Cross Auxiliary, Mrs. William T. Hopper, secretary; A. F. Burns as treasurer, and on the Advisory Board, W. E. Wiggins, F. J. Follis, and J. L. Churcher.

Mrs. R. W. Blatherwick was then called upon to deposit the scroll of the Building Committee names comprising H. H. Loucks, M. J. McAlpine, C. A. Eddy and W. T. Hopper. The matron of the local Red Cross Hospital, Miss Madeline Armour, was then called upon to deposit the scroll of the local hospital staff, comprising the following names: Miss Madeline Armour, Reg. N., Matron; Miss Dorothy Hagerman, RN, Miss Hilda McGhee, assisted by Mrs. N. H. Whitmore, Reg. N., Mrs. E. Nicoll, Miss Delores Weiss,, nurses, and A. T. Griggs, hospital attendant.

P. A. Kellar, Reeve of Bancroft, representing the County of Hastings, deposited the scroll of the County Council members for the year 1946, during which year the County Council gave a generous donation towards the building fund. The editor of the Bancroft Times, H. M. Price, deposited a copy of the Bancroft Times in the crypt.

The laying of the corner-stone then took place, when Archie Harvie, ex-Warden of Hastings County, declared the corner-stone well and truly laid. The ceremony ended with prayer by Mr. R. McEachern of St. Paul's United Church.

House Of Refuge Deficit $4,119

Disbursements on the annual report of the House of Refuge more than doubled receipts for 1947. Receipts were $4,119.49, with disbursements $8,382.18, showing a balance on the debit side of $4,119.49. The report was read by J. Mahoney.

Inmates in the Home on December 31, 1946, were 15 and during 1947 13 were admitted and four discharged. There were five deaths during the year, leaving 19 inmates still in the Home. The cost per week per inmate over the year worked out at $4.88.

At the end of the year there were four inmates paying their board and seven inmates were receiving old age pensions. All boarding inmates are paying $7 per week. During the year the Board purchased comfortable furniture for both sitting rooms, costing $460.00.

The Board has been unsuccessful in securing help for the matron. In 1947 Mr. Thomas L. Shaw of Havelock, died and he left his entite estate to the county of Peterborough in return for keeping his two deaf and dumb daughters. The girls were admitted on June 5 and it is reported that they are adjusting themselves very well to the conditions in the Home. The estate when probate was filed was estimated to be $7,217.75 and when debts and funeral expenses are settled the county should realize approximately $6,000 from the will. The treasurer of the county was named executrix of the will, and was named by Mr. Shaw to be trustee of the fund.

ONTARIO GETS RELIEF FROM COLD WAVE

SAFETY MEASURES IN "NO-MAN'S-LAND"—Clashes between Jews and Arabs have occurred most frequently in this area, between the Jewish city of Tel Aviv and Arab Jaffa. A Haganah member and a Jewish policeman are searching Arabs (left) before they are allowed to enter the Tel Aviv area to reach the small Arab village located there. Armed Band Swarms Into Kashmir

Thousands Of Invaders Burn Villages As Refugees Flee

NEW DELHI, Jan. 24. (Reuters) —Thousands of armed raiders equipped with machine guns and mortars have penetrated four to five miles into Jammu territory, in Southern Kashmir near the Punjab border, reports reaching here from Jammu said Friday night.

Villages were reported to have been burned and refugees were said to be arriving in Jammu City, winter capital of Kashmir.

An army press note surveying the campaign in Jammu said Pathans from the northwest frontier province formed a large part of the raiders who were using rifles, machine, sten, anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns, mortars, mountain artillery, mines and a large number of army pattern vehicles.

Only rifles and light machine guns have been captured from the Kashmir State forces and practically nothing from the Indian Army, the note said.

The note added: "All the raiders taken prisoner, whether Pathans or Nationals of Pakistan, claim they were forced against their will to fight or had been incited by political leaders on the cry of holy war."

Friday night's Indian Defense Ministry communique made no mention of raiders entering Jammu, but it said Indian artillery and mortars had killed 50 and wounded 100 raiders out a fully equipped force of 700 men wearing battledress, engaged in fighting on a hill near Noashera.

Noashera territory adjoins Northwest Jammu territory. The two cities of those names are 50 miles apart.

Indian casualties in all operations in Kashmir and Jammu are 842, including 339 killed, it was learned reliably here today.

The raiders' casualties are conthan ten times those of the Indian servatively estimated at more Army troops.

Drew Announces Legislature To Open March 3

TORONTO, Jan. 24. (CP)—The fourth session of Ontario's 22nd legislature will start March 3—two weeks later than had been predicted in Queen's Park corridor gossip but three days earlier than last year's opening.

A new Milk Control Act may be among major legislation to be brought down at the forthcoming session. Amendments to the present act to facilitate price-fixing were enacted last October at the resumed third session and Agriculture Minister Kennedy said then a new act probably would be introduced in the spring.

Opening of the new session, date of which was announced late yesterday by Premier Drew, will come slightly more than two weeks after the Huron by-election on Feb. 16. In that by-election, the first since Mr. Drew's Progressive Conservative administration was returned to office in 1945, a successor to the late Dr. R. Hobbs of Dashwood, Progressive Conservative member, will be elected.

Premier Drew's announcement gave no hint whether this spring's session will be long or short. Last year the legislature sat from Mar. 6 until April 3 and adjourned until fall when it completed its work Oct. 22-28.

Adjournment last year came a few days before Easter. This year Easter falls on March 29.

Party standing in the 90-member House is: Progressive Conservative, 65; Liberal, 11; CCF, eight; Labor-Progressive Party, two; Independent Labor, one; Liberal-Labor, two; vacant, one.

Gas Shortage Critical Near Windsor

If Cold Continues 30,000 Workers Likely Laid Off

TORONTO, Jan. 24 (CP)—Rising temperatures predicted for today were expected to put an end to central Canada's most severe cold wave of the winter so far and to ease a natural gas shortage which raised the threat of an industrial shut-down in western Ontario.

Until the cold snap showed signs of moderating, Windsor, London, Chatham and Simcoe faced what utilities officials termed the most critical natural gas shortage in years. Gas consumptoin went up as the temperature dropped and gas-main pressure fell off.

Automobile plant officials at Windsor said yesterday that if the cold spell continued, as many as 30,000 industrial workers in that area might be laid off. Already 3,000 Chrysler workers had been sent home after the gas supply was curtailed.

Blame Frozen Pipes

R. L. Bevin, chief engineer of the Union Gas Company in Chatham, said last night that frozen pipes in an oil company refinery in Sarnia was partly responsible for the gas shortage. Four Sarnia industries closed until the situation improved.

Toronto, which yesterday had its coldest day in three years with 12 degrees below zero, today looked forward to a milder day with a minimum of 10 below and a maximum of 18 above.

Twenty-below-zero weather at Meaford, Ont., yesterday didn't discourage harbingers of spring. Six robins made an appearance near the trailway yards.

Forfeits $50,000 Bail

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 — (AP). — Albert Edward de Palma, 47, Toronto stock dealer, forfeited another $10,000 in bail today by failing to appear in court on charges of violating Securities Acts of two states. He forfeited $40,000 bail Thursday in connection with attempts to remove him to Cleveland, Ohio. He is charged there with mail fraud and conspiracy to violate the Securities and Exchange Act in the selling of gold mine stock.

Devalue Franc French Cabinet Rules

PARIS, Jan. 24—(CP)—Climaxing a fortnight's international negotiations with Britain and the International Monetary Fund, the French cabinet today decided to re-establish a free market in gold and certain currencies, and, it is believed, to devalue the franc.

The government's decision was made known in a communique announcing that the council of ministers had approved and agreed to present to the National Assembly a bill "relating to the regulation of the market in foreign exchange and in gold."

Pierre Abelin, secretary in the premier's office said the bill in effect meant a "free foreign exchange market." The act of devaluing the currency does not require to be submitted to parliament, and the government's decision in this respect would be announced later today "in time for publication in Sunday's papers." It would be synchronized with an announcement to be made by the International Monetary Fund, which has been considering the French scheme in Washington.

Under the French scheme the new franc-dollar rates would, it was reliably learned, be 216 francs to the dollar for the fixed rate while the other would be left to a free market to determine on a day-to-day basis.

This would place the fixed franc-sterling rate at about 864 francs to the pound.

It was understood, although no official confirmation was available that there would be no free rate for sterling.

Many Have Been Influenced

It was not known whether the French scheme had been modified to meet British objections and counter-proposals formulated by Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his talks in Paris yesterday and today.

Answering questions on this point, Abelin merely said that the British negotiations had "manifested extreme good-will and understanding of the French situation."

Sir Stafford was due to see Finance Minister Rene Mayer again this afternoon.

Both French and British delegation circles had maintained close secrecy on the results of this morning's talks between Sir Stafford and Mayer.

Hockey Tilts Postponed Due To Cold

Peterborough 18 Below As Mercury Dips For Second Night

A sub-zero blanket of cold air continued to envelop the entire Central Ontario region throughout the night, and temperatures moved downward to 18 below in the city, just three degrees short of the season's record set Thursday evening. At 9 this morning the frigid wave had moderated to a mere five below.

Minor hockey league games scheduled on Peterborough's outdoor rinks were postponed Friday evening, but the game at Omemee was played as scheduled in the covered rink. Wrecking trucks from city and district garages were busy almost continually for the past 24 hours, as frozen radiators and frozen brakes gave motorists trouble.

Thursday's cold wave across Canada which reportedly gave the record low of 39 to White River was not the lowest point at all. Jim Earnshaw, foreman at the Peterborough Lumber Company camp in Cavendish township claims it was 41 below by a good mercury thermometer hanging outside the camp door.

Bancroft Leads

Bancroft replaced Apsley as the coldest centre in the district Friday night, registering a teeth-chattering 30 below zero. Apsley was 25 below at 7 p.m., closely followed by Marmora at 24 below. By midnight, temperatures at Burleigh Falls, Omemee, and Campbellford were registering 15, 14, and 12 below respectively. Lakefield and Roseneath were 10 below Friday night.

Coldsprings seemed to belie its name by dipping only to two below in the early morning hours. Areas to the south gave much milder readings, Cobourg, Port Hope, Gore's Londing and Plainville, being five, four, five and eight below respectively.

As an indication of the slightly moderating cold, Lindsay temperature rose from 12 below at one a.m. Saturday morning to three above at nine a.m.

Cabinet Shuffle At Ottawa Shifts Deputies

OTTAWA, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King Friday night announced changes in deputy ministerial posts of three government departments and disclosed that it is planned to transfer responsibility for Canada's air services from the near-liquidated reconstruction department to the Minister of Transport.

Mr. King announced these changes, effective Feb. 1.

1. V. W. T. Scully, Deputy Minister of Reconstruction and Supply, to be Deputy Minister of National Revenue (taxation), succeeding Frank Brown of Vancouver who recently retired.

2. Cmdr. C. P. Edwards, Deputy Minister of Transport, to be Deputy Minister of Reconstruction and Supply of that department's liquidation period after which he will become Deputy Minister of Transport for air services.

3. Jean Claude Lessard, at present chairman of the statistics division of the International Civil Aviation Organization, to be Deputy Minister of Transport in charge of rail and marine services.

Mr. King said that Cmdr. Edward's duties as deputy minister of reconstruction would be in connection with liquidation of the Reconstruction Department. He also will deal with air services and related branches of the Transport Department for which the ministerial responsibility is at present vested in the reconstruction minister.

As soon as necessary legislation can be enacted, Mr. King said it was proposed to have two deputy ministers of transport, one for air services—Cmdr. Edwards — and one for rail and marine services — Mr. Lessard.

When provision is made by parliament for the additional deputy minister, Mr. King said it was intended to transfer the ministerial responsibility for air services — under which Trans-Canada Air Lines is administered—to the Minister of Transport.

St. Laurent Predicts Ban On Imports Eased Soon

WINNIPEG, Jan. 24—(CP).—Canadians had the promise today of External Affairs Minister St. Laurent that import restrictions put into effect recently would be withdrawn as the United States dollar position of this country is in "equilibrium." Mr. St. Laurent, in an address at the 69th annual meeting of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, added that he hoped such relief "will not be far in the future."

The External Affairs Minister said the situation could only be rectified through increased production of commodities which have a market in the United States.

"Canada must create a genuine exportable surplus large enough to enable us to play our part in the recovery of Europe without having to resort to crippling import restrictions," he added.

The 65-year-old Cabinet Minister from Quebec, held by many observers to have the inside track as successor to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, said the Government had been forced to impose the restrictions because Canada had spent more than $1,000,000,000 in United States dollars in 22 months. These expenditures had reduced the nations reserve of such dollars to $500,000,000—a slender reserve "that would not have lasted to the middle of 1948."

No Soundness

There was no soundness to an argument that if Canada had not raised her dollar to parity with the American dollar in 1946, Dominion imports would have been smaller and dollar reserves correspondingly higher.

"When I see how little effect price increases of nearly 50 per cent. have had upon the demand for United States goods in this country I cannot believe that a further 10 per cent. exchange premium would have made much difference.

"In any event, a 10 per cent. premium would certainly have given another boost to the cost of living which we have been trying to hold in check by every reasonable means."

Planning Drive On Black Market

MUNICH, Jan. 24 — (AP). — The German Economic Council of the British and American zones, spurred by a 24-hour hunger strike by 1,000,000 Bavarians, took steps today to wipe out black marketing and food hoarding and thus increase rations.

The Bavarian state government in the United States zone announced it would wage a similar drive and called on trade unions and farmers' associations to help divert food from illegal channels into a common rationing pool.

The bizonal council, in the severest law in its six months' existence decreed that all faremrs and food handlers must report their complete stocks. Food not reported can be confiscated under the new law and fines up to $2,000 can be levied for false reports.

The lone Communist delegate was the only council member to oppose to measure.

(Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor, said in Washington the United States army intends to step up the German basic ration from 1,550 calories a day to 1,800 by July 1. Food collected from German farmers would comprise about 80 per cent of the target.)

Police Charge Crowd Defying Judge's Order

CAWNPORE, Jan. 24 (Reuters) —Police opened fire and made a lathi charge to disperse a crowd after 56 persons, including 38 policemen, had been injured by stones thrown by students in a procession here.

About 125 persons were arrested for taking part in the procession in defiance of the district magistrate's order.

The procession was to celebrate the 52nd anniversary of the birth of Subhas Chandra Bose, head of a Japanese-sponsored "Free India" government during the war, who was reported killed in an air crash at Formosa while flying to Japan in August, 1945, at the time of the Japanese surrender.

No one was injured by police fire, but 18 were hurt in the charge.

Western Bloc Annoys Russia

LONDON, Jan. 24.— (AP). — The first Russian pronouncement on the British proposal for a west European alliance is that the apparent aim is to get agreement on a western German state.

Tass, official Soviet News Agency, said in a Paris dispatch last night the object of the plan "apparently" was to win the support of France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg "for the creation of a western German state." Bevin had invited these countries to join the alliance.

Tass said today in a London dispatch that Bevin's speech "was meant as a smoke screen for creation of the so-called western bloc, formation of which has already been started by Britain and France through negotiations with Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg."

Actress Takes Too Many Pills

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24.—(AP).—Actress Kay Francis continued today to gain on an "upper respiratory infection" which forced her from the stage of the Hartman theatre to an oxygen tent in White Cross hospital.

The 43-year-old star of stage and screen collapsed yesterday from what detectives said was an overdose of sleeping pills and under circumstances which led police to detain Howard Graham, her stage manager, for five hours while they investigataed.

As the hulabaloo over her collapse subsided, Dr. Maurice B. Rosoff, her physician, said she was "seriously, but not critically ill" from what he described as an 'upper respiratory infection." He would not elaborate.

The play, "State of the Union," in which Miss Francis had been playing, went on last night with Erin O'Brien-Moore doing the honors successfully after a hurried plane flight from Chicago.

Micmac Captain Faces Halifax Court Martial

HALIFAX, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Cmdr. J. C. Littler, DSC, of Victoria, captain of the destroyer Micmac when the warship collided with a freighter off Halifax harbor July 16 with the loss of 11 lives, will face a court martial here Monday, a naval spokesman confirmed today.

A court of inquiry investigating the crash, which occurred in dense fog with the Acadia overseas freighter Yarmouth County, attached blame for the accident to Cmdr. Littler but did not find him criminally negligent. The court's findings were made known at Ottawa Dec. 21.

"Hazarding his ship" will be the main charge laid against Cmdr. Littler.

The 2,000-ton Micmac, first of four Tribal-class destroyers built at Halifax shipyards, was heavily damaged in the port-to-port collision and has not yet been repaired. All the dead and the 16 injured were aboard the Micmac.

The report of the investigation, signed by Mr. Justice W. F. Carroll, judge in admiralty of the exchequer court for the district of Nova Scotia, and by the assessors, Commodore G. M. Hibbard and Capt. Robert A. Goudey, said in part:

"The damage, loss of life and injury to personnel was caused by the default of commanding officer of the Micmac and not by default of the master of the Yarmouth County.

"The Micmac was not sounding its siren and entered the fog at too high a rate of speed and placed herself in a position from which she could not extricate herself."

Arab Raiders Attack Convoy

JERUSALEM, Jan. 24 — (AP). — One Arab was killed at Acre last night in an exchange of fire between British troops and Arab raiders who attacked a convoy of trucks stalled in a rain storm.

Yesterday was the quietest day the Holy Land has experienced since the United Nations voted Nov. 29 to partition the country. The unofficial count of violent deaths since that date is 956.

Arabs opened fire last night on the slopes of Mount Scopus near Jerusalem when reports circulated that Jews were attacking a village in the valley. No casualties were reported.

THOROLD, Ont., Jan. 24.—(CP).— Sheriff's officers, working in sub-zero weather on the coldest day yet this winter, yesterday evicted Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rippey and their three children from the home in which the couple had lived 12 years.

When the family's furniture had been piled in the snow, the house was turned over to Adolf Petribond, who is said to have bought the four-room dwelling 18 months ago.

UN Seeks Indian Solution To Save Face For 2 States

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 24. (AP) —Debate in the United Nations Security Council over the situation in the princely state of Kashmir moved nearer a decisive stage today with the contending Dominions of Hindu-led India and Moslem Pakistan approaching the end of their formal arguments.

Diplomats who have watched the case unfold here say now that the job of the council will be to find a solution which will end the fighting and yet enable both sides to save face.

Delegates are expected to use as a basis for any such solution the fact that both sides agreed there should be a plebiscite in Kashmir to allow the 4,000,000 inhabitants of that northernmost state to decide whether they wish it to be part of India or Pakistan. Although Kashmir is 77 per cent Moslem, its Hindu Maharajah has joined India provisionally and Indian troops now are fighting the so-called invaders of the state.

The possibility remains that Kashmir may decide not to affiliate with either Dominion and instead become an independent state. Its strategic location in being a near neighbor to Russia and China gives the outcome global importance.

India wound up her formal argument late yesterday with a four-hour speech. She reiterated that Pakistan put pressure on Kashmir to accede to the Moslem dominion and India took the state under her wing and sent in troops to keep peace.

Belleville CAS Ready To Aid Marmora Lad

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 24.—Capt. Thomas D. Ruston, Children's Aid superintendent here, told members of the county council Friday that his organization would do all in its power to secure leniency for 16-year-old Bernard Lloyd, Marmora youth, who is now in custody charged with the wounding of his father, Frank Lloyd. The youth is said to have fired a .22-calibre rifle at his foster parent after waking to his mother's cries for help during a family argument.

"We have fully investigated the circumstances surrounding the boy and also his background," Capt. Ruston said, "and it was the affection that he held for his foster mother that caused him to act as he did.

English Pied Piper Solves Rat Troubles

CORBY, Northamptonshire, England, Jan. 24 —(CP)—J. W. Heywood is so good at catching rats with a special reed pipe that he has been nicknamed "The Pied Piper of Corby."

The pipe, an invention of Heywood's, resembles a black cigarette holder and lures the rodents by producing a faint, high, plaintive whistle exactly like a rat's mating call. The sound is almost too high to be heard by human ears.

It has been so successful that some have been exported to the United States and Holland.

County Home In Victoria Shows Deficit

LINDSAY, Jan. 24 (ENS)—The Victoria County Home for the Aged and Infirm cared for 100 persons during the year 1947 with 87 persons in charge of the county at the end of the year. This was contained in the annual report the home for the aged committee tabled in county council and a deficit of $1,132.27 was revealed. Of the 87 persons in charge at the end of the year 54 were males and 33 females. The farm at the home showed a working surplus of $2,105.12. On the other side of the ledger food costs soared by approximately $1,500, cost of maintenance rose rapidly from $4.51 per week per person in 1946 to $5.78, in 1947.

One item in food costs caused eyebrows to raise. It was spirits —$4.00. In the report comparable figures were given to show the increased cost of maintenance per week for each person over the past ten years. In 1937 the cost was $3.54, 1938 $3.86, 1939 $3.89, 1940 $3.96, 1941 $3.95, 1942 $4.09, 1943 $4.32, 1944 $4.32, 2945 $4.48, 1946 $4.51, 1947 $5.78.

The report was accepted and ordered printed in the minutes.

Need Hospital For Incurables Victoria County Council Told

LINDSAY, Jan. 24. (ENS) — Victoria Council Council in session here Friday afternoon discussed the possibilities of a hospital for those who are chronically ill and for incurables. The per diem allowance for indigents in convalescent hospitals in the county has risen from 25 cents to 50 cents as an inducement for more of such hospitals to be opened. County Clerk F. L. Weldon pointed out the Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay is overcrowded, many of the patients being chronically ill or incurable. The hospital was built to accommodate 60 beds and 14 bassinettes for babies. There has been as high as 96 patients in the hospital, Mr. Weldon said, and in the maternity ward, with a normal accommodation of 14 mothers and 14 babies the high was 26 mothers and 26 babies. He told members that many of the patients could be moved to a hospital for incurables or those chronically ill, if such accommodation existed, thus leaving beds free in the Lindsay hospital for emergency patients.

The matter of accommodation for the incurables was handed to a committee for further study. Members of the committee who are to bring in the report at the March session are Warden A. N. Wilson, Dr. F. N. Graham, H. Deyell, W. Reeds, W. Worsley, Chas. Logan and Clerk F. L. Weldon. The finance and assessment committee decided to absorb the $20,000 which will be the county's share of the cost of building the Fenelon Falls bridge out of current revenue. It will mean an addition of one mill on the mill rate. A deficit in the Home for the Aged account was tabled at $1,132.27. The general account showed a surplus of $353.88 while the county roads account showed a surplus of $6,571.44. The larger portion of this latter surplus was last year earmarked for the purchase of a maintainer which has not yet been delivered to the county.

The debenture debt was reported to be $56,670.17 of which $28,828.39 is debentures issued when the new wing was built on the Ross Memorial Hospital.

Omemee WA Reports Fine Year

OMEMEE, Jan. 24 — (ENS). — Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt addressed the members of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church at the home of Miss C. Connell, bringing to them a timely message about the social side of their organization and their opportunity to develop the religious and devotional side. He read a letter from a Dutch lady—the wife of a professor in a university in Holland — in whose home Mr. Zufelt had been entertained while overseas.

Mrs. H. Deyell presided for a business period during which reports showed 1947 to have been a year of advancement for the association. Extensive repairs and improvements were made to the church basement and the treasurer, Miss Irene Faulkner, reported a balance of $117.10. Plans were completed for a pot-luck supper to be held in the church at the annual congregational meeting January 28.

Mrs. V. Lang and Mrs. W. D. Weir were appointed to arrange and supervise a travelling shirt to raise money in 1948. The worship theme was carried out by Mrs. H. Deyell, Mrs. V. E. R. Zufelt, and Mrs. V. S. Lang. Miss Dorothy Connell sang a solo.

Miss Wilton, assisted by Mrs. Hough and Mrs. V. Lang, served lunch. Mrs. L. Rea invited the ladies to meet next at her home.

Cold Wave In US

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (AP). — Winter enveloped almost the entire United States in its benumbing embrace yesterday, driving the mercury below zero in the East, Mid-West and the Rockies, and bringing a forecast of freezing temperatures as far south as Northern Florida and the Gulf States.

Hastings County Has 350 Acres Now Reforested

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 24.—Urging that members take an increased interest in reforestation of the county, W. E. Edwards, zone forester, of Napanee, outlined plans whereby this phase of county work can be expanded to Hastings County Council.

"The county is making good progress along reforestation lines," he said, adding that two planting days will be held this year at the new sites in Actinolite and Bird's Creek. 60,000 trees mostly pine withe a few poplar will be planted in these newly-acquired areas, and the speaker urged that every member of council be present at the ceremonies.

Hastings has 350 acres under reforestation, he went on, with an authorization to purchase 80 additional acres.

In some eastern counties large scale reforestation programs are under way. In Leeds and Russell some 10,000 acres of near worthless land have been acquired and are being planted at the rate of 1,000 acres a year.

Can Sign Agreement

In these large scale programs, the forester pointed out county councils can sign an agreement with the government whereby the latter will take over an area for a term of thirty years, and bear all cost of planting, fencing and maintenance. At the end of this period the country can reclaim the area by paying the government the amount of monies expended on it.

"This plan," he said, "is available to townships, and there are some in Hastings County which should avail themselves of it." It seemed utter folly, in his opinion, that land is sold for taxes when it can be utilized by the municipality for reforestation purposes.

Another plan for expansion of reforestation is that of education, both from the school level and the adult point. In the case of the latter, many county organizations are setting aside one meeting a year which they devote entirely to the subject of reforestation and conservation.

Way to Spread News

Through these meetings such organizations as Junior Farmers' Clubs, Fish and Game Associations, etc., can spread the gospel of reforestation and its assistance to county prosperity.

"Recently," Mr. Edwards said, "the eastern zone of the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Association started a scheme to promote an educational program in rural schools. The Department of Education had been approached and had agreed to include the teaching of woodlot management in Grades 7 and 8 in the primary schools. Present plans call for the selection of a group of schools in this part of Eastern Ontario to try out this idea.

There will be class-room discussions on woodlot management and pupils will be taken on a field trip and be shown "on the ground" what reforestation actually means. If the program is successful, not doubt it will be put in effect in all rural schools in Eastern Onltario.

In Hastings County five schools will be selected where the plan will be tried out. This will be done as soon as approval is received from the Department of Education.

Produce in 25 Years

The reforestation future of Hastings County is assured if all these expansion programs are carried out, the forester told council. Present woodlots will produce in 25 years. Many others are idle. Others half stocked and nearly all of them are under pasture.

The first "thinning cutting" of new reforestation areas will take place about 25 years from now, he went on. The first cutting will result in the county "breaking even" but the second thinning will show a profit.

Unless reforestation and conservation is maintained, Mr. Edwards, concluded, the balance of nature cannot be preserved.

Civil Servants Get Pay Raise

OTTAWA, Jan. 24 — (CP) — Salary increases for about 17,000 lower-paid Federal civil servants were announced by Finance Minister Abbott today.

The boosts, averaging about $180 a year, apply to messengers, elevator operators, caretakers, watchmen, cleaners, packers, hospital orderlies and canal and airport employees.

At the same time, Mr. Abbott announced rejection of proposals for cost-of-living allowances to supplement the pensions of superannuated civil servants.

The new increases, amounting to about $3,000,000 a year, were forecast Dec. 19 by Prime Minister Mackenzie King when he announced hoists for civil service clerical employees and for the armed forces and service pensioners.

Two Organizers Get Six Months

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Lawrence K. Smylie, 18, of Toronto, and Nicholas Sawchuk, 23, of Thorold, organizers for the Canadian Seamen's Union (TLC) were convicted today of illegally boarding the S.S. Coteaudoc at the Port Weller Drydock last June 4 and were each sentenced to six months.

Trial was adjourned several times because seamen witnesses were in different parts of the world. Testimony was taken last December 10 and Magistrate H. D. Hallett delivered a written judgment to-day.

Evidence was that neither Smylie nor Sawchuk spoke to any officer before boarding the Coteaudoc to try to organize the crew. Shortly after they went aboard, Second Mate John Misener of the Coteaudoc met them. An argument ensued and Sawchuk was struck by Misener, the magistrate was told.

Canadian Newspapers Lack Sensationalism

KINGSTON, Jan. 24 — (CP) — Canadian newspapers were superior to British popular newspapers "in their reporting of international news," Dr. T. E. Jessop, professor of philosophy at University College in Hull, England, said in an interview here.

Visiting Queen's University for three weeks as Dunning Trust lecturer, Dr. Jessop said Canadian newspapers "have a refreshing sobriety and lack many of the sensationalist elements which cause many of today's papers to present a one-sided viewpoint."

For the average individual who wished to help pave the road to lasting peace, he advocated refusal to purchase any newspaper which discussed international affairs irresponsibly. The professor opposed control of the press in peacetime.

"The trouble in England is that many people read only one newspaper. Here lies the disability of freedom of the press. The soft way out is to ask the government to control the press; it is much more effective for us to control it."

A letter from Mrs. Roy Breaker, Young's Point, who is in England, described a family which she hoped the local club would adopt.

The club donated prizes to the children drawing the best poster announcing the meeting. First prize was won by Helen Dunford, second prize went to Marian Crapp, and the third prize by Evelyn Freeburn.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Jones assisted by Miss Vera Dunford and one of the senior pupils, Monica Young.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 12

Before I started back to Dartmouth, my father told me that since the time had come for me to learn something about politics, he had arranged for the study of civics to be substituted for some of my engineering classes.

My old tutor, Henry Peter Hansell, who had stayed on with the family to teach my younger brothers, Harry, George and John, felt that my progress in this new field would be furthered if I were to read more serious newspapers than the tabloids which I, in common with the other cadets, devoured from cover to cover..

Accordingly, he consulted one of the Dartmouth masters, a Mr. Cookson. Deciding that the Times —organ of British Conservatism —was probably too stuffy for my taste, they worked out a daily reading plan, of which I, in all innocence, hastened to appraise my father: "Dear Papa . . . I take in the Morning Post and Westminster Gazette, as both Mr. Cookson and Mr. Hansell came to the conclusion that those were the best two for me to take in. By this means, I have both a Conservative and a Liberal paper to read . . . It is ever so much more interesting for me to follow the political proceedings now that I have been tought something of the country's Constitution . . ."

But, for a Prince, even the most cautious foray into contemporary politics was fraught with hazard, as shown by my next letter to my father: "Dear Papa: . . . I have changed the papers as you wished, and Mr. Cookson quite agreed, and said" that he thought the Times put everything clearer and more to the point. So now I take in the Times . . ."

My last term passed swiftly — too swiftly. My brother Bertie had meanwhile been transferred from 'Osborne and in my dairy I alluded solemnly to his lack of respect toward a senior—nothing more, probably, than some impulsive, lonely gesture that breached Dartmouth's stern code: "I was told by somebody that Bertie was in the the habit of treating him with familiarity. I shall tell him this, as he should not mix with terms other than his own." Halfway through the term both he and I fell victim for the second time in our lives to a severe epidemic of measles which put two-thirds of the cadets in the hospital. Hansell came down from London and took us away to Cornwall to convalesce. In that lovely part of England we were joined by the secretary of the Duchy of Cornwall, Mr. Walter Peacock, who, hoping to stimulate my interest in business affairs, conducted me in my ducal capacity around some of my properties.

An informal picture of the Duke of Windsor, with his old tutor Henry Peter Hansell. He it was who chose a conservative and a liberal newspaper for Edward to read during his second term at Dartmouth. The King (the late George V) ordered him back to the London Times.

It was while I was in Cornwall that my first serious ambition was blasted. The goal of my cadet life had been the final training cruise and graduation that would qualify me for the dirk and white patch of midshipman. No cadet yearned for this proof of success more than I. Now, without warning, came a letter from my father explaining that since I would naturally be obliged to play a prominent role in his Coronation in June, I would have to forgo the training cruise in North American waters upon which my hopes were set.

So it was with a heavy heart that I returned to the Naval College to say goodbye to the officers and cadets of my term, and, incidentally, for the first time, to take the leading part in a public function. A silver oar, symbol of ancient rites of the water of Dartmouth, had long been deposited with the Duchy of Cornwall; and it was Mr. Peacock's sentimental thought that I should give it back to the town in a simple ceremony which I subsequently described in my diary of March 29, 1911, my last day at the Naval College:

"It was very sad saying farewell. . . . At 5.00 I left the bathing stage in a steamboat with the captain, Bertie, Hansell, Mr. Peacock and some officers and masters for the Dartmouth Pontoon, to present a silver oar. On arriving I shook hands with the mayor and others, inspected the guard and proceeded by carriage to the subscription rooms. There I said a few words to the mayor and gave the oar. . . . This was my first function, and I think it went off very well. . . ."

My family had moved meanwhile into Buckingham Palace, and I joined them there. Next morning there was the usual post-breakfast summons . relayed by Finch. My father took me for a walk in the gardens behind the Palace and warned me that the happy obscurity of the naval cadet was over. "You must begin to give thought to your position," he said. My father was not an eloquent man and he never defined just what he expected of me. But before the summer was out I understood.

Imperial Life policyholders tell

"How I measure my Life Assurance Company"

"By the service it gives," says the skilled worker.

A very important point, all of us will agree. And the 51st Annual Report of The Imperial Life Assurance Company shows in a very real way the measure of the Company's service. During 1947 The Imperial Life paid to policyholders and beneficiaries $8,052,000. Over the past fifty years benefit payments of $172,000,000 have been made.

"By the safety it offers," say wives and mothers.

To women in particular the security of the family's life assurance is of first importance. It means not just money when needed, but a guarantee that children will be brought up as planned in the warmth and peace of the home. In safekeeping now with The Imperial Life are assets amounting to $146,559,000 held in trust for the future care and protection of over 100,000 policyholders and their loved ones. These assets have been increased during the past year by $8,783,000—an indication of the continuing confidence held by thousands in the security of The Imperial Life.

"By the type of man who calls on me," says the professional man.

Qualified, competent service is a tradition of Imperial Life co-workers, now numbering more than 1,200. Agents and office staffs undergo a thorough course of training. Many representatives hold the degree of Chartered Life Underwriter (C.L.U.). One hundred and twenty-five members have been with the Company a quarter-century or more.

"By the progress the Company is making," say office workers.

An all-time record of $69,553,000 of assurance was purchased through The Imperial Life in 1947. Policyholders take pride in the fact that the assurance now in force in their Company—$486,279,000—is 1⅓ times the total that existed in the whole of Canada in all companies at the time The Imperial Life was founded 50 years ago!

Would you like to learn more about "the measurement" of The Imperial Life? The figures quoted were taken from the Annual Report of the Company for 1947. A copy of the complete report will be furnished on request.

A Call To Arms

The most shocking Canadian comment on the sorry international situation came from Mr. Mackenzie King in his Ottawa speech of January 20th when he announced his retirement. It was shocking because it came from Mr. King near the end of his long career as a politician and statesman.

* * *

All his life Mr. King has believed in the force of reason rather than of arms; he has been the proponent of international councils rather than of armed camps. Neither his friends nor his foes could call him a militarist. Now, seasoned in years, wise in experience and privy to the highest councils of nations, he speaks out in these words:

> So long as Communism remains as a menace to the free world, it is vital to the defence of freedom to maintain a preponderance of military strength on the side of freedom and to secure that degree of unity among the nations which will ensure that they cannot be defeated and destroyed one by one.

That is sombre and distressing counsel from one of the two most experienced elder statesmen in the Commonwealth. The other, Field Marshal Smuts of South Africa, the philosopher who wrote the celebrated memorandum The League of Nations: A Practical Suggestion in 1918, has had to accept the force of arms as a modern necessity.

There is nothing unholy or paradoxical in a man of peace putting his trust in armament, but it is a conception which would have been strange two or three years after the First Great War. The philosopher Smuts is a Field Marshal and he faces the political realities of this day steadily. Mr. King has likewise accepted the reality; never before in peace has he spoken out so strongly against a foreign power as he spoke against the militant menace of Russia. Never before in peace has he so strongly counselled a reliance on arms.

* * *

This speech may well be a redirection of Canada's foreign policy. When Mr. St. Laurent spoke last September on Canada's faith in U.N., U.N. was accepted as a corner-stone of our foreign policy:

> We in this country continue to believe that the best hope for mankind lies in the establishment of a world organization for the maintenance of peace.... Canada regards her membership in the United Nations not as a temporary expedient but as a permanent partnership.

Mr. King's speech has not been the only recent indication that a foreign policy that leans too heavily on U.N. (as it is now functioning) is not enough. General McNaughton was appointed to be our representative on the Security Council. General McNaughton is a busy man, for this is but an additional job. It was significant that neither L. B. Pearson nor Dana Wilgress was spared for the job.

* * *

The Prime Minister would have U.N. provided with an armed force. That is unlikely to happen. It would seem therefore, that Canada must be armed as democratic countries like Britain and the United States must be, prepared to resist threats of force with a threatening and potent show of force.

Are Women Chattels?

A magistrate in a Windsor court decided this week that a man who was charged with spanking his wife with a frying pan had sufficient provocation for his act. Like all such judgements, this has aroused resentful comment among feminists. And feminists abroad are aroused, too, for the Married Women's Association of Great Britain has launched a campaign against divorce damages granted to husbands. When the co-respondent in a divorce action is billed with damages a money value is thereby put upon the woman in the case, and she is ranked as a slave or a chattel; such is the contention of the Association.

We see the reason of this argument, but we think that it should be carried to a logical conclusion. If women do not want damages awarded to wronged husbands in divorce actions they must cease to bring suits for breach of promise against defaulting suitors; they must also cease to ask for alimony settlements. That is to say, women must refuse to put a money value on their affections, and they must cease to treat men in court as though they were simply providers—or "meal-tickets" as the popular expression is. If women insist on a high regard for their feelings in legal affairs, they must take a somewhat different attitude toward the feelings of men.

We feel, however, that the women who object to divorce settlements on these grounds are barking up the wrong tree. The man who sues for damages against a co-respondent in a divorce is asking for redress for a breach of contract, for marriage is a contract, as well as a number of other things. In a marriage contract some estimate must be made of the value of a wife to her husband, with proper consideration for his earning power and station in life. The law is very realistic in this respect. When the contract is broken, redress for the loss of services and comforts must be computed; the law does not pretend that such damages cover loss of affection and prestige.

We are strongly in favour of every legal protection and benefit for women, so long as such benefits are not contrived to bear unjustly upon men. But if we may say so without giving grave offence, in this matter of women's legal rights there are a great many women who want to eat their cake and have it too.

Ivy For Peterborough Eyesores

Spring is officially about eight weeks away, and it may not be too early to plan now for spring planting. We have a special kind of planting in mind.

Peterborough has some good brick walls and some good stone walls. It has many that are ugly. Either the building is an architectural monstrosity or a decent plan has been despoiled by Victorian baubles of cement or stone set in the brick to make the building look pretty. Ruskin's aberrations in masonry have no horrors compared with Peterborough's. What can be done? What does a woman do in search of beauty denied to her by nature and her parents? She has her face lifted or covers it with cosmetics. Buildings are too scarce, so we cannot remove the unsightly ones. Cover them up. Cover them with vines, ivy, Virginia creeper.

St. John's Church is a good building; its beauty is enhanced by the Virginia creeper which clothes the stone with green in summer and with scarlet in the fall.

Our city clock tower, which is likely to remain with us until the third and fourth generation and after, would be wonderfully improved if ivy were to cover its painted brick and soften its ungainly form. The Post Office would benefit from a similar transformation. So would the Customs Building. So would fifty others of which we cannot now think calmly. The suggestion is not impracticable. Only a square foot of paving need be removed here and there to give the vines root space. The brick walls could be coated with a preservative so that the vines' tendrils would not harm them.

In a decade or two a person approaching George from Charlotte Street would not need to shelter his eyes from the view; there would be the clock's face and below it the green vines. Across the way, on the other corner, would be a similar pleasant green. If we cannot make central Peterborough beautiful, we can at least make it less ugly.

NOTE AND COMMENT

This year, we read, is being called "The Year of Decision". We yearn for a year which would simply be known as the least eventful year in years.

We begin to think that modern civilization is as crazy as it seems when we see the iceman delivering blocks of ice when the thermometer is 15 degrees below zero.

The local man who has a card in his shop window which reads: "Girl Wanted" is just a bit too bold. In a respectable place like Peterborough the decent thing would have been to make his needs known through a matrimonial bureau.

Unusually old Turks are always turning up in the news; the latest specimen is 129. All we know about Turks is that they have Turkish delight, polygamy, and used to be considered unspeakable; if this combination makes for longevity, we're for it.

Diary Of A Scientific Investigator

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: A gentleman whom I met today remonstrated with me about my recent statement that Thackeray drank 1,500 bottles of wine a year; the correct figure, he said, was 500. This seems very likely, and I attribute my use of the larger figure to the rich generosity of my nature. I have never been good at remembering figures and statistics depress me. When I was a schoolboy I was the despair of the teachers of mathematics, and since my escape from the education-mills I have had as little as possible to do with their dismal mystery. When I have to estimate a yard of anything I do it by stretching whatever it is from the tip of my nose to the end of my outflung arm; when I have to estimate heights I mentally judge how many times I could lie at full length in the distance to be measured. These are not the methods of an Isaac Newton, but they suffice for my humble needs. I live a non-mathematical life, full of uncertainty, unreason and delicious surmise.

◇ ◇ ◇

MONDAY: Rode in a taxi this morning which was equipped with a talkback machine, so that it could receive directions from its head office at any time. I was not aware of this until I heard a sinister whisper fill the cab, saying: "Go to St. John's Church, No. 25; go to St. John's Church. That is all. Over." This startled me, for although the message was composed of good counsel the voice in which it was uttered was the sort of voice which I have always imagined Satan as using in some of his long harangues in "Paradise Lost".... Later in the day I saw a baker wearing a pair of plastic pants over his ordinary trousers. Pondered idly on the purpose of this strange garment. A baby-sitter might advantageously wear plastic pants; I have known babies who themselves wore plastic pants; but why does a baker need plastic pants? Some modern mystery, beyond my comprehension, no doubt, for I am a poor creature, bound by chains of habit. The first butcher I saw as a child had a wooden leg, and to this day I have an unreasonable feeling that butchers with two genuine legs are impostors. Such is the strength of an early impression on a mind ill-suited to the giddy changes of modern life.

TUESDAY: A group of professional floor waxers invaded The Towers today. They brought with them a great deal of equipment including several large wheels which appeared to be covered with the skins of whole cows. Their first move was to pile all the furniture in every room in a heap in the middle of it, and I was saddened to see how quickly the old home could be made to look like a junk shop. If I were to choke on a crumb, or collapse while shovelling snow, or be struck by a falling icicle, or fall backward down the cellar stairs while struggling upward with an armful of wood, or perish through any of the hazards of daily life, it would only be a matter of a few days before the auctioneers would invade the scene of my sloughed-off existence, and pile up my furniture in exactly this way; and when people came to the sale they would despise my furniture, and conclude that I was a sordid fellow, who had lived shabbily. These reflections depressed me so much that I itched all afternoon to get the waxers out of the house, so that I could set it right, and reassure myself.

WEDNESDAY: A schoolteacher confided to me today that there is nothing so useful for sticking things to a blackboard as shaving cream. It holds as well as glue, and yet it does not harden, and it imparts a delicious scent to the schoolroom, slightly ameliorating the customary effluvium of chalk, Vapex and wet sweaters. This lady told me that she used approximately a tube a term for this purpose.... What she said reminded me of my childhood, when I used to get my hair cut in the tonsorial parlour of an elderly barber called Murphy; in front of his two chairs were mirrors elegantly framed in walnut, and on these mirrors it was his custom to write improving sentiments in lather, such as "Treat Your Wife and Your Hair Right and They'll Never Leave You" or "God's Finest Gift—A Mother: A man's Best Asset—A Fine Head of Hair". Murphy's spelling was not always equal to the demands of his philosophy, but he wrote a flourishing hand with the lather brush, and surrounded these profound reflections with curlicues and even flowers delicately executed in lather. The art of lather work has died out, I fear.

THURSDAY: A gentleman writes to me from Ottawa about stamp collecting, referring to my recent suggestion that Canada needs brighter stamps: "I collect stamps, but from rather an unorthodox standpoint—the aesthetic. They afford almost the only remaining example of the art of line engraving and also, in the case of such countries as Finland, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, the Netherlands and France, provide a gallery in miniature where design, symbolism, landscape, portraiture are treated in a very charming manner. I was much amused by your comments on Sanchez Toda's "The Nude Maja" and thought you might like to know that the stamp caused a storm of protest when it came out. Of the myriad indignant letters received by the Universal Postal Union (the international body that regulates the world's postal traffic) I particularly liked the one that clinched its fulminations against such postal pollution with the reflection that many children used stamps and that, to make use of this, the back of the stamp would have to be moistened with the tongue!" Collecting stamps as pictures I can understand; collecting them as dirty bits of paper baffles me.

FRIDAY: Bought some rope today, for the first time in my life, I think, and was amazed to find that it is sold by the pound, like cheese. Who would think of going into a shop and asking for two pounds of nice fresh rope, suitable for a suicide? Yet the request would be a perfectly sensible one. I bought twelve feet, or about an eighth of a pound, and it cost me seven cents.

◇ ◇ ◇

SATURDAY: I see that Professor Kinsey has published the first volume of his study of sexual behaviour in the human male. This emboldens me to publish a study of a somewhat similar subject on which I have long been engaged, to wit: how many men wear only the tops or bottoms of their pyjamas? Of course, in a great family journal like this I cannot be completely frank; children, or young girls tottering upon the threshold of womanhood, might accidentally read this column, and be brutally awakened to an aspect of life hitherto undreamed of by them. Therefore I shall only say that my investigations reveal that 47.3 per cent. of adult males wear only the t-ps of their p-j-m-s, and 32.9 per cent. (usually thin, muscular men) wear only the b-tt-ms thereof. And in summer 83 per cent. of adult males (excluding only university professors, clergymen, chartered accountants and people who habitually sleep in their underwear) wear no p-j-m-s at all; they describe this custom by a revolting expression, to wit, "Sl--ping r-w". I hate to mention this, but science knows no bounds, and the spotlessness of my own private life is well attested.

Letter To The Editor

ANOTHER OPINION ON TEMPERANCE

Sir: To readers of The Examiner who have followed its editorial policy of recent years, it came as no surprise that to the query "Will The Examiner refrain from publishing advertisements from the Brewing and Distilling interests", the answer was an emhpatic 'No'.

Ever since the change in ownership and personnel, of the local paper, The Examiner has been an all-out advocate of the policy of moderate drinking and freer government sale as the cure-all for illegal sale and the bootlegger. In the Tuesday, November 11th issue of the Globe and Mail in Toronto, where government sale has run the gamut from liquor stores to hotel lounges and cocktail bars, under the heading "Find bootlegging on increase here", Sgt. Harry Sutton of the Toronto Police Department's Special Liquor Squad had this to say: "Since it became easier to obtain liquor legally, bootlegging and illegal sale has increased in this city". We believe the situation in Toronto will be found similarly true of other cities. The craving for liquor, created by legal sale, will be satisfied, legally or illegally.

Under the Federal Department of Justice it is against the laws of Canada to advertise the sale of intoxicating beverages within the Province of Ontario. Of late, however, an insidious campaign has been carried on through some Ontario papers to offset the effects of such legislation. Under the guise of 'Conservation', 'Canadian Unity', etc., beautiful pictures of wild birds and animals are presented with the slogan "Yours to protect, yours to enjoy", and invariably signed by the sponsoring Brewer or Distiller. If these advertisements were as innocent and disinterested as intended to convey, we would suggest another picture could well be displayed, showing Canada's greatest asset, her bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked boys and girls. To make the series accurate, and complete, this slogan could read "Yours to protect—Ours to destroy". This is called "good-will" advertising, intended to make John Public feel friendly to this type of manufacturer and his wares. The Examiner in its editorial claims to be friendly; scores of large and influential Ontario publications are not.

The paragraph in last Thursday's Examiner's editorial, however, which really challenges comment, is the following: "The crux of the matter is this; the Advocate (Temperance) thinks that evil dwells in the bottle, and The Examiner thinks that evil dwells in the heart of man. Drink makes bad men worse; moderate men do not drink more than they can hold and need have no fear of the bottle".

Dealing with these apparently conflicting attitudes of the Advocate and The Examiner (as expressed by the Examiner) I am inclined to believe that both statements could be true particularly when man and bottle are brought together. In the heart of each individual from time immemorial, there is a mixture of good and evil. "There is none good, save One". In some lives this natural badness remains dormant, or is held in check, by normal restrained living. Such men, I presume, would be classified by both The Examiner and the writer as moderate. Probably The Examiner is also aware that a modern study of the psychology of drunkenness has revealed, however, that alcohol will and does remove restraint in the life of the drinker, and if down under there is meanness, murder, or an ugly disposition, the drinking of alcohol may expose it or give it expression. Daily, The Examiner prints press reports of murders, accidents, throttled women and mangled children, directly chargeable to the influence of strong drink. Thursday's issue January 15th gives front page publicity to a shooting tragedy in a neighbouring village admittedly caused by drink. The Examiner would say "Evil dwells not in the bottle, but in the heart of man". Science would say alcohol imbibed, removed the restraints, these tragedies followed. "Moderate men do not drink more than they can hold, and need have no fear of the bottle"—Examiner editorial, Thursday, January 15th. To me this is the most damning and dangerous doctrine I have heard in some time. Who is the 'moderate' drinker? Can anyone say how, when and where, by removal or letting down of restraints he ceased to be a 'moderate' and becomes the 'drunk'. When the Highway and Police Departments regularly, and particularly at the holiday season, broadcast their warning for careful and drink-free driving they say "If you drink, don't drive". Because it is the few drinks a driver does not even feel that makes a person both incompetent and irresponsible. It has been proven that it is not the drunken driver but the so-called moderate drinker who is primarily the greatest menace on the highways of the nation.

Strong drink is no respecter of persons. The highways of life are strewn with the wreckage of broken lives—farmers, business men, teachers, theologians, doctors, lawyers, Oxford graduates, princes and paupers. What assurance has any man who takes the first drink of alcohol that he will end up as a moderate or a gentleman drinker, or as a drunk in the gutter.

Play safe; "One drink is always too many". If there were no moderate drinkers there would be no drunks. We believe the Examiner, if wishing to advocate and promote real and true moderation in living, might well publicize this way of life—"Temperance in all things", "Total abstinence in things that are harmful".

Sincerely,

G. A. BRETHEN, Norwood.

President of Peterborough (City and County) Ontario Temperance Federation.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths.

With PETE McGILLEN

RESORT OWNERS from the Kawartha lakes were noticeable by their absence this week when the resort convention was held. Rice lake had one representative, Stony lake one, and that's all. The Bobcaygeon-Fenelon Falls section was well represented, and every time one looked around he spotted some resort owner from Haliburton. When it comes to aggressive, wide-awake business men, these Haliburton lodge owners can move right up to the head of the class. The panel discussions on labor, reservations, advertising, food preparation and handling, were easily worth the cost of attending the convention. Then there was the display of hotel equipment. This exchange of information and round-table discussion of resort problems is, in my humble opinion extremely valuable. The men and women who attend are the most successful people in the business. I shouldn't have to say any more.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

ROBERT NELSON, public relations counsel for the State of Virginia, was the guest speaker at the closing banquet. I figured he would be worth an interview, so I button-holed him three hours before the banquet started. During the course of his remarks on Virginia's plan to make her two and a half million people salesmen and women for the state, he said: "When you travel, you don't meet the managers of hotels, nor the mayors of the towns. You meet the people who do menial tasks, such as policemen, service station attendants, bellboys, maids, cigarette girls, porters, waitresses, barbers, bootblacks, store clerks, and others. These are the people who can make or break the travel business. We are holding classes teaching these people to smile, teaching them the value of courtesy, teaching them the answers to the simple questions they may be asked about the community". When he said that, I recalled the remark of a waitress in a local restaurant last summer. An American said "What is there to do in this town?" and her answer—"Not a thing, buddie, not a thing". That's salesmanship.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

A CHANGE IN POLICY. I was talking with Hon. Arthur Welsh, Minister of Travel and Publicity, and he said, they would not have exhibits at the American Sportsmen Shows this summer. It seems at a conference in Ottawa last spring, the statement was made that Federal and Provincial publicity departments were overlapping, because Ontario and Canada both had huge displays—but Ontario had three good-looking girls in uniform. At Cleveland, Ontario also had the best location in the show. At any rate, the job of covering the U.S. shows rests with the Dominion Travel Bureau headed by J. Leo Dolan. Col. Welsh said also, that so many Ontario cities, Chambers of Commerce and resort owners were taking space at the shows, that his department felt the province was well represented. I'm not complaining, but if my observations are worth anything, then I would suggest, that Col. Welsh, loan his staff of fine-looking, courteous, sales-minded receptionists to Leo Dolan when the latter staffs his displays at the shows.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

WHEN YOU GO ON A HOLIDAY, the scenery, the lodge, the highways, yes even the fishing, do not insult you, nor rub you the wrong way. It's the service you get from the people you meet that determines whether or not you are a satisfied customer. A man on a holiday is a loafer, he is looking for friends, he wants someone to talk with—or better still, someone to listen to him. He expects service, friendly heart-warming service, and if he gets it. Boy—how he brags about the spot where he spent his holiday. On the other hand, if he gets rubbed the wrong way, if he is overcharged, or if the service is lousy, and no explanation given, if the staff members by their attitude and actions lead him to believe that "We don't give a rip whether you like it or not, take it or leave it". Then the fat is in the fire. Many times I have heard top public relations men in the States and Canada say, "It takes $10,000 worth of newspaper publicity to undo the harm done by one dissatisfied tourist". In view of this would it not be good business for everyone in Peterborough to become courtesy conscious.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

FOOD COSTS ARE UP 30 per cent since May of last year. This was the statement made by resort owners. They also report, that while the supply of help is more plentiful, wages are up. This means there is likely to be a ten to fifteen per cent increase in costs of accommodation, but every resort owner at the Toronto convention said the increases would not be excessive. They also pointed out, that this year, more than ever, the emphasis would be on two things, food and service. Discussions indicated most resort owners were not in favor of deposits with reservations. They said it increased the work of bookkeeping, and in the event of a cancellation was a plain nuisance. Bookings are excellent, with the majority as usual coming from Ohio. Undoubtedly this will be another boom year, but there are many signs to indicate that the honeymoon is over for the resort owners. From 1948 on, everyone will have to dig for business. By the way, five resort men from Georgian Bay and Manitoulin Island wanted to advertise in the Examiner Vacation Edition, but we could not accommodate them.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

LET'S CHANGE THE SUBJECT. I spotted a story in the Pennsylvania Game News discussing some of the freak hunting accidents of 1947. There were some dillies. Last year unfortunately was one of the worst for hunting mishaps, in the history of the United States. Canada had more than it should have had too, but far less than the previous year when more than 17 hunters were killed or injured in eastern Ontario alone. It's a strange commentary on human intelligence but nevertheless a fact, that you can lead a hunter to the woods, but you can't make him think. Many of those accidents are so stupid, one wonders, if a hunter doesn't become a different person entirely when a gun is put in his hands. One hunter shot both feet while trying to kill a rabbit that was running up his pant leg. Another sat down to rest, laid his shotgun on the ground beside him, and had his right hand blown off when his dog stepped on the trigger.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

LISTEN TO THIS—Two boys chased a rabbit into a long railroad culvert. Then they stood at opposite ends of the culvert and fired. They went to the hospital together. An "adult" man rested the muzzle of a loaded rifle on his foot, holding the stock under his arm while he lit a cigarette. He's still limping. One dimwit tried to kill a snake with the stock of his loaded gun, and wound up with a stomach-full of shot. A father who should have known better cornered a fox in a hole and turned his gun over to his seven-year-old son with instructions to shoot as soon as the fox was flushed from the dugout. The fox jumped out at an unexpected moment; the father grabbed Reynard by the head and the son carrying out his instructions blazed away. The doctor took 27 shot from from Papa's right hand. Another so-called hunter followed a wounded animal through an old three-strand barbed wire fence, without first breaking his gun. Naturally the thing went off. His wound was still draining seven months later.

Millbrook's Band In the Gay Nineties Turned Out To Serenade New Year In

By E. S. CLARRY

Another old year has been run out and a new one has been ushered in with varying degrees of joy and in some cases hilarity, but I doubt if there was a more methodical custom of celebrating this annual event than that which prevailed in Millbrook back in the gay nineties. The boys who made up the citizens band of those days were not mercenarily inclined; they belonged to no musicians union, and they gave of their services generously and gratuitously. In fact, they relished every pretext for turning out and shattering the air with the noise from their brass horns and from their little and big drums. And so, it was customary on New Year's Eve, a few minutes before midnight, to take up their position under the old fashioned arc street lamp that hung from a pole on the town hall south-east corner, and play the old year out and the new year in. Sometimes it was terrifically cold; the air might be clear and the old arc light would be sending forth a buzzing sound as if to compete with the big drum which was pounded ferociously by Bob Irwin. But clear weather or stormy weather, a few minutes before the hour of 12.00 o'clock struck, the strains of Auld Lang Syne were wafted through the air to the furthermost parts of the village. Then when midnight arrived, the boys struck up a lively jig. Bob Irwin pounding the big drum still harder and with trip hammer velocity, after which the proceedings closed with God Save the Queen.

Quaint Custom

It was a quaint custom and looking back on those who in this way, in the nineties, helped to usher the old year out and the new year in under the arc light that buzzed and sputtered on the town hall corner, I doubt if more than two of them are still residing in the village today, they being Walter Coombe and George Burnham. In fact, most of them have passed from this earthly scene. George Duncan with his E-flat silver cornet was always on hand, and it was the custom of the boys to wait in his shop always cozy and warm, until a few minutes before midnight; they had then to merely step across the street to take their place under the spluttering arc light which enabled them to read their notes, although most of the players could "lug" it, meaning of course, that they could play by ear the pieces that were going to be rendered. Not so with Bob McMahon. Bob had no ear for music,' but he played the slide trombone. He was strictly a mechanical player and had to have the score in front of him, but even at that, Bob would occasionally blast forth a note or two that were sadly on the bias.

Johnny McCartney never failed to be present, pumping with zest on the big E-bass. Johnny loved that big horn, and as he pumped away he kept time with his right foot or rather the toes of his right foot. It mattered not if Johnny were wearing boots, carpet slippers or snow shoes, the forepart of his right foot beat time to the music he was so enthusiastically helping to produce.

Ab Chambers played an alto horn and his brother Ed rattled the kettle drum while George Deane, for a while at least, performed with distinction on the baritone. Charlie Thorndyke and brother Walter, Freddie Coombe, Charlie Gillott and Harry Duncan blew on horns of various species and Professor Pemberton, the leader, stood in the centre of the circle, wielding his little stick with the air of a Sousa. The Professor had been an old military band leader, who after the retiring age in the service, came to the village to lead the local band and teach music in all its branches—pianoforte, violin, guitar, and I believe, even the mouth organ.

While the boys played the old year out and the new year in under the buzzing and fluttering town hall corner arc light, they did not then let themselves get out of practice by becoming inactive for some weeks. They were right at it the next day. That was an occasion—New Year's Day—when the village band raked in a few dollars, not for their individual or private use, for those few dollars went into the organization's treasury to help pay for the sheet music and Professor Pemberton's yearly salary of $200.00, or perhaps to build up a sort of sinking fund with which to buy a new cornet or alto horn.

It was the custom, therefore, the afternoon of New Year's Day to march around the village and serenade some of the more financially affluent citizens. They were pretty sure of $2.00 or perhaps $5.00 at each house serenaded, as well as a piece of cake and a cup of coffee. And still they were not through for the day. The Methodist Church always staged a big concert in the Town Hall on New Year's Night. The children of the Sunday School practised and drilled for weeks prior to the event, and put on a lavish program of recitations, pantomimes, vocal and instrumental solos, choruses and dialogues, and the band assisted in the grand affair, playing lively selections for 15 minutes before the curtain went up, from the balcony of the Town Hall, overlooking the main street. Once again Johnny McCartney had an opportunity to beat time with the toes of his right foot as he pumped wind into the big E-bass; once again Bob Irwin whacked furiously away at the big drum, and once again Bob McMahon hit the wrong note on the silver slide trombone as Professor Pemberton looked at him menacingly as if to clip him on the head with the little stick he used as a baton.

While the village band practised throughout the winter each week in the crudely furnished room just above where the fire engine was parked, and where Billie Barlow and other fellow-travellers slept on cold winter nights, it was not until May 24 that they made their next public appearance. Some of the older players may have dropped out during the year, some may have moved to new fields of endeavor, but a new crop of artists would join the ranks and be on hand to play the next Old Year out and the New Year in, under the spluttering Town Hall arc light, back in the gay nineties.

By FRED MARSHALL
President of Kawartha Conservation Association

My dictionary defines conservation as "Preservation from loss." I always associate it with nature.

What comes to my mind when I think of conservation is the memory of boyhood days in this county — of a vast expanse of beautiful forests interspersed with lovely lakes and divided by winding streams, of great numbers of birds, animals and fish. I compare this in my mind with the changes that have taken place in these things and I think of conservation. I think that many of us of this generation have taken more than our share, that we have not been fair to those who will follow us. Successful conservation depends largely upon a knowledge and understanding of the complex and delicately balanced system of nature in which each component part is affected by alterations in others. The productivity of the soil depends in a large measure on the water supply. The maintenance of water depends on the methods of using the soil, particularly on plant cover from grass to timber. Wild life supply depends largely on the adequacy of cover which forms its habitat and provides its food.

Co-operation Required

To promote the cause of conservation perhaps the greatest need is education. People will not co-operate to promote action they do not understand, or see a need for. We must have co-operation of all people to make real progress. The citizens of the flood ravaged towns in the valleys can do little without the co-operation of those who live upstream in the high lands. There is little use in the farmer trying to control blow sand on his farm, if tons of it are being blown over his land from that of others who will do nothing about it. There is little encouragement for the trapper—the hunter—or the fisherman to protect wild life in his vicinity only to have it slaughtered by others.

One does not have to look far to see the results of our failure to conserve even in this young country. Southern Ontario's agricultural area once covered 35,000 square miles of productive farm lands. Today it is definitely known that one acre in every five of this area has ceased to produce, usually the effect of soil erosion and failure of water supply. The great Ganaraska conservation project now under way in the Port Hope district would never have been necessary had a reasonable policy of conservation been followed in the past.

Failure Costs Money

It might seem that conservation is expensive. On the contrary it costs nothing. If practiced at the proper time—it is failure to conserve that makes expensive re-habilitation necessary, and failure to conserve has and can again cause the decline of a great and prosperous nation.

Failure to conserve — natural resources, eventually reduces the standard of living of the people. You do not find a prosperous happy people living on poor impoverished soil and where there are no forests, minerals or other natural resources to support and maintain a prosperous industry.

It cannot be over-emphasized that it is the responsibility of each and every individual to conserve, and until there is a fairly general public acceptance of that responsibility we will continue to live on a dwindling capital and we will fail in our duty to those who come after us.

Peninsular War Veteran First Teacher In Humphries' School In Asphodel

By HELEN MARRYAT

Francis Sharp was the first teacher in the school built by Robert Cayford Humphries and his neighbors on the Humphries farm, Lot 3, Concession 3 of the Township of Asphodel.

He has been described as a Major of the 14th Light Dragoons, but there is no record of him in the lists of officers of the army and navy who received orders for land under the system of allowing them a remission on the purchase money in proportion to their rank and services. There was however, Alexander Shairp, Major, Royal Marines, with 32 years' service, who was well known in Peterborough, where he and his daughter, Mrs. Caddy, were living in 1841. It is possible that the two names were confused, and that Francis Sharp may have been a Sergt. Major. He did serve, however, under Wellington, throughout the Peninsular campaign, taking part in seven engagements and skirmishes, and came to Upper Canada with the intention of taking up land. The grant which he drew was in Dummer Township. He and others were soon reduced to near-starvation, because of the poor quality of the land. Settlers reported their plight to the government, and subsequently half their pensions was returned to them. As Francis Sharp's was a York shilling a day, it does not appear that he was of commissioned rank. The late Chief Justice W. R. Riddell valued the old "Yorker" at eight to a dollar, although there was no such coin; an English sixpence being the nearest equivalent.

Henry Humphries, great uncle of the present Warden of Peterborough County and son of Robert Humphries, stated to The Examiner, June 28, 1935, that . . . "My father engaged Sharp, who had fought under Wellington in the Spanish Wars, and had served twenty-one years in the Imperial Army . . . he had commuted his pension of a shilling a day . . . my father learned that he was a man of good education, and that was how he came to be our teacher. That was how I got my education. The scholars paid Sharp a shilling a month. He lived in the school which had a big fire-place that would burn four-foot logs. The neighbors took his meat and cakes and other food. He was an excellent writer and a man who had seen a lot of the world. He is buried in the old Humphries graveyard."

Mr. Humphries also recalled a winter trip he had made to Peterborough with Mr. Sharp, who wanted to draw his pesion. On their way back they stopped for supper at an inn near the Smithson farm at Zion. Mr. Sharp had had some drink and was singing a verse which always stayed in the mind of his young companion:

"Could I but stand where Moses stood
And view the landscape o'er,
Death's dark stream, nor Jordan's flood,
Would fright me from the

It has been stated that the veteran teacher never referred to his exploits in the wars unless he had taken a drink too many, and then, children and neighbors sat silent and enthralled as he told of his various escapes and experiences. Once he had shot a British soldier who was about a kill a wounded Frenchman who had already surrendered.

In June, 1896, a gathering of about forty old friends and neighbors met at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Collins, on the River Road, west of Hastings, to celebrate Mr. and Mrs. Collins' silver wedding. After dinner, the guests strolled about the grounds, and pointed out to each other the way to the old school, where many of them, including Hugh Collins, had received their education. One aged lady recalled that she had once thrashed Mr. Collins. Evidently the veteran teacher had needed assistance in his latter days, for he was noted for his severe disciplinary methods. No questioning has brought to light the names of any of the guests on that occasion, nor the name of the aged lady.

The three pupils who were the last survivors were Modest Elmhurst, Mrs. John Butler and Henry Humphries. Others who lived near the school and were probably among the pupils were Gilchrists, Englishes, Tuckers, Hills, Steeles, Borlands, Ryans, Shaughnessys, Tobins, Coughlans, Oakmans, Fifes, Gradys, Stevens, Tamblins, McColls and many others.

The school was famous, and the scholars received an education far beyond the lot of most backwoods children in those early days. It might well be said of Francis Sharp . . . that

"Beyond the book his teaching sped,
He left on those he taught the trace
Of kinship with the deathless dead,
And faith in all our island race."

Henry Humphries, born in 1840, was the last of the little band who gathered there under the eagle eye of the old veteran, and he possessed a mind which fitted him to be the family historian. Few families indeed are there who are so fortunate in having an eye-witness of their early beginnings in Canada, and who had also the power to re-create the past and link it with the present.

Towards the end, the question of where he was to be buried was settled by the older Humphries, who, with characteristic generoosity, had allowed the neighbors to lay their dead in the graveyard they had set apart on a hill-top not far from the old stone homestead. And there when his time came, Francis Sharp was laid beside the early settlers he had known in life.

The only clue to the dates of the old veteran's tenancy of the old school-house are entries in the account books of the Fowlds store at Westwood, opened in the autumn of 1846—

1847. Jany. 4th.
To Francis Francis Sharp.
1 ganzie shirt, 6/3.
1 night cap, 1/6.
3 cups and saurcers, 1/.
2 lbs sugar at 1/.
¼ lb. tea at 5/ a lb.
¼ lb. of lozenges at 1/.
½ quire paper at 9d.
½ ditto at 7½d.
By discount 1/11½.
1849. Sept. 20th. To
¼ lbs tea at 5/.

As soon as free schools were established, Francis Sharp ceased to teach, living quietly to the end of his days in his log cabin. And the above account may refer to those years. No one seems to know.

Now's the day, and now's the hour;
See the front o' battle lour;
See approach proud Edward's power—
Chains and slavery!

Wha will be a traitor knave?
Wha can fill a coward's grave?
Wha sae base as be a slave?
Let him turn and flee!!

Wha, for Scotland's king and law,
Freedom's sword will strongly draw;
Freeman stand, or freeman fa',
Let him follow me!

By Oppression's woes and pains!
By your sons in servile chains!
We will drain our dearest veins,
But they shall be free!

Lay the proud usurpers low!
Tyrants fall in every foe!!
Liberty's in every blow!
Let us do or die!

THE BABY NEXT DOOR

Our neighbors have a tiny lass . . . and oftentimes it comes to pass . . . when Dad and Mother venture out . . . we tend their little stir-about. She's wrapped in blankets, silk and wool . . . and comes to us with tummy full . . . a sleeping beauty, deep in dreams . . . designed of bright angelic themes. She wakens . . . yawns . . . and looks around . . . and wiggles toes that we surround . . . then offers us a toothless smile . . . and jabbers on, in baby style. We're always glad to have her cry . . . for then we have an alibi . . . and quickly Joyce is held and rocked . . . aware that parents might be shocked. We walk and sing her back to sleep . . . then bundle her in blankets deep . . . for Dad and Mother musn't know . . . what happens while they're at the show.

Petes Drive Early To Gain Win Against Legionnaires By 5 to 2

Shooting the works in the first frame, the Petes took a 5-2 OHA senior "B" group victory over the local Legionnaires at Omemee last night to tighten their grip on first place in the standing. Frigid weather kept the crowd down, but it was a speedy scrap on fast ice, with the teams playing on pretty even terms the last two periods of the clean contest.

It was 4-0 in the first chukker as the Petes really poured it on and Legion looked bad in this heat. They came back to have an edge on play in the middle chapter with a 1-0 margin, and it was 1-1 in the even third stanza. Of the eight penalties handed out, the winners drew half of them.

Red Ahead

Red Creighton led the Petes' scorers with two goals and an assist, as Jerry Creighton and Freddy Garvey were in on a pair each. All the team went well, with the Kingdon-Tompkins-Mortimer line threatening plenty on nice passing plays, and the other line dangerous, too. Creighton and Jopling covered well on defence and Harding kept them out of the net. Ernie Nicholls was in on both Legion tallies, he and Ace and Al Burns showing nice passing on their line. Godfrey was steady as usual on defence and Ross Nicholls stood in goal but for one that beat him.

Garvey scored in the first minute of play on a passout in close from Jerry Creighton. A Godfrey-Burns rush came close and then Red Creighton blazed one home on a neat pass inside from brother Jerry. Kingdon went off for tripping and the Legion pressed a bit till he came back. Then Tompkins' shot from outside defence fooled Ross to make it 3-0. It was fast but rather ragged. Parnell got in for a nice try but the Petes scored again, with Red Creighton denting the hemp, aided by J. Mortimer and F. Parsons, in a scramble at close range. The Petes continued to sweep in dangerously and Magee and Garvey went off for high-sticking, the latter getting cut over the eye. Ernie Nicholls made a close stab near the finish.

Legion Drove

Play was fast and even, but still ragged, to open the second. Burns blasted one home for Legion on Ernie Nicholls' pass with an angle drive rounding defence. Fred Mortimer and then Ernie Nicholls and Godfrey came close. Bob Greenlaw was waved over for interference and R. Nicholls had to step to hold them as Bun Kingdon and others came right in for ties. Horton was gated for cross-checking but no damage resulted on either side during these penances. F. Mortimer and F. Parsons drove hard once, and the two Nicholls got through but were blocked at the goal. Legion pressed—despite a hot rush by Blewett—the last several minutes.

Kingdon and Fred Mortimer got inside to start the third and then Tompkins as the Petes pressed for a space. It was fast and clean and better hockey now, as both sides tried to fashion goals instead of fluke them. Hicks got it for hooking and Blewett cashed in for another in his absence, Garvey and Red Creighton aiding in close. Later, Godfrey got a nice one on beautiful combination through the defence with Ernie and Ace Nicholls. Play was redhot and even then for the rest of the period with both goalies having to hop at times. Crowley was penalized for tripping and Horton followed for holding but there was no further scoring. Harding took a few minutes off after being hit by a puck and it was speedy and even at the gong.

The teams:

Legion: Goal, R. Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and Magee; centre, Rochetta; wings, R. Greenlaw and Crowley; alternates, E. Nicholls, A. Nicholls, Parnell, Burns, D. Vitarelli, H. Greenlaw and Hicks.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and R. Creighton; centre, Garvey; wings, J. Creighton and Blewett; alternates, Kingdon, Tompkins, F. Mortimer, Burton, Horton, F. Parsons and J. Mortimer.

Referee, M. Walsh; linesman, H. Payne.

Hamilton Rink Captures Warne Trophy

By HERB MARTIN

After two days of continuous play in the ladies' annual open bonspiel the honor of winning the Warne trophy went to Mrs. C. Gooch's rink from Hamilton Victorias. Mrs. G. Devitt, Bobcaygeon, was second, and Mrs. G. Scott, Lindsay was the next three-game winner.

So completely did the visiting rinks dominate the play that not one of the local rinks was able to make the pay-off station. It was gratifying to the bonspiel committee to know that nearly all the ladies' curling clubs in Ontario were represented—from Midland in the north, Kingston in the east, and as far west as Hamilton. There were two outstanding reasons for this capacity entry. First, the ladies are making rapid progress in their sport, and second, the seven sheets of artificial ice.

One of the highlights of the bonspiel was the grand showing by the Lindsay rink, when you consider that some of them are curling this season for the first time.

The committee in charge of the bonspiel was Mrs. T. Doughty, chairman, Mrs. J. Fanning, Mrs. O. Steer, Miss H. Munro, Mrs. G. Wood and Mrs. J. Green. They are to be congratulated for its success.

The mixed rink bonspiel will be held this evening as usual at 7.30 o'clock.

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Results of last night's basketball games should be in somewhere this eve, though there's sometimes a tough squeeze Saturday to fit everything in. Men play tonight at the "Y" at eight, Marines "B" bunch entertaining Port Perry in a Lakeshore League fixture, with probably a prelim exhibition earlier. Marines "A" team is at Merritton this week-end. Nurses tackle Normals at eight on Monday to wind up the lasses' schedule, and then the lengthy playoffs in this loop get going next week-end. Haven't heard much of Towne Togs lately. However, there's lots of hoop activity for local players these nights.

* * * * * * *

Chap tells us of a man living in Peterborough, one J. M. Hope, who played his first game of hockey for Keene just 42 years ago. And this winter he has been out with them again as a player. During the interim he missed a few winters of puck-chasing but he must hold the long-distance record at least around these parts for playing hockey. When you recall that Dit Clapper holds the NHL record — at 20 years — and could not have played more than six or seven years previously as an amateur, Mr. Hope's long streak is really something. And 'twould indicate that hockey is not necessarily a young man's game. At least in his case, eh?

* * * * * * *

Let's Get Behind It

High hopes are held out for next Thursday night's 7.30 meeting in the Market Hall to discuss organization to build a secondary rink in Peterborough ere next hockey season. Site and finances are the main problem, particularly the matter of money. But if a large enough turnout of the general public is on hand for the discussion some concrete proposals should result. There isn't a chance of having the Memorial Centre ready for another year—and likely not for several years—so something will have to be done about hockey here. A secondary rink is the answer. Don't forget this meeting is open to everyone.

* * * * * * *

OHA senior "B" group schedule is about half over now and is proving to be a good dogfight. Schedule should wind up the middle of next month and second and third teams tangle then in a best-of-five semi-final series. Winner meets the first-place team then in a best-of-seven final sawoff for the right to go into provincial playdowns. There are five senior "B" groups, though a couple of them carry a few intermediate "A" teams with them. Besides this group, there's one up around Toronto, a third in the Barrie area, a London-Chatham-Sarnia setup, and one including Brantford, Galt, Waterloo, Kitchener and Woodstock. Unless some of these have dropped out recently. It could be that the winner of our group would step into Ontario semi-finals.

* * * * * * *

IOOF-ers Mark Time

Archie Weir and his junior "B" Oddfellows are still marking time and will be for a few weeks yet ere they get a bye into group playoffs. They have had a few practice games and fairly frequent workouts, but lack of covered ice has beaten them so far. It's all very well for some to say: "Why should the OHA insist on minor teams playing in covered rinks?" Lots of reasons, including snow, sleet or rain, frozen fans and small gates—latter being highly important to meet travelling expenses. And why should the OHA change its constitution around for the sake of Peterborough, a city backward enough to have no rink when few villages are without one? Well, it's rough on the IOOF-ers but they may get their breaks when playoff time rolls around.

* * * * * * *

Well, sir, no one has come around for quite a spell to crack that jinx the Petes hold over opponents on Omemee ice. They've been tied a few times but never beaten there in three seasons of OHA play—up to date. They licked Legion last night 5-2 before a fairish crowd (the sub-zero weather kept it from being a full house) and earned the win. Did it in the first frame with a furious 4-0 attack. The Legionnaires came back strongly the rest of the way to make it a real ball game, fast and generally clean, but they couldn't come close, though they had a 2-1 margin the last two chukkers. The Petes still have a little edge on the attack from the other guy's blue line in. That little extra polish garnered over many years.

* * * * * * *

Tossing Hoss Shoes

But it was fast play and fairly good hockey, especially the last half. There is still too much ragged stuff to suit us, too much pitching and praying for a break. The Petes' veteran line and the Legion line of Ernie and Ace Nicholls with young Al Burns showed smarter passing plays than any other—though even the NHL-ers today go in plenty for pitching horse shoes. It's exciting but it's not real hockey. Red Creighton played a fine game to lead the winners in scoring as well as checking well—and he's handicapped—while Jerry and Garvey were in one two each. And Ernie Nicholls, Godfrey and Ross Nicholls were the pick of the losers. Toughest guy out there last night, though, was a chap named Jack Frost.

UP AND DOWN SPORTS' RIALTO: Nurses nudged out a 20-18 nod o'er CGE as Neill's took Normals 27-16 in girls' basketball games last e'en . . . Only worry Archie Weir has over his junior "B" puckists is the defence . . . Legion have an inferiority complex regarding the Petes; they start slowly and the Petes build up a lead—after that it's a dogfight . . . Honey Tompkins can still turn it on when it counts, and Blewett is always fast . . . Fred Garvey's father is some better now, we hear . . . Kingston's 7-4 win last eve in Bella Villa puts the Saints in a tie for second spot with Legion, Belleville being behind by half a game . . . Lindsay Jrs. took Danforth on Scugog ice . . . George Sullivan is playing good hockey lately for St. Kitts . . . All Saints midgets of the Church Loop beat St. James 6-0 and Mark St. 6-3 recently; Searles scoring three in one tilt and four in another . . . Norwood cracked Marmora's TVL victory streak 6-5 last p.m. in a nifty number . . . PCVS cagers swept four jousts last gloaming . . . And that wraps up the week.

Nurses Victors Over CGE By 20-18 Score

Nurses defeated the Electrics 20-18 and Neill's won from Normals 27-16 in Girls' Basketball League games last night at the YWCA. The first was a scheduled fixture and the other an exhibition tilt, with plenty of keen action dished up in both tussles.

The first was hotly contested all the way, with the teams tied at 10-all at the intermission. The Nurses yanked out the decision by two points in the last half. Shirley Curttis, Elsie Crawford and Joan Plunkett were outstanding for the victors, while the Stewart girls and Marg Kennedy were the pick of the CGE crew, which held its own right to the last second of a good game. Teams:

Nurses: A. Bowler, J. Plunkett 3, S, Curtis 10, E. Crawford 6, J. Metcalfe, J. Deyell 1, I. Wiechorek.

CGE—I. Stewart 6, T. Stewart 4, B. Stewart 6, M. Kennedy 2, H. Gardner, M. Crough, M. Perrin, Marg Perrin, J. Meadows.

Lots of Action

The second game saw a lot of action, too, and some good basketball dished up, though he contest didn't mean anything. Neill's just had a 10-7 edge in the first half but pulled pretty well out in front during the last part with some nice play. Jean Vass, Dot Callan and Evelyn McFadden showed up well for the winners, as P. Brown, L. Homan and E. Gill were most effective for the Normals. Not too many foul shots in this tussle clicked. Teams:

Neill's—E. McFadden 4, D. Gilmour, D. Callan 9, M. Freeman 1, G. Davies, N. Crowder J. Vass 13, B. Jaquith, F. Floyd.

Normals—P. Brown 4, L. Homan 7, M. Hickey, M. Watson, R. Jordan 2, E. Gill 2, M. Curtis, M. Jackson 1, M. McBride.

Referees—L. Grose and J. Castle.

2 Men Equal Locke Scoring

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 24 — (AP). — Constituency will set the pattern for today's second round of the $10,000 Phoenix open golf tournament.

With more than a dozen top stars nestled uncomfortably in the first four positions, the laurels in the three-day, 27-hole classic at the Phoenix Country Club are expected to go to the player who stands up best under the terrific pressure resulting from such close competition.

Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa, playing his first tournament here, found the course to his liking yesterday — he says its the closest he's encountered to those he finds in his homeland — and came in early with a six-under-par 34-31—65. Par for the course is 36-35—71.

But before darkness fell and left several matches still out on the course, two other players had equalled the figures turned in by Locke. Late in the day, Jim Ferrier, an Australian now playing out of San Francisco, turned in a 35-30, his back nine the lowest half-round of the day. The scoreboard ink was hardly dry on Ferrier's score when Jim Demaret of Ojai, Calif., boomed in with a 33-32.

Kramer Leads Series

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24 — (AP). — Jack Kramer and Bobby Riggs carried their professional tennis duel into Chicago today, with Kramer leading in the series, 10 matches to 9. Kramer, former king of the amateurs downed Riggs 15-13, 2-6, 7-5 in their match last night at the arena before 6,218 fans.

Fractures Jaw

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 — (AP). — Johnny (Honeyboy) Bratton had his jaw taped up today with a possible fracture after losing on a technical knockout to Beau Jack, former world's lightweight boxing champion, last night. Beau Jack won on a t.k.o. in the eighth round of a savagely fought battle for 10 rounds in Chicago Stadium.

Stratford Indians Whip Owen Sound Mercurys 10-1

By The Canadian Press

It appears Coach Punch Scherer of the Stratford Indians has found the elusive neutralizer which leaves Owen Sound Mercurys ineffective. At Stratford last night Scherer told his ace centre Mickey Roth to play tag with Owen Sound playing coach Tommy Burlington which kept the Mercurys' marksman so busy the third-place Indians laced the fourth-place Mercurys 10-1 in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior 'A' fixture.

The league-leading Hamilton Tigers retained their four-point edge over Toronto Marlboros in the senior loop with a 4-1 decision over the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen at Hamilton and left the Dutchmen in fifth place.

Joe Primeau's Marlboros got in some scoring practice at Toronto when they trounced the cellar-dwelling Brantford Redmen 13-2 in last night's third senior fixture. Brantford has garnered but two wins in 28 starts.

In the junior circuit Art Jackson's St. Catharines Teepees moved into sixth and last playoff position tie with Toronto Marlboros. With a five-goal third period rally Teepees defeated the Marlboros 7-3 at St. Catharines.

Ahead From First.

At Stratford the Indians led all the way — 2-1 in the first frame, 4-1 in the second, and a third-frame 6-goal clincher.

The big scorer of the night was Mike Dziura of Indians with one goal and four assists. Wally Zuke, Pete Long and Jim Eady each tallied two counters, while Roth, George Blake and Joe Fitzpatrick scored one goal each.

It was a close-checking affair at Hamilton. Johnny Conick, just back after a knee injury sidelined him more than a week ago, opened the scoring at the 10-minute mark for Tigers, but the Dutchmen evened it 35 seconds later.

After Skating Crown

ALPENA, Mich., Jan. 24 — (AP). — More than 150 of the top speed skaters of the United States and Canada — excepting the stars competing in the Winter Olympic Games in Switzerland — headed into a wide-open scramble for the North American championships here today. Women's champion Betty Mitchell of Winnipeg was on hand for the opening events but Mario Trageli of Detroit, who annexed the men's crown last year, was kept home by examinations at medical school.

Whipper Watson Signs To Meet Masked Marvel

Whipper Billy Watson, top wrestler in the British Empire will meet the Masked Marvel here next Wednesday night. Brock Arena Manager Jim Laidlaw got confirmation of Watson's acceptance of the match officially last night and Laidlaw is a happy man about the prospect of his biggest bout and also what looks like the best "gate" in many a season.

Watson agreed to the match here only as the result of a large guarantee and the building will have to be plenty full to get Laidlaw in the clear. The way Jim looks at it, he has tried to bring the best of the big matmen here and to bring in the Whipper-Mask bout will be a really big feather in his match-making cap. Laidlaw is lining up two other stellar bouts and suggests the fans reserve their seats early for Wednesday's show.

When We Work With God

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—II Corinthians 5:20-6; 10; Hebrews 11.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Paul cautions ministers of the gospel to give no offense that they may not be blamed; and in all things to be patient—even in "stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labors, in fasting."

Gospel ministers, says Paul, may be "unknown, and yet known; as chastened, and not killed; as sorrowful, yet rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, yet possessing."

By faith, wrote Paul to his friends, the Hebrews, Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house.

By faith, Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac: and he that had received the promises offered up his only begotten son and heir.

MEMORY VERSE—I Corinthians 3:9

Many Church Goers Fail To Practise Their Religion

Rev. E. R. JAMES

Ephraim is a cake not turned.—Hosea 7: 8.

"A cake not turned" sticks in the minds of the hearers. A smile on their faces. "A cake not turned" means a poor cook and uneatable cake. Perhaps this homely illustration will stick in your minds also proving the vitality of Holy Scripture.

Hosea is a farmer prophet, one of the plain every day people God loves to use. He is writing for his generation, outwardly religious people, "Temple treaders" touched on one side by religion—"cake not turned." How very modern. Multitudes attend church on Sundays when convenient. They go to hear the preacher; a popular idea and half truth. The preacher is the modern prophet of God with a very important work to do. He is called to reveal something of the character of God through his preaching and personality. Like Ezekiel he must truly say: "I did eat the Book and it was in my mouth as honey for sweetness." It is the preacher's privilege to be so filled with the revelation of God that he is on fire. Week after week he is thrilled with his thoughts of God as revealed through the Scriptures. His earnest prayer is that some of his hearers will be touched by that fire. Perhaps you have been touched on one side. Are you satisfied? If so you are "a cake not turned."

When your heart has been moved by this spiritual fire from God it is your duty to develop that spiritual life; to worship God and offer Him your prayers and supplications. You must develop that habit of thinking upon God at certain times of the day; to say your prayers whether you feel like it or not; it is your duty, your debt to God. You should read some portion of Scripture that your mind may know more of the character of God through the revelation of His Christ. God has opened your ear. You must keep your ear tuned to that still small Voice and obey it.

When you practice your religion in this way you will discover that your emotions are being purified by the fire of the Holy Spirit. Surely and slowly your face will reveal your inward thoughts of God. In simple everyday language your life must fascinate men that you have something they have not.

Think of the hundreds of preachers in Canada who on Sundays pour out their hearts and minds in preaching to their people. Many are satisfied to listen and perhaps praise the preacher. They have been warmed by his enthusiasm. Before the week is over they are once more cold. They are hearers only; they are cakes not turned.

Are you practising your religion on the week-days? A famous business man never opened his ledgers without the invocation: "In the Name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost." He was bringing his religion to bear upon his business dealings. Are you just and upright in all your dealings?

THE APPEAL TO THE HEART. This is one of the great problems of religious life that so much stress must be laid upon the emotions. "Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart." This is one side. Love with all thy mind is the other. The early Christians faced terrible persecutions because their minds were fixed on God and His Christ, the only begotten Son, Who for us men and for our salvation came down from heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Spirit of the Virgin Mary and was made Man. This is the fundamental truth of the Christian religion. God became man that man might become like God.

Saints of many generations have taken these all embracing supplications on their lips. Will you?

Lord, that it may please Thee to give me true repentance; to forgive me all my sins, negligencies and igorances; and to endue me with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit to amend my life according to Thy Holy Word.

THE LORD SAITH: OPEN THY MOUTH WIDE AND I WILL FILL IT.

When We Work With God

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for January 25 is II Corinthians 5: 20-6; 10; Hebrews 11, the Memory Verse being I Corinthians 3:9 "We are God's fellow-workers.")

WE ALL have work to do of some kind or another—or should have—even if we are very little children. We do little things for mother and father, we run errands and held set the table, etc. As we grow older we do odd jobs for other people; we help teacher at school; we do little things for neighbors and friends and more for our parents; and finally when we leave school we take jobs for which we earn money.

But to work for God—that is something bigger and more inspiring. Years ago this writer heard a sermon titled, "Co-workers With God," and it was one of the most inspiring I ever heard. This lesson shows us some ways in which we can work with God.

Ministers of the gospel are surely (or should be) co-workers with God. Paul, in his II epistle to the Corinthians, tells his friends what a true minister and missionary should be. We quote his own words: "Giving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed:

"But in all things approving ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patient, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses.

"In stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labors, in watchings, in fastings;

"By pureness, by knowledge, by long suffering, by kindness, by the Holy Ghost, by love unfeigned. . . .

"By honor and dishonor, by evil report and good report: as deceivers, and yet true;

"As unknown, and yet, well known; as dying, and, behold, we live, as chastened, and not killed;

"As sorrowful, yet alway rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things."

Disciples Had Nothing

That is what working with God means. These men who travelled about to bring Christ to all the known world had nothing from our standards—no homes, no families, no money, often no place to stay. They were reviled and persecuted, but they were happy. They shared everything with one another. Through beatings and imprisonment, even death, they kept their joyful spirit and if they lived, went on with their work. Those who lost their lives, lived on in the hearts of those with whom they had been in contact and their example was revered and followed. Paul had suffered much persecution, and in the 11th chapter of II Corinthians, verses 24 to 33, he tells of his hardships.

In his epistle to the Hebrews Paul gives us a wonderful sermon on faith. He begins by saying, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.

"Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear." Then he cites instances of great faith in the history of the Jewish people:

It was by faith Abel offered a more acceptable sacrifice to God than Cain, and even though he died, he is known as the good son, while Cain is branded as the first murderer.

Noah's faith in God was justified when he, "moved by fear," built the ark and saved himself, his household and the beasts of the earth. Abraham's faith was so strong that at the Lord's command he offered his only child, Isaac, as a sacrifice. Isaac's blessing of his two sons, Esau and Jacob was also an act of faith. Paul writes, and then Isaac "worshipped, leaning upon the top of his staff."

"By faith Moses, when he was born, was hid three months of his parents, because they saw he was a proper child; and they were not afraid of the king's commandment.

"By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharoah's daughter; Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the children of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season.

"Esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt."

This same faith took Moses through the period of hopes, despairs and final triumph when Pharaoh let the people leave Egypt. This same faith carried them all, under Moses' leadership, through the Red Sea and 40 years of wandering, to the promised land. Later through faith the walls of Jericho fell down; and Paul quotes countless other instances where faith — working with God — triumphed. Truly, when we are fellow-workers with God, we too can win over obstacles and disasters innumerable, because we have faith.

Deport Aliens If Criminals Minister Says

Important suggestions of conditions in Canada's immigration policy were advanced to the Kiwanis Club luncheon here Friday noon. The speaker was Rev. James Holland of the West Toronto Club and president of the Canadian Scots Reunion Committee.

First point emphasized was that all immigrants to Canada should be required to learn the English language within five years. He also urged that the arrivals be scattered throughout Canada, and not permitted to settle in nationalisic "blocks" which tend to emphasise group difference. These racial islands, he said, are instruments of continuing former living customs, lang.. .e and recreation.

Mr. Holland suggested, as a check on the character of the new citizens, that deportation be the penalty on all criminal offences within the first five years' residence in this country.

Applications for admission should also be screened for their political views and abckground, he said.

The immigrants should be encouraged to join in public affairs, he said, to lend a strong vigorous new voice.

"Only by immigration can Canada prosper," the speaker declared. "We need 50,000,000 people here." He emphasized the undeveloped natural resources of the country which this flow of new citizens would help to add to the wealth of the nation.

The meeitng was in observance of the 33rd anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis.

Mr. Holland was introduced by Jack Lewis. Thanks of the club were expressed by Jack Sinclair. President Ted Pridham was chairman.

FISH AND GAME ASSOC. MEET

Three films on subjects of interest to sportsmen will be shown at the monthly meeting of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association to be held Monday, January 26, at 8 p.m. in the premises of the Peterborough Cribbage and Bridge Club.

IN COLLISION

Extensive damage to a car and truck was caused Friday afternoon in an accident on the Hastings road at Keene. In collision was a car driven by Stuart Nelson, R.R. 1, Keene and a truck driven by Percy Wood, Keene. There were no injuries. Provincial Constable J. Hanson investigated.

TAXIS BUSY

It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good, and apparently the same may be said for the present cold snap. Local taxis have found business booming, for apparently local residents would rather ride than walk while the thermometer hovers in the sub-zero region. Again, many people would prefer to leave their car in the garage in this weather, particularly if it is an older model. House calls, trips to and from restaurants, dances, and theatres kept cabbies on the hop all day Friday. One taxi business said it was swamped with calls.

DINNA MEDEL WI' DIALEC'!

Rev. James Holland, Toronto, guest speaker at the Kiwanis Friday luncheon, pointed out an exception in his recommendation that immigrants to Canada be required to learn to speak English. As president of the Canadian Scots Re-union Committee, the speaker warned that the Scottish language could not be translated without losing its flavor. And to prove it, he quoted—complete wi' brrs, brogue an' accent—from Bobby Burns. Following up with a mincing "translation" of the rugged poem in anglicized form, the point was effectively demonstrated to the meeting.

FAVOR NEW SCHOOL

Seventy ratepayers gathered Thursday night at the Bridgenorth School to listen to Major J. Anderson, district school inspector, talk on the necessity for a new school building. A vote was taken to submit a proposal to the inspector who would turn it over to the Department of Education for permission to submit an estimate of cost. Only two ratepayers were opposed. The present school was built 77 years ago and the attendance has increased from the desirable 35 pupils to one teacher ratio to 50 per teacher at the present time.

Shelter Site Large Enough To Take Centre

Assessment Commissioner Bert Graham confirmed today to the Examiner the measurements of the C. A. S. Shelter block, which were mentioned at the meeting of the Memorial Community Centre committee meeting Thursday night.

The frontage on George St. is 187 ft. and the depth is 456 ft. Another fact which was brought out at the meeting was that additional width on George St. could be obtained, if it was needed, by taking 10 or 15 feet off the south side of King Edward St. That would increase the George St. frontage to at least 200 ft.

For those who are not familiar with the neighborhood on the east side of George St. at King Edward Park, it may be said that there is no house on the north side of King Edward St.

The only property fronting on that side is the Harold Inman grist and feed mill, beside the C. N. R. to Belleville. No houses lie immediately to the west, few if any directly to the east, but there are some houses on the south side of Princess St.

One of the members of the committee interested in the south end location said last night that the Centre plans provided for certain rooms for community use which had received more attention in the hopeful and expansive days when the committee had only the problem of gathering money for the project.

One of the advantages of the Centre would be the accommodation afforded for meetings of various groups of citizens in the entire southern area of the city providing possibly a branch library. Ample parking space for winter time lies across George St. in King Edward Park and short blocks to the south in Morrow Park, assuming that this latter park would be available to the public for that convenience.

It was also said that traffic outlets are favorable. Leading directly to the north are George, Aylmer and Park Street; communication to the northwest sections of the city lies along Lansdowne St. and Monaghan Road and Western Ave.; and a secondary way to Ashburnham is east on Lansdowne to Downer's Corners and thence north on Armour Road.

A primary factor in obtaining that site would be, it was said, the disposition and attitude of the C. A. S. Mr. R. L. Dobbin recalled last night that some years ago the society had considered subdividing the block into building lots and offering them for sale. Opinion has been for some years that the property is too large for the needs of the C. A. S. and its wards.

Stuart Herefords Win At Denver

A telegram was received today by Dr. Harold Worton, from Jack Stuart, Jr., in Denver, Colorado, telling of success at the mammoth Denver Livestock Show and Sale now going on.

Mr. Stuart wired that his Herefords had won first and third in the class for two-year heifers, and another beast placed sixth in the senior yearlings.

He showed for the female championship but missed, but his two-year-old in winning her class beat Milky Way, the two-year-old Hereford heifer that won the American Royal and at San Francisco. Stuart's best awards probably were won by Old Orchard Dorothy, a two-year-old heifer which was grand champion at the Canadian National Exhibition and at the Royal Winter Fair.

Mrs. Nancy Stuart accompanied her husband on the trip and the herd of a bull and three heifers were taken over by Archie Clysdale, farm manager, and Walter Clysdale, herdsman.

Harold J. Devey Supper Club Speaker

Harold J. Devy, veteran of 28 years service in the Peterborough Post Office, gave the Friday Night Supper Club some insight to the workings and development of the postal service. In his address, he outlined the history of that branch of service in Canada from 1753, when the first post office was founded at Three Rivers, Quebec, by Benjamin Franklin.

There are now 26 mail routes in Peterborough city, he said. Eleven rural routes serve the immediate rural district.

Entertainment was provided by Alex Ingram.

Suggest Jaycees Take A Look At Other Site

Following a recent Main Street item in The Examiner which stated that the Junior Chamber of Commerce was considering the building at the George Street wharf as a tourist bureau site, one city observer made this suggestion:

"That is entirely the wrong place," said he, "if you want to sell the district to tourists. It must be uptown." He was quite aware of the furore that this would stir up from members, chiefly that there was no other spot, for, they knew their city, didn't they? According to him, they don't. He has sized up a perfectly good spot in the centre of the business section for the purpose, has in fact paced it out. Where? At the Charlotte St. entrance of the city parking lot beside Banks' bicycle shop is a corner about 30 feet square that will park four cars.

The main driveway into the lot approaches at an angle, so that the east side of the entrance chips off a corner that is useless for parallel parking and those who park vehicles at an angle in this section are in the roadway. Suggestion. Straighten out the driveway along the eastern corner entrance and reserve the space from the new roadway to the Banks building and you have a sizeable lot to put a decent building on. It is right in the business section, the city leases the lot from the Dominion Government and gives it away for free parking anyway. It would catch all the incoming traffic from the south through Charlotte St. and by displaying street direction banners at the main interesections everyone could find it easily enough. There should be one there now, says the man, to give out information soon for the regional ski meet that is going to take place. It has lots of uses in the tourist off season, and he asks the Jaycees to think it over.

Community Fund Will Require $60,000 In 1948

$60,000 is the objective for 1948 set by the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund. This was established at a meeting of the steering committee held in the Community Fund office on Friday.

The following members of the steering committee were present: Ross Dobbin, Gordon Matthews, Tom MacKay (secretary-treasurer), J. E. Girvin, representing Mr. Ian McRae, Chris Hughes, Mrs. Fanning, W. J. Garner representing H. L. Garner, W. A. Richardson another member of the committee was unable to be present.

The opening dinner of the Community Fund campaign will be held on February 27 at the CGE cafeteria and the campaign will continue through to March 5 inclusive when the closing dinner will be held.

The following organizations will benefit from the Community Fund: Canadian Red Cross Society, Peterborough Humane Society, Navy League, Salvation Army (local work), Children's Aid Society, YMCA and YWCA (local work), Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Victorian Order of Nurses, Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation, and the Peterborough visiting Homemaker Service.

Bancroft Man, 90, Cut 100 Sawlogs

Grandfather Was In Napoleon's Ill-Fated Army

Herman Kelusky of Bancroft was 90 years of age last October. Few men reach this advanced age; and those that do hope to spin out the ever-thinning thread of life by dozing at the fireside and quietly whiling away the days in reverie and physical inactivity. But not Mr. Kelusky.

Last year without any pressing need for doing so, he cut down about 100 trees and sawed them up as well. Those who know him best, say he didn't choose the small ones either; but selected large-sized timber, felled it with his deftly-wielded axe, and sawed it into 12 to 15 foot lengths.

No novice at the game, he used a smoothly efficient "Swede saw" to cut the logs, and ran through his job in jig time.

This year Mr. Kelusky is not cutting timber in the bush. He started out to do so with the arrival of the winter season, but relatives felt that a man his age should not be out all alone working so hard. Mr. Kelusky remained quite imperturbed by all the fuss but finally gave in to their requests.

Now he gets up before daybreak and does the daily chores. The cattle, hogs, and other livestock are kept during the winter, several miles from the barn, near his home on the Bancroft outskirts. He usually goes to bed between 8-9 p.m.

As might be expected from a man who does such a good day's work he has an excellent appetite, and has a remarkably good record of health. Two or three years ago he broke several ribs and had them bound up tightly. While sawing wood in this injured condition he found the bandages irritating him so he ripped them off and continued with his work. The result was a couple of weeks in bed with a badly aggravated injury.

Mr. Kelusky comes of fighting Polish stock. His grandfather accompanied Napoleon on his ill-fated Russian invasion, and was one of the minority who survived the nightmarish retreat from Moscow.

Found Sentries Frozen

He and his brother John recall their father relating tales of the numbing cold, the fierce fighting, and the bravery of desperate men, which he had heard from their grandfather.

On the way back, the men nearly starved and they ate everything from dead cats to herring heads. Soldiers doing sentry duty at night would be frozen stiff when found in the morning—still standing guard as the gallant rearguard fought its heroic covering action.

Armpit-deep snow, fierce Russian attacks, little food, bitter cold, and even danger from wolves were all part of the immense hazard faced by his grandfather and the other troops as they fought their way back from burning Moscow to the comparative safety of Germany.

His grandfather did not go back to Poland, but settled in East Prussia, near the border. In 1820 his father was born and the family came out to Canada in 1860. One brother was born during the 12-week crossing on the boat. He was two-and-a-half at the time, having been born in Prussia.

The family came up by boat to Fitzroy, near Ottawa, and stayed there a couple of years, but his father was a lumberman and kept moving about the province. For a time he lived in Monteagle township in Hastings county. He moved to the Bancroft region about 20 years ago.

At the age of 20 he married a girl who was also born in Prussia, and they raised a family of eight. Hunting and fishing have always been his favorite hobbies, and he is well-known as being a top sportsman.

Apparently Herman Kelusky is not ready for the fireside yet; and he would laugh at any man who would even suggest it. Having lived nearly all his life in Ontario, he can remember history in the making. He remembers the days before Confederation, and lived during eventful times that most people can only contact through books.

Of Herman Kelusky it could be said that he was a pioneer.

Peterborough the Only City Across Entire Province To Have Penny Bank Plan

About 95 per cent. of the pupils in Peterborough's public schools—that is, approximately 2,800 youngsters of the city—are availing themselves of the opportunity of saving money and learning the elements of business transactions. Tailored to the needs of their "kid-size" budgets, the Grey and Bruce Penny Savings Bank was set up in October, 1947, and is the only system of its kind in operation in the province at present. It takes the place of the work formerly carried on by the Ontario Penny Bank, under the direction of the Provincial Department of Education. The arrangement was made between the Grey and Bruce Trust Company and the city Board of Education. The provincial bank, it was announced last week, closed out at the end of the year.

Every Monday morning in classrooms throughout the city, pupils have "banking day." Deposits are turned in to the teachers, who enter the date, amount and total deposits in a special passbook. Carbon copies of these entries then go, with the money, to the Trust's office, where a separate bookkeeping and filing system has been established for the scheme.

It was emphasized that the amount of the deposits is not the important feature—the plan aims to teach the habit or regular deposits, teaching that a few cents a week is important—provided it is every week. With "clients" ranging in age from six to 14 years, the average weekly deposit for the younger punils is 10 or 15 cents. With the older boys and girls, many of whom earn the money with part-time work, the average is 50 cents weekly, considerably higher than had been expected.

The provincial government first set up such a scheme in the public schools more than 30 years ago. In the early years of the war, it discontinued receiving deposits to encourage purchase of War Savings Stamps. With the recent dissolution of the plan, Peterborough is the only city in Ontario with such a plan in active operation at present. Owen Sound plans to establish a similar plan in February through the Grey and Bruce branch there.

A check of the first three months' records reflects how closely the children's accounts parallel the "adult" bank accounts, although the record of regular deposits is much higher. Just like their parents, the pre-Christmas season saw a "rush on the bank" for Christmas presents. In the two week period following the holiday, the childhood equivalent of "Christmas bonuses" began flooding back into the accounts.

Can Be Controlled

Withdrawals for the young bankers are a little more involved, meaning that there is some means of restraint on taking money out for trivial reasons—something which bank officials comment is a common failing among "grown-ups." The withdrawal slips must be countersigned by the child's parent and teacher.

There are about 3,000 students in the city who are eligible to take out these accounts. On a completely voluntary and unforced basis, about 2,800 now hold books in the savings plan. Of that number, there are about 1,500 separate deposits made each Monday—50 per cent regularity, with, of course, some overlapping.

Ted McKay, manager of the Grey and Bruce office here, pointed out the effect on the habits of the children which this plan makes. With a real bank account, in his own name, the child is on the road to forming the saving habit throughout his life. And some of them develop a considerable sense of importance in the new dignity which a bank depositor feels.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, January 25

Sunday's horoscope points up the activities and aspirations of the preceding day, in which danger lurks in hidden sources, luring from the practical objectives of progress and good grace into the treachery and intrigue of the seductive patterns. The social, romantic and domestic may be the scene of much liveliness, but in all beware curious personages and plots.

On The Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be able to escape the lure and persuasion of treacherous and subtle undercurrent and to find constructive work in connection with the domestic, social, cultural or sentimental life, or those avenues of business life pertaining to their progress or embellishment. Pleasure and profit are in sight, but as well there are signs of snares, or sordid contact with curious, baneful or illicit associations. The straight and narrow way spells safety.

A child born on this day may have skills and talents in relation to social, cultural, domestic and sentimental activities but they may fall victims of sordid and sinister lures.

For Monday, January 26

Monday's astrological forecast is a most exceptional one, with all sorts of encouragement, incentive and equipment for forging ahead on ambitious goals and far-reaching objectives. Such productive program and high aspirations must be promoted by sheer dint of talents, industry and sagacity, with sustained effort and on sound principle, in which personal acumen, integrity and keen purpose may attain spectacular performance, without the support or endorsement of higher-ups. There are excellent prospects for "go it alone" tactics and convictions.

On The Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, stand at the threshold of a most progressive and productive period in which their ambitious objectives, born of brilliant ideas and weighty purpose, backed by shrewd and sagacious attack and fundamentals, should win high place, power and prestige in spite of lack of cooperation or endorsement of important personages or their capital.

A sheer policy of faith, logic, application and industry should reach new highs in the way of accomplishment against all threats. Exceptional opportunities knock at the door. Listen; act.

A child born on this day may be blessed with oustanding skills and ambitions, sustained by sound principles and ideas—worked out by faith and firmness in the face of scant support from others.

HOME AND SCHOOL COUNCIL

Peterborough Home and School Council held their regular meeting Wednesday in the YWCA. Mrs. A. H. Nelson presided. A welcome was extended to Lakefield and St. John's Associations, newly affiliated with Council.

Discussion took place concerning the visit of Miss Mary Grannon, who will be the guest of Council at their Founder's Day Rally, Monday, Feb. 2. Miss Grannon, author of "Just Mary" books, is well known for her radio stories, heard regularly by an enthusiastic audience of young peuople.

Plans are being made for Miss Grannon to give school children a story-hour during the afternoon. She will later address an adult audience in George Street United Church Sunday-school room.

A committee composed om Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, Mrs. C. H. Crowe, Mrs. E. Chambers, Mrs. W. K. Higgins and Mrs. A. W. Nelson was appointed to arrange details of the visit.

Mrs. Fanjoy, corresponding secretary, read an invitation from Rev. F. W. Craik to hold the Council's annual church service in St. James' United Church.

It was decided that the Council with affiliated associations would send a donation to United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization.

Mrs. G. Webb read a letter from Ontario H. and S. Federation encouraging interest in the Canadian Association of Consumers. She stressed the importance of becoming better informed of the aims and purpose of this association by receiving the first bulletins issued.

Conveners' reports were heard as follows: Mrs. A. G. Stock, hospitality, gave advice on establishing a friendly and social atmosphere at Home and School meetings.

Mrs. C. H. Crowe, for radio and visual aids, described efforts to have "Cuckoo-Clock House" broadcast over CHEX, and read a letter from Karl Monk, program manager, listing the programs for children being broadcast at present, and mentioning a new story-type program to start shortly.

Mrs. L. M. Richardson, for leadership, suggested that next executive members be given a copy of the H. and S. Manual as well as the constitution. She also requested all members to secure the revised edition of the Manual.

Mrs. V. R. Henry, publications, urged members to study the Manual, Handbook and Constitution, and suggested that each member subscribe to Ontario Home and School Magazine.

Mrs. Nelson reported her attendance, as Council's representative, at the organization of the Homemakers' Service in Peterborough.

Curlers Have Tea In Club Rooms

Amid the excitement of concluding bonspiel plays and the rush for trains, out-of-town guests of Peterborough Ladies' Curling Club were entertained at tea in the club rooms, Friday afternoon.

Lace-covered tables were brightly centred with bowls of spring flowers. Mrs. H. Dulmage, Mrs. R. Best, Miss Hazel Fanning and Miss Laura Davidson were pouring tea. Mrs. C. G. Graham, convener, was hostess. Assistants were Mrs. M. Crough, Mrs. S. J. Williamson, Mrs. J. V. Elliott, Mrs. E. Holewell, Mrs. G. Bletcher, Mrs. D. E. Bell and Mrs. F. Mowry.

Mrs. O. M. Steer, president, and Mrs. T. Doughty, bonspiel convener, announced that the Hamilton Victoria rink, skipped by Mrs. C. Gooch, was winner of the Warne Trophy. In absence of the donor, Mr. Wm. Jeffries presented the cup to Mrs. Gooch. Club prizes were presented by Mrs. Steer.

Too Much Advice Hinders Person With Problem

DID YOU EVER think about what a nice, pleasant, comfortable world this would be if everybody attended to her own cooking, instead of sticking her finger into your pies? Here is a case in point:

Dorothy Dix

A young woman writes me that she is being driven almost crazy by trying to follow the advice given her by her family, friends and neighbors, all of whom are trying to run her life for her. This has gotten her so confused and bewildered that she does not know whether she is coming or going or what she should do or leave undone. And she sums up her problems by saying: "I think I listen to much to too much talk.

Alas, so do most of us and lending our ears to the garruluos is one of our greatest sources of trouble. For while we recognize the danger of talking too much, we regard listening as an innocent and even a laudable pastime. Yet all of the scandal- mongers, gossips and false prophets do not do one tithe of the harm that the often well-meaning men and women do who feel their sacred duty to run everybody else's affairs for them.

If these wiseacres, who are giving us a tip for free about how we can make a million dollars even while they are borrowing a few dollars from us, were taken with a grain of humor, we might laugh off their advice and no harm would be done. But the tragedy is that so many people take them seriously, especially in business affairs. More money has been lost by credulous customers being talked into buying oranges groves in Nova Scotia or playing a sure thing on the market than ever was across a gambling table. And many a widow is taking in washing because she listened to a glib salesman tell her how he could make a fortune for her husband's insurance money.

Talk Used Weapon

But the danger of listening to too much talk is most hazardous in the domestic circle. It is Mother's most fatal weapon. Tom has fallen in love with a nice young girl and wants to marry her, but Mother is determined to break off the match. So she talks and talks and salts her discourse down with her tears until she has destroyed every illusion that he ever had about Mary Jane.

Sally is married to a fine young chap, who is a Prince Charming in her eyes until Mother begins pointing out to her his faults and defects. He smokes too much, he uses the wrong fork when he eats or he doesn't help with the dishes and before Sally knows it, her little tin god is nothing but a stuffed shirt. Mother has talked her out of a good husband.

And there are the neighbours who feel it their duty to tell Lulu that her husband has been out to lunch with a pretty young girl or that people are beginning to talk about him and his secretary Lulu really doesn't believe the cock-and-bull story about her husband being unfaithful to her, but it makes her suspicious —and another marriage has gone on the rocks.

And so it goes. It isn't too much to say that husbands and wives would save themselves a lot of grief if they would not listen to too much talk, but would regulate their own homes and their own lives by their own common sense.

Rev. I. C. Morgan Reviews Dicken's Unfinished Mystery

Mystery stories never fail to intrigue the human mind whether its owner be highly educated and a lover of the classics or of the dime detective magazine calibre. Therefore, members of the Women's Art Association meeting Friday afternoon in the Green Room of the YWCA, were anxious to hear Rev. Ivan C. Morgan's interpretation of Charles Dicken's intended conclusion to the murder mystery, "The Case of Edwin Drood." Some 90 books and many articles have been published giving the public that particular author's conclusion. No one can say that any one of them is right or wrong for no written plan of the story was ever found.

It is 78 years since Dickens laid down his pen one afternoon, and before morning he was dead. Efforts to establish a definite clue to the mystery of whether Edwin Drood was murdered, and by whom, were made by his son, Charles, Jr., his daughter, Kate Dickens Collins, and her husband, Charles Collins, as well as Mr. John Forester, and his illustrator, Sir Luke Fields.

Many prominent business and professional men like to read mystery stories, disguising their enthusiasm with the oft-repeated phrase about true relaxation being gained from interests entirely opposite to their line of work, and Mr. Morgan confessed that he belonged in this group. "Have you ever been left with a sense of dissatisfaction after reading a mystery and felt you could do a better job yourself?" he asked. "If so, here is your chance. Read 'The Case of Edwin Drood' as far as Dickens' writing goes, several times will bring to light many threads of thought from which anyone can weave a more convincing conclusion than has yet been given.

Mr. Morgan reviewed the story as it is given to refresh the memories of his audience, and followed with thumb-nail sketches of the characters as they appeared. Basis of the plot appears to be the fact that, though apparently devoted to his nephew, Edwin Drood, Jasper is in love with Drood's fiancee, Rosa Budd. Their engagement is a parental re-arrangement which they feel called upun to accept, though they are alway quarrelling. Jasper is an opium addict and the slave of a Chinaman-like woman, but is known to have planned to remove Edwin so that he can have Rosa.

Following the disappearance of Edwin Drood, a mysterious character named Datchery appears, and his real identity is never established. In his conclusion, the speaker suggests that he might have been Edwin in disguise. "If not, who is he?' he says. "Was Edwin Drood murdered and how was it accomplished? Who was the opuim woman? Were the hands of the clock torn off, possibly by the falling of a body from the cathedral tower, or was it accidental?"

Dickens has been accused of failure as a plotter, and in this case no one will ever know if this was true. The theory of "Mr. Tartar' being the murderer has been highly exploited, but no one knows this to be the author's intention.

Mrs. N. D. Seaton, president, thanked Mr. Morgan for the extremely interesting word pictures he presented to an appreciative audience. From her own experience she corroborated the speaker's statement that true appreciation of "The Case of Edwin Drood" could not be gained in one reading, but four or five spaced perusals would bring many interesting facts phases to think over.

Wartime Heroine Elected Mayor of Yugoslav Ava

By PETER FURST

BELGRADE, Jan. 24 (Reuters). —A 21-year-old peasant girl who was elected president (roughly equivalent to mayor) of a large agricultural district in eastern Serbia is receiving as much publicity in the Yugoslav press of is she were a visiting Slav statesman.

The girl, Miroslavia-Mira Jonovic, wartime underground worker and Partisan, was made head of a district "people's committee" near Nish because, state the newspaper reports "she won her people's confidence through her heroic work during and after the war, and because of her energy, enthusiasm and organizing ability."

She is the first girl of her age in Yugoslavia to be elected to an important government post.

Her story, and the fact that she has become a favorite subject for local newspaper men is characteristic of the effort which is being put into rebuilding in this country.

"Heroes of labor," is in Soviet Russia, are important personages here. A bricklayer who breaks a record in the number of bricks he can lay in a day, a youngster who wins three 'Udarnik" (shock worker, similar to the Russian Stakhanovites), badges on three different youth construction schemes, or a peasant woman, who, at 75, learns to read and write and then organizes anti-illiteracy courses on her own, all win as many tributes today as the Partisan who killed 50 Germans did yesterday.

Mira Jankovic's story is typical of that of thousands of other girls one can meet in Yugoslavia today — especially on the mass youth projects.

Of Humble Origin

She was born in the village of Azbresnica, in the foothills of the 5,000-foot Jastrebac mountain, northwest of Nish, not far from the Morava river. The districts is one of Serbia's poorest. She was one of seven children. Her father owned less than eight acres of wooded and mostly unarable land. Her mother died in 1941, leaving the 15-year-old Mira in charge of the house and family.

When her brother joined the Partisans in 1942, she became an illegal worker in her village and district, organizing supply and secret meetings, conveying messages and carrying out propaganda for the Partisan cause.

In 1944, at 17, she joined the 16th Partisan brigade, and as an ordinary soldier participated in the costly battles during the sixth enemy offensive against the Partisan forces, and later on the Srem front, north of Belgrade, during the Russo-German battle for southern Hungary.

At the end of the war, she enlisted in an army nurses' course and when women were demobilized, she became a worker in a rubber factory — the first woman from her district ever to become an industrial worker.

She joined every organization there was to join — the people's front, the people's youth, the anti-Fascist women's front. She participated in scores of so-called "front actions,"—voluntary labor projects — such afforestation, drainage, construction and anti-illiteracy drives.

At 20, she was elected delegate from her district to the district "people's committee," the local government body whose president sh became recently.

Keep Old People Busy Speaker Tells Soroptimists

"Since the turn of the century we have added 20 years to our life-span in Canada, but we have not added life to years," Mrs. Jean M. Good, secretary of the old age division of Toronto Welfare Council told Soroptimist Club members and guests Friday evening. Her address, following the regular dinner meeting held in Hooper's Palm Room, outlined the work being done by her branch of the Community Chest planning body and gave details of Toronto's Second Mile Club which is having such marvellous response from aged residents.

"We have pushed people out of employment at 65 and given them old-age pensions which are inadequate to provide necessities for happy and successful adjustments in the community. We accept mental and physical enfeeblement as a part of old age, but the normal old person is active and alert," said Mrs. Good.

To illustrate she listed the astounding accomplishments of Dr. Lillien Martin, a retired professor in San Francisco, commencing at the age of 70 when she realized that she still had one-third of her life to live and proceeded to make them count. She saw that chronological age does not mean very much and the important question is not "How long have you lived?" but "How alive are you?"

Mose devastating problem of old age is loneliness and it occurs among the rich as among the poor. To relieve the feeling of being unneeded and unwanted requires careful planning. The old people must be consulted and things must be done with them, not for them. Mrs. Good described the Golden Age Hobby Show an annual event started in Cleveland and in 1945 which has awakened the community to the values of old people. Every exhibitor is over 60 years of age and some are 95. Patients who had not been away from an infirmary for years were brought to the show and one of their members won a prize. A new lease on life has been given to many of these old people who demonstrated their skill, usefulness and ability to more than 6,500 people last year.

"Old people with folded hands tend to dwell on the past" Mrs. Good said. "Senility, illness and dependence can be warded off if the aged can remain useful and active." A project of the Women's Patriotic League operating in Toronto since World War 1 provides workrooms for 40 elderly women to do the mending, sewing, knitting, quilting and handwork in which they particularly excell. Not only do they retain a sense of independence, but they have the much-needed companionship of women living alone in rooms. It is notable that in 25 years not one case of mental inalertness has developed among the ever-changing list of employees.

Attention has recently focussed on the Second Mile Club because of its removal into a fine building purchased and renovated by the City of Toronto and rented to the club for $1 per year. Miss Eunice Dyke, director, originated it about 12 years ago when she and a board member became interested in a group of older women at the YWCA who were out of joint with activities there, and arranged weekly meetings for afternoon tea at the member's home. As time went on, interested friends provided money for rent of club rooms. There, club members took responsibility for acting as hostess one day each week, and this was important to them. It took a long time for beautifully decorated and comfortably furnished rooms is handling increasing membership and additional activities. Since the grand official opening in December, committees have been appointed to plan "frolic" nights. Tables for cards and checkers are filled from morning to night with old men. Some of them exhibit their skill as cooks and putter in the kitchen. One retired baker makes meat pies and cookies every Wednesday. Those musically inclined entertain each other with violin, piano and vocal solos, or lead in singing old familiar songs. There are small stoves and equipment enabling members to entertain their friends and serve meals to their friends in the dining room or a private room upstairs and this is most important to many who no longer have their own homes. In all cases the entertainment is "by", not "for" the old people.

"Visit your County Home at Lakefield and make yourselves acquainted with conditions there," Mrs. Good suggested. However, she pointed out the fact that 95 per cent of old people live in the community. Their chief desires have been expressed as "a warm rooming house with a kind landlady" or "my own cottage." People over 65 are quite capable of making plans for their own leisure time and prefer independence, but they need some encouragement and recognition of their values.

"Don't try to do what someone else has done," advised the speaker. "Study your own situation and make plans for your project with the help of these older people who have experience and judgment, and know what they need. The important thing is to make them feel necessary and wanted," Mrs. Good concluded.

Miss Grace Sargent introduced the speaker and she was thanked by Miss Leta Prownscombe. Alderman Dick Raine, chairman of Peterborough Welfare Committee, expressed gratitude for having the opportunity to hear a first-hand account of the work being done in another city. James Dutton congratulated the Soroptimist Club on the work they have already done among the older citizens, whose welfare, up to the present, has been most sadly neglected in Peterborough and district.

Special guests of the Club Friday evening were Mr. A. G. Metheral, relief administrator, and Mrs. Metheral, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Dutton, Aldermen Dick Raine and P. J. Anglesey.

Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble! (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.)

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16 oz. bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid medicine for bad winter coughs. It makes a real saving, because it gives you four times as much cough syrup for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is a very effective, dependable, quick-acting cough medicine for the whole family. Quickly, you feel its penetrating effect in the air passages. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You will be delighted with its quick effect in clearing up coughs.

Four Victories For PCVS In Cage Frays

By JOHN LEWIS

Four PCVS boys' cage teams took as many victories at the Collegiate last night. The bantams beat Lindsay 25-8 in the first of home-and-home, points to count, group finals. The junior "B" bunch won a loop fixture over Lindsay 24-12. PCVS senior "B" crew won from Lindsay 38-23 in another league tilt. And the senior "A" squad smothered Oshawa's OABA juvenile entry 43-1. About 150 fans were on hand.

Paul Welsh led the senior with 11 points and Don Griffin had eight. It was 9-0 at quarter time and 17-1 at the half with PCVS counting nine more in the third and a final flock in the final.

PCVS: Griffin 8, Thompson 5, Sergeant 2, Grafstein 6, Dinsdale 2, Welsh 11, Richardson, Morrison, Lee, McKee 4.

PCI senior "B" players rolled up an early lead against Lindsay and were never headed. They had a 16-4 lead at the quarter and were in front 27-5 at the half, led by Howard Hempstead who got 12 points. Preston got as many for Lindsay. The visitors came back strongly the last half.

BAGGING A BIG ONE — As happy as if he had just slugged a home run is Joe DiMaggio, home-run king of the New York Yankees, as he exhibits the sailfish that fell to his rod and reel in a fishing trip off the Florida coast. The fish is seven feet long, but seems insensible to the honor of being killed by a diamond hero. DiMaggio is soaking up sunshine in the interim between now and the call to spring training. CITY CARPETBALL

Several results have been turned in but there are still a couple of the first half of the schedule that have not been played or have been forgotten. These are between BESL 8 vs. Big Bens 10 and BESL 6 vs. BESL 9. We are thinking that the Posties got a little mixed up with their numbers as they have played the Paper Dolls a couple of weeks before scheduled.

Those thistle-headed Scots have been sticking their thorns in all and sundry of late, first taking the Posties 12-9 and 10-9, making it four straight on the round with a total tally of 47 to 29. Then they ran against the Paper Dolls and tore those unfortunates to shreds with the scores of 22-10 and 15-5, this also being a straight round for the Thistles to the tune of four games with the total 59-30.

The Big Bens are rolling along in an alarming way ringing up the changes and climbing the standings. This week they chased the Wardens over the river 11-5, 18-4.

The Posties are doing their utmost to keep up to schedule and are probably suffering for the work as they fell before the Paper Dolls 6-10, 5-11, but just managed to divide the spoils with King Billie's Orange Squeezers, dropping the first 14-6 but gathering in the fruit on the second 20-9.

The other game reported was a President's Cup elimination in which Big Bens took the Old Sweats two straight 10-3, 13-5.

LOL 3 vs. Big Bens 10; LOL 4 vs. Wardens 9; BESL 5 vs. SOE 2; BE SL 7 vs. Wanderers 1.

Schedule last half 8 vs. 10, 6 vs. 9.

Not reported from last week: BE SL 8 vs. Wardens 9; LOL 4 vs. BESL 6; Wanderers 1 vs. Big eBns 10.

Next week schedule—BESL 5 vs. LOL 4; BESL 6 vs. LOL 3; Wardens 9 vs. SOE 2; Wanderers 1 vs. BESL 7; Big Bens 10 vs BESL 8.

Schedule for week of Feb. 2 — BESL 7 vs. Wardens 9; BESL 8 vs. BESL 5; SOE 2 vs. BESL 6; LOL 3 vs. Wanderers 1; LOL 4 vs. Big Bens 10.

Habs Tackle Wings Twice In Crucial Tilts

By The Canadian Press

This looks like the week-end that will go a long way towards deciding whether the Montreal Canadiens are going to be in the National Hockey League playoffs.

The once-powerful Habitants, who lost to Toronto in the Stanley Cup final last season, at present are down in fifth-place, but they're only a point behind Boston Bruins and the last play-off spot. While Detroit and Toronto are tied for the lead far in front there's a considerable three-way jam between New York Rangers, Boston and Montreal for the other two play-off positions.

The Montrealers have two tough assignments, both against the Detroit Red Wings — first at the Montreal Forum tonight and then at Detroit Olympia Sunday. They've been battling for more than a week now without old Hector (Toe) Blake, winger of their famed punch-line with Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach. Billy Reay has been filling in Blake's spot on this three-some.

The Canadiens couldn't have picked a better time for their annual dinner and get-together which last night saw gold pucks presented to several Habitants who had achieved all-star rating. The echoes from the great gathering of old-timers should be ringing in present-day Habitant ears for several games at least.

Blake, his fractured leg in a cast, and Lach were the two current Canadien players who received the award. Two stars of other days who got the gold pucks were Hooley Smith and Aurel Joliat. And two officials representing their families were presented pucks for the late Howie Morenz and Babe Siebert.

While the Canadiens now go against Detroit, the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks take on the Toronto Maple Leafs in a similar double-turn over the week-end. The Hawks—like the Canadiens—may prove to be very troublesome for the pace-setters.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

BY CANADIAN PRESS

Sunday sport for Ontario was advocated by Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International Baseball League at the annual gathering of the Hamilton Old Boys' Football Association last night.

". . . There is no reason in the world why Ontario cannot have Sunday sport. They have it in Quebec, also in the States and records prove that it has put a big crimp in both adult and juvenile delinquency . . .

"I am speaking for the poor man who is forced to sit on his verandah during the week-end with no form of recreation while those more fortunate can play golf and tennis. Baseball is a great game . . . I honestly believe that it would help the churches. We have and always will co-operate with the churches.

St. Catharines sporting circles gave praise yesterday to Major H. B. Burgoyne's 21-year span as president of the Henley Aquatic Association. His retirement recalled that by 1947 he had created assets of $38,000, wiping out a deficit that went back to 1921. John A. House of St. Satharines will succeed Major Burgoyne.

Tommy Deschambeault of Calgary and Alex Boguski of Lethbridge will meet in Calgary Feb. 4 to decide the Western Canada welterweight boxing championship, it was announced yesterday.

Norman Gregory, president of the Canadian Figure Skating Association said last night from Montreal that his organization had paid their annual dues to the International Skating Union last Fall, and that Canada's Olympic figure skating team had qualified under all requirements for Olympic competition. I.S.U. officials had said the Canadians would not be allowed to compete because the fee was not forthcoming.

Mike Jacobs, who this week set a record as owner of a heavyweight champion's contract, said yesterday he will continue to advise the Twentieth eCntury Sporting Club after his retirement from active promoting when Joe Louis bows out.

Canada's representation in the Olympics women's singles figure-skating competition was boosted to three last night with the arrival of Marilyn Ruth Take of Toronto, 19 - year - old Canadian amateur champion who said she will compete in the winter games and also in the world championships at Davos, Switzerland, Feb. 11-15.

RCAF Flyers, Canadian hockey representatives in the winter Olympics, scored in every period last night to defeat Switzerland 6-3 in an international match before 15,000 at Zurich, Switzerland.

Old-timers and present-day stars of hockey gathered last night at Montreal as guests of the Canadian Hockey Club at a dinner and get-together featured by presentation of gold pucks to several players who made national league all-star rating.

Retired players who received the special trophies—gold puck and chain, a diamond in the centre of the puck were Hooley Smith and Aurel Joliat.

A badly injured right knee probably will keep Edgar Laprade, prize playmaker of New York Rangers, out of action for Sunday night's National Hockey League game in Boston against the Bruins, Trainer Tommy McKenna said yesterday. Manager Frank Boucher plans to move Cal Gardner into Laprade's spot temporarily with Tony Leswick and Rookie Ed Kullman on the Wings.

Norwood Takes A 6-5 Win Over Marmora

NORWOOD, Jan. 24.—(ENS-—Marmora suffered their first defeat of the TVL season here last night as Norwood kept intact their home victory streak of the schedule with a 6-5 win in a fast, fairly clean contest before a good crowd. It was fine hockey throughout, with the home team having a little edge on play each period, and Morrison shining in goal to turn aside hot Marmora thrusts every stanza. HEATING SYSTEM FAILS — Some of the offices at Queen's Park became as cold as the Opposition's attitude toward the Government when the heating system failed in yesterday's below-zero blast. Jean Ellis shows how some of the girl employees carried on before they were granted leave to go home. All the offices were not affected. However, the heat was cut off in the Provincial Savings, and the male employees there withdrew to the vault, where they finished out the day.

Officer's Wife Shot By Japs On Submarine

TOKYO, Jan. 24—(AP)—Testimony that the American wife of a British flying officer bravely met death on a Japanese submarine with a cheery "sayonara" (goodbye) to the enemy crew has ended a four-year search for her.

Jiro Nakahara, 28, Hawaiian-born Japanese member of the sub crew, told this story as a surprise rebuttal witness today at the war crimes trial of former Premier Tojo and 24 others:

Mrs. Verna Gordon Britain, former American Red Cross worker, was en route to join her husband in Calcutta when the Dutch ship Tjsalak was sunk in the Indian Ocean in March, 1944.

Nakahara ordered survivors to come aboard, one by one. They were led below deck, questioned, returned to the deck and shot to death, one by one.

Mrs. Britain, the only woman survivor, told the sub's senior officer that she had been in Japan before the war.

"The senior officer said to me in Japanese that she would have to be shot. I did not tell her. I could not look her in the face. She told me she knew what was going to happen.

"The senior officer told me to ask her if she wanted to be blindfolded and her hands tied. She said she did not. Just before she left, she said sayonara—the sayonara was addressed to all the crew."

Nakahara said the submarine commander informed him naval headquarters had ordered the execution of all survivors of ship sinkings. Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, of the Japanese general staff, and a defendant, has denied issuing such orders.

Ministers Fight Re-marriage Ban

By NORMAN CRIBBENS.

LONDON, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Between 70 and 80 British ministers are disregarding the Church of England's ban on the re-marriage in church of divorced couples.

Since he formed the Bureau, Mr. Kemp has married 49 couples —one of the parties in each case being divorced.

For years Mr. Kemp held the view that the innocent party in a divorce case should not be penalized by the withholding of a second marriage in church.

"The majority of these people," he said, "are very serious in their desire to make a complete success of the second marriage—more so, perhaps, than the average youngster seeking a church wedding."

Since he started his remarriage bureau, the minister has had nearly 1,000 letters. Only four, he said, were against him and two of these were anonymous. He threw them in the fire.

"My congregation is behind me," he added.

When the minister hears from couples seeking remarriage in a church, he seeks out ministers sympathetic to his cause in, or nearest to, the area where they live.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

FINEST PLAY AT "1-NO"

YOU will find that the very best players without exception assert that the most efficient play ever seen at a bridge table is usually when the contract is low, especially when it is 1-No Trump. The reason is obvious. When good bidders reach only a very low height, it is because their opponents hold just about as much strength as they do themselves. In such situations, the battle promises to be extremely close, and the size of every card may prove important. In consequence, both the declarer and the defenders have to watch every little thing with extreme care, and make every possible deduction, as the slightest factor may upset the hair-trigger balance.

	♠ 10 7 3 ♥ A 10 4 ♦ A 10 7 ♣ 7 5 4 3
♠ Q 8 5 4 ♥ J 2 ♦ 8 3 2 ♣ Q 10 6 2	N W E S	♠ A J 2 ♥ K 6 5 3 ♦ K 9 5 4 ♣ K 8
	♠ K 9 6 ♥ Q 9 8 7 ♦ Q J 6 ♣ A J 9

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Dbl
Pass	1 NT

Here two pairs of top-notchers were chiseling for every margin in a tournament, and the edge was won by the defenders—Lee Hazen in the West opposite Waldemar von Zedtwitz, great campaigner who is now both President and Chairman of the Board of the American Contract Bridge League.

Mr. von Zedtwitz led the diamond 4 to the 6 and 10, and North returned the heart 10, which went through to the J. The diamond 8 was led to the K and the 5 lead eliminated the A. The club 3 was covered by the 8, 9 and 10. All at once the whole situation became clear to the great card-reader in the West, who until now had been straining fruitlessly for an accurate count.

The club 8 play made it certain Mr. von Zedtwitz had no lower club, hence only the K remaining where it would fall under the A. Diamonds were known to be of only four, and the hearts could not be five or they would have been led instead of a diamond. Adding 4, 4 and 2 made 10, so that Mr. von Zedtwitz had exactly three spades. Mr. Hazen then led the spade 4, the J being allowed to hold, whereupon the diamond 9 was cashed. The club K removed the A and the J was led to the Q. The heart 2 was returned to the A and the club 7 won, but then North had to give East two tricks, to the heart K and spade A to be set two tricks.

Ovaltine Case Ruling Delayed 14 Days

TORONTO, Jan. 24 — (CP).— After seven days of testimony, believed the longest hearing on record on a case of its kind, Magistrate F. C. Gullen yesterday reserved judgment for two weeks in the charge of misleading advertising brought by the Federal Health Department against the A. Wander Company of Peterborough.

The company was charged with advertising its product, an invalid food (Ovaltine) "in a manner likely to create an erroneous impression regarding the value, merit or composition" of the food.

It is the first case under Section 32A of the Foods and Drugs Act to be heard in Toronto. The Crown explained it has been "probably" the longest hearing on record for such a charge.

Throughout the week, eminent specialists in the field of biochemistry and nutrition from Canada and the United States were called to testify and give "expert" evidence.

T. J. Carley, counsel for the makers of Ovaltine, contended that the onus in "every particuisue of this case "is on he Crown."

Westwood Boys Shut Out Havelock

NORWOOD, Jan. 24.—(ENS). —Westwood shut out Havelock 5-0 here on Thursday night. It was a good game and a change from the first one played between Warsaw and Keene. Havelock showed better form than in any previous game.

Thompson of Westwood, got the lone counter in each of the first two periods, Shearer getting an assist on the first goal. Leo Sarnt scored first on a solo and then followed Thompson from Shearer, and Wood alone. There were only three penalties, Shearer, Patterson and Green.

Line-up:

Havelock— Gal, Hill; defence, Green, J. Brown; centre, G. Brown; wings, Nobes, Wight; alternates, Anderson, Revoy, F. McLaughlin, J. McMillan, Hermans, Patterson.

Westwood—Goal, Renwick; defence, Mortlock, Shearer; centre, Simpson; wings, Bruce Warr, Les Sargent; alternates, Thompson, Woods, Morris, V. Warr, Mason.

Referee—John Hamblin; linesman, Frank Morton.

MONTREAL — A bank clerk, Eugene Ste. Marie, disarmed and subdued a young gunman who attempted to hold up a Caisse Populaire (People's Bank) located in the basement of the St. Clothilde Parish Church.

Council Bylaw Makes Bewdley Police Village

COBOURG, Jan. 24 —(ENS)— Northumberland and Durham Counties Council wound up an uneventful January session on Friday afternoon. Passage of by-laws and the usual appointments occupied the attention of council on the last day of the session. The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, gave a brief talk to the counties council in which he assured them of his desire to be of service in conveying any representation they might want to make, to the various departments of the provincial government.

The letter from the Peterborough Civic Hospital regarding the subsidizing of patients from the United Counties entering this hospital will be dealt with at the June sesion.

The taking of a road in the township of Cramahe, into the counties road system, was referred to the Road Commission. The lengthiest report was that of the Legislative and By-Laws Committee.

Council endorsed the resolution from the County of Elgin asking provinces assume a share of the cost of Workmen's Compensation insurance for gaol employees and the resolution from the County of Halton regarding the treatment of sex perverts. No action was taken on the resolution from the County of Elgin regarding the nationalization of hospital sweepstakes. No action was taken on the resolution from the Good Roads Association in regard to the hours for opening and closing of service station. The resolution from the County of Oxford regarding the ban on the sale of oleomargarine in Canada being retained, was endorsed.

No action was taken on the resolution from the County of Oxford regarding the setting up of hospital areas for the levying of grants to hospitals, but a committee was set up to draft a resolution giving the council's views on the matter. The committee consists of Messrs. Allison, Bigelow, Gordon and Woodyard.

A bylaw authorizing the borrowing of up to $460,000 to meet current expenditure pending the collection of taxes, was passed, along with a bylaw authorizing an expenditure of $304,000 on the counties road system. The third bylaw established the police village of Bewdley. The following appointments were made before the close of the session:

Road commission of five members (previously three members) —A Wartman, 4-year term; A. Runnalls, 3-year term; C. B. Jandrew, 2-year term; H. Cathcart, 1-year term, and Warden Alex Stephen, one-year. Counties representatives on high school boards are: Bowmanville, W. Runnals; Campbellford, V. Farrow, A. Armour and A. Locke; Cobourg Collegiate Institute, H. R. Deyman and Earl Drope; Newcastle, L. Clarke and C. Allen; Port Hope, Walter Reynolds; Colborne, A. J. Dance. Special school committee: Ray Mallory, 3-year terms; auditor of criminal justice accounts, H. Woodley: reforestation committee, A. Milson and A. Potter. Children's Aid directors: 1-year terms, E. B. Lingard and E. Seeds. Northumberland and Durhac Board of Health: H. Bigelow 3-year term and F. Demyen, 2-year term. Board of management: 2-year term, C. Walton. Hospital board appointments were: Bowmanville, N. Allison; Port Hope, L. Giddy; Cobourg, J. Westington; Campbellfordo, R. Locke. Commissioner of East Northumberland registry office, L. Gordon; West Northumberland registry office, D. Glenn; East Durham registry office, E. Lingard; West Durham registry office, A. Baker. Commissioner of jail and counties office, J. Westington. Consultative committee for study of high school area plan, R. Locke and E. Woodyard. County property committee, A. Baker.

Council authorized the board of management to sell at their own discretion, some pasture lots wanted for real estate purposes. There was some discussion on Reeve E. Lingard's proposal that details re cost of a 50-room addition to the Counties Home be obtained for the June session of counties council. Preparation of plans was considered too costly as prevailing construction costs prohibited actual work being started, but council agreed that some idea of cost of such an addition could be obtained without recourse to an architect's plans.

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Hopeful mothers who want little Willie to grow up into a Cabinet Minister might do worse than throw the books out the window and just bring him up as a jack-of-all-trades. An ability to pick up votes might be an asset, but it's a fact that in the present Cabinet a faculty for juggling several jobs is a decided assets. Versatility pays off.

Among the eighteen Ministers holding portfolios up to this week, 13 of them have carried the ball for more than one department, and one of them has worked his way through five portfolios and is still going strong.

Fastest - moving traveller through the ministries is Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, who has left a trail of four portfolios in his wake since 1935 and has just dived into his fifth. Starting with railways, he has moved through transport, munitions and reconstruction, and now is embarked on the trade ministry with a key role in Canada's dollar-conservation program.

Rt. Hon. Ian Mackenzie, who stepped out of the Cabinet this week to move into the Senate, was close behind Mr. Howe. He has been successively Minister of Immigration, Defence, Pensions and Veterans Affairs. Along with his last job, he was Liberal House leader.

Get Variety

Three of the cabinet have run a trio of departments. These are Justice Minister Ilsley, who also has had revenue and finance; State Secretary Gibson, who went into that job by way of the revenue and ministries; and Finance Minister Abbott, an alumnus of the navy and defence desks.

Eight others have held more than one job. These are Agriculture Minister Gardiner (war services), Fisheries Minister MacKinnon (trade), External Affairs Minister St. Laurent (justice), Postmaster - General Bertrand (fisheries), Defence Minister Claxton (health), Revenue Minister McCann (war services), Health Minister Martin (state secretary) and Veterans Minister Gregg (fisheries).

Unsettled Affairs Disturbing Market

By The Canadian Press

Unsettled domestic and foreign affairs were further disturbed this week by extended discussions on anti-inflation measures and by accelerated deterioration in international relations. Stock markets reflected these conditions in dwindling activity and increased pressure on receding price trends.

New York reacted nervously to daily developments in both spheres with trading almost exclusively professional. Price changes were narrow and share transfers relatively few as dealers manoeuvred holdings in hope of quick profits. The investing public remained on the sidelines to wait out final disposition of vexing problems. In Toronto and Montreal the pace continued slowing down and price levels retreated daily.

Market reports yesterday showed the New York Stock Exchange quiet with prices mixed. Toronto made a mild effort at recovery but closed down for the day. Montreal was draggy on slightly lower prices while London was generally steady.

Toronto Stock Exchange figures for the week showed volume at 3,644,000 shares, down from 4,184,000 the previous week.

CONTRACT EGG PRICES

The poultry industry committee of Ontario has issued the following statement relating to British contract prices for eggs: "The practice has been to pay a premium for eggs produced from September 1 to late January. Under the spring export price which comes into effect at that time, normally, the premium was removed. This year the indicated reduction in the spring export price was 8½c a doz., but as a result of the new contract only 3½c of this premium for fall and early winter eggs will be lost the latter part of this month.

The export price will remain at that level until August 31, 1948. On September 1, 1948, the export price will rise to a point 3½c above the present winter export level. In other words the export level price for eggs from late January to August 31 will be 3½c below the present winter export price. From September 1, 1948, to late January, 1949, the export price will be 3½c above the present winter level.

The poultry industry committee points out that the British people still want fall and early winter eggs. This is indicated by the fact that they are paying a premium of 7c a dozen for eggs from September 1 to late January. The early hatched pullets produce the fall eggs and most poultrymen consider the early pullets are the most profitable."

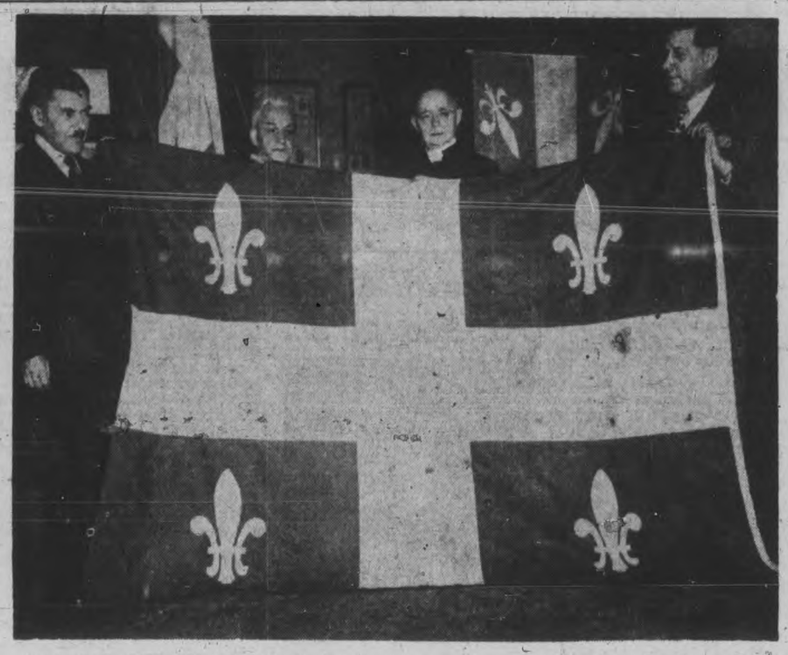
KELLY SALE WED., JAN. 28

Peterborough Holstein Club is supervising the sale of the accredited herd of the late Frank Kelly, vice-president at the time of his death, on Wednesday, Jan. 28, in the former drill hall at Exhibition Park, Lansdowne St.



"Some of the best Holstein cattle in this county," was the estimate of Stan. Wood, secretary-treasurer of the Club. For the purpose of the sale the Kelly herd is being augmented by a group of choice cattle which were selected recently by Roy Ormiston, field man.

"As fully accredited stock they can qualify for any market in the world," N. W. McConkey, president, told The Examiner. "All the females of milking age have made ROP records or are in the course of it, and production figures will be computed to date. From the Kelly herd are two daughters of Montvic Heinke Pietje Posche, son of Montvic Bonheur Pietje B, one of the greatest foundation animals ever to leave the famous Mount Victoria herd. There are also daughters and grand-daughters of Supreme Grand Slam. Most of the females are carrying service to the good record of Montvic Monogram. Those are samples of the Kelly Holsteins.

About the others that are being consigned to the sale, Stuart Nelson is sending a top show three-year-old with a two-year-old record of more than 13,000 pounds of 3.8 milk. Coughlin Brothers are sending two head. One cow won the first prize in the aged dry cow class at the Peterborough county Black and White day in 1945. She has a record of over 14,000 lbs. of 3.7 milk.

Joseph T. Tully is consigning a 2-year-old show heifer on test at the present time and going strong; also a heifer calf, daughter of Glenafton Ragapple Signet which was sold to South America for $7,500. There is a show cow from Davis Bros. that has three ROP records, and from Matchett Bros. a choice milking 3-year-old of foundation calibre. John E. Manley is sending a half-sister of his reserve all Canadian bull Supreme Paul; and Norman McConkey his 2-year-old second prize winner in milking class at the 1947 Royal, nominated for all Canadian, and her three-months-old daughter.

Peterborough Holstein breeders are mixing quality, sentiment and promotional work in the planning for this sale. Auction of farm implements begins at 12.30 o'clock, and of the 42 head of Holstein cattle at 1.30 p.m. The auctioneer is Gordon Hancock, who will be assisted in the cattle sale by Lorne Franklin of Toronto. The Club is acting in behalf of Mrs. Kelly and in appreciation of the contribution her husband made to the establishment of the Club and the development of the Holstein breed in this district.

CHOOSE OWN FLAG—Quebec's new flag is flown atop the tower of the Quebec Legislature and is displayed by the four men who are perhaps more than anyone else responsible for the adoption of the "flower of the lily" emblem. They are from left, L. A. Frechette, St. Jean Baptiste Society director; Georges Cherrier, director; Canon Lionel Groulx, its chief champion, and society president Arthur Tremblay. Flag on tower with fleur de lis in corners will be replaced with the one they hold. Incidentally, the lilies were in England's flag from 1340 to 1801.

TWO BIG AUCTIONS

Auction sales on consecutive days next week are offering a total of 135 head of cattle and a wide range of farm implements. They are unusual in the large number of livestock that will be put up from two farms.

The sale of the late Frank Kelly's Holstein herd and implements, featuring dairy equipment, is Wednesday in the former drill hall at the Exhibition grounds. On the following day Hugh Stewart is selling approximately 90 Shorthorn and Hereford cattle, with hogs and chickens, also implements, which were included in his purchase of the farm of the late T. S. Kerr near Fowler's Corners, on the Peterborough-Lindsay Highway.

GREAT SNOWFLAKE COW COMPLETES ANOTHER RECORD

Snowflake Alcartra Tensen owned by Elmhurst Bros. of Birdsalls, Asphodel township, has just added another to the great string of ROP records that she has compiled in her lifetime. She now has a total of 112,187 lbs. milk containing 3699 lbs. fat in five lactations all on twice-a-day milking. This is the second largest total production of milk for first five lactations on twice-a-day milking ever made in Canada being surpassed only by that of the world champion Pioneer Lodge Aggie Pontiac owned by Alex McKinney Jr., Brampton, with her total of 113,268 lbs. of milk containing 4089 lbs. fat.

Snowflake is still champion for milk for first four lactations on 2x with her total of 94,184 lbs. milk containing 3144 lbs. fat. Her six-year-old 365-day record of 28,272 lbs. milk containing 916 lbs. fat is still the third largest ever made in Canada in its class on twice-a-day milking. Her senior two-year-old twice-a-day milking record of 23,239 lbs. milk containing 814 lbs. fat now stands 6th for milk in its class in Canada. In addition she has a yearly five-year-old record of 25,234 lbs. milk containing 851 lbs. fat and a senior two-year-old record of 17,319 lbs. milk containing 563 lbs. fat. In her latest lactation she gave 18,003 lbs. milk containing 555 lbs. fat as an eight-year-old.

Snowflake Alcartra Tensen has been officially classified by the Holstein-Friesian Association as tration.

AVOIDS PARTISAN POLITICS

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture adhered to its policy of political neutrality at its recent convention in Toronto. It clipped partisan political proposals from a Carleton county resolution, one of whose supporters was H. S. Arkell of Brittania Bay, near Ottawa.

Peterborough farmers probably remember Mr. Arkell. He was one of the first speaker's to this county's Federation of Agriculture shortly after its organization. He appears to be inclined to rural militancy, but experience in that field has taught farm bodies sharp circumspection in approaching any recommendation looking toward "independent representation of agriculture in our houses of Government."

One of the Carleton clauses invited "rural constituencies to put forward candidates who will be mutually agreeable to organized farmers."

The convention plainly wished to avoid any discouraging of aggressive rural action for the benefit of agriculture, and the resolution from the Ottawa border, as amended, renewed authority to the Ontario Federation to urge upon governments and on members of Parliament and of the provincail Legislature, regardless of political party, action on policies forthcoming from the Federation.

W. C. Good of Brantford, one of the elders of Ontario agriculture said he had first hand knowledge of farm movements back to the beginning of this century, and had studied others existing long before that time. His judgment was that the strategy of organized farmers since the Federation of Agriculture came into being was the most effective.

"Farmers are a minority group in the social structure today," he said, "and we must convince governments that what agriculture asks for will be good for all. Our first task is to clarify our own thinking, and convey our findings to the farmers of the province"

The policy of the Federation is to maintain the cohesion of farmers, to bring commodity groups together into the one fold, and to keep divisive party politics out of the Federation's planning and acting. Its practical principle is economic unity with political diversity, and the wisdom of that course is emphasized in executive experience by higher prestige and influence than farmers of this province have probably ever had both at Ottawa and Toronto. Their objective is to be acceptable in both houses no matter what political party is in control of administration.

GREAT HOLSTEIN PRODUCER — Snowflake Alcartra Tensen, a pure-bred Holstein owned by Elmhurst Bros., Birdsalls, Peterborough county, which has a production of 112,187 lbs. milk containing 3,699 lbs. fat that stands second for milk for all time in Canada for first five lactations on twice-a-day milking.

PLANS FARMERS' WEEK

The Quinte District Seed Fair, shifting to Peterborough this year, is developing into a project that has acquired the expansive title "Farmers' Week," Mar. 17-20.

Three groups are lining up behind it, and committees have already laid the foundation for the general framework. The Quinte Seed Fair Association, the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen and the Crop Improvement Association are joining hands in the preparation of a program that will reach out beyond the usual scope of the seed displays and competitions.

One of the latest ideas is to include a bacon show in this general enterprise that is timed for the beginning of the 1948 agricultural season. More definite announcements will be made in the near future as present plans are finally determined.

100 FORUMS IN GREY

In the number of registered farm forums for 1947-8, Grey county leads the province with 100 and 13 active in the previous year not yet heard from. Wellington is second with 74 and only one so far silent.

Bruce is third with 48, Perth is fourth with 43, Dufferin next with 42 and Simcoe is sixth with 38. At the other end the lowest is Cochrane with none, Essex only one, Lennox 2, Frantenac 2, Muskoka 2; Waterloo and Glengarry 3 each; Welland, Algoma and Peel four each.

Peterborough reported five groups, three of them new. Northumberland and Elgin are also at the five level. Durham has 14 and one to hear from.

NORWOOD CATTLE SALES

Golden Andrews was elected president of Norwood Livestock Shipping Association last week, with James Beamish, vice-pres.; Charles McMillan, Sec.; Robert J. Girven, treasurer and shipper; and directors — James McMillan and Ed Keating, Havelock; Roy Parker and George Would, Norwood; M. Clysdale, Fred Toms, Jack Danford, South Dummer.

Total receipts last year were $215,718.65 of which $2,612.19 cash in the bank from 1946 and $213,106.46 revenue from hogs and cattle.

Amount paid to farmers for livestock $209,265.76; shippers' commission and expenses $2,242.95; trucking stock to market $1,954. There were other minor expenses and the balance in the bank at Dec. 31, 1947, was $2,144.06.

SEED DRILL TEST

In the Spring of 1947, a seed drill survey was conducted in Ontario to determine what grade of seed was being sown by the average farmer. Samples were taken directly from the seed drill box and were tested for purity, freedom from weed seeds and germination.

Grade No. 1	33%
Grade No. 2	10
Grade No. 3	14
Rejected	43

No. of samples with no primary or secondary noxious weed seeds, 36%.

Most weed seeds in any sample of grain, 2,660 per lb.

Most weeds seeds in any sample of grass or clover, 3,925 per oz.

43% were rejected as unfit for seeds on the following basis:

47% for couch grass; 14; wild mustard; 9; bladder campion; 10, total weed seed content; 6, wild oats.

2 CHILDREN SHOT, MOTHER WOUNDED

New 'Quake Terrorizes Philippines

City Badly Damaged, 27 Reported Dead, Higher Toll Hinted

MANILA, Jan. 26. — (AP).— Another strong earthquake shook the battered city of Iloilo on the Central Philippines Island of Panay at 9.12 a.m., followed by seconday shocks which lasted four minutes.

The city already had been damaged heavily and 27 deaths were reported in a series of heavy quakes which rocked it over a period of four hours before dawn Sunday, followed by moderate shocks which continued up to noon today.

People rushed into the streets in night dress and huddled in public plazas.

The night was shrill with cries of separated mothers and children as thousands scampered into open spaces.

Flee To Country

Many preferred to camp the remainder of the night rather than return to buildings where they feared shock-damaged walls might collapse.

Previously many of the city's population of 125,000 had fled to the countryside.

Possibility of a higher fatality toll was indicated. Meagre reports from Panay Island, said two families were buried alive by a big landslide at Hanini on the southwestern coast.

Fear mounted in hard-hit Iloilo City with each tremor. The Philippines weather bureau informed residents the tremors were after-shocks and not destructive.

Yawning fissures paralyzed the overland traffic and exposed water mains in Iloilo. In one suburb a deep crevice 27 feet long and 3 feet wide was reported sending geysers of water and black sand as high as nearby coconut palms.

Debris Kills Many.

Falling debris from the major buildings caused most of the casualties. One man died as he knelt in prayer in a church in Alimodian, an Iloilo suburb; and an American and four Filipinos were reported crushed by falling walls on a downtown street.

Of four additional fatalities reported, one was a 12-year-old youth caught asleep in the wings of the partially-demolished Oton Cathedral.

...AND THEY LIVED! — Three people riding in this demolished heap are in hospital today with injuries. The car was struck by a slow-moving train on Saturday about noon. —Examiner Staff Photo

Car Demolished By Train; Three In Hospital

Three persons escaped death by a seeming miracle Saturday noon when the car in which they were driving was struck broadside by a CNR train near the corner of Reid and McDonnel Sts. The three are in hospital suffering serious injuries, but their progress is reported as "favorable." They are Erwin M. Neil, his wife, Florence and his brother, Virgil Neil, all of R.R. 10, Peterborough.

The accident occurred about 12.15 Saturday noon. Neil, returning from the weekly market trip for groceries, was driving north on Reid. The train, from Lindsay, was travelling east and slowly. The impact hurled the Neil car—a 1928 model—11 feet from the point of impact. The train was brought to a stop in less than 100 feet.

The car was a shambles and the occupants were taken by ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital. Dr. J. M. O'Brien treated them.

Mr. Neil sustained a broken collar bone. His wife received a double fracture of the pelvis bone, while Virgil, his brother, has a fractured hip.

Three weeks ago Saturday about the same time, a city coal truck was wrecked at this same crossing, and six weeks ago, two men went to hospital when their car was smashed by a west-bound train at this spot.

Industrial Gas Supply Cut Off Until Wednesday

WINDSOR, Jan. 26—(CP).—Russell M. Perkins, manager of Windsor Gas Company, announced today that industries here will receive no gas before Wednesday morning and then only "if weather conditions are favorable." This latest move, forced upon the company by severe weather, may affect as many as 20,000 or more of the city's 30,000 auto workers. Colder weather is forecast for tonight.

If cold weather is prolonged beyond Wednesday the entire auto industry in this area may be forced to close down. That would add another 15,000 to those already off the job today.

Special Meeting

So grave is the problem here that a special meeting of the plant managements affected has been called to discuss what steps can be taken to relieve the situation.

Ford of Canada, Limited, has had to lay off 7,800 of its hourly-rated employees; 3,000 remain at work. Chrysler Corporation laid off 3,000 last week. Several others have laid off employees in gas-consuming departments numbering from 20 to 300.

Auto Specialties, Limited of Canada, where forgings are made for the auto industry, has enough cores ahead for today, but will have to start laying off employees Tuesday unless gas is made available.

Hopes for improvement are pinned on a marked change in the weather which will provide warmer temperatures and less drain on domestic supplies, officials explain.

Enlistments Pose British Problem

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Reuters). — The question of whether British authorities will decide to take a strict line on the enlistment of British nationals for service on the Arab side in Palestine is becoming increasingly topical through reports of attempts to get personnel here for service in armed forces controlled by the Arab higher committee.

It is clear that the British government, as a matter of policy, will wish to avoid anything calculated to involve Britain in disturbances or civil war in Palestine after termination of the British mandate.

British policy, it is officially stated, is governed in the first place by the Foreign Enlistment Act of 1870, which was framed to cover service of British nationals in the Franco-Prussian war.

This Act clearly lays down that no British subject may, without obtaining previous permission from the government, take commission or engagement in the armed forces of any foreign power at war with a power with which Britain is at peace.

The definition of a foreign power is widely framed to include "any prince, colony, province or part of any province or people, or any person exercising or assuming to exercise the powers of government in or over any foreign country, colony, province or part of province or people."

Russian Envoy Raps Allies Work In Japan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(AP). —Russian Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin is critical of the job the Allies are doing to prevent a rebirth of militarism in defeated Japan.

The new Russian envoy said in an interview that he wants to draw serious attention to the record of the 11-country far eastern commission in promoting democracy in Japan.

"In this regard the situation cannot be considered as satisfactory," he said.

Bradley Heads Army

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(AP). — President Truman today formally nominated Gen. Omar Bradley as United States Army Chief of Staff to succeed Gen. Dwight Eisenhower. He sent the nomination to the Senate which must approve it before Bradley can take the army's top post. Eisenhower, who withdrew last week from a possible presidential race, is to take over the presidency of Columbia University after a rest.

Ontario Indian Captures London

LONDON, Jan. 26.—(CP). — London was almost as interested today in John Capton, 21-year-old Ohsweken, Ont., plowman, as Capton was interested in London during a sight-seeing tour before participating in an empire plowing match next Sunday.

Capton, one of a five-man plowing team from Ontario, is a Cayuga Indian from the Six Nations Reserve near Brantford. Today London newspapers published Capton's picture with captions about "the Red Indian" plowman.

Capton is here with W. L. Clark, Gormley, president of the Ontario Plowmen's Association; Glen McFaddin, Millbank; Russell Hare, Nanticoke; and Alfred Brunton, Tara, to compete Feb. 11 in an international plowing match at Belfast.

Capton said he has wanted to see London ever since he heard about it from a brother in the RCAF.

"I think London is incredible," he said in an interview. "There are so many chimneys."

Indians Halt Moslem Raiders

NEW DELHI, Jan. 26 (AP). — An Indian defence ministry communique said yesterday that persistent efforts of Moslem raiders from Pakistan to enter the Poonch region of Kashmir had been halted.

The communique said the tribesmen, who began their attacks Friday night, withdrew and left 44 dead behind them. Poonch lies south of Uri, key to the entire valley containing Srinigar, Kashmir's capital.

Earlier it was announced that Indian troops were sent to the Pakistan border near Jammu to prevent a repetition of a raid Thursday night.

Micmac Commander Pleads Not Guilty

HALIFAX, Jan. 26 — (CP). — Cmdr. J. C. Littler of Victoria, captain of the destroyer Micmac when it collided with a freighter last July, today pleaded not guilty to five charges including one that he had "hazarded his ship."

A single gun boomed across the parade square at Naval Barracks, signalling the opening of a court martial resulting from the collision which claimed the lives of 11 men aboard the destroyer. Eighteen others were injured.

Previously a transport department special commission had found that Cmdr. Littler was to blame for the collision but was not criminally negligent.

Third Cold Wave Hits US Death Toll Soars To 60

CHICAGO, Jan. 26 — (AP).— Another cold wave was moving into the North Central States today, the third within a week, as the Eastern and Southern United States continued in the grip of a frigid blast that has caused at least 60 deaths.

The Chicago Weather Bureau said the newest cold wave moved into the Dakotas and Minnesota last night and was spreading south-eastward toward the Great Lakes region. At some points in North Dakota, the temperature had skidded to 10 to 15 below zero.

Another storm, developing in the south-west, had brought snow and freezing rain to Texas, and was moving eastward across the Southern States, already chilled by snow and sub-freezing temperatures over the week-end.

Meanwhile, little or no relief was in sight for New England and other Eastern seaboard States where some points were digging out of an accumulation of snow measuring more than 20 inches.

Readings of zero or beliow appeared general in some New England States to-day with freezing weather as far south as Georgia.

The new cold wave moving across the North Central States would moderate and have little to sting the Great Lakes region, the Weather Bureau said. Temperatures in Chicago were expected to remain well above zero.

While the rest of the country shivered yesterday, the public beaches in Miami, Fla., reported their largest turnout of the season with a sunny 75-degree day.

Stray Bullet Wakens Neighbors

Two Youngsters Dead When Police Arrive; Mother Shot In Jaw

WINNIPEG, Jan. 26.—(CP). — Two young children were dead and their mother is in serious condition in hospital here today following an early morning shooting at their suburban West Kildonan home.

In hospital is Mrs. W. S. MacDonald, while dead are her two young daughters, Ellen, seven, and Shirley, 2½ years.

Details of the affair were not divulged by RCMP who are investigating, but it was reported the mother was under police guard in hospital. She had been shot in the lower jaw.

First report came from a neighbor, Wilf Mitchell, who was awakened at 5 a.m. when a bullet went through a wall of his home next door to the MacDonald residence. He immediately phoned police.

Children Dead

Upon arrival at the MacDonald home they were met at the door by Mrs. MacDonald, blood streaming from her jaw wound. Both childen were dead.

Several bullet holes were found in wall and ceiling of the house, it was reported.

The woman's husband, member of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, was absent from home on business at the time, and police could not locate him immediately. He was said to be somewhere in western Canada.

1948 Outlook More Promising

TORONTO, Jan. 26 — (CP). — Almost every Canadian manufacturer has a plan for bringing his own industry into better balance in the drive to overcome Canada's trade deficiency with the United States, Trade Minister Howe said in an address prepared for delivery today to the Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

"Some have arranged with their American associates to manufacture parts for the latter. Others have arranged for new export territory for finished goods in the dollar areas. Others have arranged to borrow machinery for the manufacture in Canada of parts formerly imported . . .

"The outlook ahead of us for 1948 is good. The demand for our principal exports should remain buoyant, in the United States as well as Europe. The food contracts, with the United Kingdom will take up the bulk of our agricultural production, while any surplus will find favorable markets in the United States and continental Europe.

"A short supply of lumber, pulp and paper products, and base metals will continue. For most commodities it seems likely that our exports will be limited only by our ability to produce, rather than by lack of markets.

"New demands upon our Canadian producers will in turn create more employment opportunities and the income that Canadians will have to spend will be well above the 1947 level. The opportunity will be there.

Arab Bus Hits Mine Outside Bethlehem

JERUSALEM, Jan. 26 — (AP). — Officials said three persons were injured today when two mines blasted an Arab bus outside Bethlehem. Jewish sources said 12 Arabs were injured — one fatally — when Jews fired on the bus, which was overturned by the explosions.

In Haifa, British Sixth Airborne troops found "a large quantity of ammunition" in a house in the Arab quarter. Officials said 23 Arabs were arrested.

Outside Jerusalem 300 Arabs battle Jewish convoy guards yesterday until British armored cars broke up the skirmish. At least 10 Jews and two Arabs were reported killed.

Seven Women Trapped In Two Blazes

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 26. (CP)— An inquest will be held today into the fire-deaths of Mrs. Lena Flagler, 70, deaf, and Mrs. M. Ottrey, 92-year-old blind resident, whose bodies were found huddled near a stairway after flames swept through the Belleville Home for the Aged.

A. Gilroy, caretaker, and his wife, who is matron, received praise from firemen for saving the lives of 12 other elderly men and women Saturday night.

Mr and Mrs. Gilroy led or carried the 10 men and two women through blinding smoke and flames to safety.

The two aged residents trapped in the $25,000 flash fire died in circumstances similar to the death of five elderly persons in a fire 24 hours earlier at a church home near Medicine Hat, Alta. Eighteen other persons suffered shock and effects of smoke in that fire.

In Bed At Time

Most of the elderly people were in bed when the fire was first noticed by Mr. Gilroy.

When he opened the basement door, "great flames blew up and there were clouds of smoke," the caretaker said. "I slammed the door shut and called Mrs. Gilroy . . . we tried to get the patients out."

"I couldn't see my way, and had to feel where I was going. When I got to Harry Bell's bed, I heard him say, 'Let me be.' I picked him up and carried him out. I think the furnace must have exploded."

While her husband fought his way through the flames, Mrs. Gilroy and the maid rushed to the women's quarters.

When told that two women were believed trapped, firemen who fought the blaze in 12-below zero weather, braved smoke and intense heat but found the residents' rooms empty. The bodies were found yesterday. One had reached the top of a stairway.

Cripps Assures Great Britain

French Free Market Thrown Open To Tourists To Secure More Dollars; Lowering Of Sterling Threat To Recovery

By TOM WILLIAMS

LONDON, Jan. 26—(AP). — Sir Stafford Cripps declared today Britain does not contemplate devaluing the pound despite French action in cutting the value of the franc. "We do not believe that this will be rendered necessary or advisable," the Chancellor of the Exchequer advised the House of Commons. Earlier government securities had dipped on the stock exchange, reflecting investors' fears that France's action will damage the pound sterling.

France had over-ridden objections of both Britain and the international monetary fund in revaluing her money. The devaluation gave French manufacturers a chance to cut their prices as much as one-half in world markets and consequently threatened British markets abroad.

Consultations are continuing with the French, he disclosed.

"In any action that we are compelled to take," he declared, "we shall, of course, exercise the greatest care not to add to the difficulties of our French friends more than might prove absolutely inevitable."

Must Be Careful

Sir Stafford emphasized that Britain is responsible to the whole of the sterling area for measures to be taken.

"We must, therefore, maintain our freedom to take any action which may be found necessary," he asserted.

The devaluation amounts to about 44 per cent for French exporters. They now will get many more francs for their dollar than they have been getting.

Up to midnight, the franc was officially quoted at 113 to $1.

The new rate is 214 to $1, but exporters will be able to realize even more than that. They will trade half their dollars at the 214-1 rate, and the other half at a newly-created free market, currently around 337 francs to the dollar.

This free market also will be open to tourists. France hopes

Ask Immediate Ban On Petroleum Exports

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(AP). —An immediate ban on all exports of petroleum products from the United States was recommend today by the House of Representatives Inter-State Commerce committee.

The action is necessary, the committee reported to the House, because of too optimistic estimates of supplies, the weather, and "the gravity of the outlook in oil supplies in the event of war emergency."

The committee recommended also that no further foreign petroleum commitments be made pending a review of "the degree of confidence which he justifiably may have in imports and foreign reserves."

Cabbage Ban Lifted; Impose Ceiling

Finance Minister Abbott Sunday night announced that effective Feb. 2 restriction on the importation of cabbage will be suspended temporarily and price ceilings will be re-imposed.

Once a commonplace vegetable, cabbages became a luxury soon after Mr. Abbott announced last November that they were being banned from importation to conserve dollars. Rare and expensive, they were selling in Ottawa last week—if you could find a head—at 15 cents a pound.

Mr. Abbott said the new ceilings will be based on a maximum landed cost of five cents a pound to the wholesaler at all major distribution centres in Canada. The Prices Board will announce full details of mark-up—margin of profit—controls prior to Feb. 2.

Lifting the ban on cabbage is in line with the government's plan of assuring sufficient supplies of such basic vegetables as potatoes, cabbage, onions, and carrots, said Mr. Abbott. He added that supplies of the other basic vegetables are sufficient for current requirements.

Overnight Drop Hits 12 Below

People of Peterborough district are getting used to the minus temperature and think nothing of the weekend lows which were -10 on Sunday morning and -12 today. The "met" man says there is a weak disturbance moving eastward from the Manitoba boundary that will bring snow flurries and higher temperatures with it in Northern Ontario. He promises the rest of the province and that means southern Ontario, will be fair and milder today.

The fog condition which comes from open holes in the Otonabee River fill the valley the last two nights with a cold vapor fog, so dense on the bridges in Peterborough and Lakefield, that driving over them was difficult and dangerous. River fog mixed with the exhaust from vehicles made the situation a little worse.

The fog burned off during the morning and in no way hampered skiing at Kemp's Hill, Bethany and Nassau. Enthusiasts report snow conditions excellent.

SAVED 12 INMATES—Mr. and Mrs. Archie Gilroy, caretaker and matron at the Belleville Home For the Aged, are credited with saving 12 people when the building took fire. Two elderly women were trapped by the flames.

Britain Will Present Jewish Plan This Week

LAKE SUCCES, Jan. 26 (AP). —Informed quarters said to-day that Britain intends to present to the United Nations early this week her plans for giving up rule in Palestine.

Persons close to the commission said the British replies—assuming they are complete — would immediately plunge the UN body into the decision stage of its work.

So far, the commission has been feeling its way along in preliminary discusions without knowing the exact British plans for surrendering the old League of Nations mandate

3 Children Suffocated By Gas Fumes

Parents Come Home Find Baby Sitter, Two Youngsters Dead

PORT COLBORNE, Jan. 26 — (CP)—Grief-stricken parents today completed funeral arrangements for Dorothy June Browne, 12-year-old baby sitter, and her cousins, Carol Anne Eden, eight, and Marion Elaine Eden, 5½ months, who were found dead of carbon monoxide fumes here early Sunday morning.

Fate almost intervened to snatch the three children from the deadly fumes, which police say had seeped from a defective hot water gas heater.

Elgin Devereux, who with his family live in a garage at the rear of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Eden's home, found his water pipes frozen and about 10:45 p.m. Saturday went to the house to ask for water. The house was in darkness, the doors locked and no sound could be heard.

Thought House Empty

Mr. Devereux thought the entire family was away and returned to his garage-home.

Doctors said baby Marion was the first to die, perhaps about 11 p.m.

Dorothy Browne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Browne of Rochester, N.Y., and Humberstone, Ont., arrived here Saturday for a visit and was looking after the children while the parents attended a bowling party.

Returning early Sunday, Mr. Eden found all doors and windows locked. Breaking through the back door, he stumbled over the body of Carol on the bathroom floor. Dorothy was huddled in a doorway between the kitchen and bedroom. Baby Marion was cold and still in her tiny crib.

this action and the benefits to exports will bring her more dollars for purchase of essential goods abroad. The object is to attain French recovery before prices rise too much at home, as they are bound to do.

In London Sir Stafford said the Anglo-French differences on currency devaluation will not endanger western European co-operation, called for last week by Foreign Secretary Bevin.

"This difference of view," he declared, "will not have any effect whatsoever on our sincere and honest desire to co-operate with the government of France to the fullest extent in the economic as well as in the political field.

London newspapers, reporting the pound in jeopardy, said the break in government bonds wiped out millions of pounds in market values. Market sources attributed this break to lack of demand rather than general liquidation. There was a sell-off, however, in the early trading.

Most other sections of the London market were quiet. Industrials were about steady. Base metals and commodities were fully firm.

Imperils Program

Any lowering of the pound's value would mean that Britain would have to put up more pounds for purchases abroad. That would imperil the Labor government's entire recovery program. It sought vainly last week to have France temper her devaluation.

Directors of the Bank of Denmark went into closed session.

In Singapore, a great international trading centre, markets were closed for a Hindu religious holiday. However, financial sources said traders were nervous. Malayan money is based on sterling.

Price cutting in foreign markets was suggested in many circles as a means for Britain to protect the pound and her economic recovery program, with its emphasis on greatly increased exports.

After the cabinet session, Sir Stafford will go before Commons to outline steps which the government intends to take to protect the pound. The pound sterling is the basic monetary unit for Britain and the British Empire, excepting Canada and Newfoundland, as well as for Eire, Iceland, Iraq, Iran, Burma and the Faroe Islands.

No Advance Hint

There was no advance hint from official quarters as to what defence the government intended to put up. There was no valid indication that the pound would be devalued in the near future.

Treasury officials said repeatedly last week, during the tug-of-war over the change in the franc, that no devaluation of the pound was even remotely in prospect, even though the pound was bringing only around $2.50 in the free markets of the United States, Switzerland and Italy. The official rate is $4.03.

In France, only dollars and Portuguese Escudos will be put on the free market at once. Britain, however, fears that the pound and other currency will be squeezed by leaks and black market operations.

French devaluation—from 119 to 214 to the dollar and from 480 to 864 to the pound—will enable French exporters to sell at sharply reduced prices, undercutting international competitors.

May Delay Purchases

In addition, British exporters fear buyers may hold off on purchases to await a possible fall in pound values. There also was the fear that British buyers might have trouble in the market because of refusal of sellers to take a pound which might drop in value.

Seven Women

Mrs. Leach and Mrs. Novak had been rescued from the frame building but they returned when unobserved to get their purses.

Approximately 60 elderly persons had been living in the Baptist home, known as the "Haven of Rest."

Eighteen persons required hospital treatment following the fire, which started in the kitchen from unknown cause. All but four were discharged from hospital yesterday.

The home was opened a year ago under auspices of the Grace Baptist Church. More than 70 veterans' families live in frame dwellings surrounding the Haven property. Loss was estimated at more than $10,000.

Severe Storm Misses Maritimes

By The Canadian Press.

The big storm that lashed the Eastern seaboard of the United States swept out over the Atlantic on Sunday, missing the Maritimes where it had threatened heavy snow with winds of gale force. The Maritime Provinces had only moderate snowfall, but sub-zero temperatures were forecast.

The cold moderated in Quebec and Ontario. Montreal Sunday had a temperature of 5 above zero, at Ottawa it was 10 above, with bright sunshine, although the forecast was for a drop.

The worst of the Ontario cold wave was over with the forecast for to-day promising temperatures no worse than 10 below in the north and about 5 above zero in Western and Southern Ontario. Winds were fairly light.

A moderate disturbance Sunday near the Ontario-Manitoba boundary was moving eastward to bring light snow over Northern Ontario and Quebec to-day.

In contrast to the severe conditions in the Eastern United States, where at least 40 storm dead were counted, California had near-record heat for this time of year, with 73 degrees temperature at San Francisco. Crops in California, however, were threatened by drought extending into its second month.

Thirteen Fatalities Recorded Over The Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Six deaths from fire or gas asphyxiation accounted for almost half the total of 13 week-end fatalities recorded by The Canadian Press today in eastern Canada.

At Belleville, 92-year-old Mrs. M. Ottrey, blind, and 70-year-old Mrs. Lena Flagler, deaf, lost their lives when fire swept through the Belleville home for the aged.

Three youngsters died at Port Colborne when fumes from a gas water heater filled the home while the parents were absent. The victims were 12-year old June Brown, and her cousins Carol Eden, six, and baby Marion Eden, aged five months.

Another infant burned to death was two-year-old Shirley Barlow, whose home at St. Eleanors, PEI, was swept by fire after an oil-burning kitchen range exploded.

Bodies of three persons were found, frozen in the severly cold weather that prevailed throughout the east. The body of John Sikara, 39, of Windsor, was found near the CNR tracks at Stoney Point, Ont., and it was believed he had fallen off a freight train.

Exposure Victims

The body of Edward Cook, apparently a victim of exposure, was found late Sunday near the University of Western Ontario campus at London.

The body of Miss Lillian Mayberry, 58, of Windsor, was found in the ice of the Detroit River near the shore Sunday and officials said there would be no inquest.

Mrs. Sarah Dawson, 70, was found dead in her home at Toronto Sunday and death was believed due to exposure and natural causes. She had apparently fallen and broken her leg Thursday and had been unable to summon help.

At Cobourg, Wilbur Carr, 60, was killed by a train while walking along the Canadian National Railway tracks Sunday.

William Barber, 64, died in hospital at Guelph Saturday from injuries received when he was kicked by a horse on his farm near Mount Forest Friday.

County Council Boosts Vacation Edition

In the interests of attracting tourist trade to Peterborough County and thus stimulating trade within the confines of the county advertising in the Vacation edition of The Peterborough Examiner found favor with the County Council when the matter was brought up for discussion a second time.

During Saturday's afternoon session the finance committee sat and deliberated upon the advertising in the paper in question. Gilbert McIlmoyle seconded by E. J. Leeson moved that the advertising space quoted at $225 should be taken in the Vacation Edition. Speaking on the matter of the importance of stimulating both international as well as interprovincial trade the motion carried. It is reported that the motion found one dissenter in W. E. Griffith, Belmont-Methuen, who maintained that there was not enough accommodation in the County to cater for all the tourist trade. Norman Wilson (Apsley) was staunch in his support of the motion and considered the purchasing of the advertising space sound business as far as future benefits to the county were concerned.

Saturday afternoon's session saw the passing of all the bylaws with reference to borrowing.

M. Johnston moved that the county roads committee with power to add be requested to see the Minister of Highways asking that the department assume the Buckhorn Road as a provincial highway. Also that they assume the Stony Lake Road from Hall's Glen to Carmel Church. These two roads are very heavily travelled by tourists. The motion, seconded by Gilbert McIlmoyle, carried.

Self-Control Imperative Visiting Preacher Says

More than 400 children in addition to the regular adult congregation packed George St. United Church Sunday morning or a special service marking the 112th anniversary of the Sunday School. Capt. Rev. W. W. Burnett, BA, MC, was the guest minister.

Junior, intermediate, and senior choirs—in all more than 125 voices—under the direction of Mr. C. E. Allen, organist and choirmaster, led the singing of specially chosen children's hymns.

Capt. Burnett addressing himself directly to the Sunday school members, complimented the Sunday School on having reached its 112th anniversary. He commented that it must be one of the oldest in Ontario, and he paid special tribute to a devoted teacher, Mrs. Percy Hetherington who had spent more than 50 years in that organization giving spiritual instruction to local children, and was still active there.

He took the text of his sermon from a passage in St. Luke included in the morning lesson: "And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon him . . . And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

Must Always "Grow"

We shall never stop "growing," he said. St. Paul pointed out that men and women should grow to the measure of Christ Jesus. And this, he explained for the benefit of the youthful congregations, did not mean in physical size, but in size of soul.

Three principal signs of growth" that must be present in our lives if we were to attain Jesus' stature, he said, were: One, the boy and girl must be able to see visions and dream dreams. Nothing much can happen to one without these visions and dreams. It was described as the desire to reach out for something good and brave: to reach out and try to grow in the way of Jesus."

Two, the necessity for self-direction or self-control. Before we can live good Christian lives we must have self-control," he said. It was a matter of making choices he contended: the person must be able to say, this I will strive for; this I will shun; this I will try to be.

Three, a definite sign of growth is when the person realizes he must not just think of himself, but think primarily of others. "Jesus Christ said to love thy neighbor as thyself was half of the whole law of God. And many people seem stunted in growth along that line. It is perhaps natural to be selfish. It is not just natural but Christlike to be selfless."

Cited Examples

That the children would better understand him, he illustrated his three points by citing examples from the experiences of a story-book boy who showed that he was "growing" by following these precepts.

Mr. Quirt McKinney, general superintendent Sunday School, thanked Capt. Burnett for his address and then thanked members of the Sunday School Staff for their work, particularly in arranging for the special service. Mr. Joseph Barnard, Jr. superintendent, Mr. Leo Copp, teaching superintendent, together with Mr. McKinney and Dr. I. Jas. Cooper flanked the guest speaker during the service. Mr. Charlton McBride, intermediate superintendent, was in charge of seating the Sunday School children.

Special mention was made of the Jake Burnham Memorial Class (J.B.M.) which had been named after the late Mr. Burnham by ex-servicemen who had been taught by him before the war.

Intermediate and Junior choirs sang the anthem "Loud Swell in Choral Numbers"; Mrs. Jas. Goldie sang a solo number. The choir was accompanied during the singing of hymns by not only the organ, but also the Sunday School orchestra.

COBOURG, Jan. 26—(ENS)—Report on the work of the crippled children's committee, given by chairman Dr. W. Wade, featured the luncheon meeting of Cobourg Rotary Club. Covering the period from July 1 to Dec. 31, almost $2,000 had been expended during the past six months on the work of the committee. One patient, suffering from cerebral meningitis, owes her life to the timely treatment afforded through the crippled children's committee. The U.S. Republican Party And E.R.P.

A meeting held in Washington, D.C., last week by twenty Republican Senators aroused considerable concern among political observers and others convinced of the necessity of getting the Marshall Plan for European recovery into operation as soon as possible and with the granting of the appropriation General Marshall declares is the minimum. On the surface, there seemed reason for concern, for among the Republican Senators who met in Washington were men who had been leaders of the once-powerful isolationist group of the U.S. Republican Party. Senators Wherry of Nebraska, Bricker of Ohio, Brooks of Illinois and Kem of Missouri had all advocated isolation in the past; they, and the other Senators present, were openly determined to rebel against the Republicans' bipartisan policy of support for the Democratic Administration's fofeign policy, including the Marshall Plan.

There was some excuse for the concern this meeting aroused. It was alarmingly easy to see in it a parallel to the events of 1919, when Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts led thirty-eight Republican Senators in a successful campaign against President Wilson's peace plans and prevented United States participation in the League of Nations. If the nineteen men led by Senator Wherry were to conduct a similar campaign against the Marshall Plan, they might be able to attract enough adherents to cause at least considerable delay. And a delay of any appreciable length would have almost the same effect as outright rejection of the plan, for Europe's need is urgent. A long delay would also strengthen the Communists immeasurably.

• • •

However, Senator Wherry has denied that his group has any intention of imitating that led by Senator Lodge. A majority of the group's members are willing to accept the Marshall Plan in principle. They want a few Republican trimmings which would give their party some talking points when the presidential election is held next Autumn.

• • •

As long as the addition or substraction that goes into the making of the trimmings doesn't require too much time, there would appear to be only one serious objection to the program the twenty Senators are determined to carry out. The objection is their insistence on a reduction in the minimum expenditure set by Secretary of State Marshall for cost of the first year of the plan's operation. On this particular point, however, it seems assured they will have the support of more than enough Senators to enforce their decision—a decision which may eventually have far-reaching economic, political and psychological effects in Western Europe.

Canada's Share In E.R.P.

A semi-official American State Department announcement, which was later said to be wrong, set Canada's participation in the European Recovery Program at 3½ billion dollars from the time of its initiation next April to mid-1951. That is a large sum, and is greater than all other nations outside the United States were expected to provide. According to the latest announcements, Canada and Latin America will be asked to contribute this year $617,800,000. That is a more reasonable figure, and in keeping with Canada's financial ability and export potential; it is also comparable with the funds being provided by the United States for the first year of E.R.P.

There has been criticism by some Canadians that Canada has been sitting back and showing little initiative about E.R.P. What should Canada be expected to do? E.R.P. is primarily an American plan. Until it is accepted by the American Congress, it is useless for the Canadian Government to make plans and promises. When the time comes, as it will shortly, Canada will accept her fair share of responsibility and obligations as she has in the past. Her record for that sort of thing is good. One need only look at the huge loans to Britain and Europe which this country has financed.

That is not a record of which we need be ashamed. Nor do critics of the Government who accuse it of indifference about E.R.P. need to think that we open our purses only under prodding from the American State Department.

Quebec's Flag

There is nothing unconstitutional about the province of Quebec having a flag of its own if it so wishes. Nova Scotia has had one for years. A Quebec provincial flag will not supersede the Union Jack, even in that province, in matters which are not merely provincial and parochial. For instance, when Sir Eugene Fiset, the Lieutenant-Governor and therefore the King's representative, is present, the Union Jack will be flown.

There is nothing wrong about Quebec's having a distinctive flag, even if it is the flag of the St. Jean-Baptiste Society, an isolationist, separatist, fervently French-Canadian nationalist organization. But there is something wrong with Premier Duplessis making cheap political capital out of a flag issue. A provincial premier who beats the kind of drum Duplessis beats, and panders to, even stirs up sectional animosities and racial prejudices is no true Canadien or Canadian. Quebec provincial election is in the offing; it seems that Mr. Duplessis is wrapping his soap-box in a Provincial flag and unworthily using it as crowd-rousing bait at a time when the majority of French-Canadians have a sincere desire for national unity.

A compatriot and co-religionist of his, the Abbe Arthur Maheux writes in the introduction to one of his books:

> Among the French-Canadians, the best elements, the vast majority is openly and decidedly in favour of a better understanding with the other racial group (the English-speaking Canadians) of Canada. Of course, from some of us you hear or you read statements that seem rather wild or distressing.

In that latter group we are inclined to put Mr. Duplessis—not for sponsoring a Quebec flag, but for doing so in the manner and at the time he does. We put him in that category not because he is a French-Canadian, but because he is a political opportunist supporting himself like a leech on French-Canadians' latent prejudices.

The title of Abbe Maheux's book from which we have quoted is What Keeps Us Apart? One thing is politicians like Premier Duplessis and his flag.

The Age Of Paper

Historians of the far-distant past speak of a Stone Age, an Iron Age and a Bronze Age; philosophers sometimes reflect upon a period of primal innocence which they call the Golden Age; students of the classics know that the Latin tongue had an age of Gold and one of Silver. We are moving toward what may be called the Age of Plastic. But the present Age?—Can it be called anything but the Age of Paper?

At what period of the world's history has there been an equal consumption of paper to distribute news, and to record millions of seemingly insignificant details? What civilized government is there today which does not keep vast stores of records—many of them in triplicate? How many Canadians today are employed simply as keepers of forms, which may never be consulted?

This characteristic of our time has been finely summed up by Sir Alan Herbert in a verse, thus:

I don't accept Napoleon's norms—
An army marches on its forms.
If petrol vanished in the night
The troops would still contrive to fight.
But if they shut the paper-shop
The war would simply have to stop.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The end of a war is just like the end of any other wild party; nobody wants to wash the dishes.

The perfect listener is a man who can hear a funny story without being reminded of one of his own.

"Of Cabbages and Kings"

By PETER ELIOT

AS the Canadian Government became aware (after Dunkirk in 1940) that the war was going to last considerably longer than anticipated, they decided to register all citizens over 16 years of age. The scheme was accordingly undertaken and questions dealing with ability to drive Ford cars and to milk cows, etc., drew forth much criticism from irate citizens. In due time the canvassers approached the Prime Minister, Mr. MacKenzie King, and asked him among other things, what job he would prefer to fill should the government decide he was of better use elsewhere. Without any hesitation he calmly wrote "Leader of the Opposition."

❖ ❖ ❖

ONE of the most delightful biographies, by one of the most gifted biographers in our generation, The Edwardian Era, has crossed our path. Andre Maurois has cleverly painted the portraits of personages prominent in England in the years before the first war. Of course, Edward VII is the centre of the book, and the author has included a generous supply of anecdotes of that royal gentleman, both before and after he was crowned King. The first story takes place when Edward, as Prince of Wales, accepted the American's invitation to visit their country.

❖ ❖ ❖

"THE Prince took up his quarters at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and made a great impression by insisting on paying his bill. The ball given by the National Academy of Music was the great event of the visit. Under thousands of gas-jets were gathered the most elegant ladies of the 'American nobility', very much concerned, as the New York Evening Post said, to show the prince and his suite that they were specially designed by Providence to ensure him an agreeable evening. The inhabitants of New York were happy in the thought that the whole British Empire could not rally such an assemblage of beauty and dress. At last the distinguished guests arrived, and a procession of couples was formed, 'like the animals going into the ark', and began filing past while Mr. Hamilton Fish presented them by name to His Royal Highness.

❖ ❖ ❖

"FIFTY couples had already passed when suddenly, with terrifying cracks, the upper portions of the two hundred other couples vanished into a yawning abyss. The floor-boards around the princely dais had collapsed, and the procession fell amongst the seats of a theatre underneath the room. The crowd behaved magnificently; not a cry was heard, although several ladies were hurt. Waves of policemen and carpenters submerged all these charming faces. The work lasted for more than an hour. Just when the floor seemed securely nailed again, it was noticed that one of the workmen had been buried beneath it, and the wound had to be unstitched to release him.

❖ ❖ ❖

"THE Prince was often glad to solve problems of conduct by details of dress. Once in Paris, he was just leaving for the theatre with some friends when word came of the death of a distant princely relative. His companions exchanged glances of disappointment; their evening seemed wasted. One of them ventured to ask: 'What shall we do?' The Prince thought for a moment and found the correct solution: 'Put on black studs and go to the play.' When Russian Ambassador, Brenckendorff, happened to be in mourning and asked the Prince whether he might go to the races he was gravely told: 'To Newmarket, yes, because it means a bowler hat; but not to the Derby, because of the tall hat.' He could discuss, in the relationship of grief with clothing, subtle shades invisible to minds less practised than his own."

❖ ❖ ❖

THE Prince's faculty for remembering people and places (and his curiosity) stand out in his catalogue of traits. Maurois continues: "He would scan the arrivals in a drawing-room, saying: 'Who is that? Where have I seen that lady before? What is he doing?'" He always spoke rather huskily, rolling his r's. Stockmar's exertions (stockmar had been his private tutor) had left him with a horror of culture and a curious inability to apply his mind closely to any subject for more than half an hour on end. But he had the professionally good memory of Princes and never forgot a phrase heard or a face seen. Calling on friends in Paris once, without warning, he was stopped at the door by a servant, and asked the man with some annoyance if he did not recognize him. 'No sir,' 'Well, you ought to know me', said the Prince. 'I know you. Last year you were third footman with the Duchess of Manchester.'"

❖ ❖ ❖

R. V. COLMAN, who later managed the immense enterprise of the Dictionary of American Biography, tells a story of his earlier days as a textbook salesman when parts of the West were still in the grip of Calvinism. One of the members of the adoption board had evidently been persuaded by one of Coleman's competitors into voting for a series of primary books which we may call the Springfield Readers, but later had qualms. On the day of the adoption, this man went to the publisher's agent who had done the persuading and with a haggard face, said:

"I have spent the night on my knees", he said, "praying for guidance and after my long vigil I know God will not let me vote for the Springfield Readers."

The agent turned to him with clenched fists.

"You vote for those readers anyway", he shouted, "and then spend tonight on your knees asking God to forgive you."

❖ ❖ ❖

"IT is generally conceded that the suit brought against Arthur Train, Maxwell Perkins and Charles Scribner's Sons some six months after the appearance of Yankee Lawyer: The Autobiography of Ephraim Tutt was one of the oddest in modern publishing history. The charge was fraud. The plaintiff had bought the book supposing it to be the bona fide life-history of a living person and had discovered it to be fiction and therefore 'tosh and piffle.

NOVELISTS and publishers, however, are likely to acquire the mistaken habit of thinking that everyone who can read at all reads and understands fiction. Lately the spreading response to radio skits and comic strips has revealed that there are millions of our fellow Americans who are basically incapable of understanding an imaginary story. Professional readers of fan mail tell of the daily thousands of letters addressed in good faith to Superman and Popeye and Victor Gook. But that this sort of thing could happen in the case of a printed book was a surprise to Perkins and Train when, as Train describes it:

"Every mail brought letters to the publishers from people anxious to have Mr. Tutt's address, in order that they might retain him to defend them on criminal charges.... Then Mr. Tutt made the 'sucker list' and we had many laughs over the seed catalogues and printed circulars soliciting his patronage of mail-order houses, concerts, charity entertainments and war bonds.... One young Woman who was accidentally switched onto Max Perkins's private wire refused for a long time to accept his assurance that there was, in fact, no Ephraim Tutt. 'But there must be a Mr. Tutt!' she almost sobbed, and when finally convinced, burst into tears.'

None of these people, evidently, were fiction readers or even readers about fiction; otherwise they would certainly have heard of Tutt. They simply had the fictional blind spot. But when a practising lawyer of Philadelphia (home of the POST) added his demonstration of ignorance of the most popular legal character in current American fiction by bringing his complaint, it was truly astounding.

Letters To The Editor

APPRECIATES PETERBOROUGH LITTLE THEATRE

Sir: I would like to take this opportunity to offer my sincere thanks and appreciation to the newly formed "Little Theatre Group" of Peterborough for the excellent performance of their three one act plays presented last week.

The entire evening was one of sheer delight and the quality of the direction, the cast, costume and stage effects speaks volumes for the intense interest and hard work that goes into productions such as these. Two performances are really not sufficient, one could go again and again and find added enjoyment at each presentation, but it is readily understood, when the group have to follow their regular pursuits each following day a "hold over" is not practicable.

Therefore, the next production by our gifted "Little Theatre Group" will be eagerly awaited, although I, for one, would prefer a return of the three one act plays previously offered, for classics, in the same manner as the opera, charm the more on better acquaintance.

Yours sincerely,
LILIAN E. CRIDLAND.

A PERTINENT QUESTION

Sir: Is the world in the pangs of a new birth, or experiencing its great climacteric?
SIMPLE SIMON.

"JUST A DREAM"

Sir: I jumped out of bed this morning, got dressed in a hurry and ran outside to see if my dream had come true—but lo and behold it was only a dream. Now just north of my house is a grand piece of city owned property, roughly with a frontage on Water St. of 450 ft., and with about the same depth. (The city refuses to sell this property as I tried to buy 2 lots.) It is on a main highway and has good bus service, plenty of parking room—could be landscaped — and what better scenery than looking out over the beautiful Otonabee river. (We are not snooty up this way, therefore wouldn't mind the yelling and cheering.) But as I say it was only a dream, but why couldn't a dream come true? Here is a piece of city owned property, and as a rink doesn't have to lie in the centre of the city, this may be the ideal place for our Memorial Centre, and maybe room enough for a secondary rink with one ice making equipment available for both rinks. Go ahead, laugh if you like, but can't a fellow dream?

Now getting down to business—is it not about time the public demanded some action on this project? I never miss a hockey game, but one thing I can say is I never see any of our Memorial Committee at any of these games. Let's get some action and get some sport minded people on this committee.

Yours for better sports,
JOHNNY RUSSELLE.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

In that day shall this song be sung in the land of Judan; We have a strong city; salvation will God appoint for walls and bulwarks. Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in. (Isa. 26: 1, 2.)

❖ ❖ ❖

And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God: for true and righteous are his judgments....

And a voice came out of the throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his servants, and ye that fear him, both small and great.

And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. (Rev. 19: 1, 2, 5, 6.)

The Handshake Menace

Shaking hands, they say, originated back in the days when men wore swords — and used them. Hence when a man put out his right, or sword, hand, minus a weapon, it was a sign of trust and friendship.

A pleasant custom, and one which on most occasions causes neither inconvenience nor discomfort. There are, of course, exceptions, as when a hearty chap with bone-crushing strength forgets he is holding a hand, not an oaken pump handle.

Those who have most reason to regret the invention of the hand shake are public personages like kings, prime ministers and top-ranking diplomats who frequently must stand for hours at mass receptions shaking the hands of all and sundry. At the annual Levee of His Excellency the Governor-General at the Parliament Buildings last week, for example, Viscount Alexander of Tunis shook hands with no less than 1,059 persons.

It is part of the duty of a public official to appear as if he enjoys an ordeal of this kind, when in reality—no matter how rugged his constitution — he may be nearly dropping from exhaustion and his hand reduced to a bruised and well-nigh insensible pulp. Some public characters adopt the expedient of switching to the left hand at half-time; others have been known to go about with their right arm in a sling for days following a longer-than-usual line-up.

It is surprising that science, with all its ingenuity, has not stepped in to devise some sort of protection against this crippling menace of the endless handshake. A robot hand, for instance, that would function while the personage stood nearby. Or a jiu-jitsu trick that would leave the skilled handshaker unscathed with his well-wisher bearing the impact of his own too-eager strength.

Perhaps the logical French are the most sensible about it after all. Kissing on both cheeks may appear undignified and over-emotional to stolid Anglo-Saxons. And the kisses may be unsanitary. But at least they leave a man physically intact.—Ottawa Citizen.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

AT TIME OF CORONATION — His Royal Highness the late King George V at the time of his coronation in 1911. The Duke of Windsor described it as "surely one of the most splendid spectacles in British history."

April and May are lovely months in England—but for me in 1911 they were a kind of misplaced hour.

The first two weeks of April I lived in Buckingham Palace. My room was on the third floor, overlooking The Mall.

After the cramped rooms to which I was accustomed, Buckingham Palace seemed enormous and pervaded by a curious, musty odor which still assails me whenever I enter its portals.

I was never happy there.

The tumultuous and friendly congestion of York Cottage disappeared within its stately rooms and endless corridors and passageways.

It was something of a walk merely to reach my mother's room. We used to say that we met each other only by appointment.

Then, as was the custom in the spring, we all moved to Windsor.

I have long supposed this was a period of sadness. My Dartmouth term-mates had sailed off in the cruiser Cornwall, and fragments of their marvellous voyage came back to me in their letters.

Yet for all the remembered disappointment I find today that my diary during that period was actually full of sunny and intimate details:—

"The trees are just coming out and the place looks lovely . . . Rode before breakfast with Major Wigram, Bertie and Harry . . . I helped Mary fly a patent kite . . . Mama told me that Papa had arranged that Lord Revelstoke should carry my coronet at the Coronation. . ."

Windsor is a lovely place, with one of the most beautiful views of all England, looking out over the woods and fields of the Thames Valley.

With Mary I bicycled happily in the grounds; I studied and read under the trees with my tutors; and in sight of those ancient grey walls, quite without realising it, I arrived at the end of my boyhood.

For in June I was caught up in the sequence of splendour leading to my father's Coronation, and shortly afterwards, the lesser occasion of my investiture as Prince of Wales.

Henceforth the demands of my inheritance would press upon me ever more fiercely.

The Garter ceremony was my introduction to the orders of chivalry, and at 16 I took the business in my stride:

June 10, 1911.

". . . Father and Mother went into the Garter Room. I waited in the Rubens Room. My Uncle Arthur (Duke of Connaught) and Cousin Arthur came for me. Between them I walked up the great room, bowing three times! Then Papa put the Garter, Riband, and Star on me, and I went around the table shaking hands with each knight in turn. I kissed both Papa and Mama's hands . . ."

My father's Coronation took place a fortnight later — surely one of the most splendid spectacles in British history, with 50,000 troops in full-dress uniform lining the route.

Buckingham Palace,

June 22, 1911.

"Papa's and Mama's Coronation Day. Papa rated me a midshipman. I breakfasted early and saw Mama and Papa at 9.00 and then dressed in my Garter clothes and robes and left in a state carriage at 10.00 with Mary and the brothers. We arrived at the Abbey at 10.30 and walked up the nave and choir to my seat in front of the peers.

All the relatives and people were most civil, and bowed to me as they passed. Then Mama and Papa came in and the ceremony commenced.

There was the Recognition, the Anointing and the crowning of Papa, and then I put on my coronet with the peers. Then I had to go and do homage to Papa and his throne, and I was very nervous.

Then Mama was crowned . . . We got into our carriage and had a long drive back. My coronet felt very heavy, and we had to bow to the people as we went along . . ."

Kneeling at my father's feet, I swore:

"I, Edward, Prince of Wales, do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship; and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folks. So help me God."

When my father kissed my cheeks his emotion was great, as was mine.

Experts Foresaw Drop In Franc

By The Canadian Press

The stresses which have resulted in devaluation of the French franc have been well-recognized for some time, and financial experts have been outspoken in their advice to European countries to resist inflation and give their currencies real value at home.

The French action was precipitated by rising production costs which set the price of her goods so high that other countries wouldn't buy them.

The international monetary fund, the 46-country organization under which post-war exchange had to date been kept on a relatively even keel, in its last annual report gave warning of what has developed in France, though without naming that country, and at the same time gave the reasons for the exchange rates which it set up. The report said in part:

"The determination of a satisfactory pattern of exchange rates is at any time a difficult problem. The problem is immeasurably difficult after the havoc and disruption of war. The parities of currencies cannot satisfactorily be based on abnormally high prices and production costs in devastated or disrupted economies.

"The fund, in such an abnormal condition, did not thing it advisable to encourage a general revision of exchange rates. To have done so would have gravely dislocated exchange relationships which were already working in practice and enabling trade to be carried on."

Partial Rail Embargo Clamped On East

WINNIPEG, Jan. 26 — (CP). — A partial embargo on all freight movements east from Port Arthur is being enforced by the Canadian National Railways, while the Canadian Pacific Railway is limiting east-bound traffic to 100 cars a day, it was learned here Saturday.

The CNR is moving only essential feed grains to northern Ontario and Quebec mining and lumber camps.

Reason for the restricted movement is reported to be a shortage of motive power, augmented by cold weather which has prevailed in the Hornepayne and White River area east of the Lakehead.

Ports Capture Cage Win Over Marines

Port Perry basketeers took a 43-24 Lakeshore Basketball League decision over Outboard Marines "B" intermediates at the "Y" here Saturday. It was a wide-open fixture with the visitors cashing in better on their opportunities, while Marines were outlucked on their shooting as well as being off. The decision could have been reversed with more accurate sniping.

The Ports led 12-6 midway through the first half as Marines' offensive bogged down, and Port Perry kept driving to hold a 20-14 margin at the half, though play was tight enough. The locals dominated play the first five minutes of the second half but couldn't hit that hoop. The visitors gradually lengthened their lead on fast breaks from their zone defence. Foster and Stone did some nice shooting for them with Solway tough on defence. Seabrook, Gardner and Smith were the pick of Marines. The teams:

Port Perry: Foster 6, Stone 12, Lane 2, Solway 8, Christie 4, Baird 11.

Marines: Butcher, Seabrook 6, Smith 4, Dundas 4, Griffen 1, Green, Burroughs 1, Routley 1, Gardner 7.

Curling News

By Herb Martin

Tonight we begin the annual Leads and Seconds competition. It will run for four nights. Two draws each night, 7.00 o'clock and 9.00 o'clock. Umpire R. F. Downey informs us that he has called play for the "B-C" competition for this district on Tuesday, Feb. 3rd at 9:00 a.m. in the Charlotte St. Curling rink. He also tells us that he expects a record entry. Rinks are coming from Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Lakefield, Dunsford, Lindsay and Peterborough.

We need only nine more rinks for the big local bonspiel for next Saturday, Jan. 31. There is only one stipulation that each rink so entered must be of schedule calibre.

Each rink is assured of three 10-end games. Fee $4.00. The system of counting to be two points for a win, one point for a tie, no points for a loss and count your total score for the three games. This is just a little different than usual. Four prizes to be given. Each of the four leading rinks will receive one of these prizes according to their standing.

Our ladies' tankard rink, playing in Sarnia today left on Sunday afternoon for that city. They expect to be away most of the week. The personnel of the rink is Mrs. V. Selkirk, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. T. Doughty and Mrs. H. Scott.

Trojanettes Play

Canadiens blanked Red Wings 4-0 at Turner Park rink in a neat Trojanettes' girls' hockey game. In the second period, Joan Dunk dented the twine, followed by Margery Wood. Shirley Succee added two more, being aided once by Joan Dunk. Both sides turned in a good effort.

The teams:

Wings: Goal, Edna Nice; defence, Dolly Starr, Shirley Peryer; centre, Linda Jordan; wings, Rita Naylor, Dorothy Dunk; alternates, Rita Guthrie, Elsie Davis.

Colorful Whipper Bill Watson, British Empire heavy champ, headlines the pro mat card at the Brock Arena this Wednesday night. His opponent is the Masked Marvel and, if beaten by the Whip—who pins just about all of them—must unmask. The Mask is young and extra powerful while the champ has experience and speed on his side, so it adds up to a swell display before, no doubt, a full house. The Whipper packs 'em in everywhere he shows from Toronto to Texas. Don McIntyre tackles Nanjo Singh—he's not the chap who goes on these hunger strikes—in the semi-windup, while big Ben Sharpe mixes with Jan Gotch in the prelim.

Local weight-lifters are planning for an annual championship meet to be held early in April. Measurements were taken recently of those competing this year for the body improvement trophy, won last year by Ken Bailey who is out to retain it. There'll also be cups for the heavyweights—won last year by Stan McBride—the lightheavy, with Joe McGuire defending, the middleweight (won by Bob McLeod), and the featherweight, won in '47 by Ken Bailey. Yearly show will be held in April, too, with a lot of interesting events being planned.

Vets Against Legion

Legion are at "home" twice this week in Lindsay, while the Petes hit the road twice. Belleville Vets tackle the Vitarelli crew at 8.30 on Scugog ice tomorrow night, and that'll be a humdinger. On account of Legion, Vets and Kingston are in a knock-'em-down dog-fight for playoff spots now, with the Petes sitting pretty in the front pew. Legion and Saints are tied for second, just a step ahead of Belleville, and a Legion loss tomorrow would hurt plenty. The Vets are plenty potent, especially with speedy Walt Gerow back on the attack, so it's sure to be a hot scrap. Before another big crowd.

And here's the Industrial Hockey League setup for this week, the schedule being issued from week to week: Tonight at Sacred Heart rink—Quakers vs. Colts at seven, and Automotives vs. Millbrook at eight; Wednesday at Sacred Heart—Nashua vs. De Laval at seven; Thursday at Quaker—Automotives vs. Quakers at 6.30, Marines vs. Ventilating Shades at 7.35, and Westclox vs. Packers at 8.40; and on Friday, Westclox vs. Millbrook on the latter's ice at 8.30. Down there last Friday, Quakers took an 8-2 win in the only game played that evening. Some good hockey dished up in this circuit.

Frog Beneath Harrow

Fellow by the name of Kipling once cracked something like this: "The frog beneath the harrow knows exactly where each toothpoint goes—the butterfly upon the road preaches contentment to the toad." And we wonder how many folks who criticize any urgent need of a rink here—some of the City Council and some of the Memorial Committee are included—have gone out of town once in the past three years to see a Peterborough "home" hockey game. All those who do go to these games, if only occasionally, know the urgency. We do not believe a critic should criticize a show unless he has seen it. And we trust there will be a big public turnout at the meeting this Thursday at 7.30 p.m. in the Market Hall to discuss a rink for Peterborough for next winter.

Marines "A" cagers won over the Hellcats in Merritton on Saturday 42 to 27, while Port Perry took a 43-24 Lakeshore Loop win o'er Marines "B" intermediates here that night. Local game was closer than the score sounds, but the homesters found that hoop harder to hit than a jittery spook. The "A" champs avenged themselves nicely on the Hellcats—who ruined their night up here previously—by outstepping 'em handily in Merritton, whole squad turning in a tidy effort. They take on Joe Krol's Toronto Dalton's here next Saturday, while Bowmanville meets the "B" bunch in the prelim.

McIntyre vs Singh, Sharpe vs Gotch Round Out Wednesday's Mat Card

Preparing for the biggest wrestling night of the season" Manager Jim Laidlaw of the Brock Arena received in writing over the week-end confirmation of his feature bout between Whipper Billy Watson and the Masked Marvel. The big grappling battle takes place here on Wednesday night and interest is expected to hit a new high for this season at least. Whipper is back again in top shape after a knee cartilage injury and is fully confident that he will beat and un-mask Mr. Unknown. The latter was extremely lucky not to be pinned by John Katan here last week and the stellar wrestling science of Watson makes the Canadian wrestler the favorite.

Nanjo Singh

In the semi-final Don McIntyre who knows plenty of wrestling also gets a tough assignment when he takes on Nanjo Singh the turbaned Hindu wrestler. Singh is a "hot potato" to handle at all times and gets the fans riled up just with his looks let alone his actions.

To round out this stellar card Jan Gotch meets handsome Ben Sharpe of Hamilton in the third bout.

Rockets Tie Spitfires As Wylie Back

By The Canadian Press

After five weeks absence, Wiggie Wylie has rejoined Galt Rockets and among others in the Junior loop the league-leading Windsor Spitfires are not happy to see him.

Wylie, who until he underwent an appendectomy five weeks ago was the league's top scorer, marked his return with two assists and a goal to lead the fourth-place Rockets in a 70-minute battle to a 4-4 tie against Spitfires in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior tilt at Galt Saturday night.

Oshawa Generals notched their 45th point when Joe Lafrance with four goals led an Oshawa scoring parade as they swamped Ed Wildey's Toronto Young Rangers in a Junior tilt at Oshawa 13-2 for their 22nd win in 28 tries. It was the bottom-place Rangers' 25th loss in 27 starts.

Down Teepees

In a Junior twin-bill at Toronto Marlboros downed St. Catharines Teepees 4-1 to break their sixth-place tie and Stratford Kroehlers came from behind to defeat Toronto St. Michael's Majors 3-2 to remain in fifth place.

Playing Coach Tommy Burlington turned in his fourth hat trick in 12 games to lead the 4th-place Owen Sound Mercurys to a 4-3 win over the third-place Stratford Indians in a Senior fixture at Owen Sound. It was sweet revenge for Owen Sound who had suffered a 10-1 lacing Friday from the Indians.

Joe Primeau's Toronto Marlboros moved to within two points of the top-place Hamilton Tigers with an easy 9-1 decision over the cellar-dwelling Brantford Redmen in a Senior tilt at Brantford. It was their 20th win in 28 starts while Brantford has won two in 29 tries.

Winnipeg Typist Keeps Skating Crown

ALPENA, Mich., Jan. 26 (AP). — Betty Mitchell, 19-year-old Winnipeg stenographer, refused to abdicate as Queen of North America's women speed skaters, spread-eagling the field here on Sunday in the 1948 North American championships by winning five straight races to retain the laurels she won a year ago in Detroit.

Miss Mitchell waltzed away with her second on the maximum total of 150 points, 30 for each of the five races she won.

Nearest to her in the final tally was Leutta Demez of Chicago, who scored 40 points with two seconds.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four football group received a telegram Saturday from J. E. McLean, president of the Ontario Football Union, saying any application by Alouettes to enter ORFU would be given "every consideration."

President Leo Dandurand of the Alouettes has charged that other teams of the Big Four had attempted to "gang up" on the Montrealers.

In Hamilton last night McLean said "if the Montreal Alouettes or any other club desires to enter the Senior ORFU series we will be glad to get together with them."

A slump was seen in Ontario minor athletics by Ontario Baseball Association officials meeting in London yesterday to plan the annual convention there April 16 and 17. Lack of financial aid for all minor sport was one of the big problems facing the athletic leaders to-day, they said.

The Jimmy Murphy Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to the most valuable player in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A series, was presented this week-end to Doug Gillespie of Owen Sound. He was named playing coach of Owen Sound's 1948 league entry.

Youngest contestant was seven-year-old Helen Weider of Collingwood, who placed fourth in the downhill, second class—for those who had never raced before.

Defeated 6-3 at Zurich Friday, Switzerland's Olympic hockey team bounced back at Basle on Sunday to defeat Canada's standard-bearers, the RCAF Flyers 8-5. "We don't feel so well now," commented Coach Frank Boucher of the Flyers afterwards. "A couple of the boys have colds after Friday night when we played in the rain and a couple of the others are feeling the high altitude (6,000 feet above sea level), but we have high hopes when we acclimatize ourselves."

The Flyers, given full credit for victory in the first match, fell to pieces after the first period when the score was deadlocked.

Swiss Ordered To Ban Team From U.S.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan. 26—(AP)—A reliable informant said today that members of the International Olympic Committee have told the Swiss they must ban the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States team from the winter games.

The AHA squad has been recognized by the Swiss organizing as the official United States representative in the games—an action strongly protested by the United States Olympic committee, which has entered its own team.

If the AHA is barred, indications are that the International Ice Hockey Federation may order all its teams out of the competition.

This would be a hard blow to the box office-conscious Swiss since hockey is the big money sport of the games.

The Swiss have put new pressure on the Americans to reach a compromise but apparently to no avail.

"There is no sense in talking compromise," declared J. Lyman Bingham, an official of the United States Olympic delegation. "We can't make new rules now."

The informant who described the action of IOC members said it was his understanding that the upshot of the hockey controversy will be banning of both the AHA and United States Olympic teams from the competition.

The executive committee of the IOC members said it was his understanding that the upshot of the hockey controversy will be banning of the AHA and United States Olympic teams from the competition.

Tough Chicago Black Hawks Tie Toronto Maple Leafs

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For a team that's buried in the cellar of the National Hockey League those revived Chicago Black Hawks have a wicked wallop since Charlie Conacher of Toronto took over the coaching chores at the start of the year. The Hawks didn't beat anybody over the week-end, but after losing by 2-1 at Toronto Saturday night in the closest of struggles they held the Leafs to a 4-4 tie at Chicago last night, and that was enough to knock the Leafs out of their tie for first-place.

Detroit Red Wings, the only team winning two games over the week-end, today are perched alone in top spot, one point ahead of the Leafs. Detroit twice beat the Canadiens, by 5-1 at Montreal Saturday and by 1-0 at Detroit Sunday.

Meantime Boston Bruins drew into a tie with New York Rangers for third place by defeating the Rangers 6-4 at Boston Sunday. Boston and New York are each 12 points below Toronto. Canadiens in fifth place are three points back of Boston and New York, and in turn are nine ahead of the tail-end Hawks.

The Hawks ran the Leafs ragged Saturday night at Toronto and it was burly Walter (Turk) Broda in the Toronto goal who was the hero of the tussle. He had 39 shots to handle, against 26 for young Emile (Cat) Francis in the Chicago goal. The Regina youngster also was brilliant in goal but unlike Broda, he had to contend with Max Bentley.

The former Chicago ace combined with Rookie Sid Smith on both Toronto goals. Bentley slid a pass which Smith converted into a goal halfway through the first period. Bill Gadsby got that one back for Chicago before the period ended, aided by G. Stewart and Bud Poile. After a scoreless second period the teams provided some breathless hockey in the last frame and it was Bentley who paid off this time on a pass from Smith.

Bruising Play

The return match at Chicago was a fast, bruising encounter. Howie Meeker scored the first and Roy Conacher of Chicago evened it up before the first period was over. Max Bentley got Toronto's second, and then Bud Poile and Bill Mosienko gave the Hawks a 3-2 lead. In the final period Meeker's second goal and one by Ted Kennedy had Leafs in a 4-3 lead before six minute had gone, but Mosienko scored again with the tying counter and the weary teams seemed satisfied with the draw.

Meantime Detroit scored an easy victory over the Canadiens Saturday.

At Detroit Sunday night it was a different story, with the Wings doing most of the attacking but meeting a tight defence and finding Durnan at his best. It was not until the 15th minute of the third period that the only goal of the game was scored and Canadiens protested it most vigorously, but without result.

Don Morrison shot from just back of the net and the puck hit Durnan on the ankle and fell between his feet. Apparently he pushed it back over the goal-line as he dropped in a blind effort and Durnan and Glen Harmon both protested that the puck had never entered the net.

Providence Reds Get 2 Victories

By The Canadian Press

Providence Reds were the only team in the American Hockey League to come up with two victories in a week-end that was featured by upsets.

The eastern league - leaders were in top form in turning aside the western pace-setters, Pittsburgh Hornets, 7-2 and New Haven 3-2.

Meanwhile Buffalo was upset by the lowly Springfield Indians 7-1 on Saturday but came back strongly to down St. Louis 6-3 last night.

Cleveland's red - hot Barons were cooled off by Hershey Bears to the tune of 6-1, thus ending a six-game winning streak. Indianapolis Caps split their two games, downing Philadelphia 7-4, but dropping a 6-2 decision to St. Louis.

Games Wanted

BANCROFT, Jan. 26.—(ENS).—Bancroft, the metropolis of North Hastings, has a full-fledged minor hockey association and is anxious to try its luck against either bantam or midget teams from Belleville or Peterborough.

Although it is not affiliated with the OMHA this year, provincial age regulations are being observed and the directors have announced their intentions of entering provincial playdowns next season.

Handling the six teams are three citzens of Bancroft who have been with organized hockey for years. These combined manager-coaches are E. L. Alexander, formerly of Weston and Toronto; Lawrence Davidson from Brockville, and J. W. C. Hutton, an ex-resident of Kirkland Lake. Any Belleville or Peterborough teams can obtain action by writing any of the three above-mentioned citizens of Bancroft.

Marines Take Tilt Over Hellcats

Outboard Marines A Intermediates defeated Hayes Hellcats in Merritton on Saturday by a 42-27 score in a fine exhibition basketball game. The Hellcats had won here previously by a 50-36 count, but Marines set hot pace in this return tussle to take an early lead and were never headed.

The Clark crew played aggressive and effective ball throughout with the scoring well spread around. Ed Nicholls, usually top scorer or close to it, was held to one point this game which would indicate that Marines' ofefnsive is not concentrated in one or two aces. At that, Nicholls payed a fine game, while Chum Gillespie was powerful going both ways. Burns and Joe Stewart also were prominent on the attack.

McNaughton sparked the offence for the Hellcats, all of whom battled hard and made it a real struggle, though they never could quite catch the Outboards in the fast going. The score was 25 to 13 at the half-way mark and the visitors had just about as much margin on play in the lively second half. The Marines clicked a bit better, too, on foul shots. The teams:

Marines — J. Stewart 11, Edger 4, A. Stewart 2, Nicholls 1, Kidd 5, Gillespie 11, Burns 8, Hanbidge.

AGED WOMEN DIE IN BELLEVILLE FIRE—One blind, the other deaf, two inmates of the Belleville Home for the aged, 70 and 92, respectively, perished when a flash fire swept the building Saturday night. Note fireman in second storey window.

Fire Damage Reported High Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Seven elderly women died in fires in homes for the aged in Belleville, and Medicine Hat, Alta., during the week-end as fires in various parts of Canada caused damage estimated at more than $150,000.

Death toll in the Medicine Hat fire rose to five last night when Mrs. Dorat Reiger, 91, of Medicine Hat, died in hospital of shock. Four others died from suffocation in the fire.

The Belleville victims were Mrs. Lena Flagler, 70, and Mrs. Ottrey, 90, overcome as they sought to escape from a $25,000 flash fire. Mrs. Flager, deaf, apparently was leading Mrs. Ottrey.

Victims of the $10,000 fire in the Baptist "Haven of Rest" three miles west of Medicine Hat were Mrs. Isabel Leach and Mrs. Eva Fenske of Regina and Mrs. Mary Novack and Mrs. Margaret Hoffman of Medicine Hat, all between 65 and 75 years old. That blaze left about 40 elderly persons homeless and sent 18 others to hospital to be treated for shock and the effects of inhaling smoke.

Most costly of the week-end blazes was that in the Laing and Sons candy factory in downtown Hamilton. It caused damage estimated at more than $100,000, but took no lives.

Churches Damaged

Two Ontario churches suffered damage estimated at several thousand dollars each. Fire raged through the interior of the newly-built Church of the Nazarene at Owen Sound and another blaze damaged the basement and Sunday school room of All Peoples United church in Hamilton.

Less than 30 hours before the Hamilton candy factory blaze, firemen in that city worked in sub-zero weather to fight a $25,000 fire in a macaroni factory occupying the wartime naval barracks at HMCS Star.

At Ste. Blandine, Que., tiny lumber settlement nine miles south of Rimouski, a church built in 1904 was levelled by a fire in a loss estimated at $100,000.

New Contractor May Take Over Lake Causeway

It was decided that no action be taken on a request for a grant to the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, when the Finance Committee of the Peterborough County Council sat Saturday morning. M. Johnston moved the motion and was seconded by Ross Harrison. The motion carried.

At the same Committee M. Johnston moved that a grant of $50 be made to the Cheese Makers Association. Warden Humphries and Ross Harrison introduced an amendment that the grant be $25. The amendment carried.

With W. Darling in the chair the Roads and Bridges Committee sat and on Warden Humphries motion it was decided that the appropriation for the Suburban Area Commission for 1948 be $14,000.

Two mill rates were set. James Gifford, seconded by G. McIlmoyle, moved that the bridge rate be a half mill. G. McIlmoyle, seconded by J. Mahoney, moved that the suburban and county roads rate be six mills.

Mr. Mann Retires

The Appointments Committee sat again to discuss the appointment of a trustee for the Peterborough Board of Education. At a previous sitting A. B. Mann of Smith had been appointed but Mr. McIntyre the chairman of the committee said that he had since been in communication with Mr. Mann who declined to accept the appointment. W. E. Pakenham moved that Mr. Johnston be appointed to the position. The motion carried.

It was felt that the services of a county assessor was necessary and W. W. Dawson moved, seconded by W. C. Grant, that such appointment be made. A long discussion followed which resulted in an amendment by Warden Humphries seconded by E. J. Leason that the matter should rest until the March session. The amendment carried.

The County Council discussed matters in camera relative to the suggested switch in the contract undertaken by the Thompson Construction Company with respect to the Chemong Causeway. A special committee was appointed comprising Warden J. Humphries, M. Johnston, J. Gifford, and the County Solicitor, who will investigate the financial standing of the Titanic Construction Company, which company has proposed taking over the contracts on the causeway from the Thompson Construction Company. This special committee was authorized to ascertain the stand of the Highways Department and the Ontario Municipal Board in the question of the transfer of contractors.

Appeal To Truman To Save Woman's Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(CP)—James G. Donovan, lawyer, said yesterday he has appealed to President Truman in an effort to save the life of Mrs. Ema Debeljak, 32-year-old American woman condemned to death in Yugoslavia.

The woman, who has a sister, Mrs. Catharine Bobalker, in Toronto, was arrested Dec. 12 after trying for 11 months to get an exit visa to return to the United States.

Donovan said as far as he knew her only crime was her effort to obtain an exit visa. She was tried and sentenced by a people's court.

Hears Chinese Consul Wants Canadian Fliers

TORONTO, Jan. 26 — (CP). — The Toronto Star Saturday carried an interview with Hugh MacKenzie, a former UNRRA official in China, saying that "I hear the Chinese consul in Washington is trying to recruit Canadian flyers at $1,000 a month" to pilot Canadian bombers sold to China.

Mr. MacKenzie, former Liberal member of Parliament for Lambton-Kent, spent two years as an investigator in China. The interview, datelined from his home at Watford in the Sarnia district, said that Canada should not have sent Mosquito bombers to the Chinese government.

Cameras Worth $850 Stolen From Roy Studio

An estimated $850 worth of photographic equipment was stolen from the Roy Photo Studios, 140 Hunter street west, early Sunday morning. Included in the haul were still cameras, movie cameras, slide projectors, exposure meters, tripods, and projection lens.

The break-in was made sometime between 1.30 and 3.55 in the morning. PC Sherman Keliele, on duty in the area, discovered the break-in at 3.55. Acting Detective William Clark was summoned to investigate.

From the appearance and selection of the goods stolen, there is some belief that the burglars were at least somewhat familiar with photographic equipment, as only medium-price cameras were taken.

(Another angle adding to the value of the stolen goods is that most of photographic equipment is banned under the new regulations. The losses are irreplaceable for some time at least.)

Entrance to the building was gained by breaking the window of the rear door, reaching through the broken pane and snapping the lock open.

Footprints leading to the door of entry lead police to believe that the crime may have been committed by two men, probably of small stature.

Provincials Seek Headquarters

If present negotiations are successful, headquarters for the new district office of the Ontario Provincial Police will be located in the residence of the late S. T. Medd, KC, at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets. Officials are at present discussing terms of leasing the two-storey brick building. The new headquarters will also act as central point for the radio system to be installed by the force as a part of the province-wide installation of this type.

Commissioner William Stringer told The Examiner this morning by telephone from Toronto that the move will take place sometime next month, if leasing arrangements are reached. He plans to make an official inspection of the site at that time, he said.

Due to the elevating of Peterborough to a district and radio headquarters, he said that the expansion would mean a "substantial" increase in the number of men at this establishment.

Because of weather conditions and installing these systems at other cities, the Commissioner was unable to state definitely when the radio car hookup would be in operation. "Spring" was the closest date given.

The 200-feet transmitter tower, located on the Chemong Road, will be connected by remote control (direct telephone line connection) to the headquarters in the city, he said. The Peterborough station will have an output of 250 watts. Sixty-watt stations at Lindsay and Cobourg will also be under the city headquarters here, he said.

The additional men required to staff the "full district headquarters" as it was described, will include an inspector at its head, a sergeant and other ranks. It was not possible to state the number of extra men to be attached here, but the Commissioner mentioned that four men would be required to operate the 24-hour radio system alone. There will be some overlapping of this with the duties of the present officers, he said.

Peterborough will be the centre of command for the provincials in four counties—Peterborough, Victoria, Haliburton (district), Durham and Northumberland (united). This area will be given full coverage by the mobile phone-equipped patrol cars and the fixed stations.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

HILLS FOUND SLIPPERY

Motorists found local hills difficult to climb due to icy conditions on Sunday. The surface became more slippery as the day wore on. While no cars were observed being unable to make Benson Ave., or Hunter St. hills, all seemed to experience some trouble in doing so.

SMALL MARKET SATURDAY

Cold weather is presumably responsible for a small market Saturday. Fewer stalls than usual were occupied and shoppers were conspicuous by their absence. The trend of the past several weeks was continued with beef quarters and pork sides being the most popular sellers. Other products moved slowly.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Body and fender damages resulted to two cars in a collision at Hunter and Rogers streets about noon Sunday. The cars were those of Richard J. Doran, 14 Bruce street and Gerald Healey, 174 Hunter street. According to report of PC Vic McConnell, a bus parked near that corner loading passengers obscured the view of one of the drivers.

$300 DAMAGE

An estimated $300 damage was received by the car of Herbert W. Rogers, 520 Hamilton street, and dents were made in the trunk compartment of a taxi driven by Harry S. Johnson, 61 Parkhill Rd. in a collision, at the C.P.R. tracks at Park and Perry streets. The accident occurred over the week-end. PC Vic McConnell investigated.

TWO SMALL ALARMS

Two minor calls came into the Fire Dept. Sunday. At 9.30 a.m. at the residence of Richard Walsh, 638 Armour Rd., a chimney fire was reported. At 11.38 p.m. separated stovepipes were responsible for creating the impression that the roof of 515 King St., residence of Major Chas. Watt was afire. No damage in either case.

LAW DELEGATES

Walter Howell and Ralph Standish have been appointed delegates representing the Peterborough Law Association. Friday January 23 they attended a meeting of the Federation of County Law Associations and on Saturday January 24 the mid-winter meeting of the Canadian Bar Association of Ontario. Both meetings were held in London.

OPTIMISTS WILL SELECT OFFICERS

Tonight's meeting of the Optimist Club will receive the slate of recommended officers for the club presented by the Nominating Committee. Members of the nominating committee are: Frank Hamon, chairman; Shell Huffman, Dr. McCartney, Don McKay, Stewart Gardiner.

A HAPPY FATHER

A telephone call from Cleveland this morning brought news from Frank Laurie that his wife had given birth to twin boys at St. Luke's Hospital, Shaker Boulevard, Cleveland. Mr. and Mrs. Laurie along with Mr. and Mrs. George Christiansen, own Camp Cleveland, a new resort started on Pigeon lake in the spring of 1947. They have a host of friends among the Ennismore, and Smith township people. One baby weighed four pounds, nine ounces and the other four pounds, seven ounces.

Raid Social Club

MONTREAL, Jan. 26 (CP). — Marking a sharp change in city police procedure, Detective Bureau personnel Saturday night arrested 88 persons in a raid on a "social club" on St. Catherine Street West. Normally, the morality squad conducts raids on the suspected gambling houses. Officials said the club, alleged to be a front for a gambling house, had been in existence for many months and never had been raided before.

Contradictory Evidence Highlights Case Otonabee Man Faces Drunk Driving Charge

Evidence was held this morning in the case of James Elmhurst, Keene, charged with drunk driving. Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, reserved judgment until Tuesday morning.

The statements of crown and defence witnesses were directly contradictory to each other concerning the condition of the accused on the day of his arrest, Jan. 12.

PC's C. J. McGillen and Leo Murphy stated that they had followed the car of the accused in their police car, that they had tried by signalling to stop Elmhurst's car, and had finally brought it to a stop by pulling in front of it to block its progress at a stop street.

During that period, the accused drove through one stop sign.

PC Murphy testified that the accused was "in a very drunken condition," and said that he had staggered noticeably.

Joseph Crowley, Peterborough, first defence witness, said that he had seen the arrest. Although within "three or four" yards of the accused, he had noticed no signs of intoxication, he said. There had been staggering, the witness said.

"He appeared normal to me," he added.

Mrs. Gertrude Martin, a cousin of the accused and who had been driving with him at the time, said that Elmhurst was "abs[illegible]y sober." She also said that she had not "noticed" if they had gone through a stop sign — "but I don't think so."

Mrs. Thomas Wynn, 415 Stewart Street, said that the accused had been sober when she arrived at her home and that he had nothing to drink there. It was shortly after leaving that house that the arrest for drunk driving had been laid.

Mrs. Mary Allen, also of 415 Stewart, corroborated the evidence of the preceeding witness.

Charles McIntyre, a real estate salesman, and brother-in-law of the accused, stated that he saw Elmhurst that day about three o'clock (the arrest was made about 4.30), and that "I didn't see anything the matter with him."

In his own evidence, the witness stated "I certainly was not drunk."

V. J. McElderry, KC, was prosecutor, and Emmett Sheehy is defence counsel.

Veterans' Insurance Plan Demands Early Signing

An important announcement affecting the expiration of the period of eligibility to contract for Veterans' Insurance has been announced by the Department of Veterans' Affairs, through the district administrator, "Kn" District, Kingston.

The directive reads it is most important that it be fully understood that applications for Veterans' Insurance must be completed and approved medically at head office, and the initial premium paid by the end of the period of eligibility.

Accordingly, those veterans who were discharged by February 20, 1945, must have their application approved and the initial premium paid by February 20, 1948. Applications from veterans discharged after February, 1945, must conform to the above conditions within three years after discharge.

It is not possible to state exactly the time required at head office to approve applications, the directive reports. A period of five days after application is received by the Chief Treasury Officer, Insurance Division, should be considered as the absolute minimum. Occasionally, however, the service files with the required medical information are temporarily unavailable and approval is correspondingly delayed. Furthermore, an immediate medical decision is not always possible on the information available and further information may be required.

All applications received from applicants who have less than a month of the period of eligibility remaining should be flagged as urgent and forwarded to head office by air mail if time will thus be saved.

Requests from this office for medical examination of such applicants or other information should be given high priority.

NEW SECRETARY

Miss Doris Ackford will be posted as secretary to the subdistrict administrator, Peterborough DVA, on the occasion of Miss Hazel Harte-Maxwell leaving. Miss Harte-Maxwell is to be married to Bruce L. Campbell Saturday, January 31.

8 Top Jumpers Practise Here

Another week-end of skiing was enjoyed by local enthusiasts at Bethany and Kemp's hills. Practice jumpers from the University of Toronto Ski Club, and the Toronto Ski Club were on hand at Nassau together with some of the local Ski Club members—all training for the February meet.

On Saturday about 50 were counted at Bethany. The hill was described as very fast. Carl Duffus was putting some local skiers through their paces for the Slalom competition. About 150 turned up on Sunday when conditions were even better due to a small sprinkling of powdered snow which had fallen over the packed surface.

Conditions were described as good at Kemp's slope on Saturday considering the amount of snow there. The surface was very fast. Similar to Bethany the light snowfall overnight gave Sunday skiers an edge over those of the previous day. Some 200 took advantage of this improvement to try their skill on the slopes.

Tows were working at both locations, and according to reports there were no injuries.

Two keen competitors in the coming jump contest were at Nassau Sunday — Harale Bakke, University of Toronto, Ajax, and Arne Bjerkseth, Norwegian Air Force. Harale is the 1946-47 Ontario Jumping Chap and he expects main competition from the Norwegian air force. Others present included: Odd Michaelsel, Ajax, Lorne McIntyre, Murray Green, and Hugh Popham, University of Toronto. John Robining directorate of the Toronto Ski son and Alf Brenner on the race Club, and John McCamus, Toronto Ski Club.

Best jump of the day was made by Champion Bakke who sailed through the air for a distance of 110 feet.

Queen's Swimmers Win Local Meet

Queen's University swimmers won a dual swimming meet at the local YMCA on Saturday, 34 points to 24. Of a dozen events, the visitors finished first in all but one, with the Peterborough performers invariably second and usually also taking down third place.

In the 120-yard relay, the YMCA team was first, Buck, Stacey and Payne doing the distance in 1.11 3/5. Downer of Queen's won the 100 free style in 1.2 3/1 head of Forbes and Campbell of Peterborough. Douglas of Kingston led the 100 backstroke in 1.15 2/5 ahead of Buck and McClennan of the "Y". The 200 free style was taken by Riemer of Queen's, as Stacey and Wright of YMCA finished in that order in the 2.31 3/5 event.

Douglas, who set a tank record in the 100 backstroke, won the 40 free style in 21.03 3/5 as Buck was next and then Williams of Queen's. Lech of Queen's captured the 40 breast stroke in .27, ahead of Stacey and McKenzie. The 160 free style relay went to Williams, Douglas, Downer and Baker of Queen's in 1.25 4/5.

Blind Officer Dies

CALGARY, Jan. 26 — (CP). — Known throughout Canada for his efforts to alleviate the suffering of the blind, Roy Park Thompson, 58, died here yesterday following an illness. He was an executive officer for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind for 17 years.

Civic Auxiliary Help DP's Attend Mass

A pleasant first get-together for Peterborough's DP's was arranged Sunday morning by the Ladies' Auxiliary at the Civic Hospital. Six of the DP's are employed at the Civic and six at St. Joseph's Hospital, and through the Ladies' Auxiliary, it was arranged that the DP's at the Civic should attend mass at St. Joseph's Hospital chapel.

This first reunion of the DP's who arrived in Peterborough last week gave them the opportunity to exchange their views and opinions on the conditions they find in this, the land of their adoption. All are very happy and settling down very quickly to their new surroundings. It is reported from the National Service office that the employers of these DP's are loud in their praises in the manner in which the DP's have adopted themselves to their strange surroundings.

It would appear, from the reports given, that these women are happy in the fateful turn of events in their cheguered lives that has permitted them to come to a country where freedom of thought, freedom of religion and expression is an all important part of the constitution of the land in which they find themselves.

The six DP's at the Civic Hospital are Iwana Hren, Anna Hren, and Emma Hrden (three sisters), Ivana Merhara, Franscka Zidar and Josefa Pugely. Those at St. Joseph's Hospital are, Julia Marko, Joanna Nowak and her sister Anastazja, Marija Petelin, Ivanada Zideneck, and Anna Medved. There are two DP's at the YWCA, Mrs. Alexandra Popesu and her daughter Helena.

May H. Morrow Teacher Dies

Miss May H. Morrow, 524 Gilmour St., died today at her home after a lingering illness. She was the daughter of the late Thomas and Jane Morrow. From 1894 to June, 1931, she was a member of the teaching staff of Peterborough Public Schools, spending the greater part of that time at Queen Alexandra School in the north end.

She is survived by two sisters, Misses Evelyn M. and Lillian F., both of this city. Miss Morrow was a lifelong member of George Street United Church. Funeral service will be held from her residence on Wednesday at 2 p.m. Rev. Dr. James Semple will officate and burial will take place at Little Lake Cemetery.

Mrs. Elsie Flint Struck By Car

Mrs. Elsie Flint, 47 Park Street south, received a broken leg bone and broken wrist when she was allegedly struck by a car in front of her home Saturday afternoon. The car, which was travelling south, was that of Vernon Dancey, 255 Princess Street. It is said to have struck her with its fender and headlight when Mrs. Flint stepped from the rear of a northbound bus parked on the east side of the street. Mrs. Flint had been helping a child board the bus and was crossing back to her house when the accident occurred. She was treated at her home by Dr. Herb Young. Constables McGillen and Beatty investigated.

Not Rushing Bus Franchise Extension

Mayor Claims There Is Ample Discussion Time

Ample time will be provided for discussion of the proposed new agreement between the Council and Peterborough Bus Lines before any action is taken, Mayor Ovens stated to the Examiner to-day.

"What the Council is now doing," His Worship said, "is asking the Ontario Legislature for authority to extend the Bus Company's franchise five years. The Legislature is opening its sessions March 3, but private bills have to be advertised six weeks in advance of that time. During the last few weeks the Council has been discussing and deciding upon the terms of Peterborough's private bill."

The several clauses were dealt with in Finance Committee, and have been explained in the Examiner's reports. One of them embodies the proposed annexation of a block of North Monaghan Township. The area and its boundaries have been outlined as accurately as press exposition could accomplish without benefit of a map of that area. It was also mentioned that some residents of that part of the township are opposing annexation.

Another part of the private bill refers to the City Trust Commission. The proposal to ask for dissolution of the Trust has been deleted from the bill, but the clause requesting the management of municipal properties, which have been in the control of the Trust, be restored to the Council, remains in the bill.

Before the drafting of the bill was completed, the council was informed of the bus company's project including the purchase of the Edwards Motor Sales building Hunter St. east, and the enlargement of the King St. barns. Five new buses have been ordered for the improvement of the Peterborough service, and the present 20-minute schedule, which was all the company promised to provide in their agreement of five years ago, is to be speeded up to ten minutes. Actually, the ten minute service has been in effect most of the day and night as a voluntary acceleration by the company in its own initiative.

To Spend $150,000.

Capital outlay on new plant is estimated to cost $150,000, as reported to the council from Mr. Frank Mitchell, head of the bus company. To strengthen its financial position, particularly in obtaining capital for the new expenditure, the company is asking the city to extend the present franchise five years to 1958.

Incidentally the company undertakes to continue the ticket fares at four for twenty-five cents, with students and children's fares unchanged, but "drop" fares are to be increased from eight to ten cents. Those are the features of the bus program as outlined by Mr. Mitchell.

If there has been any appearance of haste in the council's recent course, it has been only for the purpose of inserting a franchise clause in the city's private bill.

"That authority is one thing," Mayor Ovens said, "and the new agreement with the bus company is another. If we did not get the Legislature's permission we would have to wait until the next sessions in 1949. As the private bills committee of the Legislature does not meet until March, it will be obvious to citizens that the council has all of February to deal with the agreement on which the proposed extension of the franchise will be based."

Mayor Ovens said he had received a number of telephone calls from citizens who were interested in the bus service, and others spoke to him personally.

"I'd like to make it clear at this stage that the council is not rushing anything. And I would like to repeat that there is plenty of time for citizens to make to the council any representations they wish to put forward. I think every member of the council would like to see the best service we can get, but in fairness to the company it should be remembered that they were not bound by any agreement to give us anything more than a 20-minute service. The ten-minute service they did give was their own undertaking.

The company is now planning with additional buses to maintain the 10-minutes service through rush hours. They have in prospect an additional line down Monaghan Road south.

Mayor Ovens said those were details which would come before the council's attention when the proposed agreement was being dealt with.

REV. J. P. FINN

Father J. T. Finn Dies At 50; Was Ill A Year

Rev. John T. Finn, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, died at St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday at 8.30 a.m. in his fiftieth year. A developing heart condition caused him to retire from his active duties about a year ago. Hope of his recovery continued until December when a physical reverse occurred, and was the turning point of his illness.

Rev. Father Finn was born here in June, 1898, received his education at the Sacred Heart School, Peterborough Collegiate Institute, St. Michael's College, and took his philosophy and theology course at St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto. He was ordained to the priesthood Feb. 11, 1923, by the late Bishop M. J. O'Brien, who was later Archbishop of Kingston. The sacrament of Holy Orders was also conferred that day on Rev. P. P. Butler who has been acting rector at the Cathedral in the absence of Father Finn during the year of his illness. Two weeks hence he would have celebrated his silver jubilee in the priesthood.

Served At Parry Sound

Of those 25 years, Rev. Father Finn had spent 19 of them in the service of St. Peter's parish. He was assistant priest at the Cathedral from 1923 to 1936 when he was transferred to Parry Sound as parish priest. In 1941 he was recalled to the Cathedral by the late Bishop Denis O'Connor, and assumed the responsibilities of the episcopal parish in immediate succession to Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Rev. John Finn was a humble, pious devoted priest who endeared himself to the people of the Cathedral parish, and won warm friends wherever he went. He was an amiable, unassuming personality with a fine sense of humor that made him a pleasant companion. As a young student at the Collegiate Institute, signs of a vocation became evident in his character, and were encouraged by the late Bishop M. J. O'Brien. In their separate times of youth they had grown up in the south end of the city, and their families were bound together by an old friendship.

In the smaller parish of Parry Sound with its mission posts, Father Finn quickly won the affection of the people of that community. He was innately kind and patient, faithful to his trust, a good citizen and exemplary priest whose untimely death will be deeply regretted by all his friends. He is survived by his father, Mr. James Finn, and his brother, Mr. M. Edward Finn, both of this city.

The body was removed from the Anglesey funeral home Sunday night to St. Peter's rectory where it will remain until Tuesday at 3 p.m., when it will be borne to the Cathedral. Office of the dead will be offered by the clergy of the diocese beginning at 8 p.m., and men of the parish will keep vigil in prayer during the night.

Pontifical high mass of requiem will be chanted by Bishop Berry Wednesday at 10 a.m., and will be followed by the funeral to St. Peter's Cemetery.

Midnight Greenhouse Fire In Sub-zero Weather Brought Under Control Fast

Fire, believed to have started near the greenhouse furnace, ate through the double boarding between the first and second floors and finally through the roof of the Peterborough Floral Co., 432-38 Water St., Sunday midnight. Acting Fire Chief George Smith said late Monday morning that total estimated damage is in the neighborhood of $2,500—$800 to contents through water damage and injury to plants exposed to the sub-zero temperature; the remainder to the building as a direct result of fire.

Stewart J. Williamson, son of the proprietor of the Peterborough Floral Co., had stoked the furnace that keeps the greenhouse warm and inspected the building to see that all was well before retiring for the night. Not more than a quarter of an hour after he had left the premises, the red glow and sight of leaping flames were sighted by Acting-Constable Don McKay as he glanced up Water Street after inspecting the Bank of Montreal building, Simcoe and Water Streets. He immediately turned in the alarm.

When firemen arrived flames were pouring from the rear portion of the second floor, almost directly back from the store entrance. Two lines of hose were used attacking the blaze from opposite directions and pinching it off from spreading to other parts of the building.

The fire was soon under control but more difficulty was experienced in actually extinguishing it. Between the lower and upper rooms of the greenhouse is a double board floor which allowed flames to creep along and spring up in unexpected places. The flooring had to be drenched to ensure that all flames were out.

Considering the head start the fire had and the dense column of smoke and steam that issued from the burning section of the structure, it is believed that the outbreak was stifled in unusually quick time.

Furnace pipes pass through the double flooring and if they had become too hot or if one were defective it could account for the midnight blaze. The section most heavily damaged, directly above the furnace, contained mainly snapdragon and stocks.

Sub-zero air and icy cold water that both drenched the warm greenhouse caused much damage to stock on hand—the full extent of which is not yet known. A helping hand by firemen afterwards helped to keep water from flooding into the furnace, and thus eliminated the possibility of greater loss through plants freezing.

The blaze attracted a number of people—some from their beds—particularly during the more spectacular stages. At one time the glow could be seen in the sky and was reflected in a hundred directions as each pane of glass caught the image of red flames from within.

Residents Spot Flying Saucer? On Sunday Night

Hugh Stewart of Hilltop Farm telephoned the Examiner Sunday night for help in identifying a bright light in the western sky around 7 o'clock whose strange movement and position was beyond his experience.

"We didn't hear any hum that you would expect from a plane," he said. "It was over in the west, moved slowly to the south, then back to the north in something like a circle. It anchored in that part of the sky for nearly an hour. It had a strong light, and seemed to be giving off sparks, like electricity. At one time it appeared to be surrounded by a mist. Some on suggested it might be a flying saucer. We had a good look at it from our hill (Weller St. west), but I still haven't the least idea what it was."

Several other citizens reported the phenomenon, and evidence indicates there was some visitant in the winter sky beyond the ken of mere lay astronomers.

June Robinson Weds At Parents' Home

An arch of pink and white streamers centred with a white wedding bell in the home of her parents at Bridgenorth was the setting for the wedding of Harriet June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Robinson, to William Alexander Kerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kerr of Lanford, Alberta. Rev. E. W. Rowland performed the ceremony and Mrs. C. J. Telford played the wedding march.

The bride was wearing a gown of white silk jersey and a full-length veil of embroidered net caught to a halo of orange blossoms, and carried a shower cascade of red roses. She was given in marriage by her father. Miss Bernice Butler of Woodville was bridesmaid, frocked in orchid sheer with matching veil, caught with orange blossoms, and lace mittens. Her flowers were pink and red roses fashioned in a nosegay. Mr. Donald Robinson, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Kerr left for Kingston where they will make their home for a time, the bride travelling in a navy wool dress with tweed topcoat and black accessories.

Main Meals Minus Meat When Proteins Demanded

By MARY MOORE

Since the temperature at time of writing this piece is eight below zero, I am dubious about suggesting anything as esthetic as a vegetable plate.

This kind of weather demands protein food aplenty and this meal is arranged around a hearty cheese dish.

Processed cheese is a much pleasanter flavor and handles more easily than grated old Canadian cheese in most "made dishes. It is a temptation to use up hard ends of old cheese this way, but it is much better to grate them and keep in a covered jar for sprinkling on soup or baked dishes or over Italian spaghetti or maraconi dishes.

I have chosen cheese fondu for our cooking lesson this week, because it is such a good texture and flavor, because it is economical and most kitchens will have all the ingredients on hand most of the time, and because it lends itself to various changes.

Cheese Fondu

One and one-half cups warm milk, 2 cups soft breadcrumbs, 3 eggs, ½ pound shredded processed cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 1 tablespoon melted fat or cooking oil. Pour the warm milk over the breadcrumbs. Beat the eggs and add them, and the cheese, salt, pepper, paprika and fat. Mix well. Have ready either six individual moulds greased, or 1 large mould. Pour fondu mixture in and stand dish or dishes in large pan containing a little hot water. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes, for small moulds; 35 minutes for 1 large mould.

NOTE: An attractive vegetable plate with fondu consists of a green vegetable such as spinach, broccoli, green beans or sprouts; and a red vegetable such as tomato croquettes or diced or rosebud beets; and one white vegetable such as mashed of Duchess baked potatoes, or creamed white turnips

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have been buying raisins at 16 cents per lb. for weeks and my children like them like they come from the store—all I have to do is wash them. But I would like to use them in the cooking as a fruit. Would you give me any suggestions.

Betsy Ross

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Occasionally I steam raisins to "plump" them and if they are chilled we like them "stewed".

Emem's Stewed Raisins

To 1 lb. washed raisins add 3 cups warm water and let stand to soak overnight. In the morning heat them slowly and add grated rind of 1 lemon, and simmer about 5 minutes. Remove from heat add about 2 tablespoons sugar and chill before serving.

These are nice if added to cream of wheat while the cream of wheat is very hot and just before serving for breakfast.

The stewed raisins may be made a little less rich in flavor and served as dessert by adding about 2 tablespoon raw cream of wheat to them while they are simmering. They must be stirred until the cream of wheat thickens. Chill.

To make 1 bunch of rhubarb stretch for 5 people I made

Rhubarb Betty With Raisins

Mix 2 cups soft breadcrumbs with 4 tablespoon s melted butted, 2 tablespoons brown sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Put half this mixture in unbuttered baking dish, and cover with half of 3 cups chopped rhubarb mixed with ¼ cup raisins and ½ cup sugar. Sprinkle with ½ the remaining crumbs, add another layer of fruit, cover with remaining crumbs, sprinkle top with nutmeg and bake 40 minutes at 325 deg. Fahr. Serve with pouring cream or top milk.

TO "REVIVE" BREAD

Stale bread can be "revived" by putting it in a dampened paper bag and heating in the oven at 350 degrees for about 10 minutes.

Wed Here 50 Years Ago Mitchell Couple Celebrate

The 50th anniversary of a wedding solemnized in Peterborough was observed in London, Ont., earlier this month. The couple marking the half-century of married life were Mr. and Mrs. James Hill, Mitchell, formerly of Peterborough, and back in 1898 the marriage took place at the home of the bride's father, Samuel Rehill.

Mrs. Hill, the former Letitia Jane Rehill, is a daughter of the late Samuel Rehill of Peterborough. Mr. Hill began work in 1888 with the Central Bridge Company of this city, transferring later to bridge construction work in Hamilton, until his retirement two years ago. An active participant in muncipal administration, he has served as councillor, mayor and reeve of Mitchell and warden of Perth county. While chairman of the utilities commission of Mitchell he introduced electricity to the town.

The elderly couple have three daughters, Mrs. A. W. Blowes (Amy), Mitchell; Mrs. Norman Bradford (Rea), and Mrs. W. C. Burns (Alberta), both of London.

Relatives in Peterborough are two nieces, Mrs. R. L. Crerar and Miss E. L. Rehill, and a nephew, Harold Rehill. Other nieces are Mrs. H. T. Johnson, Brockville, and Mrs. N. V. Greenlie, Chicago.

LEAP YEAR PROPOSALS
Happier Marriages Likely If Women Take Lead In Courting

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: On the question of whether a woman should propose to the man she loves and wants to marry, I say yes. Women are now in business ventures, on an equal footing with men in everything, except the right to select their mates. This makes it ridiculous that the modern girl should still be bound by the old - fashioned idea that she has to be coy and shy and wait for the man to come along and discover that he is in love with her and wants to marry her.

DOROTHY DIX

I am a man and I know what I am talking about. This idea that men should do all of the courting and that it is unfeminine for a woman to even let a man know that she admires him causes a lot of heartbreak. So I say let the girls have the same right to propose as the men. There wouldn't be so many old maids and old bachelors if women were free to pop the question.

COMMONSENSE.

ANSWER: I fully agree with you, Mr. Man. For it is certainly a senseless custom that gives women the right to do everything else under the sun, except the thing they want to do most, and that is to have the privilege of selecting the husband they want and with whom they expect to spend the balance of their lives.

Girls Self-Supporting

Of course, in the old days when women had no way of earning money, it was manners for a woman to wait until she was asked before she wished her support on a man, but now when practically every girl has a trade by which she can not only support herself but a husband, if she happens to get a Weary Willie, there is no reason why she shouldn't take the initiative in love-making and get her pick, instead of having to take what she can get.

Personally, I am strong in the belief that if women were free to do the proposing there would not only be more marriages, but happier ones. For husbands are a matter of taste, and the woman who gets her heart's desire in one spends her life in catering to him and trying to please him and thanking God for her luck.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: We are a group of teen-agers who would greatly appreciate it if you could answer these questions for us: (1) What is the first thing a boy notices in a girl when they meet? (2) Do boys like loud or quiet girls? (3) Why do boys grumble about wearing ties? (4) Is it better for girls to double date? (5) We girls have trouble about our boy friends bringing other boys along on our dates. How can we stop this? (6) Do boys like to see girls in sport clothes or dressed-up?

TEEN-AGERS

ANSWER— (1) The first thing a boy notices in a girl is whether she is a good-looker or not, but that doesn't mean that she has to be a beauty. What first attracts a boy to a girl is her looking jolly and friendly and easy to get acquainted with. (2) As a rule shy boys like loud girls who cover up their bashfulness for them, while the wolves prefer quiet girls who let them do all the talking.

(3) The boys who grumble about wearing ties are the Sloppy Joes who think they don't have to make themselves attractive to girls. (4) If you want to have fun, double date. Four people make a party. But if you are really serious, it is a good policy to segregate one lad from the crowd.

(5) The more popular a girl is, the more she attracts other men, so it is a mistake to try to stop your boy friend from bringing along his buddy. Don't cut down on the visible supply of boys. You may need them, for as long as a lad brings along other lads when he comes a-calling he has no serious intentions.

(6) Whether a boy likes to see girls in sport clothes or dressed up depends upon how old he is and how sophisticated. If he is still in the hobbledehoy stage, he likes them in sloppy clothes that are none too clean, because his taste is undeveloped and he feels more comfortable with them. But if he is old enough to know what's what, he likes to be seen out with a girl who is all dolled up and looking her best.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a woman with two small children and am expecting another. I do all of my housework and, in addition, am in very poor health. I have a friend who knows all of this, yet she makes a regular habit of bringing her baby and dumping him on me to take care of. How should I go about telling this friend that I cannot keep her baby?

A TIRED AND SICK MOTHER

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER—Your case calls for no diplomacy. What you need is a little backbone. Tell this alleged "friend," who is nothing but a deadbeat, that you are not running a day nursery, and that you positively refuse to take care of her baby, while she goes gadding. (Released by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Pressing Cloth and Iron Big Help in Looking Smart

By MARILYN LAMBORN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—(CP). — At least four of Canada's 10 best-dressed women say the secret of looking smart is acquaintance with a pressing cloth and iron.

All four— Toronto's contribution to the charmed circle of 10 named by women's editors of daily newspapers—disclaim any title of a fashion leader, insisting that they have few clothes, but specialize in dark shades which can be pressed up and varied with accessories and touches of crisp white. Good-grooming, rather than expensive wardrobes, is their guide.

Mrs. George Drew, wife of Ontario's premier, says all her clothes "must pay their way." Mrs. Drew always buys on a budget, never with an unlimited fling."

Her advice to fashion aspirants is purchase of good basic economy dresses in black or navy to be worn with bright accessories, "the punctuation of style." Never buy on the spur of the moment or for a special occasion, she warns.

Miss Byrne Hope Sanders, former director of the Consumers' Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and now editor of a Canadian woman's magazine, has probably done more travelling through Canada than any other woman and always carries her little travelling iron along with her. She prefers washable blouses which can be flicked out of suds a "spanking" white and ironed to perfection.

"An immaculate white catches the eye and looks wonderful with dark colors," Miss Sanders said. "It's your selection and the care you give it rather than what you pay that makes the difference in good grooming."

Claire Wallace, woman's commentator, stated that "nobody spends less money on clothes than I" mainly because she is too busy to drop into stores more than every three months. She approves of the longer look on most women, but doesn't worry about it too much herself.

Miss Wallace's favorite wardrobe item is a simple slim-skirted grey suit, topped by a hip-length jacket. Cleaning and pressing "make clothes last for years and maintains that smart look."

National President of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, Mrs. Ryland New of Oakville, likes exotic clothes on others, but sticks to conservative lines herself. Cleanliness and neatness are her only "tricks" of being well-dressed.

A PRETTY PRACTICAL FASHION—It's pretty practical, this idea of seeing to it that dainty costume jewellery assumes a role that is functional as well as decorative. Here is a very pretty pearl circlet set used as buttons to set off the none-too-pleasing surplice closing of a simple black dress. With pearly bangles and tiny pearl circlets in the ears, there's lots of charm in the set.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, January 27

Exceptional opportunities for expansive deals, especially propositions or projects based on innvations, fresh slants or novel techniques, are sure to "go over with a bang" moving readily to long-range culminations, with ever-increasing scope and enhanced dividends. A spurt of high initiative, a strange or ingenious idea may turn the trick. But work for enhanced prestige, future security and solid returns rather than a spectacular flash-in-the pan. Mistaken judgment might interfere, but the personal element is strong.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a most exciting and brilliant coup, with an exceptional opening for putting over bright ideas, with ingenuity and startling technique, which may attract attention from public or influential sources. It would be well to start on a basis of stability and security for the future rather than to aim at sensational goals of passing significance. This is incited by a purely personal desire to shine, to reach the limelight, or possibly with an objective of a social or professional nature rather than enduring gain or progress. Much pleasure is also in sight.

A child born on this day has excellent promise for long-range success based on originality, skill, ingenuity or brilliant ideas.

Your Baby and You

by Ruth Parsons

When baby is ready to sit in his own low chair for meals, he's also ready to learn to drink from a cup or glass. If you can find one with a lip on it, you're off to a flying start. If not, choose one small enough so that baby's mouth can fit over it without difficulty. At first there's sure to be spilling and leakage, and it's wise to hold a saucer under the cup while baby is learning. Begin by serving his orange juice and boiled water in this fashion. He may stubbornly refuse, but it's up to you to be just as stubborn. Offer them in this way, and no other, until he takes them. Soon he'll be taking all fluids, except nursing or bottle, in the cup or glass.

Before ever he reaches the cup or glass stage, your doctor may have added solid foods to his menu. He may even have suggested Heinz Baby Foods, because doctors know how carefully Heinz Baby Foods are selected and cooked. All in all, there are 22 delicious, nourishing varieties from which to choose. And when baby reaches the stage where he's ready for coarser-textured foods, he'll find more eating enjoyment in the 12 tempting varieties of Heinz Junior Foods. In addition to individual soups, meat products, vegetables and desserts, Heinz Junior Foods offer a complete Vegetable-Beef Dinner.

Franc Devaluation Historic Not Sure Yet If Good Or Bad

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

France's devaluation of her franc is likely to prove historic—for good or ill. It may prove to be just what was needed to set Europe on the way to realistic valuation of currencies, or it may come to be regarded as the action which upset the delicate balance of world dealings at a critical time. Some will welcome it—many will fear it; whatever the outcome, the pattern of world currencies is not likely to be the same again.

The worst possibilities probably won't be realized simply because the world has developed too much ability to absorb upsets and to negotiate and re-negotiate; and there is too much demand for goods, too many political considerations as between Russia and the Western democracies, for an economic breakdown to be allowed.

France knows this and probably took it into consideration when she took her step in the face of the opposition of both Britain and the international monetary fund in which the United States is vitally interested, and at the same time that the European recovery program is being debated in Congress.

Driven To It

She apparently felt she had to do it. Developments will decide whether her government has been boldly and wisely courageous or whether it has been short-sighted.

The pound sterling will bear the immediate brunt and will be subjected to increased pressure. France has not established a free market in sterling and has given assurance she will try to prevent any speculative run of it, but from hundreds of concealed directions there will be attempts to run from sterling to francs and dollars.

There is apparently no present intention to devalue sterling, but if Britain should be forced into it the repercussions would be tremendous. So far as Canada is concerned it would lower the price of goods from Britain — which from a purely Canadian point of view would be all right unless it raised the importation of British goods to the point where they unduly competed with Canadian products.

The action will drastically cut the price of French exports and Canadian, as a light note in the serious situation, should be able shortly to buy French wines, perfumes and costume jewellery much cheaper than heretofore. Probably there will be an increased Canadian market for other French goods. Last year, Canadian purchases from France were quite low, around $10,000,000, while Canada sold to France goods valued at $81,000,000.

Ex-Moderator N. MacLeod Dies Suddenly

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 26 (CP).—Very Rev. Norman A. MacLeod, who through his scholarship and energy rose to be moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, is dead.

The 79-year-old retired clergyman collapsed and died in the vestry of First Presbyterian church here as he prepared to preach a Sunday morning sermon in the absence of the minister, Rev. Henry Cousins. The service was cancelled after announcement of Dr. MacLeod's death was made from the pulpit.

Dr. MacLeod attained the highest office in the Presbyterian Church in Canada when, in June, 1942, he was elected moderator of the 68th general assembly at a meeting in Montreal. He was then minister of the Presbyterian church at Caintown, near here.

Born in Lochside, N.S., he studied in Sydney, N.S., Pictou, N.S., McGill University and Montreal Presbyterian College. As a student minister he preached in Avonmore and Lancaster in eastern Ontario and in Grand'mere, Que.

Since his retirement a year ago he served as chairman of the Brockville public library board and in other local capacities.

The funeral will be held here Wednesday.

Jolly Beggars Honor Memory Scotland's Bard

The "gathering of the clans" of Peterborough, to commemorate the 189th anniversary of the birth of Scotland's Bard, Robert Burns, was held on Saturday night as 100 men of the Wallace breed assembled for the sixth annual Burns' Supper of the Jolly Beggar's Club.

The address of the evening was given by Col. John A. Dewart, who spoke on the life and works of Robert Burns. Following the same general outline of his address to the Kinsmen Club on Thursday, he stressed the influence of Burns in bringing the peasants, the working classes of Scotland—and later, the whole world—a consciousness of the dignity of labor.

Burns, an "agitator" of his day, rebelled against the tyranny of the two ruling forces in Scotland at the time—the church and feudal-like landowners. Born a peasant himself, Burns felt keenly these inequalities. He fought against the system which permitted one class of man — the landowners—to have the power over the poverty-stricken classes:

". . . Man's inhumanity to man Makes countless thousands mourn."

Wearing lapel tartans and ties with the plaids of the clans, the men were piped to the dining room by Piper Thomas Kay, Jr. The Selkirk Grace—"Some hae meat but canna eat . . ." was given by Thomas Kay, president of the club and chairman of the supper meeting.

To the skirl of the pipes, the haggis was borne into the room by bearer Fred Robson, following Piper Kay. Arthur McLeish gave Burns' "To a Haggis." In this, and other recitations of Burns' throughout the meeting, the delivery was made complete wi' authentic brrs and brogue.

The toast to the Immortal Memory of Burns was given by Colonel Dewart.

"Tam O'Shanter's Ride", impressive with the full descriptive force of the Scottish dialect came to life with its rollicking tale of a drinking bout, the dance of the witches and warlocks and the mad chase through the night with the weird company after the dazed Tam.

Alec Clarke led in the singing of Scottish songs and hymns, with Thomas Smith at the piano. The supper closed with the singing of "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow . . ."

The atmosphere of Scotian gaiety was maintained with the bagpipes, played by Pipe Major Robert Webdale, Fred Robson and Thomas Kay, Jr. William Scott and Alec Kirkcaldy sang several solo selections.

3 Passengers Hurt

JAMESTOWN, N.Y., Jan. 26 — (AP). — Three passengers were reported injured last night when the last pullman car of an eastbound Chicago to New York Erie railroad passenger train jumped the tracks and struck two freight cars at Niobe Junction, about seven miles west of here.

Runaway Engine Heads For Street Crash-Landing

It halted grotesquely with a third of the 150,000-pound leading power unit hanging in the air, leaning on a power pole pushed to a drunk angle.

Engineer F. A. Hurst clambered down from his uncertain perch, visibly shaken but unable to explain what happened.

"It just didn't stop," Hurst said. The powerful streamlined unit had just brought El Capitan, crack passenger train, in from Chicago and was headed for the roundhouse.

There were no injuries, but Pte. Wayne Schmidt, an army driver, had a closs call. He was parked in a roadway directly in front of the locomotive when it ran out of track and plowed through steel bumpers at an estimated speed of two or three miles per hour.

The ponderous engine rumbled across the 12-foot roadway — fireman Frank E. Rittenhouse "bailing out" en route—and ground through a foot-wide parapet about 3½ feet high before coming to rest against the pole.

Two cranes went to work trying to corral the 150-foot runaway.

Ottawa Seeks New Plan-Drew

TORONTO, Jan. 26 — (CP). — Premier Drew of Ontario said in a statement issued last night that the Federal government's decision to postpone application of import restrictions on steel and some other materials was taken because it had been discovered the curtailment would have serious consequences.

"On Saturday it was announced that because of the co-operation of some importers the restrictions on certain steel and other imports from the United States, which were to have become effective Feb. 1, had been postponed," he said.

"Co-operation or lack of co-operation had nothing whatever to do with this decision. These particular restrictions are not being put into effect simply because the (Federal) government now has discovered their application would have had serious consequences. They have merely been suspended until the brain trust can give the government some new formula which will produce slightly less fantastic results.

UEW Plans Support Of CCF In Election

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 26 — (CP). — Backing the proposal presented by the executive, 114 delegates to the quarterly meeting of the United Electrical Workers (CIO) Sunday endorsed support of the CCF party in future elections. George Harris, secretary of the union, said "traditional differences between the Liberal and Tory policies have disappeared. We must bring about election of the CCF both provincially and federally."

Hold Euchre Party

MARMORA, Jan. 26—(ENS)—St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held a euchre party on Thursday. Nine tables were in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. Engene Brady (playing as gent) and Mrs. Fred Reynolds.

Women's Groups Hear Social Worker

ROSENEATH, Jan. 26—(ENS)—Miss Isa Lewis, of London, England, a social settlement worker, addressed a group of women on Wednesday. Types of homes she had visited ranged from one room "homes" of social outcasts to mansions. Workers, striving for conversions in London's east end experience difficulties, for there the testing ground is severe, she said. Visiting in working class homes, she said she found unselfishness and a fine sense of humor. Of the mansions, Miss Lewis said, furnishings and interiors are luxurious.

Miss Lewis, whose work has taken her into hundreds of homes, defined a home as "a place of abode. It may be one room, it may contain many rooms, but it is not necessary to own a house to make a home." She spoke at the meeting of the Woman's Association of Roseneath United church, with guests from sister societies and non-members.

Mrs. B. Thackeray, president, was in charge. Mrs. R. C. White conducted the devotions.

Mrs. A. Nill welcomed the guests and introduced Miss Lewis. Representing guest societies and contributing program numbers were: Mrs. C. R. Spencer president of St. James Anglican Church WA; Lois Ball, who played a piano solo; Mrs. G. Jewell for Fenella WMS; Mrs. N. Lean for Centenary WA, and Miss Beatrice Davidson, piano solo. Mrs. Charles Sandercock spoke for Roseneath WI, and Mrs. J. Beatty read a group of poems. Mrs. D. Bribin responded for Roseneath WMS and Grant Waldie played a piano solo.

Rev. R. C. Spencer, rector of St. James Anglican Church spoke briefly.

The meeting was closed by Rev. R. C. White, and the hosts served supper.

Missing Man Frozen

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 26—(CP)—The frozen body of 84-year-old Edward Cook, who disappeared Friday from a north London home for the aged, was found yesterday near the University of Western Ontario campus. Sought Saturday by police officers and citizens after he wandered away from the institution, he was said to have had relatives in western Canada. "From the composure of the body, it would appear the man was resting and simply fell asleep," said Coroner Dr. A. R. Routledge. No inquest will be held.

Union Urges Controls

KITCHENER, Jan. 26 (CP). — Resolutions recommending the reimposition of price controls and higher income tax exemptions were unanimously endorsed here yesterday at the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian council of the United Rubber Workers of America (CIO). The meeting was attended by delegates from several centres, including Toronto.

Former Peterborough Minister Speaks At Trinity Anniversary

"There are some things for which the soul of man is dying, things which underlie present day strife and turmoil. The world needs a sense of reality of God, a quickened consciousness of the reality of truth, honour, and justice, a realization of the creative power of sheer goodwill and that love is better than hate."

Thus declared the Rev. W. Harold Young, M.A., D.D., to a large congregation in attendance at anniversary services of Trinity United Church, Sunday morning. "These great realities of life can become clear, vivid and convincing only in so far as they are exemplified in the daily lives of Christian men and women," said Dr. Young.

Basing his sermon on 11 Corinthians 9: 15, "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift". Dr. Young pointed out that in these words St. Paul had given utterance to sentiments which cannot be adequately analysed by logic nor explained in language. By analogy to the impossibility of expressing in words the orchestral interpretations of Beethoven's Sonata; of De Vinci's painting of "The Last Supper", or the colors of a summer sunset, he demonstrated the many inadequacies of language.

"What cannot be put into words can be made intelligible in lives that give such qualities expression," Dr. Young asserted. "Despite the poverty of language we know what God is because we have seen it acted out. That is what we mean by the Incarnation. We that hath seen the Son hath seen the Father. No more had they need to ask what God is like for they had seen Him in terms of a living life. When God would make Himself plain to us, would teach us the way to salvation, He made Himself understandable in the terms of one human life — Jesus Christ".

Dr. Young, former pastor at George Street United Church has recently retired from the pastorate of St. Paul's Avenue Road United Church, Toronto, to become the first full time secretary of the Board of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the United Church of Canada. He pointed out that the United Church conducts the largest educational program of any Protestant church in Canada. With a capital investment of more than sixteen million dollars and a total enrolment of nearly 11,000 students the United Church through its nine secondary schools, three arts colleges, and nine technical training institutes, is providing secondary and college education in an atmosphere of Christian faith and through the influence of teachers of Christian outlook and character.

A profusion of daffodils adorned the pulpit and altar, their colorful beauty enhancing the anniversary occasion. Rev. D. Bruce Gordon, B.D., Ph.D., pastor of Trinity United Church, conducted the service of worship.

Special music for the day, under the direction of Miss Mabel Clarry organist and choir directress, included at the morning service the anthem "He Watching Over Israel" (from the Elijah) by Mendelsohn and a contralto solo by Miss Alma Blanchard, "How Beautiful Upon the Mountain" by Harker. At the evening service the choir sang the anthem "Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates" (from the Messiah) by Handel. Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, contralto soloist sang "Lord, On Thy Tender Mercy Relying", by Hiller.

ALWAYS CANCEL UNWANTED RESERVATIONS

These days it's a wise idea to make your train and hotel reservations well in advance. It is courteous and thoughtful, however, to cancel reservations if you find you can't make the trip. That way you allow hotel and train staffs to take care of as many people as possible—and you ensure that you will be looked after next time you travel. Thinking of the other fellow is "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"BEST" SHUFFLER WORST

THOSE who pride themselves on being beautiful shufflers of the cards are sometimes really the worst shufflers of all. As they make the cards sing with their riffles, they are really applying a mechanical pattern to the pattern previously existing because of the way the tricks were gathered in. Consequently, their precise riffles are likely to produce the same kind of pattern in any one hand as in another. If one has great long suits and blanks, so will another; if one has evenly balanced suits, so will one or more others. That is not completely so, but the tendency is in that direction.

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1. 6♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl
2. 2♠	3♦	3♥	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♦	Pass
7♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl
Rdbl
3. 2♠	3♦	Dbl

If you looked at only the North and South hands, you would reckon that the score they made at Table 2 would be top in the tournament, as the grand slam appears to be a certainty. Instead of top, however, that was bottom, as it got set two redoubled.

The medium scores came at the tables where the contract was 6-Spades doubled, and in some cases redoubled.

Top for North-South, in fact the only plus score for any North-South pair, came at Table 3, where South, with his trump A opposite an opening two-bid, doubled the 3-Diamonds. It was set two tricks.

Now who in blazes would ever expect the cards of the missing hands to be distributed as they were, if he could see only some one of those hands? The soundest answer should be that everybody ought to suspect such a situation, if he had any protracted experience with human dealing and realized that whatever the shuffler did to one hand he might do to the rest. But we have yet to see anyone who took adequate account of that factor, when he himself held a powerful freak.

Tomorrow's Problem

What would you consider the best bidding, in search of a big score, after South opens this deal with 1-Spade?

Bones Of Whales Found In Desert

BERKELEY, Calif., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Forms of life which existed 60,000,000 years ago in the Great Sea of Tethys, covering what is now the Mediterranean, a part of North Africa and a slice of southern Asia, are beginning to yield a new story of the ancient world.

Latest find is a collection of fossilized whale skulls and whale bones dug out of the desert near Cairo, Egypt, by the University of California's African expedition.

These whales were relatively slender and 30 or 40 feet long, and had sharp teeth for eating meat.

Another find was a marine animal which furnished the material for the great Pyramids. This was the giant Foaminifer, a shellfish about the size of a 25-cent piece and much larger than the modern Foraminifera.

The shells of these giant Foraminifera piled up on the sea bottom, said Wendell Phillips, expedition leader, and in time formed great deposits of limestone from which the stone of the pyramids was cut.

Asking Relief From Ajax Costs

WHITBY, Jan. 26. — Ontario County Council has forwarded a resolution to Prime Minister King asking relief from payment of secondary education costs and other services of Ajax Village "due to the fact that no revenue is obtainable from Crown lands." The issue has been hotly debated for the past two years and several municipalities had already protested the situation which arose from the initial construction of Ajax as a village to house munitions workers at the DIL plant during the war.

Since the University of Toronto extension buildings and all the houses are located on the land originally expropriated by Ottawa, Ajax has been "the village that doesn't pay taxes."

Reeve W. H. Westney of Pickering Township, in which Ajax is located, declared that financial burdens assumed by the township and county included police protection, education, hospitalization and "TB after-care for many who came from outside the province to work at the defense plant." Council also voted unanimously to ask assistance from Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell, who had already been petitioned for aid by both Pickering and East Whitby Townships.

Apart from those employed at the university buildings or the Ajax division of War Assets Corporation, most of the Ajax citizens work at Oshawa or Whitby. As a number of War Assets employees were laid off last week, it is believed that the corporation may soon be winding up its affairs there.

Anglicans Reject Daily Newspaper

LONDON, Jan. 26 — (CP). — A Church of England commission has decided that a daily newspaper run by the church would serve "neither God nor mammon."

Advising against immediate action on the proposed newspaper, the church publicity commission said last night:

"No period could be more unpropitious than the present for seeking to enter a highly competitive and complex industry in which a vast sum of money would be called for, without the slightest guarantee that the venture would eventually pay its way on the basis of public support.

"Church sponsorship could not allow its news columns to give reports to titillate public taste in order to maintain a circulation which otherwise might be jeopardized. We fear that neither God nor mammon would be properly serviced."

The commission recommended, however, that the church appoint a $8,000 press agent with six assistants to seek more use of church news.

Herbert Fowler Dies

KINGSTON, Jan. 26 — (CP).— A 25-year veteran of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Herbert A. Fowler, 74, died in hospital here yesterday after an extended illness. He was born in Shasky, Minn., and moved to Brockville, Ont., when a boy. Survivors include two sons, Edward J. Fowler of St. Catharines, Ont., and WO 1 Robert G. Fowler, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, Ottawa, one daughter, Mrs. A. R. Galbraith of Belleville; a brother, A. R. Fowler of Brockville.

Church At Crossroads Speaker Says At Lakefield

Taking as his theme, "The Church at the Crossroads," Mr. Zufelt flayed all those who took every opportunity to knock the church. Recalling incidents at the beach-head on the English coast and at Ortona, Italy, where he served as a major in World War 2, he said: "If the church could instill into people the loyalty to a cause which Hitler instilled into the Nazis, which Stalin instills into the Russians, we would have no need to worry.

People Not Consulted

"The wishes of the people were not consulted when cocktail bars and beer lounges were licensed. The people who were responsible for these would have us believe the church did not meet the issue but turned back.

"During the war many a boy had the ground knocked from under him and many men's lives were ruined and dragged down by war experiences. Innocent boys were taught to kill and to destroy things. This is one of the terrible evils of war. The marvel is that many people are not worse.

"No obstacle is insurpassable. God has promised that the church will not fail."

The speaker was introduced by Rev. W. W. Archer and thanked by Mr. Walter Yale.

The following appointments were made to the session. Messrs. J. A. Porter, W. W. Yale, W. H. Fife, for a further term of five years. Mrs. Elmer Milburn to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mrs. Jory. Mr. Roy Brown to replace Mr. Morley MacDonald, who has moved to Omemee.

Mr. T. Braden, J. H. Sherin, Walter Madill and Jacob Payne were appointed honorary life members of the board of stewarts.

Jack Brown was again elected stewart for a turn of five years. Messrs. Geo. Spence, E. Roth, E. Also elected to the board were, Northey, Stan Richardson, Ken Jakins, Donald Milburn, George Tanner, Jack Leonard, Bob McCracken, Archie Stewart, Neil Wood and Dr. L. O. Bailey to replace Dr. G. H. Renwick, Roy Brown, Harry Wanamaker, Mel Kingdon and Roy Bullock who resigned.

Ushers Re-appointed

Miss Zelma Darling was named Observer representative. Charlie Hunter and W. H. Fife were appointed auditors. The present ushers were reappointed with Dave Spence, Alex Hunter, John David Guylls and Bruce Buchanan in charge.

A renovation committee to supervise the renovation of the church was appointed as follows: from trustee board, J. Porter, G. Spence, C. Hunter; official board, F. L. Erskine, E. Milburn, E. Millage; board of stewards, A. Buchanan, J. McKerchar, Ray Jackman; women's association, Mrs. Jack Brown, Mrs. Percy Darling, Mrs. Roy Brown; from missionary and service club Mrs. R. Jackman, Mrs. S. Richardson, Mrs. S. A. Guylls.

Rev. George Kelly in a brief address stated he had been with this church for 12 years and felt it might be a good thing to make a change and asked the congregation to confer on the session congregational powers to act if there was any change of minister. This was done on a motion by Mrs. W. Yale and Ralph Milburn.

During the evening solos were given by Mrs. J. R. Hull, Mrs. R. Jackman, and Mrs. H. Vaughan, accompanied by Mrs. G. Kelly.

Legion To Bar All Communists

TORONTO, Jan. 26 — (CP) — The Provincial Command of the Canadain Legion at an executive meeting yesterday voted to give President E. S. Evans full power to take disciplinary action with regard to 'subversive members' or even complete Legion branches which may have fallen under Communist influence.

One executive said that at least two Toronto branches were in the latter category.

Patrick Biggs, secretary, said that the executive's action "means an end to pussy-footing where these members are concerned.

"The decision of the executive was that all proven Communist members, or members known to have made communistic utterances, will be expelled forthwith," he added. "This applies also to members of the Labor-Progressive Party.

"The executive at the present time has dozens of names of known Communists and Communist fellow-travellers listed. Instead of horsing around with them immediate action will be taken."

FRANCE REJECTS FREE GOLD TRADE BILL

Peers Agree To Consider Reform Plan

Fireworks Halted As Debate Postponed a Week

LONDON, Jan. 27.— (CP).— The debate on the government's bill to cut the delaying power of the peers over new bills from two years to one today was postponed until Monday after Viscount Addison agreed to consider a suggestion for reform of the House of Lords.

Lord Addison, government leader in the Lords, agreed to consider the reform suggestion proposed by the Marquis of Salisbury, Conservative leader.

The debate had been expected to last two days, if not three, with a large number of prominent statesmen taking part. It was in full swing when Lord Addison intervened to say the government would like time to consider the position. Earlier Lord Addison moved second reading of the government bill which would reduce them from two years to one the period during which the Upper Chamber can delay non-financial legislation.

"This is a very modest bill and there is nothing revolutionary about it," he said. "The object is to secure that the will of the elected majority shall prevail."

The small "king's robing room," in which the peers meet while their own chamber is occupied by the House of Commons pending rebuilding of the bomb-destroyed commons chamber, was packed, with many peer squatting on the floor.

Peeresses, who desired to witness the opening stages of what is expected to be a conflict between Government and Opposition members, had to ballot for seats.

3 U.S. Officials Said Speculating

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 — (AP). — A senator, an ambassador and the newly-appointed assistant director of the budget were listed by the United States Agriculture Department today as traders in commodity markets since Jan. 1, 1946.

A new list of speculators made public by Agriculture Secretary Anderson included the names of:

Frank Pace, jr., who has yet to take the oath as assistant budget director; James Bruce, Ambassador to Argentina; Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem.-Okla.); and Mrs. Edith Thomas, his wife.

The list was released for publication a few hours after the agriculture department announced that it has suspended three of its own employees for speculating in commodities and is investigating about 20 others.

53 Tremors Shake Battered Philippines

MANILA, Jan. 27 — (AP). — Battered Iloilo was shaken again today by three distinct earthquakes, bringing to 53 the tremors which have kept residents in a state of frenzy since Sunday's first devastating tremblers.

The latest shocks, of about 15 seconds duration each and of medium intensity, drove panicky residents fleeing from homes and buildings despite the fact the weather bureau reported they were "only aftershocks" of Sunday's great quake and that both the intensity and number of shocks are decreasing.

Meanwhile, it was unofficially estimated that damage in and around the Panay Island City, 285 miles southeast of Manila, would exceed $1,000,000.

Rear-Admiral Dies

Three Men, Girl Arrested In $2,700 Holdup

TORONTO, Jan. 27—(CP).— Three young men and an 18-year-old girl are being held in connection with the $2,700 payroll robbery of a west-end bread company plant last Jan. 14, police announced today.

Two of the men and the girl were brought here from Gravenhurst, where they had been arrested on charges of automobile theft. The third man was taken into custody here.

One of the men is charged with armed robbery, another with receiving and the third with having an offensive weapon. The girl is being held as a material witness. All four are from Toronto.

Police said they have seized an automobile allegedly purchased a few days after the holdup and an automatic pistol found under a rug in a hotel on east-central Gerrard Street.

The west - end branch of Brown's Bread was robbed by two men—one armed, the other masked. One guarded the door as his confederate pointed a gun at the cashier, ordering: "Hand it over or we'll give it to you."

One of three employees in the office ran outside as the robbers fled and was able to note the license number of their automobile. The car, which had been stolen earlier, was abandoned a short time after the holdup.

Police said today they have learned that a third man was at the wheel of the car. After abandoning the automobile, the trio took a street car and then a taxi, police said.

DAVOS, Switzerland, Jan. 27—(CP).—A sell-out crowd today saw Canada's Olympic hockey team chalk up a clear-cut 10-3 victory over a Davos team which included seven members of Switzerland's Olympic squad. The Canadians led 4-2 at the end of the first and 6-3 at the end of the second.

Persecution of Christians In China Hits New High

By SPENCER MOOSA

PEIPING, Jan. 27—(AP).—Priests of the Belgian Roman Catholic Scheut Mission here charged today that persecution of Christians by Chinese Communists is the most violent China has ever known, surpassing even the anti-religious excesses of the Boxer rebellion at the turn of the century.

Through spokesmen, the priests charged that Christianity had been outlawed in Red-controlled areas, Chinese Christians, particularly priests, who refused to renounce their faith had been imprisoned or killed and Europeans had been subjected to such gross ill-treatment they were "slowly martyred, with the Reds then attributing their deaths to disease."

No distinction had been made between Protestants and Catholics, all being lumped together as representatives of "American religion" by the Communists, who recognized two principal enemies, religion and the United States.

In Jehol province of North China the persecution has "raged violently" for more than a year.

Thirty of the 40 missions in Jehol have been over-run by the Reds, four large missions burned and 26 stripped, with even the floors and rafters carted away.

The wave of persecution began in Ninghsia province, in north central China along the inner Mongolian border, in 1935, when a band of Communists unsuccessfully attacked the strong Catholic mission at Siaochiaopan and looted 21 smaller undefended missions where the altars were burned and religious images were profaned.

Barbara Ann Given Rose Bowl Trophy

CAPRÉOL, Jan. 27 — (CP). — The Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada today announced that the Federation rose bowl trophy, awarded annually to the most outstanding woman athlete, has been awarded to Miss Barbara Ann Scott for 1947. Miss Scott last week won the European figure skating championship for the second successive year.

Predict Egg Prices To Drop

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.— (CP).— The Special Products Board announced today that it will reduce its paying price for export eggs by 3½ cents a dozen beginning Wednesday and thus heralded Board prices for export eggs on the domestic market.

Board prices for export egs serve as a floor to domestic egg prices and when the Board price changes during the various buying seasons the domestic price follows suit.

In the spring-summer period, just beginning, the Board's price for carlots of Grade "A" large eggs vary across Canada. An example is the Montreal price of 46 cents per dozen, in the fall-winter period, now ending, the Board has paid 49½ cents per dozen at Montreal. When the next fall-winter period opens in late August, the Board will pay a new high of 53 cents, basis Montreal.

Board purchases of fresh eggs for export on the shell to the United Kingdom from Sept. 1, 1947, to date total 1,383 carloads, compared with 823 carloads in the corresponding fall-winter period a year earlier.

Two Youths On Trial For Killing Friend

WELLAND, Jan. 27 — (CP).— Edwin Farrington, 19, of Glendale, R.I., and Norman Kindy, 16, of nearby Stamford township, went on trial today for murder in the shooting last Sept. 24 of James Bell, 57, a man the crown contends had befriended and sheltered both youths.

An assize grand jury yesterday returned a true bill and the trial before Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly and an Ontario Supereme Court jury got under way this morning.

Bell was slain in his house in Stamford township, where Kindy had lived for 13 years and where Farrington received assistance a few days before the murder.

The crown attorney said proof would be offered that neither youth had any money early last Sept. 24 and that both had a "quantity of money" in the evening, when they allegedly tried to engage a taxi in Niagara Falls, N.Y., to take them to Buffalo, N.Y.

70 Killed In Riots

BAGHDAD, Jan. 27 — (AP). — Hospitals estimated tonight more than 70 persons had been killed in riots between civilians and police in the last 24 hours. Fighting erupted after Premier Saleh Jabr expressed his determination to remain in office and enforce the Anglo-Iraqi treaty he negotiated recently in London.

Middle Eastern Bulwark Against Soviet, Bevin Aim

LONDON, Jan. 27 — (AP). — Foreign Secretary Bevin has begun talks with Arab leaders on Middle East problems, including what British government sources said is a program for an anti-Communist security system in the Arab world.

They forecast that American and British military strategy eventually would be involved.

The informants expressed belief that Bevin's fear of Soviet ambitions in the Middle East would supersede Jewish-Arab problems in Palestine.

They said Bevin is trying to set up a bulwark against the effects on the Suez Canal of a possible guerrilla victory in Greece, and on British-American supremacy in the Mediterranean.

The sources added the move was part of a plan evolved by the British Foreign Office and the American State Department.

First step had been revision of the British-Iraqi treaty arranged earlier this month That treaty, signed but not ratified, has been all but repudiated by Iraq, after internal uprisings.

Bevin's Middle East advisors also are reported planning talks on possible new British treaties with Saudi Arabia and Yemen. Crown Prince Emir Feisel is expected in London soon to represent Saudi Aarabia. Prince Seif Al Islam Abdullah of Yemen is now is in London. He has been conferring with the Foreign Office for the past two weeks.

Franc Value Not Affected In New Move

Say Britain Offered To Increase Coal If Franc Left Alone

PARIS, Jan. 27.—(CP).— The Finance Commission of the French National Assembly disapproved today Premier Robert Schuman's proposal for free trade in gold within France and an extraordinary meeting of the cabinet was called for tonight to consider the government's position.

The gold trade bill will be reported unfavorably to the full Assembly. The Commission's vote does not automatically kill it. But, since the Commission follows the Assembly's party lines in miniature, defeat of the bill in its present form appeared certain. The vote was 17 to 15, with five absentions.

But the devaluation of the franc is not affected.

The devaluation, which went into effect Monday, was accomplished by cabinet decree and is not subject to action by the Assembly. It cut the value of the franc almost in half.

The gold trade bill provided that the holders turn in gold or stocks, bonds and bank balances they have maintained abroad despite previous government orders. A levy of 25 per cent would be assessed or previous disobedience of the order.

Additional Fines

The holder would be permitted to convert the remainder into francs or dollars on a free market. Additional fines were prescribed for those failing to report by July 1.

The commission members said after the closed meeting that only Premier Schuman's own Popular Republicans (M.R.P.) and the Radical Socialists, which are Rightists, voted for the measure.

The Socialists joined the Communists in opposition.

The bill proposed free trade in gold within France.

Schuman told the National Assembly in a speech yesterday the gold bill would permit the deputies to express themselves on the entire monetary program, which includes devaluation of the franc. He also sought approval of the free money market.

Socialist deputies decided in a caucus before the finance commission meeting that they would vote against the gold trade bill. Party members said, however, they had no desire to provoke a cabinet crisis.

Main objections voiced at the Socialist meeting were:

The government had to take into account the objections of the British government; it had ignored the views of the international monetary fund; it was opening the door to an out-of-date economic Liberalism.

Earlier Finance Minister Mayer disclosed that Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, offered to increase deliveries of British coal from 6,000 to 25,000 tons a month if France abandoned the devaluation scheme.

PULLS NO PUNCHES—L. B. Pearson did some plain speaking in Toronto on the United Nations. He advocates a defence alliance within the UN to hold Russia in check.

U.N. Alliance Only Hope Pearson Says

TORONTO, Jan. 27 —(CP)—A collective system for defence within the United Nations, regardless of the Russian veto tactics, was advocated last night by L. B. Pearson, Canada's undersecretary of state for foreign affairs.

"There is something to be said for standing up and calling a spade a spade," he told an audience of 1,200 at a Toronto Board of Trade dinner. "But there is nothing to be said for shaking your fist and calling it a blankety-blank American or British or Soviet shovel."

Then he deplored the "prostitution of our United Nations Organization to an ignoble and aggressive purpose" by Russia, and suggested that one way out of the UN's "veto - scarred dilemma" would be the formation of a collective system of defence within the United Nations charter, of all nations wishing to join.

The audience regarded the speech as another demonstration of a tougher Canadian policy towards the Soviet Union's attitude in the United Nations. But his attack was not entirely against the Soviet. He spoke of the difficulties of the middle nations between the two great powers—the United States and Russia.

Too Much Convenience

"There is danger to any international organization if its members base their decisions either to by-pass or to exploit the premises of Lake Success solely on considerations of immediate national convenience or advantage," he said.

"It may eventually be fatal to the United Nations if it is asked to accept commitments which it cannot fulfil, because in the absence of military agreements under the charter to enforce its decisions, those decisions have behind them only moral force and the weight of world opinion."

These dangers became more acute as U.N. activities tended to revolve around the policies of the two blocs now forming inside it, "each headed by a super power and around each of which lesser powers find themselves — sometimes uneasily—clustering.

"Pressure, on the one hand friendly and almost unconscious, on the other undisguised and ruthless, is sometimes exerted on the smaller members of the United Nations."

Dollar Saving Program Makes Canada Servant To U.S., Green Charges

Will Establish Committee Within Week To Investigate Profiteering;

Opposition Says Washington Giving Orders

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 — (CP). — The Government's dollar-saving program drew an almost steady stream of criticism from Opposition benches in the Commons yesterday as members reconvened following the Christmas recess, and amid the barrage was a charge that the Government was taking orders from Washington. The charge, quickly denied by Finance Minister Abbott, was made by Howard Green (PC—Vancouver South), who added that "no Canadian government since Confederation has ever gone so far towards taking orders from the government of another country."

"That is rubbish," retorted Mr. Abbott. "We take no orders from anyone."

Mr. Green's charge came after he said that the policy of extending to Britain and other countries the import restrictions being imposed against the United States "obviously was designed by Washington or was designed to curry favor in Washington."

This non-discriminatory policy showed "an amazing subservience to the United States," he said. When the last Conservative government was in power there was "none of this kotowing and cringing to another country." Canadians were a proud people and now they were "being humiliated by their own government."

Plan Investigation

The House opening brought these developments:

1. Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that the special Commons committee to investigate hoarding and profiteering in the price field will be established within a week.

2. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, unsuccessfully moved that the House adjourn its ordinary business to discuss the "sudden and unprecedented" increase in living costs.

3. Members adopted a motion setting Wednesdays and Thursdays aside for continuation of the Throne Speech debate and leaving the other three days open for study of the exchange conservation and other emergency measures.

4. Mr. King formally notified the House of his recent cabinet reshuffle and tabled correspondence on the resignation of former Veterans Minister Mackenzie, appointed to the Senate.

5. Fisheries Minister MacKinnon, former trade minister, said no decision has yet been reached as to the amount to be introduced shortly.

Acquit Woman In Slaying Of Watchman

TORONTO, Jan. 27 — (CP). — Mrs. Margaret Clair, 29, was acquitted today of a charge of manslaughter in the Sept. 12 slaying of James C. Hemmings of Welland, night watchman at a quarry near Maple, Ont. The jury deliberated for 30 minutes.

Mr. Justice G. A. Urquhart told Mrs. Clair: "You have had a close call. The jury has taken a rather merciful view of the situation."

The crown charged Hemmings was killed during a drinking party in a hut on the quarry property. He died a few hours after being wounded with a shotgun police said was fired by Mrs. Clair.

A statement police said was made by Mrs. Clair after her arrest was read to the jury yesterday.

"I got up and went to the bedroom, took the gun out of the wardrobe and was going to the door," the statement said. "I was going to say, 'Boo! Stick 'em up!'

"All of a sudden there was a bang. The gun was in my hand. I dropped the gun and went to the kitchen. Hemmings was just falling to the floor. He was holding himself. I looked at him and there was blood all over the place . . ."

Bread Up One Cent

TORONTO, Jan. 27—(CP).—The price of bread jumped one cent generally in Toronto today, with all bakers charging 14 cents for the 24-ounce unsliced loaf. An official of the Bakers' Association said the increase was due to increased cost of ingredients and labor.

U.S. Stories Hurt Tourist Trade

SAULT STE. MARIE, Jan. 27—(CP).—Tom C. McCall, Deputy Ontario Travel Minister, said today that irreparable damage has been done to the immediate future of the Canadian tourist industry by a recent wave of adverse publicity in the United States.

He told the annual convention of the Northern Ontario Outfitters' Association that one Chicago newspaper (Tribune) recently devoted a full column to reports of food shortages and high prices in the Dominion. The article lead readers to believe they would inflict hardship on Canadians by visiting Canada, Mr. McCall said.

He pledged the support of his department in counteracting damage done by this "untrue" publicity.

H. A. Heinman, NOOA president, said he declined to estimate the extent of this year's tourist business but agreed with Mr. McCall's statements.

At the opening of the session, Vice-President Ernie Calvert, spoke briefly on fishing conditions in the Lake of the Woods, where gross neglect of conservation in the past had all but ruined one of Canada's finest lakes.

High Output, Not Prices Farmers' Aim

Hannam Asks For Consumer Understanding Of Economic Problems

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 27 — (CP) —H. H. Hannam, President and Managing Director of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, declared today in an address to the organization's annual meeting that "Canadian farmers are not advocates of high prices and never have been."

"Canadian farmers want to produce abundantly," he said. "This is an instinct, not a tradition. If distribuation is efficient and equitable, maximum output is in the best economic interests of farmers."

Mr. Hannam's address opened today's public session after a private meeting of the board of directors yesterday.

He dealt extensively with the domestic and international situation in its effect on Canadian agriculture, and with the position and prospects of the Canadian farmer in the post-war world.

Mr. Hannam said the Marshall Plan for Aid to Europe was a unique example of bold statesmanship, a realistic way of trying to cure political unrest. However, he pointed to dangers he said were inherent in the plan.

Inflation Peril.

The society president warned, "it can not help, and may, if wise action is not taken to prevent it, intensify inflation perils for Canada as well as the United States."

Mr. Hannam asked for understanding by consumers of the farmers' problems. "There's uncertainty ahead, that uncertainty arises because of rising prices. rising costs of production, the danger of more and more inflation riding for a fall, and also because there appears to be danger of a program being undertaken to control food prices without at the same time controlling other prices and wages."

"Do they intend to place more foods under ceilings and leave other goods and services which enter at some point into farmers' costs of production, free of controls and free to rise?"

He submitted an answer:

"If so we give them this fair but firm warning —any Government in a free democracy which permits itself to be pressured into the adoption of such a policy will, and should, lose the confidence of the farm people of the nation."

Freedom Of Press Issue In Alta. Trial

EDMONTON, Jan. 27—(CP).—For the second time in 11 years, the issue of freedom of the press in Alberta arose today with the arraignment of a publisher, writer and social welfare authority on charges of conspiring to publish defamatory libel.

The charges are themselves unprecedented. The Alberta government laid them against Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto, publisher of New Liberty Magazine Harold Dingman, its Ottawa correspondent, and Dr. Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, nationally-known welfare worker.

Russia Ready For Deal On Austria.

Have Five Conditions To Present At London Conference

VIENNA, Jan. 27 (AP)—Russia was reported here today to be ready to deal on a peace treaty for Austria.

An Austrian government spokesman said hope for a settlement of his occupied country's future, long blocked by an east-west deadlock, now appeared "brighter."

The Austrian press agency said five conditions had been laid down by the Russians for discussion at the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference in London next week:

1. That Russian demands regarding the big Zistersdorf oilfields northeast of here remain unchanged. Russia wants two-thirds of the field's production and an equal share of the equipment.

2. That oil field concessions remain effective for 50 years.

3. That Russia be paid $200,000,000 within two years for all other German assets in Austria now controlled by Russia. (One of the toughest questions in Austrian negotiations to date has been an exact definition of what constitutes German assets in Austria.)

4. That Russia be given from 20 to 40 per cent of the Danube Shipping Company.

5. That all profits obtained under these conditions may be taken from Austria free of restrictions.

An American spokesman, informed of the report, commented that these terms do not mention political problems, displaced persons, demilitarization, denazification or border changes, all of which caused deadlocks previously in Austrian negotiations.

He commented that the report "is certainly interesting, but just as certainly is not a solution to all the problems that have to be met."

Charged $10 Room Rent; Is Fined $50

Robert McMaster, 474 Wolsley street, was fined $50 and costs of $9.75 or two months when he was found guilty in court this morning, after lengthy evidence, on a charge of charging rental in excess of that permitted by the Rentals Board. Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, commented that the case appeared to be "rather flagrant," and special prosecutor Wilfrid F. Huycke, KC, described the amounts charged as "a scandalous treatment from one returned man towards another."

McMaster, who handled his own defence, was given some advice by Magistrate Philp during the trial. Appearing quite at home and competent in cross-examination, McMaster was told by the Magistrate that, as he appeared familiar with court room procedure, he should study the actions of "our best counsel." The magistrate pointed out that these men are always reasonable towards a witness and do not act in an offensive manner while cross-examining.

"This is a matter on which most of the public is ignorant," his worship added. "Many feel that a cross-examining lawyer, although it is true he has considerable latitude, can say anything he wants. But there is no right to be abusive."

The comments were made during the questioning by the accused of Robert H. Woods, the tenant who had complained in the case, during which he attempted to question moral conduct.

Woods testified that he paid McMaster $10 a week for one furnished room and kitchen privileges. The landlord had given no receipts, he said. When McMaster told him he was raising this figure to $15, Woods stated that he had checked with the Rentals Board here to see if this was proper. He had offered to pay the increased rent, he said, if he were given a receipt for that amount. McMaster had refused this, witness said.

Shortly after this, he said, he had been notified by phone at his work by McMaster that his goods were being moved from the room. When he arrived at the house, he said, his radio, clothing, kitchen utensils and other goods were out on the street, in the rain.

Under cross-examination, Woods admitted he had received request to vacate about three weeks before the eviction. (Prosecutor Huycke stated later that the charge of eviction and dispossession included in the charge would not be pressed.)

John B. Raine, maintenance supervisor of the Central Housing and Mortgage crown corporation from which the McMaster house is rented, testified that his office had given McMaster permission to sublet the room in question for $12.50 per month. This figure, he said, included kitchen privileges, heating and lighting.

Thomas Thomson, district appraiser for the Rentals Board, stated that he had also set that figure and conditions on rental of the room.

Mrs. McMaster, wife of the accused, was first defence witness. She testified that the arrangement for room rental had not been made with Woods, but with his wife. In reply to Mr. Huycke's questioning as to the amount charged, she replied that "we didn't charge them $10 a week, they agreed to pay it." She argued with counsel that there was "a difference" in the arrangements.

"If you can see a difference between the two," commented Mr. Huycke, "you are like the ancient theologians who would argue how many angels could stand on the point of a pin."

In summing up his defence, McMaster insisted that the actual rental he charged for his room was $12.50 monthly. The balance between that and the $10 collected weekly, he said, had been "offered" by Woods in return for the kitchen and other privileges granted them. He termed it a "free-will offering."

Commenting on this line of argument, the magistrate asked: "How long do you think any government can enforce any rental controls if the regulations could be circumvented so easily?

"It would make a joke of the whole matter calling such a balance a 'gift'," he added.

Cornwall Told Fire Dept. Undermanned

TORONTO, Jan. 27 — (CP). — Fire Marshal W. J. Scott yesterday blamed "inadequacy" of the Cornwall fire department and "inferior" construction of buildings there for the Dec. 24 fire in that city which caused more than $500,000 damage in its downtown section.

In a special report to Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell, he made a number of recommendations, said cause of the fire is still unknown and total damages have not yet been determined.

Estimates issued at the time of the fire placed damage as high as $1,000,000 officials of the Fire Marshal's department said last night an exact determination of the loss and a breakdown of the damage to individual business premises must await insurance adjusters' reports which may not be available for some time.

Force Too Small

While praising the Cornwall firefighters, the report pointed out that "the fire-fighting force comprised only the 15 paid members of the Cornwall fire department, all of their eight volunteers and five men from the public works department who had been given some previous training."

"When a total of only five firefighters were able to respond first when the alarm was received, this fire certainly indicates how urgent is the need for increasing the number of full-time firefighters on the Cornwall brigade."

"It would be advisable to impress upon the council of the city of Cornwall that their fire department is dangerously undermanned and that they cannot expect to provide reasonably adequate fire protection to the 15,000 residents in their city, in addition to the 12,000 residents of Cornwall township, for which they receive $18,000 per year, with their present staff and equipment.

"Further, there is much old, inferior construction . . . fires of large proportions will occur unless immediate action is taken to prevent them and to be reasonably prepared to combat such fires as do break out."

Makes Suggestions

Specific recommendations made in the report:

1. An increase at once in the number of firemen by eight, providing a total of 22 men, excluding the chief and a total of 30 in the future.

2. Provision of an aerial ladder truck and suitable car for the chief.

3. Two carefully-chosen firemen from the force to be trained as full-time fire-prevention inspectors.

4. By-law 20 regulating erection of buildings and storage of inflammable materials be revised immediately and new regulations drawn up in conformity with established fire-safety regulations.

5. Immediate consideration be given to obtaining a fog and mechanical foam-producing fire truck, capable of speedy response to all alarms and having 300-gallon water-carrying capacity.

Will Investigate Rail Dispute

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP). —President Truman today created an emergency board to investigate a wage dispute between United States railroads and three unions representing about 125,000 operating workers.

Under the Railway Labor Act the president is empowered to appoint a fact-finding board which has 30 days to hold hearings to report back to the White House. A 30-day "cooling off" period must elapse before a strike can be called.

The order said the dispute threatened to interrupt commerce to such a degree as to deprive the United States of essential transportation service.

Micmac Captain Acquitted On Two Charges

HALIFAX, Jan. 27 — (CP). — Acquitted of two charges, Cmdr. J. C. Littler, DSC, of Victoria faced the three remaining ones to-day in his court-martial arising from the port-to-port collision of the destroyer Micmac and the freighter Yarmouth County, off Halifax Harbor last July 16.

Eleven naval ratings died in the crash.

The youthful captain yesterday was acquitted of "omitting to sound a signal whilst under way in fog" and "whilst in mist"—two separate charges.

Three remaining charges are that he "negligently or by default hazarded his ship," "omitted to go at moderate speed in fog," and "omitted to go at moderate speed in mist."

When the court-martial opened yesterday, Littler pleaded innocent to all five charges.

The evidence largely duplicated testimony heard at a Federal inquiry some months ago and whose report fixed blame for the accident on Littler but did not find him criminally negligent.

Evidence of radar and navigation officers had been that radar scans failed to indicate until too late the Yarmouth County's approach although the equipment had shown the presence of other vessels and landmarks.

Lieut. John Waters of Cobourg, 24-year-old radar officer, said the steel-plated freighter should have been visible on the radar screen at 10,000 yards, but that it had in fact appeared only momentarily at 500 yards.

Cripps' Pledge Eases Tension

LONDON, Jan. 27 — (AP). — Tension eased off in world financial markets today following Britain's pledge to defend the value of the pound.

Treasury officials worked out measures considered necessary to protect the pound from the repercussions of French devaluation of the franc, which became effective yesterday. The pound is the financial base for much of the world, outside the dollar area and the Russian orbits.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that whatever steps were decided upon to support the pound would be taken without advance notice. He gave no hint as to what they might be.

Too Difficult

"It is becoming too difficult to avoid this as the feeling develops you must either be for or against us when we are so right and so strong, and the other fellow is so wrong and so strong. It is increasingly hard for countries—especially those which have become known as middle powers — to maintain a position of independence and objectivity in the United Nations in the face of this growing division between the Great Powers."

He spoke of "the two superpowers, the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R., each watching the other across a widening chasm of suspicion and mistrust; each a leader of the two groups into which the world is tragically dividing."

In such a political climate the United Nations, even with a perfect charter, could not guarantee peace and security. "The structural weaknesses of the organization are becoming depressingly apparent . . ."

Mr. Pearson declared "the fact is that the United Nations through no fault of the freedom-loving states is becoming a vital field for political warfare. In that warfare we should take the offensive and should back up that offensive by showing the people on the dark side of the moon that our system works better than theirs for the only purpose worth achieving—the dignity, security and prosperity of the individual man."

Empire Trade Expansion Urged By CMA Executive

After hearing Trade Minister Howe predict continuing "buoyant" demand for Canadian exports in 1948, the executive council of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association urged expansion of trade within the British Empire.

The council in a statement issued late yesterday called for removal of the 25 per cent excise tax imposed as a dollar-conservation measure and of the retail purchase tax and excise taxes started in wartime.

It said little relief in the way of lower prices could be expected until increased wages are matched by increased productivity. Government expenditures and taxation must be moderated and there must be moderation in business profits, wage demands, and in consumer demand for the scarce goods, it suggested.

A specified list of materials, parts and manufactured goods is to be placed under import control as a feature of the government's dollar-conservation program. Industry is being requested to make and buy more of its essential requirements in Canada and to become less dependent upon imports. On a long-term basis this element of the program commends itself to industry generally, as it may be looked upon as a constructive more to strengthen Canadian industry."

Mr. Howe said the proclamation of the restrictive regulations on capital goods imports was being postponed to not later than March 1 for general application and February 15 for certain special applications.

The executive council suggested that, while it was vital to expand markets in the United States and other dollar areas, the Federal Government and Canadian industrialists should seek ways and means of re-establishing and developing trade within the empire.

Dollar Saving

Mr. Harry Jackman (PC—Toronto-Rosedale) referred to the government's action in boosting the Canadian dollar to par with the American dollar in July, 1946. That action, he said, was being described by some as the "greatest administrative error in Canadian history." He charged that it worked hardship on the Canadian people and had forced the government to go "cap in hand" to Washington to seek financial assistance.

E. S. Zaplitny (CCF Dauphin) said the conservation measures constituted "the most rabid type of protectionism" Canada ever had known. They had the effect of reducing imports from the United States and creating shortages which enabled Canadian manufacturers, who were given a free hand, to reap a profit.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 14

These affairs reached a climax for me a month later with my investiture as Prince of Wales.

Not the least remarkable aspect of this particular ceremony was its revival by the Welsh Liberal leader, David Lloyd George, who only a few years before had shocked my family with his famous Limehouse speech which attacked inherited privilege.

With an eye to what would please his sentimental constituents, "L.G." proposed that the ceremony be transformed into a spectacular Welsh pageant.

My father agreed.

Mr. Lloyd George became my coach in the Welsh language, and I still have, written in his own hand, some of the Welsh sentences he taught me to speak at the investiture.

One was "Mor o gan yw Cymnu i gyd," meaning "All Wales is a sea of song."

Mr. Lloyd George made me repeat these over and over again, saying with a twinkle: "All Welshmen will love you for that."

Out of these meetings, despite our differences in years—and, I might add, in politics—grew a friendship that lasted until his death.

But that was not all.

The ceremony I had to go though with, the speech I had to make, and the Welsh I had to speak, were, I thought, sufficient ordeal for anyone.

But when a tailor appeared to measure me for a fantastic costume designed for the occasion, consisting of a mantle and surcoat of purple velvet edged with ermine, and white satin breeches, I decided things had gone too far.

I had already submitted to the Garter dress and robe, for which there existed a condoning historical precedent; but what would my Navy friends say if they saw me in this preposterous rig?

There was a family blow-up that night, but in the end my mother, as always, smoothed things over.

"You mustn't take a mere ceremony so seriously," she said. "Your friends will understand that as a prince you are obliged to do certain things that may seem a little silly. It will be only for this once."

I also got the impression, although the thought was never actually put into words, that if I only did what was asked it would help Papa in his dealings with the difficult Mr. Lloyd George.

So on a sweltering summer day within the vast grey ruin of Carnarvon Castle, before some 10,000 people, with Winston Churchill, as home secretary, mellifluously proclaiming my titles (he told me afterward that he rehearsed them on the golf course), my father invested me as Prince of Wales.

Upon my head he put a coronet cap as a token of principality, and into my hand the gold verge of government, and on my middle finger the gold ring of responsibility.

Then, leading me by the hand through an archway to one of the towers of the battlements he presented me to the people of Wales.

Half fainting of heat and nervousness, I delivered the Welsh sentences which Mr. Lloyd George, standing close by in the ancient garb of constable, had taught me.

In the midst of all this commotion, I made a painful discovery about myself.

It was that, while I was prepared to fulfil the duties bound up in my heritage, I recoiled from that which tended to set me up as a personage requiring homage.

After all, hadn't my father drilled into me that I was no better than anybody else?

And if my association with the village boys at Sandringham and the cadets of the naval colleges had done anything for me, it was to make me desperately anxious to be treated exactly like any other boy of my age.

In any case, my father, sensing what was going on in my mind, arranged for me to go to sea at once, as a midshipman.

More than that, he personally selected the ship—the coal-burning battleship Hindustan, commanded by Captain Henry Hervey Campbell, his old friend and shipmate.

The most junior "snotty" in the gun room, I served three months aboard the Hindustan, cruising up and down the East Coast of Britain.

This experience afloat provided the climax — a slightly delayed climax—of my four years' naval training and exactly the kind of life for which I had been prepared and which I quite naturally wished to pursue as a career.

In my diary, October 26—the day I left and returned to London—I wrote:

". . . They sang 'God Bless the Prince of Wales' and 'Auld Lang Syne,' which touched me very much. They cheered as the steamboat shoved off and so ended one of the happiest periods of my life . . .

"We drove to Buckingham Palace and I saw Davies the tailor who tried on a lot of clothes. Papa wishes me to get into tails and dress clothes and I shall look an ass. But still it must be done sometim.e.' . . . "

Since it was the shooting season I went by train to Sandringham and there I learned what my father had in mind for me.

"You must remember, David," he began, "that I, too, loved the Navy, and I am therefore well aware that what I am about to say will disappoint you."

Characteristically he went to the point. First, I must give up the Navy—"too specialized."

Second, I was to take several short educational trips to France and Germany—"very important that you should learn their languages and study their politics."

Third, I was to go to Oxford for three years.

IF a child's diet lacks certain food elements serious things can happen. Stunted growth, soft bones, poor teeth! Faulty nerves, loss of appetite, defective eyesight!

Ovaltine supplements the diet with food elements frequently deficient in ordinary foods. Three glasses of Ovaltine made with milk provide a child's daily requirement of Vitamins A, B1, C, D, Riboflavin (B_2) and Niacin and Minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron.

But Ovaltine is more than just a vitamin and mineral carrier. It also provides basic food substances — complete proteins to build muscle, nerve and body cells — high-energy foods for vitality and endurance. It thus acts as an insurance against food deficiencies that retard normal growth.

So if your child can't gain weight, is thin, and nervous, or eats poorly, why not turn to delicious Ovaltine?

Use Of Ontario Power Said Up 25 Per Cent

OSHAWA, Jan. 27 — Ontario's demands for electricity have risen 25 per cent since the war, W. Ross Strike, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, said today. "The hydro load in this province has doubled during the past decade and we already have one of the lowest hydro rates in the world," Strike declared, in an address to Oshawa Rotarians.

One of the chief reasons for hydro shortage today was the increased use of electric power due to the high costs of fuel oil and coal, Strike claimed. Curtailment of wastage, such as leaving lights to burn unnecessarily, might go a long way toward remedying the situation, he said.

150 Die In U.S. In Cold Wave

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 — (AP). — The midwest United States got a new batch of frigid weather from central Canada today, the third cold wave in a week in which 150 deaths were attributed to the cold and snowy weather.

The fresh mass of cold air centred in the Dakotas and Minnesota and moved into other sections of the central states and the Rocky Mountain region. Temperatures across the country, except in southern Florida, were below normal.

The continued cold weather throughout the eastern half of the United States found many communities curbing industrial activities as a measure to conserve fuel for domestic purposes, as in western Ontario.

Temperatures of around 30 below were reported in the icy regions of northern Minnesota near the Canadian border today and in parts of North Dakota and Montana. The mercury also skidded to below zero in New England, Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa.

Another snowstorm, the fourth in a little more than a week, was forecast tonight for New York City, still digging out from under last Saturday's four-inch fall.

CBC Reports $27,261 Deficit

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP). — Action of the CBC's Board of Governors on an application for a French language station at Edmonton will be deferred at least until March, a CBC official said Today.

The official said the application, most contentious on the agenda at the Board's three-day meeting last week, will be placed on the agenda for the March meeting.

The decision to defer action on the application was made known yesterday in a statement listing recommendations made as a result of the last meeting.

Almost simultaneously with the statement, came the release of the CBC's annual report for the 1946-47 fiscal year, tabled in the Commons by Revenue Minister McCann.

The report showed that the CBC ended the fiscal year with a deficit of $27,261 despite an increase in revenues from both radio receiving set licenses and from commercial programs.

The Board's action in the case is limited to making a recommendation. Final authority on licenses rests with the transport department.

Close Vote Seen As Truman Backs Seawa

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP). — Senator Kenneth Wherry (Rep.-Neb.), acting majority leader of the United States Senate, said today "a very close vote" will decide the fate of legislation to authorize the St. Lawrence seaway and power project which President Truman "strongly" recommends.

Wherry's observation came as the Senate took the day off in the debate on the joint Canada-United States project.

Wherry could not predict if legislation to make the St. Lawrence river navigable to ocean shipping and create a 2,200,000-horsepower hydro-electric plant would pass or not. A final vote could not be expected before Friday "at the earliest."

Truman's endorsement of the project, which has been under consideration for more than 50 years, was contained in identical letters yesterday to Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.-Mich.), president of the Senate, and Speaker Joseph Martin (Rep.-Mass.)

"I am personally convinced," Truman wrote, "of the need for this project . . . and I strongly recommend the Congress enact legislation authorizing (it)."

He recalled that all presidents for the last 25 years have given the development "strong support."

What Kind Of Exhibition?

There seemed to be a burst of optimism at the Peterborough Agriculture Society's meeting last week. A Board of Directors for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was elected and it was decided to hold a fair this year. It is very late to be arriving at such a decision unsupported by any planning or specific direction. No president has been elected, and no date set for a later meeting of the Directors. There has been no Peterborough Exhibition for half a dozen years and the people who are to organize it will almost literally have to work from the ground up. How much of the vague enthusiasm for a fair this year stemmed from a desire to retain the tenant rights to the Morrow Trust property — the Exhibition Grounds? Is the present Board of Directors prepared to get down to work and organize a good fair?

* * *

What kind of fair will it be? Is it to be a money-making, noise-making midway with headaches, hot-dogs and hullabaloo, surrounded by half-empty show barns? Will local farmers and breeders support it if it is in the Class A category, with prize-lists open to all comers? Will it get the support of various breeders' associations which now favour individual Field Days? Will local industry co-operate and not merely set up dull show-window exhibits in the Manufacturers' Building?

* * *

We think that there is an opportunity in this city to have a good Fair, but it will be an opportunity missed if the Board of Directors doesn't soon get down to examination of its purposes and an implementing of definite plans. A Peterborough Exhibition which is merely a weak copy of the Toronto, London or Ottawa exhibitions has little reason for existing. To be worth while and to attract visitors as well as exhibitors it must be unique; it must be local. More showmanship is needed in exhibiting farm animals and produce. (A factory worker's interest would be stimulated if he knew that the cow he was looking at in the Cow Barn was not just a cow, but a Holstein owned by such-and-such a farmer on the Chemong Road and that Holsteins are remarkable for the volume of milk they produce but not for their beef.) Very few people other than the men who work in them have an opportunity to visit our local factories. The factories should welcome the opportunity to display not their common wares, but the special products, and to show if possible the manufacturing processes.

* * *

When the Directors decided why they want to hold an exhibition and realize that a prime necessity is that it be local, aimed almost solely at the people of this district, then there is a possibility that the Fair will be worth putting on and worth attending. If it is to be as mediocre as the last few held before the war, the Directors might as well stop playing with the idea of holding a Peterborough Exhibition this year or any year.

Generals In Politics

General Eisenhower's statement that he will not accept the Republican nomination for the presidency of the United States has two points of interest. The first is that it decreases the chances of a Republican being elected, for he was the one potential Republican candidate most likely to win against Mr. Truman. The second point is General Eisenhower's belief that a professional soldier has neither the training nor the background to fit him for high political office.

The United States has several generals in high semi-political office: Marshall, the Secretary of State; MacArthur, administrator of Japan; Bedell Smith, ambassador to Russia. But these men do not depend on votes to obtain office, nor are their activities directly limited by domestic politics. In their present offices they are called on (Marshall more than the others) to employ the administrative and diplomatic powers which any general in wartime must possess in addition to his knowledge of tactics and strategy. General Eisenhower's greatness as Supreme Allied Commander grew more from his administrative and diplomatic skill than from his ability as a strategist in a strictly military sense. If any professional soldier of modern times could acceptably fulfil the office of President of the United States, General Eisenhower would have been the man.

But General Eisenhower has refused to become a candidate. His reputation will therefore not suffer as did the Duke of Wellington's, who became Prime Minister of Britain after he had become the hero of Waterloo. Generals are accustomed to giving orders and to disciplined subordinates. They cannot pamper and cajole voters and minor politicians any better than they can chivvy private soldiers who have chips on their shoulders. There is no such thing as democracy in an army, and a general at the head of a democratic state is liable to give it undemocratic leadership.

It is well for a state in both peace and war to keep military power separate from and subordinate to the civil power. General Eisenhower stated the matter clearly.

> It would be unalloyed tragedy if future military commanders were selected with an eye to their potentialities in the political field. It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to the civil power will be best sustained when lifelong professional soldiers abstain from seeking high political office.

Cold Weather And The Canadian Character

The effect of our weather on our character is worthy of at least a Ph.D. thesis—in fact, it has already been the subject of a learned dissertation by Sylvester D. Zaney, Ph.D., entitled Frigidity and Canadianism: A Critical Analysis. We shall mention here only one aspect of the subject—the superstition that cold weather is good for the Canadian soul.

Persons who believe that flagellation of the body makes for intenser spirituality will not question the proposition, for sixty degrees of frost and a north wind are stronger whips than any mediaeval monk could devise. Others whom sub-zero weather enrages or embitters might think that cold weather damns the soul, or at least unsettles it damnably. They should look about them before they curse the gods for unkind weather.

Who has more liveliness of spirit—a blanched society flower who will not venture out of her superheated apartment without a mink coat and a heated limousine, or a ruddy farmer from the north of this county who whistles while he wood-chops? Who is best able to scorn the lashes of sudden adversity—the humming-bird secretary fluttering over her typewriter in a Hollywood (sunny Californian) office or the Canadian businessman who slips and falls on the curling rink? How slow and meek of spirit are the people of Victoria, B.C., who can play golf in winter, compared with a Winnipeg stock-broker lustily chin-chinning with a fellow optimist at the corner of Portage and Main in that gusty city.

Look into your own heart—or hold a mirror up to your spirit. Did you not feel brave, hardy and buoyant last Friday when the thermometer didn't rise above zero? Did your heart not sing and your spirits bubble over as you felt the delicious sting of the breeze and the bite of the frost? Didn't you go gaily home to your meal like a conqueror and say to your wife: "What, you haven't been out all day! Certainly it's cold. Good for a person. A bit of fresh air. Look, I froze my nose! Well, what do you think of that! Reminds me of the day...."

You didn't? You didn't feel like Moses leading the tribes of Israel or like Monty at the head of the Eighth Army? You must be one of those strange, un-Canadian types who like to laze in the July sun and sip Mint Juleps. Tush.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Economists have the cart before the horse. They prattle about devaluing money, instead of devaluing things like butter, meat and cars.

The Toronto City Council is proposing to put a tax on race-track bettors. Revenues from the tax would not, we presume, be used to provide better churches.

The longer skirt is termed a hazard by a British safety group, because it catches in the back wheel of a bicycle. Old-timers can say this is where they came in.—Windsor Star.

Argentine's Peron

By RAY JOSEPHS

HE'S aged a good deal, this tall, now graying militarist who now runs Latin America's leading country. His energy is down, his chain smoking up. But General Juan D. Peron is still the key personality in Argentina. He is the face on the posters hung everywhere. The voice on the radio. The centre of every debate. And the man whose activities are most closely quoted, talked about, felt in every Argentine's everyday action—and in the actions of an increasing number of other Latin Good Neighbours.

Yet the major trend I've noted here is that a move is already developing — as in Germany—to preserve Peron and throw some of his top aides to the wolves because "The Leader's" vast plans for making Argentina the undisputed top power of the southern hemisphere have not gone as well as expected.

◇ ◇ ◇

MANY Argentines are already saying: "He himself is not so bad. It's those people around him and particularly her." By "her", they of course mean Dona Eva Duarte de Peron, long time mistress and since late '44 the wife of the President. Undoubted Number 2 figure in Argentina, she's a mixture of shrewd political idealist, vixen and aggressive feminist who has aroused more bitterness than any woman in recent Latin history and caused many an Argentine to say: "We don't have one dictator—but two."

She is not a power behind the throne, she actually has a throne of her own, makes her own appointees and profits hugely from an amazing variety of business ventures.

Some opponents told me the top group has profited so greatly and has so much on one another that the only way of getting rid of anyone would be to murder him as the Hitler gang sometimes did, which "isn't necessary because there is still enough to go around." Others insist that since the cream is getting thinner, a break may come before long.

◇ ◇ ◇

IT was the thirst for power and glory which put Peron in the Casa Rosada—Argentina's pink coloured White House. And it's that same thirst which has kept him at the top since. Today his charm seems more forced than when I first knew him in 1942. Yet it can't be called an act because Peron is sincerely convinced he's Argentina's saviour and that everyone loves him.

But his current almost coy pretense of modesty, his ingratiating way, his habit of rubbing his hands while asking what he can possibly do for you, gives a definite impression of a man who, for all his energy, seems just a little tired of it all.

Eczema has broken out on both sides of his face, visible only close-up. He prefers Chesterfields to national cigarettes, turns on a practised smile for photographers and favourite guests, has become leery of foreign interviewers except en masse.

HE remains an indefatigable traveller and talker; in the last 92 weeks he has given 59 broadcasts which had to be carried by every Argentine radio station plus an incalculable number over single Buenos Aires and Provincial outlets.

Some diplomatic observers say that although painted as a Nazi, Peron today shows little of the German approach which he learned at first hand during tours of duty in Italy and the Reich. "There's nothing wrong in his aims, it's simply that he is going about getting them the worst way," one told me. Opponents, on the other hand, point out that Peron exists "only because Argentina's Army was Nazi trained and because he adopted Berlin ideas and improved on them."

SUMMING up Peron's status, most observers I contacted feel he has four prime supporters. First, labour. Second the Army. Third the church. And last, the Nationalists. If Peron should lose the military there's little doubt labour would be strong enough to keep him in power on its own. If he should lose labour, the Army might very well abandon him since a good deal of his hold on the officers corps has been based on the fact that it has realized Peron was the first and only militarist to obtain a grip on this key force.

Peron's biggest, best organized following is in Buenos Aires and the provincial capitals. Pay increases and work reforms which have won him support can be enforced in urban meat packing, textile, other manufacturing firms. The estancieros and the farmers farther away not only often ignore Peron's decrees but keep up their own counter offensive.

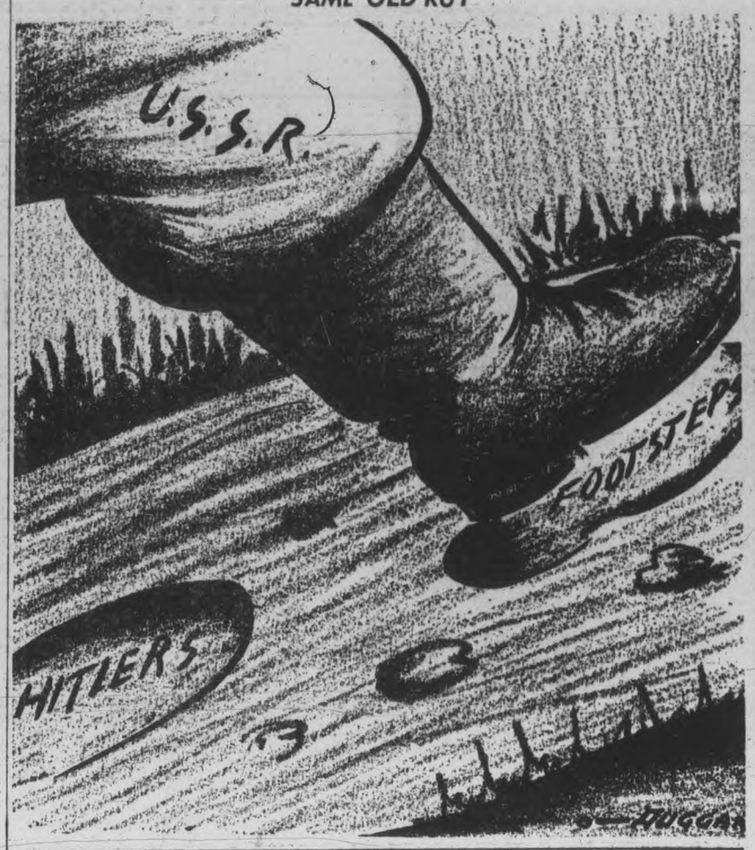
IN a fair and honest election—and the next ballotings are scheduled for March—it is generally conceded that Peron would win. To a large extent this would be by default because there is not yet any well organized, effective opposition or candidate and Peron has managed to keep his enemies divided.



They feel graft and inefficiency is increasing, that Evita is too prominent and that Peron's increasingly warm relations with the U.S. are making Argentina a stooge for Uncle Sam — which to their minds is the worst possible calamity.

A Beneficent Law

The managers of many stores have noted that the demand for children's clothes is greater since September, 1946. And it is no secret that everywhere, including Quebec, the schools are fuller than ever. Children receiving medical, dental and optical care are also more numerous. The list of benefits arising from family welfare allocations could be further multiplied. Furthermore many parents who cannot be classified as poor, or who refuse to be such in spite of the slenderness of their incomes, are using the monthly cheque from the allocations to pay endowment insurance. Later on, whatever be the hazards of life, their children can easily complete their studies. Indeed whatever may be the consequences of the innumerable laws passed in Canada since 1867, whether by the central power or by the provinces, it would be difficult to find one with more beneficial results.—Le Soleil, Quebec.

Letters To The Editor

THE PACKERS' SIDE OF THE STORY

Sir: A few days ago I received through the mail, a clipping of an 'Examiner' editorial of Friday, January 9th, entitled: "Are Price Ceilings the Answer?" I presume that I am considered one of those "industrialists who are causing the price increase". Or, to select a choicer phrase, one of those "greedy capitalists whose wolfishness can make the whole system of capitalism stink in the nostrils of honest men".

The facts are quite simple.

On Monday, January 5th, the Government announced the terms of the new contracts with the U.K. The products affected were beef, eggs, cheese and bacon. The effect of the new contracts was to establish a floor price for each of these products.

The new contracts had no immediate effect on domestic prices of beef (as beef is not at present being exported), nor of eggs or cheese until the new contracts take effect on February 1st and April 1st respectively.

However, the effect on pork prices was immediate. The weight of Wiltshire bacon derived from a 200 lb. hog is approximately 120 lbs. The advance in the bacon price of 7c per lb. is, therefore, equivalent to approximately $8.40 per hog.

On Tuesday morning, January 6th, the price paid for hogs on all markets of Canada was advanced approximately $8.40 per head (except insofar as the advance had already been anticipated as the result of earlier press releases).

The effect of the new contract was, therefore, to advance the domestic price of pork products the equivalent of $8.40 per hog.

This involved an equivalent profit on inventory stocks in the hands of processors. The processors did not request and did not wish this profit. Insofar as their own interest was concerned, they would be much better without it. For, when the inevitable decline occurs, they will suffer a corresponding inventory loss.

(The deflation following World War I, July 1920 forward, all but wrecked every packing company in North America.)

The dramatic advance in bacon prices touched off a storm of protest from housewives. This was not surprising. During the preceding six months there had been a spectacular advance in prices of all staple foods, —bread, milk, butter, shortening, fruits, vegetables, etc.

The cause of these advances was quite clear. During the war the Government had kept down the price of foods by means of subsidies. Step by step these subsidies were discontinued, and correspondingly, step by step, the cost of living index advanced. Between June 1st, 1947, and December 1st, 1947, the index advanced from 134.9 to 146. (The January figure has not yet been released.)

On top of this came the announcement of the new contracts (with U.K.) and the consequent advance in bacon prices.

It is true that a few retailers (probably very few) advanced bacon prices more than was necessary. No processor, so far as I know, raised prices more than the equivalent of the 7c advance. Most of them reduced their prices relatively to the advanced cost.

However, the housekeepers were in arms, and the cost of bacon became front-page stuff. A good many newspapers studied the facts and reported them. Many others, such as yours, launched a witch hunt for profiteers.

I refrain from further comment, other than to say, (what I have already made clear), that the sole beneficiary of the advance in the contract prices is the Canadian Farmer. He certainly needed some advance, as the cost of feeds had gone up. Whether that advance was too great, or whether food subsidies should have been restored, are the topics you should be discussing, and I suggest that your discussion will be more useful if you can add to your information and subtract from your invective.

Yours very truly,
J. S. McLEAN,
President.

UNITED WE STAND, DIVIDED WE FALL

Sir: Within the lives of many now living, and widely believed, was that "there never would be any more wars".

Then came the terrible war of 1914-1918 with British dead more than a million men. Then, less than a quarter century of 'peace'; surely the struggle of 1918-1939 'poverty amidst plenty'. The depression was not peace.

Then the holocaust of Hitler—1939-1945, ending with the Japanese, and the atomic bomb.

Again, an increasing struggle, industrial and economic, with hectic unrest. Never was the world so divided into two camps as now —Communism and Democracy. Russia has eastern Europe and strives westerly even to align our citizens with Communism.

Britain has borne the brunt of two wars, and of the last war, two years almost alone, until Russia, and our cousins were themselves attacked.

Democracy, the right to public expression to all, and each, freedom, shall it yet live? That is the concern of each alert person, and to advance our present civilization, as is preached. With this day's news, is France and West Europe more closely bound with Britain than my native Province of Quebec? I was born in mid-Montreal and have a right to protest the pulling down of the Union Jack to hoist another flag, not the flag of this great land of liberty and equal rights.

Russia strives night and day, for one world —Communism. Canada must be united in this world struggle for freedom of the individual. Thank you,

JOSEPH S. BELL.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

How excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. (Ps. 36: 7.)

◇ ◇ ◇

A father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows, is God in his holy habitation. God setteth the solitary in families: he bringeth out those which are bound with chains. (Ps. 68: 5, 6.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For the Lord's portion is his people; Jacob is the lot of his inheritance. He found him in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness; he led him about, he instructed him, he kept him as the apple of his eye.

As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings; so the Lord alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him. (Deut. 32: 9-12.)

◇ ◇ ◇

And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.... We love him, because he first loved us. (1 John 16, 19.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"I see you have a sign in your shop, 'We aim to please,'" remarked the customer.

"Certainly," replied the shopkeeper, "that's our motto."

"Well," said the customer, "you ought to take a little time off for target practice!"

The night was still young but the party was dull, with the result the debutante yawned openly in her escort's face.

"I hope I'm not keeping you up, darling," said he.

With a bored smile, she replied: "Yes, but not awake."

Lions Bantams Defeat Morrow Park

Lions bantams racked up another win in Lakefield last night, blanking Morrow Park Club 6-0 in a speedy PMHA tilt. Stewart scored early and then Pammett counted, aided by Ferguson. In the second heat, Pammett passed to Langhorne, who deflected the disc into the cord. In the third, Langhorne was off and Morrow Park pressed but Stewart stole the puck to tally. Stewart then fed a forward pass to Pammett, who split defence and picked a corner. Pammett added his third goal before the end. Teams:

Ex. Was Checked For Second Rink

Dear Sir:

Allow me a little space in your valuable columns in regards to a secondary rink.

A meeting has been called for Thursday night in the Market Hall to discuss the building of a secondary rink, and I hope the public will turn out in large numbers, as the site and finances seem to be the main problems.

In regard to a site, there are plenty of them: CGE rink on Park St., corner Western, Chamberlain and Ford, a very large lot, the lot east of Miller Bowl, the lot between Ford and High St. where the city dumps the garbage, and many more.

As for finances, a committee of men in Nov., 1946, were after a rink for the hockey teams and a study was made of the drill shed at the Exhibition Grounds. After getting all details, which are too numerous to mention, they held a meeting on Nov. 21, inviting Mr. Jebson, and explaining that the drill shed would be a perfect rink as well as used for other things by extending it 62 feet in length. Th Exhibition Board thought it a good idea. There would be seating capacity for 1,700 besides standing room, and the cost would be about $25,000. Mr. Jebson, when asked, said that if the general Centre committee would agree with him, he was willing to ask permission to use interest earned for early establishment of a temporary rink.

But the next word received was that everything was about settled to have the Memorial Centre built at the Exhibition Grounds, so we saw our dream fade away. Now, let this meeting take a firm grip on it and no more eggshell promises. Let us go to the meeting full of pep and in earnest to get a rink built this summer so our citizens can watch hockey without travelling to outside places.

FORMER PLAYER.

Northenders In Tie With Marines, 2-2

Marines and Northenders went to a 2-2 PMHA draw last night in their Lakefield juvenile fixture, each scoring twice in the first period of a neat number. Cournyea counted the first and Jones got another from Robinson. For the other side, Simpson scored from Parker, with Davies tallying. Teams:

Whipper Watson-Masked Marvel Clash Looms As Highlight Of Local Mat Season

BEN SHARPE

British Empire Wrestling Champion Whipper Billy Watson takes on a really tough assignment in the Brock St. Arena ring tomorrow night when he wrestles with the Masked Marvel in the main bout. The Whipper is tops around this part of the world and the hooded terror has managed to keep going along in the winning brackets for some time now and it will take all of Watson's superlative mat stuff to dislodge him. If Billy flattens the secretive grappler the mask must be taken off in the ring and the fans will get a good look at the face which has intrigued them for so long.

Peace Long Way Off With Mexican League

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP). — Peace between organized baseball in the United States and the Mexican league apparently is a long way off.

Jorge Pasquel, who induced a number of players to jump their organized ball contracts three years ago, said yesterday he was going to Cuba next week to sign players for the coming season.

"I don't care what they are, American, Cuban, Mexican. If they want to play baseball and not just have a good time, I will pay them," Pasquel said.

Pasquel termed the recent peace talks between Mexican Commissioner Alejandro Aguilar Reyes and Walter Mulbry, secretary to baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler as inconsequential.

"If Chandler wants to do anything he must talk to me personally. Nothing can be done by a tourist," the monied magnate said.

"I thought you no longer were the head man in Mexican baseball," remarked a reporter.

Jorge Pasquel is the head man," he replied. "When Pasquel runs a business, he runs it.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Big puck battle tonight is the OHA senior "B" fixture in Lindsay between Belleville Vets and the Petes, starting at 8.30. While there is sure to be a good crowd, it won't be jam-packed like when Petes and Legion clashed there—and no special train being run—so there should be plenty of room for all local fans this time. The speedy and husky Quinte crew will be stronger now, with Walt Gerow aboard, and they're out to move into a second-place tie with Kingston. A win tonight will do it for them, shunting Legion back in the basement. So we expect to see the Legionnaires really fighting for this one. Yeah, it'll be well worth seeing.

* * * * * *

A stern warning to lay off bumping referees is implied by the OHA executive in suspending Lloyd Mohns of Brantford senior "A" hockeyists for two years. Mohns recently lost his temper in Owen Sound and cross-checked the referee hard when penalized. So he will sit it out for the next two years and, by then, may be too old to play senior "A". The recent outcry by the press against players roughing up referees apparently is producing results, so we'd advise local gees with hot tempers to think twice before touching an OHA arbiter. It just isn't worth it.

Why Not the Drill Hall?

There's a letter in today re a secondary rink and the meeting being held Thursday night in the Market Hall discussing all angles of this project. We cut out a too critical para of the letter since the writer didn't want his name mentioned, though he gave it. One point of interest was his discussion of plans which had been made more than a year ago to enlarge the drill hall at Morrow Park for such a rink. A committee had made excellent progress with the Exhibition Board, even having blue prints drawn and an estimate of the cost made. But it was stalled when the Memorial Centre project returned—if briefly—to the scene. But it's out now as a Centre site.

* * * * * *

So why not seriously consider this again? Get the okay of the Exhibition Board (a government grant could be obtained as this would be used for exhibition purposes) to enlarge it and fix it up suitably for a secondary rink, which would always be needed here. And let a contractor set a price on it. A suitable rink could result for maybe $30,000, whereas it might cost twice that to build a new one. And there would be plenty of parking space there as well as good traffic arteries and bus service. The arena would belong to the Exhibition Board, of course, under terms of the Morrow Trust, but Peterborough would have a rink next winter and henceforth, and there'd be no rush to have the Memorial Centre built.

Church Leaguers Battle

Senior section of the Church Hockey League concluded its schedule last night with the two Salvation Army teams suffering reverses. Their No. 1 squad lost 3-1 to George St. as the No. 2 bunch were edged 3-2 by Mark St. Semi-final sawoffs started in both bantam sections as Mark St. mauled George St. 11-1, and St. James took a protested 3-2 nod over St. George's. Mark St. hammered St. George's 9-1 in a midget tussle, while All Saints won from Murray St. 8-4, though this one also was protested. More headaches for the executive.

* * * * * *

Some of the Trent Valley League results of last night trickle through ere we put this pillar to bed. Marmora got revenge on Norwood with an 8-3 smirk, Hastings nosed out Tweed 4-3, Stirling swamped Frankford 20 to 3, and Campbellford roared to a 16-6 verdict against Madoc. Didn't catch the Lakefield-Warkworth account. Games tomorrow in the TVL are: Stirling at Warkworth, Campbellford at Tweed, Norwood at Madoc, Marmora at Lakefield—that ought to be a keen contest—and Frankford vs. Hastings at Norwood. Schedule runs more than two weeks yet before playoffs commence.

Concerning The Cagers

Nurses had to hustle plenty last p.m. in the YW to yank out a 25-23 decision over Normals. Both teams had their followings on hand for this scheduled windup and fans saw a wide-open and exciting tilt. Normals finished stronger but kicked away the victory on poor shooting on free tosses. A. Bowler, J. Plunkett and S. Curtis led Nurses' attack, while J. Ashley, L. Homan, R. Jordan and P. Brown were the snipers for Normals. Playoffs probably start Friday. PCVS teams are away this week-end, while Marines' men have two jousts in the Collegiate.

Oshawa Generals Join Windsor At Top Of Ontario Hockey Loop

By The Canadian Press

Windsor's lonely vigil on the junior loop's top rung ended last night — for a few days — when Tommy Anderson's Oshawa Generals hopped up to join them.

The Generals notched their 47th and tieing point with a 3-1 decision over the fifth-place Stratford Kroehlers in an Ontario Hockey Association junior A fixture at Stratford.

Stratford was luckier in the senior race when, with six seconds left in the game, shifty Stratford forward Mickey Roth picked up a loose puck in a Toronto goalmouth scramble to beat Toronto Marlboro netminder Howie Harvey and give the third-place Indians a 2-1 victory over Joe Primeau's second-place Dukes at Toronto.

Hamilton Patricias strengthened their hold on sixth place in the senior race by defeating the cellar-dwelling Brantford Redmen 9-6 at Brantford. Pats need no more wins to go into the playoffs with a record of eight victories and one tie in their 36-game schedule, so far.

23rd Win

It was Oshawa's 23rd win in 29 starts at Stratford, Referee Frank Elliott handled a rough tilt with 12 penalties handed out. George Scholes scored the only first period goal giving Oshawa a 1-0 lead. Matt Mesich tied it up in the second frame but the Generals clinched it in the final session when Eric Pogue and Joe LaFrance tallied two more.

The Indians came from behind in Toronto's contest, midway through the last stanza to tie the game on Mike Dziura's goal after Harry Psutka had scored for Marlie in the first period. Stratford held the edge in play for their win which was climaxed by Roth's winning tally after a series of Stratford ganging plays.

Bentley After Scoring Title

MONTREAL, Jan. 27 (CP). — The way Max Bentley, Toronto's hard - shooting, stickhandling wizard has been climbing up the National hockey scoring ladder in the last few weeks, the Saskatchewan speedster is an even-money bet to walk off with his third straight NHL scoring title.

Official statistics released today show Bentley with 39 points, two behind the leader, Buddy O'Connor of New York Rangers who has 41. Although Bentley failed to gain on the Ranger playmaking ace during the week—each collected three points—he has been moving steadily up the list since being traded to the Leafs by Chicago two months ago.

Syl Apps, the Toronto veteran who led the scoring parade for five weeks in a row earlier in the season, could only garner one goal in Leafs' last three games to slip to a third-place tie with Chicago's Norman (Bud) Poile, another marksman who has been going great guns of late. Each has 36 points.

Detroit's Jim McFadden, current favorite for rookie-of-the-year honors, holds down fifth spot with 35 points, while Ted Lindsay of the Red Wings and Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens are tied for sixth spot with 34 apiece.

Olympic Group To Rule On Team

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 27.—(AP). —The executive committee of the International Olympic committee, ready to consider the ice hockey controversy which threatens to upset winter Olympic games opening Friday, today postponed its session until tomorrow because of the absence of two members.

Lord Aberdare of Great Britain and Co. P. W. Scharroo of Holland failed to arrive at St. Moritz by the time the committee met this morning. Interruption of plane flights was given as the reason.

"For such an important meeting we did not feel we should go on," a spokesman said. The committee probably will meet tomorrow, he indicated.

Ottawa Groups Promote Canadian Plays

By KAY REX
Canada Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 —(CP)— For some years now Little Theatre groups—both French and English-speaking—have been holding out a welcoming hand to would-be playwrights and Canadian-written plays.

"French audiences especially are demanding plays with Canadian backgrounds," said Guy Beauline, a director of Le Caveau, one of French Canada's outstanding schools for amateur actors.

"But while there is an increasing need for such plays, there's a shortage of authors, most of whom are turning out radio scripts which are worth more money," he said.

In order to encourage more stage writing both the workship of Le Caveau and of the Ottawa Drama League have launched Dominion-wide playwriting competitions.

"Eros at Breakfast," by Robertson Davies, editor of the Peterborough Examiner, won the $100 first prize in the O.D.L. Workshop's competition last year. This is one of two short plays which the groups has chosen as an entry in the Eastern Ontario regional festival next month at Kingston.

"The Workshop, as a matter of policy, always puts an original play in the festival," said Michael Meikle-john, an ODL official.

He also said that the $100 ward for the best Canadian play of the Dominion Drama Festival, is based on the play as written, not upon its presentation.

A Regional Award

The prize will be given on the recommendation of the regional adjudicator, and not on the recommendation of the Dominion adjudicator. Last year as there was no regional adjudicator, the award was not made.

The French-speaking Eastern Ontario regional festival here next month has two Canadian-written plays among the entries. "Mal Donne," by Arthur Prevost of Montreal, has been chosen for presentation by the newly-formed Les Cercles Gascon of Hawkesbury, Ont.

"Un Homme et Trois Femmes," by Dr. Marius Barbeau of Ottawa, and Juliette Dupont of Montreal, has been entered by Ottawa's Cercle Saint Jean-Baptiste.

Entries from across Canada are pouring into this year's play-writing contest sponsored by the workshop of Le Caveau.

Whether or not a winner of one of the four cash prizes in the competition, every contestant is assured a careful criticism of his play.

"There's no point in having a playwriting contest if the plays aren't put on, because only through production can both actors and authors profit," said Mr. Beauline. "Worshop members are still checking the plays from last year's contest for technical faults."

FARMERS AIDED

When food was short in Britain during the war, the food ministry organized films, talks and practical demonstrations to help farmers grow more food.

RUSSIAN CITY REBULIT—The city of Kharkov, which was badly ruined by the Nazi war machine, from air bombardment and ground gunfire, is now back on its feet again. On top is a view of the city during the war. The buildings are empty and all that remains are just the shells. There are no windows. At the bottom—made from the same camera point—is the city of Kharkov today. Kharkov, an industrial city, is now back on its feet. The city has been rebuilt and lights again burn in the business section and office buildings.

Church Installs New Officers

HAVELOCK, Jan. 27—(ENS). —Annual dedication and candle lighting ceremony marked the installation of officers of Havelock United Church on Sunday evening, conducted by Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh.

As the name of each office-bearer was called, he lit a candle at the altar and took his place, commencing with the members of session, from each side of the pulpit down the aisles forming a circle of light.

The officers are:

Free Enterprise Threat Profiteers

QUEBEC, Jan. 27. (CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said today that profiteers, more than anything else threatens the system of free enterprise in Canada and the rest of the world and in this country the government "intends to deal with them as they should be dealt with."

Canada had come out of the war with a very fine economic record, he said in a speech prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the Canadian Construction Association. She did not want it besmirched now by profiteers "to whom the living standards of the people apparently mean nothing as long as they can make profits which ultimately prove to be illusory gains."

Mr. Mitchell told the construction men that import restrictions on such things as structural steel, shortly to go into effect, would be maintained until trade with the United States has been brought more in balance.

He also dealt at length with Canada's employment picture and government plans for bringing 22,000 displaced persons to this country.

Deal With Profiteers

The minister made scathing references to profiteers and said the government intended to "deal" with them.

"I submit," he said, "that such persons are doing our country a great deal of harm. To us who believe in the system of free enterprise which has made this country great, the unfortunate fact is that there is evidence of irresponsibility on the part of those who should know better.

"That is just the sort of thing in which leaders of certain political ideologies take a keen delight, because it lends weight to their propaganda for a planned economy based on the principle of state direction of the individual."

Competitive Challenge

The minister said trade was all-important to Canada, but it was obvious that she was not going to continue to find markets abroad if the cost of her goods went up and up. Canada was going to have to meet a competitive challenge in the trade field.

There was concern about "where we are going to stop in the matter of costs."

The minister referred to the work of the National Employment Service which placed 769,849 workers last year, including 13,600 handicapped men and women and 248,095 veterans, 7,105 of them handicapped.

Dealing with immigration of displaced persons, Mr. Mitchell said these would include 5,500 woods workers, 2,516 clothing workers, 3,000 domestic workers, 3,234 heavy laborers, 1,000 building construction workers, 2,050 outside rural construction workers, 2,000 agricultural workers, 2,457 metal miners, 200 textile workers and 100 boot and shoe workers.

The minister said that all these displaced persons coming to Canada get a "thorough screening" and added "let me emphasize that we are certainly not bringing in known Communists.

1947 — Another Record Year

THROUGH its 73 years the London Life has constantly recognized its responsibility to render Canadians as much assistance as possible in providing security for their families and themselves.

From this standpoint, 1947 was the greatest year in the Company's history. The $207,069,000 of life insurance purchases arranged through our field men exceeded the amount for any previous year, and today nearly one-seventh of all life insurance bought in Canada is issued by the London Life. The life insurance in force also increased by the record amount of $148,481,000, and now stands at $1,429,582,000. The London Life family of policyholders numbers over 800,000, and because of the diversified nature of the Company's service this group is made up of people in all walks of life.

The assets of the Company increased during the year by $22,340,000 and now total $269,554,000. Over 92% of this amount is required to meet the Company's liabilities to its policyholders, and there remain Surplus Funds of $20,486,000 as an assurance of safety and stability. The [illegible] strength, low net cost to policyholders, and service by selected and skilled representatives accounts for the London Life's continued progress and its present outstanding position.

The first was at 11.52 a.m. at the residence of Hugh Fife, 219 Barnardo Ave. A plugged chimney was also reported at that address. At 12.05 the second call was made from 354 Stewart St., residence of Wm. Boyle. No damage in either case.

A WINNING TEAM

Peterborough Business Men's Association and the Lions club proved a winning combination in the plan to raise money for financing the Cleveland Sportsman's Show booth. SNOW COSTS $40,000

Debited to 1947 snow in the accounting of the board of works is the amount of $40,000, City Engineer Chalmers told the Dodds committee last night. To the end of November the expenditure was $30,000. December tacked $10,000 on to that aggregate of payments. That represents more than a mill in the tax rate for removing snow from sidewalks and streets, sanding both.

Music Festival Now Open To All Ontario

The second annual Peterborough Kiwanis Club Festival of Music will be held in George Street United Church commencing March 15, 1948.

Last year's Festival of Music proved to be a decided success despite the many difficulties that had to be surmounted after being the first festival held in Peterborough for more than 20 years.

Tangible results in the success of the festival are recorded, and the promoters are gratified in the knowledge that Miss K. Doris, the Gold Medallist in the verse speaking section is now in Toronto studying voice culture with a view to a career. The Peterborough Festival of Music has become affiliated with the Musical Competition Festivals of Canada. One of the advantages accruing from this affiliation is that Peterborough may receive visits and advice from some of the higher rated musical directors from the United Kingdom who make annual tours of Canada. Receiving this recognition and advice from such world musical directors of world repute can do much to give the Peterborough Festival of Music the assistance it may require in improvement from year to year.

English Adjudicator

Alec Redshaw of London, England will be the adjudicator this year. The Festival for 1948 will be open to the whole of the province of Ontario and not limited to the neighboring counties as was the case in 1947. Another development of consequence is the scholarships that will be awarded this year. There will be four, one will be the Gliddon Memorial Scholarship for the violin, another will be a piano scholarship, there will be a vocal scholarship award and also a verse speaking scholarship. Last year the top prizes were gold medals.

After the last festival there was some discussion as to the question that some of the pieces were not suitable, but this problem has been surmounted by the forming of a committee from a public meeting that was called. This meeting consisted of all members of the public who were interested in musical festivals, the parents of those taking part and members of the musical teaching profession. From this group the following Music Selection Committee has been formed:—Mrs. F. Green, Miss M. Harstone, Mrs. C. Renaud, Mr. C. Searles, Mrs. E. Foster, Mr. Fred Mann, Mrs. R. Williamson, Mrs. F. Turner, Mr. F. Sullivan, Mr. J. Minnicola, Mr. Fred Brooks (Port Hope), Mr. W. H. Peryer, Miss M. Clarry, Mr. H. Northrop, Mr. C. Allen, Mrs. J. McColl, Miss Musa Cox, Mrs. G. Kilborn, Mr. W. Morrow, Mr. R. L. Hale, Miss E. Rahmel and Mr. K. S. Wightman.

Members of the Musical Festival Committee are S. Northrop (chairman), W. Gemmell, T. Rodger, V. McCabe, E. Bartlett, R. Raine and D. Fitzgerald.

Mrs. G. W. Craw, 774 Aylmer Street, has been appointed the official accompanist through the Festival.

Mrs. G. K. Fraser Re-elected For Second Term

In the election of officers, Mrs. G. K. Fraser was unanimously re-elected president for 1948. Other officers elected are First vice-president, T. A. Butcher; second vice-president, C. H. Bacon; directors for two years are Mrs. Clara Baker, Mrs. E. C. Williams, L. Ritchie, K. Kemp, and A. Lee. Auditors appointed for 1948 are Fred Holmes, J. S. Mason and H. L. Beale.

Reports of the committee for 1947 were adopted. At the meeting the Junior Society reported that from a total of $313 for 1947 their expenditure was $300. The total income of the senior society for the past year was $1,872, with expenditures amounting to $1,869, leaving a balance of $3.00.

"Temagami Ranger," a specially produced film on forest fires, showing how they are started and how they may be prevented, was shown in technicolor by Jack Thompson, Public Relations Officer for the Department of Lands and Forests. This film has been specially produced for schools and summer camps in order that the public may realize how easily a major conflagration can be started. A cigarette butt dropped from a car, a camp fire left smouldering, or a match dropped carelessly on the ground can do harm.

This film was considered outstanding in the manner it showed the enormous damage that can be done by a forest fire, and being a technicolored pproduction with the accompanying sound effects it is considered one of the most realistic films of its kind.

"Realm of the Wild" was another film shown. This depicted the wild life in the various National Parks of the United States, and showed what care and attention is given to preserve the wild life there. The problems experienced in the management of these National Parks, in the matter of safeguarding these animals, was an interesting part of the film.

A short followed entitled "Fish Tales," and showed a day in the life of a fly fisherman enjoying the sport amongst the speckled trout of Schreiber River, Canada.

The films were thoroughly enjoyed by the members of the Horticultural Society, and a vote of thanks was passed for the work of the Department of Lands and Forests in permitting the films to be shown at their annual meeting.

Urge Dept. Lands, Forests Announce Fish Seasons By Mid-January If Possible

Four films depicting outdoor life, ranging from sport to agriculture, were shown to the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association at its January meeting held in the Cribbage Club room, George St., Monday night. Charlie Kingan, chairman reforestation and restocking, told of plans to plant fish in local lakes and streams suitable for the appropriate variety. He mentioned grey trout, pickerel, maskinonge, brown trout and bass as the ones to be specially cultivated.

Speaking on reforestation he said that the extensive growing of Christmas trees in time might pay for the taxes levied on the ordinary citizen at present. He pointed out that this was for the community's benefit, not for the advantage of any particular group of citizens.

Mention was made of the intention of resuming the Rifle Club which proved an outstanding success last year. It would be under the supervision of Frank Barker and would provide local riflemen with an opportunity of proving their skill on stationary and moving targets.

Charlie Kingan asked those who had a surplus supply of alfalfa, hay or weed seed to offer it as food for game which might starve in the latter stages of the winter if nothing extra were provided.

Want Action At Kosh

Hilliard Tighe and Nord Bradley moved that the provincial government be approached to review the present water level of Kosh Lake as affected by the dam.

It was pointed out that resort owners would have to re-interest themselves in the stocking of fish and game if tourist industry were to continue prospering.

Moved by Art Elmhurst, Keene, that the Department of Lands be approached with a view to announcing the opening of the lunge and bass seasons as soon as possible, and in future years that it announce date of the opening by the middle of January. Motion was approved. It was felt that resort owners when advertising needed to know the exact date of opening by January so that exact information could be supplied to prospective tourists.

Four movies were shown: "Jasper National Park," "Northwest By Air," "Skiing," and "The Valley of the Tennessee." Despite the fact that it had an American theme the film illustrating the problems that beset TVA and the way it conquered these problems on a functional basis, proved to be the most popular of the four.

The agricultural technique of contour ploughing to prevent soil erosion by wind and rain, in a land fast becoming a desert due to inefficient farming methods, was particularly well received.

President Bob McCabe re-emphasized the objective of 1948 which was a membership of 1,000 members. If it so developed, he pointed out, it would be one of the largest clubs in Ontario; but it could only be realized by hard work and extensive recruiting.

GET $10 A MEETING

Board Considers Taking Over Grove School

The Peterborough Board of Education will decide within the next few weeks on the date it will take over active operation of the Grove school, Erskine Ave., if and when the private bill of the city is passed by the provincial legislature in March. The bill, which will annex part of the township of North Monaghan to the city, will mean that the operation of the Grove school will come under the direction and ownership of the city board.

The Board of Public School Trusteees of North Monaghan township area No. 1, met with the city board Monday night to discuss the matter.

It was pointed out that, should the bill pass the Legislature, there are two ways in which the transfer of operation could be effected. First the city board could take over active operation as soon as the bill became law, or it could make arrangements with the Area Board to operate the school on behalf of the city board until the end of June.

Public School Inspector K. S. Wightman expressed the opinion that, by taking over the school at the passage of the bill, it would enable the city board to familiarize itself with the staff, and other factors of the school and permit it to take over efficient operation at the beginning of the new term, integrating the school into the regular city system.

In order that a proper budget might be prepared for the operation of Grove school if taken over by the city, the North Monaghan board will give the city board a copy of its estimates for the year.

Pension Plan To Cost City $15,000 A Year

Peterborough's pension plan for civic employeees will receive its third reading by the council next Monday night. Its provisions were explained to the new members at the meeting of the board of works last night by City Clerk Outram and Ald. Swanston.

Ald. Grant Miller moved that the bylaw be submitted to the council for third reading. "I think this is a fine form of investment, and from the study I have made of these plans I would say that any employee who does not take advantage of it will regret it in the end."

The Peterborough plan is contributory and it is also eclectic. That is some of the provisions were selected here and there from one plan and another and shaped to the special local requirements. An employee must be two years with the city before eligibility begins. He pays 5 p.c. of his earning and the city pays an equal amount to his credit. The money is invested in Dominion government annuities, and it is retained until, in the case of a man, he reaches 65 years of age, and a woman 60 years, the probable retiring ages.

The plan will cost the ratepayers $15,000 a year.

One Arrested In Theft From Roy Studio

One man is under arrest and the arrest of another is expected this afternoon in connection with the theft of cameras and photographic equipment from the Roy Studios, 140 Hunter street, early Sunday morning.

About three-quarters of the $850 loot was recovered today when the first of the pair was arrested by Detective William Clark and John Stevenson. It is reported that the goods were found in the room of the prisoner.

The two men, it is stated, are from Toronto, and have been travelling through the province taking photographs. This bears out the belief of authorities at the time that the thieves had some knowledge of photography, because of the nature of the goods stolen.

Instruct Clerk To Open Bids

Sealed bids for the market block properties the city council was authorized by the people to sell, are to be opened and tabulated by City Clerk Outram for the concise and orderly information of the council next Monday.

Finance committee Monday night first considered referring the tenders to Ald. Hugh Waddell's executive committee.

"I understand the executive committee was chiefly for emergencies, perhaps when the council as a whole could not be called together," Ald. Doug. Miller said. "Why shouldn't the business of this committee (finance) be dealt with by this committee?"

The council's practice has usually been to leave the preparation of detailed statements and compilations to a small committee, several of the members who make a digest of the facts for the rest of the council. In this instance, it was said, Mr. Outram will lay out a map of the George, Charlotte, Water streets block, write on each property the amount of tenders with name of the owner of the building, as on the George st[illegible] front, also the amount [illegible] general [illegible] the completed

Alderman Urges Widening Along Charlotte To Park

Rounding of the northwest corner of Park and Charlotte Streets in a broad arc for traffic facility, advised by Hon. G. N. Gordon, led the Board of Works easterly along Charlotte St. with the idea of removing the narrow boulevard strips to permit widening of the street from Aylmer to Park St.

Ald. Grant Miller said he was familiar with that neighborhood, and agreed with Mr. Gordon in his recommendation. Business was gradually moving westerly on Charlotte St. Realty interest and activity, together with other indications, pointed to the eventual establishment of commercial locations, and the time to anticipate needs of the future was now.

"We should plan to give the city every advantage for better traffic conditions on what is becoming a main street," Ald. Miller said. "I am merely making a suggestion from my observations in that section, and not with an idea of fostering anything that might be of advantage to myself."

Lack Of Uniformity

Ald. Miller said the boulevards had outlived their graceful purpose when the street was more residential. Some of the buildings apparently stood out over the street line, and there was a lack of uniformity in that respect which could be corrected before the extension of business advanced further westerly. Arrangement for a setback of any new construction could be made now.

Ald. Raine remarked that "the city planning committee might have something on that."

The Miller idea was set out in a motion by Ald. Gordon Armstrong for reference to its several phases to the city planning committee. It recommended a study of that reach of Charlotte St., between Aylmer and Park Sts. in regard to lifting of the boulevards, setback for new construction, and any other proposals the committee might present to the council.

Ald. Miller said he was not urging any immediate action in widening, but he believed that early consideration to the project should receive attention looking to the future of business and traffic in those blocks.

Somewhere in the Board of Works' files must be a similar elimination of Rubidge St. boulevard from Charlotte St. south to Wolfe or Townsend St. which Fred L. Roy[illegible] is the gratitude

1,000 Children Given Aid By Kinsmen

Within the next few months the 1,000th school child of Peterborough will receive the benefits of the Eye Clinic of the Kinsmen Club, which has been in operation in the city for about 18 years.

At a cost of close to $20,000 for those years of operation, the Club's Clinic has provided free glasses, glasses replacements, eye operations, and testing for glasses readjustments for one year after fitting for well over 900 public, high and separate school pupils under 16 years of age.

Working on the basis of recommended cases from the Department of Health, the nurses and teachers on the schools' staffs and the city relief department, the Clinic has carried on this work unobtrusively, gaining its reward from the satisfaction felt at helping many of this younger generation with a good vision with which to start life.

The results and organizations of the Peterborough Club compare favorably with those in other cities in the country.

There is no payment required by the students concerned. Basis of selection is made solely on requirements of the eyes as reported by medical and nursing authorities.

The important work of actual fitting of the glasses and other services is provided by Drs. Norman Buchanan and A. R. Stevenson. These physicians make no charge for the extensive calls which this program makes on their time. The late Dr. C. C. Cragg was also active in this work, contributing to the wellbeing of the eyes of hundreds of boys and girls of the city.

Maurice Holt is chairman of the committee in charge of this Club project.

"I am not sold yet on the advisability of selling the property," he stated, "and am not inclined to change my opinion too readily." His remarks were evidently an expression of doubt that the city would obtain as much revenue from any use of funds from sales as was now coming from rentals.

One of the aldermen remarked that the city was getting out of the real estate business, and Ald. Swanston, finance, chairman, recalled that the council of 1947 was simply acting upon the instructions from the people themselves. The question of selling city properties had been submitted to the ratepayers at the polls, and by a large majority they had given their assent to the sale. Another factor which might be recalled at this stage of the council's progress was that funds are to be needed for the new city hall site, possibly for a new market site, and it may be to provide further aid for the Memorial Centre.

Landlord Troubles Result In $40 Fine

TORONTO, Jan 27 — (CP) — John Laird listed his particular "landlord troubles" but claimed there was no way at all to describe the "misery" he and his family endured.

"On Christmas eve," he said, "the temperature was 58. On New Year's eve my wife and myself had to go to bed, it was so cold. This landlord has even tried to smoke us out by putting hay in the furnace."

The landlord, John Wolowel, was fined $40 and costs for not supplying enough heat.

Council Reviews Sunday Parking Tie-up

Some Complaints Received Traffic Lanes Narrowed Too Much

Board of works isn't going to do anything about temporary congestion of cars in the vicinity of churches during Sunday services. Spring is not far off and will bring about the melting of snow ridges that narrow the traffic lanes. In the meantime if there is some impeding of traffic at times Ald. Swanston said he hoped it would continue that way for the sake of the churches.

Ald. Herbert Young reported objections that cars parked on both sides of Hunter St. in front of St. Peter's Cathedral. Other cars stopping to let out passengers blocked the street completely. The suggestion he quoted was that parking should be on only one side of the street.

Some members of St. John's Church have complained that the city's order against parking on both sides of the Brock St. hill east of Water St., was an inconvenience that seemed unnecessary on Sundays. It was felt that at least one side of that street should be left open to parking on that day.

Ald. Young suggested that police might be asked to investigate Sunday parking at all the churches.

People Expect Leeway

City Clerk Outram remarked that a general opinion seemed to assume that the Sunday latitude on George St. was everywhere in effect, "and that on Sunday anything goes".

Ald. Grant Miller said the council "might leave this matter in abeyance". No one objected to that disposal.

Ald. Doug Miller requested that the "bypass" between the Duffus building and the C.P.R. freight sheds be made fit for the automobile traffic that flows that way, especially as a short-cut to and from Ashburnham.

"It's in terrible shape, but I don't know whether the council has any authority to go in there and fix it up," Ald. Miller said. "A lot of cars use it, and there would be more if the roadway was in good condition."

Ald. Hurrell Dodds, chairman of the board, said he had interviewed Tom McArthur, C.P.R. agent, about the city's right to do road work on that property, "and he's looking into it."

Ald. Doug Miller's motion that a survey be made of that traffic way "so we'll have a plan of it and see who owns it" was seconded by Ald. Raine.

"We should try to make a first class roadway through there," Ald. Miller said.

KAY FRANCIS is reported in a fair condition in a Columbus, Ohio, hospital. She was rushed there recently under mysterious circumstances. It is reported she received burns after falling against a radiator in her hotel room. Police have investigated and are satisfied that it was an accident.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple Addresses Baptist Meeting

Regular meeting of the Baptist Brotherhood of Gilmour and Lakefield churches was held Thursday at Gilmour church.

Secretary-[illegible] down to follow[illegible] E. Moore introduced the guestspeaker "Rev. Dr. James Semple of George St. United Church, Peterborough", who took as the subject of his address "Rethinking the Church". Dr. Semple said we must re-think the church in terms of its teaching mission and of our mission to youth and to mankind. He went on to asy that in the days that lie ahead of us we must make a choice between the Christian way and the Communist way. In conclusion he said we want a church whose fellowship will bind us in one and that the matters that unite us are greater than those that divide us.

On behalf of the brotherhood, Mr. Lorne Reynolds extended a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Semple for his inspiring talk.

The Brotherhood theme-hymn "Rise up O men of God" was sung followed by the scripture reading taken by Mr. Graydon Mann.

The minutes of the December meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. Wallace Hendren.

Mrs. Telford and Allan Mann sang another duet," Rev. W. S. Watson of Lakefield closed the meeting.

Home and School Association News

PCVS HOME AND SCHOOL

With "Citizenship" the topic for the evening, PCVS Home and School Association members heard Monday evening two splendid addresses.

Mayor W. G. Ovens outlined the duties of Mayor. He explained how various civic and municipal bodies attain office and their duties, stating that the Municipal Act is followed very closely. He urged all who have a vote to use it.

Mr. J. Londerville, history and geography teacher at the Collegiate spoke on citizenship in the school. "A citizen is a member of the democratic municipality who exercises rights and privileges and takes an active part in community life," he said. "The whole school curriculum aims at producing good citizens. Students are well-informed as complete world history, old and new, is studied from grades 9 to 13. Extra-curricular activities are encouraged and practised. In Students' Council, complete with constitution, and having representatives from every room and from each separate body every student has an opportunity to learn first hand the democratic way of life.

Home room period is used to discuss school business, national and international problems, keeping students up to date in every day affairs. Competitive sports are carried on in the school, and between schools. The school library, well-stocked with books both educational and entertaining, is well run and used extensively.

"Teach your children self-discipline so they will do a good job, because it is right, not because they have to," said Mr. Londerville. "Teach mutuality, the art of sharing and co-operating in all undertakings."

Mrs. E. Chambers, citiz[illegible] convener, introduced [illegible] speaker, representative to the Peterborough Film Council. Mrs. W. G. Gunn was appointed to look after membership in the Canadian Association of Consumers.

Refreshments were served under direction of Mrs. A. G. Stock, hospitality convener.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, January 28

While the energies and faculties are keyed to high tempo, and much is to be attained by initiative and aggressive activity, yet under certain developments born of stress and strain, it is possible to be switched from productive channels and cherished objectives by either an emotional, sentimental, perhaps feminine interference or suggestion. This may undermine practical and constructive procedures for fanciful or feeble suggestions of little worth.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may start off the year with fine activity, high pressured into constructive and productive goals. And while vim, determination, new attacks and bold strokes promise unusual achievement, as well as weakening or irresolute course of action may bring collapse and defeat. Such interference might spring from a social, professional, domestic, even romantic source, swerving the energies and sturdy ambitions from "the straight and narrow" way of attainment of most productive programs. The well-known paths of pleasure might undermine excellent performance. Keep firm and integrated, for real results and happiness.

A child born on this day although excellently endowed with vim, courage and brave efforts for success, also has a soft side luring to easier and less arduous patterns of living.

SPRING TAILLEUR—There might be a bluebird revving up around the corner these days, and that means it's time to pick up a spring suit before somebody else gets all the best bets. We like this simple, softly tailored suit of pedigreed gabardine, with its boxy bolero jacket of new longer length to meld with the flared and longer new-look skirt. To complete the gesture toward spring, the designer has provided the suit in such crocus shades as beige, pale gold, gentian blue, lilac, darker blue, and pastel pink.

QUESTION: All the recipes I can find call for squares of bitter chocolate for making chocolate cake. Would you mind sending me a recipe for a chocolate cake calling for cocoa—not squares of bitter chocolate?

Old Cook.

❖ ❖ ❖

Cocoa Devil's Food

Scald ½ cup milk in top of double boiler. Mix 1 cup cocoa with ½ cup sugar, add scalded milk slowly, return to double boiler and cook until mixture thickens a little. Add 1 egg yolk, mix well and cool. Cream ¼ cup butter and gradually add ½ cup sugar, cream well and add 1 egg, and 1 teaspoon vanilla, beating. Add 1⅛ cups flour sifted with ½ teaspoon salt,—alternately with ¼ cup sour milk. Mix, then add cocoa mixture and beat again. Sift in ½ teaspoon soda and mix. Bake in layer cake tins 18 to 20 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. We like this put together with Coffee Frosting.

Coffee Frosting: Cream 1-3 cup butter and add slowly 1 cup icing sugar and 1 tablespoon very strong coffee, beating until light and fluffy.

Reception Given Rev. Thos H. Birch

Members and friends of Bethel Baptist Church met in the auditorium Friday evening to welcome the new minister and family, Rev. Thomas H. Birch, Mrs. Birch and sons. Words of welcome were brought by Rev. E. J. Whan of Park St. Baptist Church, Rev. Robert G. Kitchen, Mr. John Foster, on behalf of the church, and Mr. Myron Hill, on behalf of the Sunday School.

Misses Patsy Deline and Betty Richmond sang a duet. Mrs. R. G. Kitchen sang a solo and Rev. and Mrs. Kitchen also sang a duet. Rev. T. H. Birch closed the service with prayer.

Then all went to the church basement where Rev. and Mrs. Birch were given a kitchen shower. Both thanked their friends for the kindness shown them. Ladies of the church served refreshments and a social half hour was spent.

PERSONAL LIBERTIES

Husbands Err In Keeping Wives Tied to Fireside Without Diversion

❖ ❖ ❖

In the course of a year I get hundreds of letters from women who tell me that they are never allowed any personal liberty by their husbands. They never have any money that they can spend as they please. They never go to any place of amusement. Their wildest adventure is going to the grocery or the butcher shop, and even these trips must be made on schedule time, with no loitering for a little gossip.

DOROTHY DIX

It is hard for us to believe that in this enlightened age and in this free country there are still men who are benighted enough to believe that it is the duty of a husband to be a jailer to his wife. And it is still more difficult to realize that in these days of the emancipation of women that any wife is poor-spirited [illegible] the [illegible] husband to be able to reduce his wife to such peonage. However, the ancient superstition still maintains that there is some peculiar virtue in a woman being hobbled to her own fireside, and our most scathing criticism of a married woman is to call her a gadabout.

Encourage System

Obviously a man should wish his wife to stay at home long enough to turn out a good and competent job of housekeeping, but household tasks acquire no extra merit by being dawdled over, instead of being performed in an energetic and efficient manner. A husband should encourage his wife to systematize her work so that she could finish up and have some time in which to relax and amuse herself.

The reason so many wives are peevish and fretful and nagging is simply because they stay at home too much. It is the curse of housework that, while it occupies a woman's hands, it leaves her brain with nothing but the same round of thoughts and memories to go over. Having nothing new to interest her, the housekeeping woman magnifies trifles into great grievances. Having nothing fresh to talk about, she harps on some old mistake or fault until she drives her husband mad.

It would pay a man, just as a matter of self-protection, to take his wife out to some place of amusement once or twice a week, so that she might have something to think about instead of his shortcomings. If he were wise, he would urge her to join clubs and societies, because that would keep her happy and contented, and a happy and contented wife makes a pleasant home.

The man who will not give his wife any personal liberty prepares for himself a boring companion. She does not know what is going on in this interesting world of ours. No women are duller than the ones whose interests are bounded by the four walls of her home and whose conversational repertory runs from the kitchen to the nursery and back again.

The husband who is not willing for his wife to go out anywhere digs with his folly the pit into which he himself falls, for you cannot deprive a woman of all outside interests and amusements without making her morbid. The best wife and the best housekeepers are those who combine domesticity with a little going places and doing things.

DOROTHY DIX.

LEAD DIRECTOR USEFUL

PROPER use of the lead-directing double of a slam contract can be invaluable as a preventor of slams which should be defeated. Both East and West knew North as a tricky bidder. East had plenty of reason to suspect his heart bid, as soon as he heard the leap to 6-Spades. But he had a partner with whom he was unfamiliar. He didn't know what meaning West might attach to a double of the 6-Spades. East would have meant it as a request for West to lead the dummy's first-named suit, hearts. It is easy to see, upon looking at all four hands, that a heart opening would have given the defenders the first two tricks to beat the slam.

Afraid to double it, East passed and so left West to his own devices. In this situation, the worst of all possible leads would have been the dummy's first suit, if North was bidding naturally. So [illegible] about the other [illegible] This [illegible] led the club 10.

That was exactly what North was trying to cause with his style of bidding, so South without difficulty got all thirteen tricks with five in trumps, six in clubs and two ruffs of diamonds. After the deal it developed that West would have read the double correctly and would have led a heart in response to it. Whereupon East kicked himself for not doubling.

The world can never fill.
—Loving son Jack and daughter-in-law Judy, also granddaughter Jane.

DONNELLY—In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Jack Donnelly, who passed away January 27, 1946.
God knows how much I miss him,
Never shall his memory fade,
Loving thoughts shall always wander,
To the spot where he is laid.
It's only a grave but still needs care
For the one I love is sleeping there
Some may forget him, now he's gone
But I'll remember him no matter how long.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Alice and daughters Margaret and Dorothy.

Next Two Years To Be Critical Minister Says

"Anyone who is an easy optimist to-day is a plain fool, for 1948 and 1949 will be two of the most critical years in man's existence." Thus emphasized Rev. Dr. Harold Young when addressing the Peterborough Rotary Club Monday.

"I would like to share with you some of the thoughts that have come into my mind as I have sat here to-day," said Dr. Young. "My association with Rotary dates back to the year 1921, and I am glad that the same club meets in the same room as it did then. This is largely due to the integrity and fine spirit shown by its early members who then carried the torch of Christian feeling, and you here to-day are keeping alive that torch. We have come through the past 25 years, full of gruelling experiences and perplexities, with accompanying unsettlement and grimness of war."

"The peace that men have fought for sits uneasily upon this world, but these days of unbelievable pain, suffering and want with the dark clouds hanging in our skies, will fade away if we maintain our belief in God. We have dark days ahead and he is a fool who is an easy optimist as regards the world's affairs today. One place to look for the trouble that will bring to the world a crisis of world-wide magnitude is France. A crisis may break out there any day, we are told. We do not know what the years ahead hold for us, but though freedom may pass for a time in some lands, it surely will survive for there will always be that group of people who will maintain their freedom come what may.

"Our deep conviction of right will strike a note of hope in the symphony of things yet to be. Our faith in God will bear us up. To-day the faith that man has in God is being attacked from many angles, to-day there is an under-current of paganism in the world. One thing we must remember, and that is that when a faith in God has been challenged especially after such bad times as we have experienced, the faith that we hold comes out stronger than ever. That is shown in Russia. Once religion was forbidden, but to-day the church doors are again thrown open. The idea of God will always survive, it is indestructible. Ideas of Jesus Christ will survive. What Hitler tried to do can never succeed. It is useless to try and take away from us the lovely stories of Nazareth and Bethlehem, they can never be killed; they will survive and the voice of the Christian Church will never be silenced."

"There will always be loyal and stout hearts," the speaker concluded, "and these hearts will maintain the faith of Christendom. Whatever changes may come and go the ideas of God and of Jesus Christ and of the freedom that we enjoy will never die."

Dr. Young was introduced by Fred Roy and a vote of thanks was passed by Chris Graham.

Franc Devaluation Starts Golds Moving

By The Canadian Press

Devaluation of the French franc stirred golds into activity on world stock markets yesterday.

Currency devaluation has long been a rallying ground for good mining interests, and in Canada, especially, there has been much agitation on the point. The devaluation decision of the French government was seen by many interested in gold as the possible beginning of a general move in that direction.

The London Stock Exchange started the "gold rush" with a burst of activity which extended even to the highly speculative issues. New York and Toronto saw brisk gold trading from the opening bell. The steam behind the spurt died down quite early in the day, although gains were maintained.

Much of the activity in golds seemed based on the possibility that the British pound would be next in line for devaluation. This prospect was checked, however, by Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who stated that the British government has no intention of devaluing the pound.

SAULT STE. MARIE. Jan. 27 (CP).—J. S. McDonald, General Tourist Passenger Agent of the Canadian National Railways, today told the 75 delegates attending the Northern Ontario Outfitters' convention that to maintain the tourist indusry in dollar value in his country "We must take steps to increase the number of tourists."

"The American tourists will come and spend their money here but we must see to it that they get the full value of their money in return. You as camp operators, and other association concerned, and the utmost in courtesy," he can see to that by giving them good food, good accommodation said.

"We in the railway particularly have been the tourist business grow termendously since the end of the war and, with the present economic situation in the United States still stable, tourists will keep on coming to this country if treat them squarely," he pointed out.

Big Money

Mr. McDonald told delegates that through during 1946 tourists had spent an estimated $200,000,000 and that during 1947 they spent $225,000,000, the trade in 1948 was still doubtful because money "was not as free as it used to be."

President of the Northern Outfitters' Association, H. A. Heinman urged the delegates present to attend the first annual Sportsmen's Show at Toronto, March 13 to 20, to try and influence Southern Ontario people of the advantages of Northern Ontario as a holiday resort, and "to dispense with the idea that this section of the country is only a wilderness."

Stressing the need of co-operation between the different associations and organizations for the conservation of this area, commercial fishermen, and different federations, Mr. Heinman said that "if we exploited wild life here we would be out millions of dollars and many hours of recreation."

Socialists Won't Vote On Gold Bill

Think Schuman Saved As Long As Party Doesn't Vote On Law

PARIS, Jan. 28— (AP). — A Socialist Party spokesman said to-night the party had decided to refrain from voting in the National Assembly on Premier Robert Schuman's Gold Bill.

Schuman pleaded for support from the Socialist Party to save the program. Secretary of State Pierre Abelin told reporters after a Cabinet meeting—the second in 12 hours—the government could not continue if the gold clause met defeat.

Schuman, Foreign Minister Bidault, and Finance Minister Rene Mayer went before a meeting of Socialist deputies after the Cabinet session in an attempt to swing the Socialists behind the proposal.

Bidault stepped out after the meeting had been going on two hours.

"I have the impression that neither M. Schuman nor I was able to convince them," he said.

One political observer declared the Socialists could not overthrow the government because "there was nobody left but De Gaulle after Schuman."

The Socialist deputies voted unanimously yesterday in party caucus to oppose in the Assembly Schuman's Bill to permit free gold trade in France. The measure was one of three parts of the government's monetary program, which also included devaluation of the franc and creation of a free money market.

The devaluation and money market measures already have been put into effect by Cabinet decree. Parliamentary approval is necessary only for the Gold Bill.

Ship Goes Down Say 306 Dead

TOKYO, Jan. 28 — (AP). — Military government officials reported 306 Japanese perished today in the sinking of the 400-ton freighter Joo Maru, which struck a floating mine in the inland sea and went down in 20 minutes with her whistles blowing.

Kyodo News Agency earlier placed the death toll at 250, with 50 bodies revovered.

Okayama military government officials reported the freighter was bound from Kobe to Tadotsu, with 426 passengers. It struck a mine near the Island of Kuroshima. They said 120 pasengers were rescued, including three British soldiers.

It was not known whether any Americans or other Britons were aboard the vessel, which was making a routine early morning run. It sank at 2 a.m.

Can't Reach Terms

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 28 — (AP). — The India-Pakistan dispute over Kashmir was tossed back to the Security Council today with the two dominions in disagreement.

Direct talks between the two governments ended last night without accord. The council was called today to receive a report of the fruitless negotiations.

India and Pakistan each made formal proposals, which were rejected by the others. Also turned down was a compromise by Council President Vernand Van Langenhove of Belgium, who directed the parleys.

Worker Saves 20 Years To See Family Thief Takes $1,350—Total Passage Money

KITCHENER, Jan. 28—(CP) —Just as it seemed about to come true, the 20-year-old dream of Michael Maslanaka, 48-year-old native of Poland was shattered yesterday with discovery that his hard-earned havings—$1,350 in bonds—had been stolen.

The bonds were intended to pay ocean passage for his wife, whom he hasn't seen for 20 years, and his son, whom he's never seen.

The son was born to Mrs. Maslanaka shortly after her husband came to Canada. The going has been tough for Maslanaka, a leather worker, and it took 20 years to have enough to reunite him with his family.

He found yesterday that the bonds — all unregistered — had been stolen from a small wooden chest in his boarding-house room. Maslanaka isn't even sure when the theft took place. He said the last time he looked in the chest was last May.

If US Bans Oil Shipments National Calamity For Canada, Howe Reports

OTTAWA, Jan. 28—(CP).—A threatened United States export embargo on petroleum products would be a national calamity for Canada, Trade Minister Howe gravely told the Commons Tuesday, and he said the Dominion was doing all she could to avert it. Canada now can produce only 11 per cent of her oil requirements, Mr. Howe declared, and if the huge flow from below the border were cut off, it would be "a calamity of the first order."

Mr. Howe made his brief warning statement to the House as the United States Senate considered a bill that would ban all United States exports of petroleum products for a year to conserve that nation's diminishing stocks.

The Minister—who has charge both of Canada's imports and of responsibility for providing the fuel to keep the country's industrial machine turning — did not hazard a guess as to the likelihood of the ban applying specifically to Canada in the event it should receive Congressional passage.

However, other government officials were known to be hopeful that any United States action would take into account Canada's integration of natural resources with the United States under the Hyde Park agreement, and her position as a major supplier of the raw materials of American production.

Still in Force

This wartime agreement, while it was described as having been "pecked at pretty vigorously," is still in force to the extent that it still provides the basis for discussions between Canada and the United States on questions of vital supplies. As recently as last week the principles laid down at Hyde Park were known to have been called into play in discussions here which touched not only petroleum products, but steel.

Mr. Howe disclosed that Canada has been concerned for some time with the possibility now developing in Congress, and he indicated her recent voluntary action to cut fuel oil imports from the United States was a move to forestall just this kind of action.

The cut for January, he said, amounted to half the imports of the same month last year. Corresponding cuts were being studied for February and March.

Other measures taken by Canada, he said, included frequent conferences between Ambassador Hume Wrong and Washington officials; full disclosure of Canada's petroleum stock position; and an explanation of the government's limitation of oil-burner installations.

Iraq Situation Sets Back British Plans

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON, Jan. 28 — (AP). — Government plans to establish a British-Arab security system against Communism in the Middle East have suffered a severe setback by a blow-up in British relations with Iraq.

The Iraqui cabinet resigned last night after violent riots in protest of a revised treaty of alliance with Britain cost 70 lives.

A Beyrouth dispatch said Lebanon had been informed by the Arab League that the League was studying a British proposal for a Council of Britons and Arabs to co-ordinate defences of the Arab nations in the event of war.

In Cairo, an Arab League press official told reporters the Iraqi riots "should induce Britain to chart a policy serving the peoples' interests."

Hailed in Egypt

Iraq's rejection of the treaty was hailed by the Wafdist Youth Organization of Egypt. The organization, whose party opposes the government of Premier Mamoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha, said in a message to Iraqi youth the rejection "exposes the Imperialistic method by which Britain attempts to snatch Palestine from the Arabs and deceive Iraq with the same 'joint defence' device already rejected by the Egyptian pople."

RCMP Expert Testifies No Fingerprints On Guns

WELLAND, Jan. 23.—(CP). — Sgt. John H. Solly of Ottawa, RCMP fingerprint expert, testified today that he found "no fingerprints whatsoever" on the rifle and shotgun found in the house of James Bell after the 57-year-old man was slain last Sept. 24.

The sergeant testified during the second day of the trial of Norman Kindy, 16, of Sudbury, Stamford township, and Edwin Farrington, 19, of Glendale, R.I., charged with the murder of Bell.

His testimony, given with the Ontario Supreme Court jury excluded, was ruled admissible by Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly and was to be repeated to the jury this afternoon.

Previous evidence was that the accused youths had been befriended and sheltered by Bell. They disappeared after the shooting and were arrested after a hunt which spread to many parts of Canada and the United States.

Sgt. Solly said the weapons were received from Chief Constable R. E. Worm of Stamford township, who headed the murder investigation. Chief Worm testified earlier that he found no fingerprint on either gun or on a Venetian blind and window sash which also were sent to RCMP laboratories in Ottawa.

The RCMP expert said he received the rifle and shotgun last Sept. 2, two days after the slaying. He made his investigation and sent the weapons to the crime detection laboratory at Rockcliffe, near Ottawa, the next day.

Flames Trap 4 Children In Farm Fire

Father Saves Mother Four Other Children, Only Barn To Live In

LAVIGNE, Ont., Jan. 28 — (CP). — Donat Ducharme, 33-year-old farmer and log-cutter, still dazed and grief-stricken by sudden tragedy which claimed the lives of four of his children, told today how he rescued four others from his blazing, two-storey house near this tiny settlement 40 miles west of North Bay.

As grim-faced neighbors probed the flame-blackened ruins of the little dwelling in a grisly search for the remains of the four little fire victims, other friends rallied to provide household effects and clothing for Mr. and Mrs. Ducharme and the surviving children.

The heroic father fought intense heat and blinding smoke to save half his family and collapsed from exhaustion during a vain attempt to rescue the others.

The search through the ruins was led by provincial constable Ralph Crozier of Sturgeon Falls, 27 miles northwest of here.

Constable Crozier and Constable Harold Scott appealed to Sturgeon Falls organizations to help the Ducharme family, who lost all their belongings in the early-morning fire yesterday and were driven, clad only in night attire, into 25-below-zero weather.

Neighbors in this farming-and-lumbering settlement also are assisting the stricken family, well-known in the community near Lake Nipissing's northwestern arm.

Mr. Ducharme, bereaved of both his parents by a level-crossing collision at Sturgeon Falls three years ago, risked his life to save his wife and four of his children after the crackle of flames in the 16-foot square frame house aroused him.

He pushed his pyjama-clad wife through an upstairs window and watched her drop 10 feet into

Seek Extortionist After Bullet Fired

TORONTO, Jan. 28 — (CP). — An extortionist who demanded $10,000 and threatened violence is being sought by local police for firing a shot last night through the second-storey window of Michael Blidner's North Toronto home.

The bullet lodged in the wall above the bed where Mrs. Blidner was sleeping, less than a foot from her head.

Blidner, part owner of a Toronto fruit company, said he received three anonymous telephone calls during the last two weeks demanding payment of $10,000 and that failure in doing so would result in "something serious happening." The last call was Friday night.

Canada Plans To Fly 160 DP's Daily

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—(AP). — Canada, whose lowered immigration barriers allowed entry to an estimated 75,000 persons from other lands last year, shortly will put her state-operated air line to work in a trans-Atlantic shuttle service to facilitate transportation of European displaced persons to her shores.

The Federal air immigration plan, first hinted with the recent flight of 34 persons from Britain to Canada by Trans-Canada Air Lines for the textile mills of Welland, was disclosed last night by Trade Minister Howe in an interview.

That flight was the first test and the minister said the Federal government hoped within a few months to have an air immigration plan underway that would involve four flights a day, bringing displaced persons to Canada.

"This will mean that about 160 D.P.'s will be coming to Canada every day once the plan is underway," he added.

He did not say how long the air flights would go on nor how many displaced persons would be brought across the Atlantic by air but it is known Canada hopes to bring about 20,000 D.P.'s to this country by

Bacon Prices

LONDON, Jan. 28 — (CP). — The Food Ministry increased bacon prices up to 13 cents a pound today because of rising costs.

A government decision not to increase food subsidies above the present £392,000,000 ($1,568,000,000) influenced the decision. Present bacon prices vary between 35 cents and 40 cents a pound, depending on the cut. Civilians are allowed two ounces a week by ration.

Defence Minister A. V. Alexander told the House of Commons that homebased sailors will have their meat rations trimmed 112½ ounces from a little more than two pounds a week. Bacon rations will be reduced from seven ounces weekly to 2½ ounces. To compensate, the sailors will receive an additional 2¾ ounces of fat and 3½ ounces more of sugar.

Alexander estimated the change would save £2,750,000 a year and "bring service rations broadly in line" with civilian worker rations.

One Pleads Guilty To Theft Of Cameras From Studio

Lionel Devine, 21, Toronto, pleaded guilty to charges of breaking, entering and theft from the Roy Studios here of cameras and equipment when he appeared in police court this morning. He elected trial before the magistrate and had no counsel. Magistrate W. R. Philp remanded him for sentence until Feb. 4.

The discovery of a small camera cable-release cord by a boy started the chain of events which has led to the recovery of most of $1,300 worth of stolen camera equipment to the guilty plea of Devine and arrest of another youth on the charges.

Details of the fast chain of events and moves were given this morning by Acting Detective Sergeant John Stevenson, who, with Acting Detective William Clark, were responsible for the quick recovery and arrests following the discovery of the loss from the Roy Studios, 140 Hunter street, early Sunday morning.

News Story Helps

It all started Monday night when 14-year-old Quentin Avey, 651 Brown street, brought to the attention of his father, Clifford Avey, the find he had made outside the Y.M.C.A. on George St. Mr. Avey looked at the cable-release, a spring-like gadget used to fire the shutter of a camera. He had just raised his eyes from the Examiner's story of the theft, and the connection impressed him. On his suggestion, young Quentin telephoned the police department and reported the discovery.

The police checked the find

Swiss Refuse To Ban 2 Teams

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan 28 — (CP). — The Swiss Olympic organizing committee tonight rejected the International Olympic Committee's decision to ban both rival United States hockey teams from the winter games and reiterated its earlier stand that the team representing the Amateur Hockey Association should participate.

An emergency meeting of the International Ice Hockey Federation was called immediately to consider the crisis which had arisen.

The executive body of the International Olympic Committee, sitting as a "jury of honor" notified the Swiss to reject the hockey entries of both the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States and the United States Olympic Committee.

The Swiss organizing committee, in charge of conducting the fifth winter Olympic Games opening here today, has been called into session and there was a

Report 20,000 Unemployed As Gas Shortage Continues

WINDSOR, Jan. 28 — (CP).— The total of unemployed workers due to the industrial gas shortage mounted toward the 20,000 mark to-day as dozens of factories remained partially or completely closed down.

"We are advising industries immediately there will be no gas for Thursday and perhaps not for Friday," said Russell M. Perkins, Windsor Gas Company general manager.

A check of Windsor industry to-day disclosed a city-wide layoff in auto plants and their feeders—the foundries, parts makers, and specialties plants

Ford of Canada still has 7,800 idle. Chrysler has 3,000 laid off since last Friday. Walker Metal Products is closed down with 570 workers out and Auto Specialties sent 350 workers home at noon yesterday.

At Windsor, queues of jobless began to register for unemployment insurance at extra offices set up in the Armories.

Mines Minister Leslie Frost said he had met with Union Gas Company officials yesterday and constant contact is being kept with companies in Hamilton and London with the view of easing curtailment of the fuel

Mr. Frost said the Dominion Natural Gas Company, London had not requested any of the gas allotted to it during the last two weeks. An Ontario Government order diverted 1,000,000 cubic feet from Union to Dominion for 140 days this winter.

Will Not Put Referendum To Voters

Only Two Choices Left To Citizens, Dissolve Convention

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 28. — The 44-man national convention early today defeated by a 26-16 vote a motion that the question of Confederation with Canada be placed before the people of Newfoundland in a referendum.

Following the action, the convention, elected to consider and recommend future forms of government for Newfoundland, was adjourned until tomorrow to draft recommendations for submission to the British government.

The convention will be dissolved Friday by Commissioner Lee Emerson in the absence of Governor Sir Gordon Macdonald visiting England.

An official said the convention's decision meant that the Newfoundland people will have no opportunity to express their views on Confederation when they go to the polls in May to select their future form of government.

Alternate Choices

Although it was anticipated that the convention's pro-Confederation faction would table a minority report during insertion of the Confederation choice on the ballot, it was expected the people would be limited to alternate choices of continued commission government or a return to responsible self-government, abandoned in 1934. Tabling of the minority report was said to be merely a recording procedure.

The convention defeated the motion after an all-night session during which heated speeches were heard for and against Confederation.

Charges had been made earlier that placing Confederation on the national referendum ballot would be a "Judas act" and a scheme to "sell out" Newfoundland to Canada.

Raps Attitude

F. Gordon Bradley, who led a delegation to Ottawa some months ago to ascertain what fair and equitable basis existed for union, severely criticized this attitude and gave strong support to the resolution that Confederation be recommended to the British government as a possible future form of government for Newfoundland.

Littler Dismissed As Micmac Captain

HALIFAX, Jan. 28 — (CP).— The Union Jack was returned to HMCS Stadacona's masthead today after dropping at the yardarm during a two-day court-martial in which Cmdr. J. C. Littler, DSC, of Victoria, was convicted of "negligently or by default" hazarding the destroyer Micmac.

Commodore Adrian M. Hope, president, and four members of the court last night sentenced the 37-year-old captain to be dismissed as commander of the Micmac and to be severely reprimanded following the conviction which arose from the fatal collision last July between the warship and the freighter Yarmouth County.

Farmers Ask Better Rural Health Service

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 28.—(CP).—Resolutions urging better rural health services, income tax concessions to farmers and increased old age pension benefits were on the approved list today as the 12th annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture moved into the last day of a two-day open session.

The resolutions passed yesterday called on the Dominion government to proceed as rapidly as possible to obtain co-operation of the provinces in setting up a national health service which would benefit urban and rural areas equally.

Agriculture as well as organized labor and other groups should be represented in the administration of such a scheme, the resolution added.

As one method of increasing rural medical service it was suggested that special departments of rural medicine be set up in the medical faculties of Canadian universities, with special provision for rural apprenticeship with rural practitioners and government assistance for students.

Need for further research in arthritic and rheumatic diseases and cancer also was stressed and it was urged that the Federal government provide grants to further this work and set up at least five hospitals to take care of the estimated 600,000 arthritic and rheumatic cases in Canada.

Ask Exemption

On income tax the convention approved resolutions to petition the Federal government to raise the exemptions to $1,200 for single persons and $2,400 for married persons, compared with the present $750 and $1,500 exemptions.

On old age pensions, the convention asked that all persons be paid $55 a month at the age of 65 and that the means test be eliminated.

Mr. Gardiner said the government probably would announce in the near future an increase from $1.35 to $1.55 a bushel in the basic wheat price paid to western farmers. He defended the government's wheat policy of long-term contracts with Britain and the embargo on wheat exports to the U.S.

The minister noted that ceilings would be re-imposed on meat prices in the near future and said the new ceilings, based on the higher prices in the contract for meat shipments to Britain in 1948, would likely continue for one year.

Father Saves

three feet of snow. Then he dropped four of the children, one at a time, into his wife's arms. Before he could save the others, the heat and smoke overcame him and he believes he fell through the window.

Revived in about 10 minutes by the cold air, he tried to force his way back into the house to reach the other children but the roaring flames, shooting from all doors and windows and through the roof, turned him back.

The only shelter left was the stable where the family kept its horse. Mr. Ducharme took his wife there, along with Florian, 11; Giselle, nine; Real, six; and Henrietta, one. With straw and horse blankets, he made them as comfortable as possible.

Then he wrapped a horse blanket around his night-clothes, hitched the horse to a sleigh and drove 1½ miles to seek help from his nearest neighbor.

By the time Provincial Police reached the scene, neighbors had given the family as much clothing as they could spare. Police and men from the settlement stirred the ashes of the farmhouse for the charred bones of Florette Ducharme, eight; Gerard, seven; Rose, four; and Henri, two.

Mr. Ducharme, who in summer tilled his little farm and in winter cut jackpine logs which he hauled to a nearby sawmill, said he did not know what started the fire. The wood-burning cookstove and boxstove both appeared in good order when he went to bed.

Nothing Left

Somewhere in the ruins today were the ashes of the family's ... the stair.

In the stable the parents and the four surviving children were fairly warm, with cows, calves and a horse near them and two blankets to shelter the children. Later in the morning he wrapped up the children in the blankets and with his wife took them to the home of Homer Barrette down the road where he was overcome by exhaustion.

It was 3 p.m. before Ducharme aroused again. With a neighbor, Arthur Laferniere, he went into Lavigne where they saw the priest who got in touch with the Provincial Police.

Ducharme said there was no insurance on the house. All his belongings were lost. There was not even a snapshot of the dead children left.

Curb Fuel Delivery To Plants For Week

DETROIT, Jan. 28 — (AP). — Some 200,000 Detroit workers were idle to-day as the Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, faced with a new cold wave and natural gas shortage, cut off fuel deliveries to industrial plants for at least a week.

Hit by the blow that crippled the automobile industry's production here were the "big three" of the car manufacturing world — General Motors Corporation, the Chrysler Corporation, and the Ford Motor Company.

Briggs Manufacturing Company and scores of smaller industries also were affected. The order suspended gas deliveries from 4 p.m. yesterday until next Tuesday.

Fruit Imports

TORONTO, Jan. 28 — (CP).—J. G. Bowers of Vancouver yesterday told the annual meeting of the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers' Association that Canada last year spent only $6 for imported cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, lettuce, spinach, and tomatoes out of every $1,000 worth of imports.

Cabinet In Iraq Quits After Riot

BAGHDAD, Jan. 28—(AP).—The cabinet of Premier Salih Bey Al Jabur of Iraq resigned Tuesday night after 24 hours of rioting in which 70 persons were reported killed and more than 300 wounded.

The resignation signified collapse of Salih Bey's fight for ratification of the Anglo-Iraqi treaty of friendship and mutual military aid he signed in London 12 days ago.

Regent Abdul Illah announced the resignation in a broadcast to the country and appealed for restoration of order. Police exchanged fire with anti-treaty demonstrators. One report said a private plane machine-gunned demonstrators crossing a bridge during the height of the rioting.

A suitcase in the room revealed its contents to be a large part of the stolen cameras and equipment.

Sgt. Stevenson arrested the prisoner Devine on his return to the rooming house. The officers were advised that his companion, David Billing, had left for Toronto, giving the reason that his girl friend was ill. Toronto authorities were notified and arrested 22-year-old Billings in Toronto late last night. Sgt. Stevenson and Det. Clark left for Toronto this morning to escort the prisoner back to Peterborough for trial.

It was learned that some of the stolen goods had been pawned in Toronto on Tuesday.

The two arrested men are with a group of four photographers from a Toronto firm who have been taking home portraits in the city. Police stated that the other two members of the crew have no knowledge of any activities of the prisoners in this regard.

Hire Teacher At Easter Principal Says

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28 — (ENS).—At a regular meeting of the Board of Education, H. R. Hendershott, High School principal, said that since there were some unqualified teachers on the High School staff who would have to be replaced next term, it was essential for the Board to decide on a salary policy sufficient to entice competent teachers and that they be advertised for and interviewed at Easter. He said if they were not hired at that time, when changes are usually made, the Board would have to accept whoever was available, as had been done previously.

Mr. Hendershott, as principal, is to make his recommendations to the internal committee which will bring the report before the Board at some future meeting.

At the present time regulations of the Department of Labor do not require the caretaker of a school to give any notice to a school board on his resignation. Clinton McComb, caretaker of the Public Schools, gave one week's notice and resigned at Christmas. Being unable to replace him in one week the property committee re-hired him for 1948 at a higher salary of $1,900 a year. With Mr. McComb's consent a motion was passed stating the board must have one month's notice of resignation.

W. Buchanan, caretaker of the High School, requested a raise in salary and the property committee is to investigate and present their recommendations at the next board meeting.

On the suggestion of A. J. Armour, the board decided to ask for a grant of $14,500 from the town council for the Public Schools. Last year the grant was $13,000 but anticipated expenses will be much higher this year. The playgrounds need surfacing and a retaining wall will have to be built along the north side of the grounds. Projects under way at the Public Schools are the new heating and lighting systems and the re-flooring of hallways and the re-treading of stairs.

A grant of $60, ten dollars more than last year, was approved by the board for prize money on school exhibits at the Campbellford fair. Bert Stephens, representing the Seymour Agricultural Society at the meeting, said comments on the High School exhibits last year were very favorable and he thought a better prize list would encourage more and better work on the part of the students and teachers. The school board pays half the prize money for the three town schools and the Seymour Agricultural Society pays the other half. Rural schools exhibiting, are bound to the same conditions.

Seeks $7,764.99 From Fowlds' Estate

COBOURG, Jan. 28 (ENS). — Adjournment until March 3 was made in connection with the claim brought against the estate of Harry Fowlds of Campbellford, brought by Arthur Wartman of Percy Township. The adjournment was made by Judge M. Miller. Claimant contends that 7,000 is due him by reason of a verbal agreement made in 1945 with the late Harry Fowlds. The claimant also asks $764.99.

In the affidavit of claim, Mr. Wartman states that the $7,000 represents one-half the profits on lumber transactions during 1946 and 1947. He claims that he entered into a verbal agreement with Harry Fowlds in the fall of 1945, whereby he was to receive half the profits for his services as adviser, buyer and laborer. During 1947 there were 700,000 feet cut and in 1946 a total which was considerably less. Mr. Wartman claims also that he advanced certain moneys to Mr. Fowlds and this and other items totalled $764.99. Harry Deyman and J. F. R. Douglas acted for the estate and A. R. Willmott, KC., of Cobourg for Mr. Wartman.

Later the group went to the rectory and Ernie Archer entertained by showing colored movies taken during his last deer-hunting trip.

Hot-dogs and coffee were supplied by the social committee, and Mrs. W. J. Lennox, the hostess, supplied the cakes and tarts.

School For Deaf Farm Taken Over

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 28 — Arrangements have been completed under which the Ontario Department of Agriculture will take over the administration of the Ontario School for the Deaf farm, approximating some 200 acres, as of Feb. 1 and will plan its activities as an experimental farm, Premier George A. Drew announced today.

The announcement, made through a direct communication from the Premier to J. Fred Wilson, MPP, Hastings West, stated that the new plan will not only provide experimental facilities in the breeding of animals and the development of crops, but it will also greatly advance the educational opportunities in agriculture for the pupils at the school.

Groundwork for the taking over of the farm was laid last autumn when Deputy Minister of Agriculture C. D. Graham, at Mr. Wilson's invitation, inspected the property and reported favorably on its possibilities as an experimental farm. Up to this point the farm has been under the administration of three government departments, public works, agriculture and education.

Mr. Wilson stated that for some years farmers of the district have not enjoyed the facilities of an experimental farm such as those who live in the vicinity of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and Kemptville Agricultural School.

Under the new setup, he continued, farmers of five counties in this immediate area will be able to avail themselves of the facilities of an experimental farm in their own neighborhood.

The Parliamentary Price Probe

The parliamentary committee which is to investigate price spreads is to be constituted this week and to begin its job next week. That will not be too soon. Prices are continuing to rise — bread went up a cent on Tuesday. Ceilings were arbitrarily set on some foods when the general alarm about high prices forced the Government to take some immediate step. These ceilings may not be at the proper levels—they may even be too high. The new committee must investigate these matters as well as uncontrolled prices and profits made in the last several months. The task will not be easy.

* * *

A recent editorial on the rise of prices, which was supplementary to an earlier detailed one, drew a response from the president of Canada Packers. Mr. McLean's letter was published on this page yesterday. As Mr. McLean rightly pointed out, under the new U.K. Trade agreements, Grade A Wiltshire sides at seaboard were given a price increase of 7 cents a pound. He did not mention that the domestic price of bacon has risen considerably above the 7-cent increase since, for instance, December 1st, before the new price agreements were anticipated. The price rise "involved an equivalent profit on inventories in the hands of processors. The processors did not request and did not wish this profit". Mr. McLean is reported to have stated on January 7th that the value of pork products held in storage by packers in Canada (of pork products only) had increased (because of the recent price jump) by $2,700,000. That is a noble profit not to wish to have.

* * *

The rise in the price of bread is only another cent added to the three cent increase that bakers began to charge on the morning of September 18th. It is only a cent, but it means a great deal to Canadian families. In an editorial on September 19th we estimated that for every 190 loaves sold, the three-cent increase per loaf gave the baker $1.65 over and above his increased cost of flour. The increase in the cost of flour was due to the removal of subsidies. The cost of flour has now dropped 30-50 cents a barrel. The new one-cent increase would seem therefore to give him at least an increase of $3.65 for every 190 loaves. That is a chunky increase for a baker who sells thousands of loaves every day.

* * *

The price-spreads commission has indeed much work ahead of it. We hope that it will not be too long in getting down to an examination of basic food costs—bread, meat, butter and milk, for instance. We feel sure that responsible heads of food-producing firms—like Mr. McLean—will welcome the investigators and the opportunity to show the Can-statesmen since the end of the war in Europe. The British Foreign Secretary has proposed a union of western European states — Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. He envisages not merely an economic union and a dropping of trade barriers. Mr. Bevin's words on January 22nd were: "We are now proposing a form of political union with France....With that end in view, our representatives at Brussels, The Hague and Luxembourg were instructed yesterday to propose talks in consultation with their French colleagues". It is hoped that France would become the nucleus of the Western Union, which might eventually include Italy and Portugal.

A Western Union Of Europe

It is apparent that Mr. Bevin spoke for Conservative as well as Labour, for Mr. Churchill and Mr. Anthony Eden warmly commended the proposal. Mr. Churchill had already proposed political union with France—in the dark days of 1940, and a Western European economic union in his Fulton, Missouri, speech. The present times are serious and call for dramatic positive plans.

What is American opinion about such a union of Western Europe? The Marshall Plan is postulated on at least economic co-operation between the states of western Europe. Last week America's most distinguished elder statesman, Mr. Bernard Baruch, spoke to his country and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and urged the countries of Europe to form an economic union which would be a semi-political bloc which the United States should support by military assistance if an aggressor threaten it.

In Mr. Baruch's words: "The time has come to organize—to mobilize—for peace". The intransigence of Soviet Russia is virulent and dangerous. There is already an Eastern European bloc of Soviet-dominated countries which are so far from being free that there is likelihood within the year of their being absorbed in the U.S.S.R. A political unity called Western Union seems a bizarre and very remote possibility, but something like it must come about if E.R.P. is to be successful and Communism contained. Such a Union, including as it would British, Dutch, French and Belgian overseas possessions, would adequately take the place Britain once occupied in European and world affairs. It would assure the recovery and stability of Europe.

Russia And India

Much of the recent strife in India has been centred on the princely state of Kashmir in the north. The ruler, a Hindu, decided to federate the state with the Dominion of India; the inhabitants are mostly Moslems, and Pakistan patriots are resentful. Much blood has been shed and the political affiliation of Kashmir has been submitted to the U.N. Security Council now meeting in New York.

As the Security Council was preparing to examine the Kashmir situation, Russia began a series of diatribes against Britain's conduct in India. It charged the British Government — which after all has given political freedom and independence to the Dominions of India and Pakistan — with the nefarious purpose of fomenting strife between them on the principle of "divide and rule". Thus Soviet Russia seeks to make the outside world, and particularly the people of India, suspicious of Britain's desire to promote a peaceful settlement of the Kashmir dispute.

This is a clear vindication of Mr. Herbert Morrison's thesis that "the evil doctrine" of Russian communism involved "the calculated spread of misery and destitution for Nationalist and Imperialist political ends". Russia has imperialistic motives in stirring up trouble in India. Russian territory in Central Asia extends to the immediate neighbourhood of the northern boundaries of Kashmir. In Afghanistan the action of the Pathan tribesmen and the spread of dissension is being watched shrewdly by pro-Russians. The Soviet Government would probably be happy to see more bloodshed in north-west Pakistan. It might provide an excuse for "intervention" by Soviet-supported forces. During Gandhi's recent fasting were the inhabitants of the Kremlin praying for his early demise?

"Of Cabbages And Kings"

When the Walrus said that the time had come to talk of many things

Of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—
Of cabbages—and kings

cabbages were as far removed from kings as cauliflowers from the Rose of Sharon. Lewis Carroll could not have foreseen [illegible] have made. In a [illegible] novels and novelists [illegible] fully re[illegible]

[illegible] mon p[illegible] chou, mon petit chou"): "Ah, my little cabbage, my little cabbage". And then, in bitter, heart-searing voice: "You cost me fifty cents".

The lowly has been upraised, the Canadian cabbage has become a treasure, a delicacy to be prized. It has made the headlines. It has been discussed by grave statesmen and learned economists at Ottawa.

All this has gone to the cabbage's head; it has become swollen with pride of place. Housewives are now disdaining it as being too high and mighty and government officials have become as incensed as the housewives. So, on February 2nd, its pride is going to have a fall. It is again to become Cinderella of the vegetable world. Ceilings will circumscribe its bumptiousness — and they will not be high palace ceilings—and American cabbages will elbow it out of the top drawer.

Well, celebrity was good while it lasted, eh, mon petit chou?

WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

A Fresh Outlook On The Novel

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

EVERYBODY knows that most book reviewers read too much, and that too little of what they are compelled to read is of high quality. However ambitious a man may be when he sets up as a reviewer—however sure of his own integrity—it will not be long before he finds that the burden of his work is pressing heavily upon him, that the freshness of his judgement is deserting him, and that he is falling into tricks which invalidate his opinions. Consider what Cyril Connolly, one of the ablest of modern critics, has to say about it: "The reviewing of novels is the white man's grave of journalism; it corresponds, in letters, to building bridges in some impossible tropical climate. The work is gruelling, unhealthy and ill-paid, and for each scant clearing made wearily among the springing vegetation the jungle overnight encroaches twice as far....An unpleasant sight in the jungle is the reviewer who goes native. Instead of fighting the vegetation, he succumbs to it, and, running perpetually from flower to flower, he welcomes each with cries of 'genius'."

◇ ◇ ◇

NEVERTHELESS, some men manage to avoid the jungle fever of which Connolly writes, and they keep the fine edge of the in judgement free from nicks and dents. Such a reviewer is V. S. Pritchett whose book "The Living Novel" (Chatto & Windus) I commend to your attention today. Pritchett's work is familiar to readers of "The New Statesman and Nation" to which he contributes the leading literary article each week; he is also a novelist and a writer of short stories. During the war his duties made it impossible for him to continue his usual work as a writer and reviewer, but it was possible for him to do what many a reviewer yearns to do — when he had a little spare time he could read what he liked in it. And he read the classics among the world's novels.

◇ ◇ ◇

THERE are people who cannot face the works of what are called (does anyone know why?) "standard authors". Such books, they fear, will be "hard" or worse, old-fashioned. (By old-fashioned, they usually mean that they fear that the book will not deal with questions of sex as racily as novels written within the past ten years). But the book reviewer, who has had his fill of gamey modern novels, reeking from the press, often wishes to dip into the cool springs of the great novels of the past, to restore his appreciation of good writing and good story-telling, and to relieve the pressure of contemporaneity. Pritchett achieved this happy state during his idle hours in wartime.

◇ ◇ ◇

"THE Living Novel" contains thirty-two essays of which the first twenty-one are about English novels, and the remainder about French, Russian and Italian books. Fielding, Richardson, Smollett, Scott, Hood, George Eliot, Sheridan Le Fanu, D. H. Lawrence and Arnold Bennett are among writers with whom Pritchett deals. But he does not approach novels or novelists with the spirit of a professor of literature who must, at any cost, relate a novelist to his contemporaries and find a place for him in the hierarchy of English literature. Pritchett writes about these people as though they had come to him afresh—as though their books, and not those of the most recent contemporary novelists, had reached him in the publishers' packages. What makes these novels live? he asks himself. Why are they important and good reading today? This approach gives his criticism a freshness which is enspiriting to the reader, and leads the writer on to discoveries and re-discoveries which are of the greatest interest.

◇ ◇ ◇

WHAT is the secret of Pritchett's freshness? It is, I think, because he has never attended a university that he is able to make these excellent judgements. Now a university education can be an invaluable aid to a man who is naturally scholarly or mentally adventurous. But it is a handicap to millions of people who have no particular interest in learning, and who go to universities in order that teachers may shovel into them an equipment of ready-made ideas. Such people buy they literary judgements on the classics at the university shop, and they make them last for the rest of their lives. They do not make individual judgements (and it must be said that many universities discourage individual judgements) because they are incapable of such feats of thought. And, as well as these university-trained dullards, there are many

Unconsidered Trifles

"How's business, old man?"

"Picking up a little, I'm glad to say. As a matter of fact, one of the travellers came in yesterday with a $2,500 order."

"I don't believe it."

"It's true. I can show you the cancellation."

◇ ◇ ◇

Two men were discussing the morals of their respective parish priests.

"Our clergyman," said one, "is so strict that he won't even perform a marriage ceremony."

"Goodness," replied the other, "what has that got to do with his morals?"

"He says his conscience will not allow him to participate in any game of chance!"

◇ ◇ ◇

Remarked a man to his friend. "Do you know that half a dozen doctors have given up Poorleigh?"

"I'm sorry to hear that. What is the matter with him?" returned the friend.

"Oh! He just won't pay their bills."

PEACETIME PRIORITY

Letters To The Editor

AGAINST ALCOHOLISM

Sir: I wish to congratulate Mr. Brethen of Norwood on his recent excellent letter. He has said much which needs saying badly and has said it with conviction and dignified restraint. The editorial in question stooped to irrelevant mud-slinging before it finished.

Were anything else than alcoholism to cause so much murder, shooting, highway death and suffering for innocent people, there would be a strong hue and cry throughout the land.

In this matter of alcoholism clear straight thinking is set aside by the force of a habit formed, and by the magnet of dividends.

Sincerely,
L. ARMSTRONG.

Keene.

THE COUNCIL NEEDS JOLTING?

Toronto is asking for leave to install swimming pools in the schools for the recreation and community service.

Toronto is asking also to take a part of Sunnybrook Park owned by the Dominion Government for the extending of a highway and building entrance gates to the city for the encouragement of tourists to visit Toronto.

Toronto is asking for a block of 3½ acres between Cecil and Baldwin Streets from Spadina Avenue to Huron Street to be used as a public square and park.

Toronto is asking also for the power to erect, maintain and manage a community centre, indoor ice arena and buildings for community uses.

Toronto is asking for the transfer of the Toronto Island Ferry Service to municipal ownership under the Toronto Transportation Commission.

Peterborough's notice for a private bill is as bare as a nound's tooth. It asks to take over the property vested in the City Trust.

It also asks to take away from the people their right to vote on the Border Transit bus franchise as to whether this franchise should be renewed or not.

The people have the right to vote on all franchises and the City Council proposes to deny them that right without even hearing an argument from the people who are interested in public ownership.

Years ago with the help of that great Canadian, Sir Adam Beck, Peterborough City acquired the electric distribution system and gas equipment of the Peterborough Electric Light and Power Company; and this has been operated by the Utilities Commission ever since.

I played a small part, with other members of the City Council at that time, in bringing this vast power system into the hands of the people of this city so that they were able to get their light, power and gas at cost and had control of the business through the Utilities Commission as an elective body.

The bus service is privately-owned by a non-resident businessman and the profits go to him, when as a matter of fact the profits of this business should go to the passengers using the buses and the profits should be used in the reduction of the fares and not the increase of them.

The City's notice of application to the Legislature is bare of any application to acquire the 30-acres Exhibition Grounds at the south end of the city, which Americans have suggested look like a concentration camp with a board fence around it and the paint peeling off and barbed wire strung along the top.

I wish to assure Mayor Ovens and the City Council that people are getting pretty hot about this matter and the indignation is not altogether in the south end of the city.

People using the buses are very loud in their complaint about the overcrowding, delays, frosted windows preventing the drivers seeing traffic other than that directly in front of them, and unsatisfactory service, and my impression is that at the next nomination meeting, there will be rather violent criticism of the policy of this City Council.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

THE LAST WORD

As the weary night-worker—a polite name for a cat burglar!—lay half asleep in bed, his wife brought him an early cup of tea.

"Here, drink this," she said: "It'll be the last I'll bring you for a long time."

"Ho," he snorted, "An' 'oo says so?"

"The couple o' coppers waitin' in the passage," was her retort.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord; neither be weary of his correction: for whom the Lord loveth he correcteth; even as the father the son in whom he delighteth. (Prov. 3: 11, 12.)

◇ ◇ ◇

If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?....Furthermore we have had fathers of our flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, and live? For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness.

Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby. (Heb. 12: 7, 9-12.)

◇ ◇ ◇

And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write; These things saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God...As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore, and repent....

To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. (Rev. 3: 14, 19, 21.)

In A Montreal Court-Room

The accused was charged with what is termed an indictable offence which means that he had the option of choosing a trial before a judge alone or selecting a preliminary inquiry to determine if there was sufficient evidence to warrant the presiding magistrate committing him for trial before a judge and jury in the Court of King's Bench.

The clerk of the court read the three long counts contained in the charge and then asked the accused if he elected a trial before a judge and jury or before a judge alone.

"What was that again?" asked the prisoner.

The clerk took a deep breath, muttered to himself and then, believing the accused had not understood the charges, read them all over again.

"Did you understand that?" he asked the prisoner.

"Yes," replied the accused.

"You are sure now, there is no mistake about it this time?"

"Yeah, I understand alright."

"Now do you elect a trial before a Judge alone or before a Judge and jury?"

"What does that mean?"

"It means simply do you want to be tried by a judge or do you want to be tried by a jury. That is simple isn't it?"

"Yes?"

"Well, how do you want to be tried?"

"Me? I don't want to be tried at all."

The clerk gave up then and gave the accused a preliminary hearing.—(News item in Montreal Gazette, Jan. 15)

Won't Take Liberal Leadership If Danger Of Split-St. Laurent

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 — (CP). — External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said here today he would not accept the leadership of the Liberal Party if it would cause a religious or racial split in Canada.

"If I were to be proposed for the leadership at the Liberal national convention this summer I would not be able to agree it was the proper thing for me to accept if it was the occasion for a racial or religious split," he said.

"National unity is very important to this country and unity within the Liberal Party is also important to the country for the Liberal Party forms a substantial portion of this nation."

Mr. St. Laurent, a French-speaking Canadian from Quebec City and a Roman Catholic, is at present the likeliest choice at the convention for the successor to Prime Minister King as leader.

It was also learned that Mr. St. Laurent, if he was chosen Liberal Leader by the convention, would probably be prepared to remain at the helm for five or six years at least.

It is generally recognized that he has no ambitions to hold the post indefinitely but intends in due course to make way for one of the younger Liberals now coming into prominence.

It is likely that the convention will be held in Ottawa early in August.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 — (CP). — The National Revenue Department in the last year has increased its staff by around 2,000 in an effort to catch up on the backlog of income tax assessment work facing the department, it was learned here yesterday. Present staff of the department now stands around 6,500.

Legionnaires Swamp Belleville Under An 11-1 Senior 'B' Deluge

Legionnaires swept back into undisputed possession of second place in their OHA Senior "B" group standing last night in Lindsay on the tide of an 11-1 victory over Belleville Vets. They dominated play throughout in a speedy and clean contest on fast ice, taking a 2-0 lead in the first frame and building it up to a 5-0 margin to end the second, outplaying the visitors considerably in the last heat.

With Coach Ned Vitarelli returning to the puck wars—and playing a fine heady game on defence—Legion were in unbeatable form. They were aggressive, fast and deadly in close, while the Belleville bunch played some loose hockey and missed a lot of scoring opportunities. Only seven penalties were handed out, four to the winners, one a misconduct to Ace Nicholls.

They Shone

The line of Bob Greenlaw, Rochetta and Crowley was in top form this tilt and did most of the damage. Greenlaw and Rochetta were in on six goals apiece in a fine performance, while Crowley figured in on four. Dootch and Ned Vitarelli were in on two apiece. The whole team clicked well in all departments, from the goal out, with Ross Nicholls tough to beat in the cage. McDonald and Stewart were the best over the route for Belleville, and Plumley made a lot of saves—despite the score—for the losers.

The Vets put on the pressure right at the start, till Day went off for holding. He was back and Gerow and Leo Goyer teamed up for a neat try as they speeded the game up plenty. Hicks got it for high-sticking but returned before Bob Greenlaw tallied from Crowley and Rochetta in a close-in scramble. Bob got another shortly on a passout, aided by Rochetta and Ned Vitarelli on neat combination. Play was quite fast and fairly even, though Legion had more chances. Ernie Nicholls almost got one just before the bell.

Added It Up

Crowley made it 3-0 early in the third on a backhander on Rochetta's pass inside defence and D. Vitarelli was gated for tripping. He returned and Ernie Nicholls again came close. Then Godfrey and H. Greenlaw tested Plumley right in there as Legion pressed with both sides stepping fast. Crowley got another at close range, with R. Greenlaw and Rochetta in on it as they banged away at a harassed goalie. Ross Nicholls had to step to stop a few as the Vets roared back, and Burns almost tallied. Stewart went off for holding, and Dootch Vitarelli counted on H. Greenlaw's passout. It was hot and even at the finish.

Kept Counting

Gerow and L. Goyer threatened to start the third, but the Vets—although battling back—were being outplayed most of this inning. Hicks got the nod for high-sticking and Belleville pressed but he returned before Rochetta got right in at the goal-mouth with Bob Greenlaw's pass to sink it. It was fast and glorified shinny with the puck banged aimlessly all over the place. Barrett nearly notched one and they thought it was in as the Vets threatened with five men up, but Legion countered on breakaways. Burns got a nice one at close range from Ace and Ernie Nicholls, and then Belleville broke the goose-egg when Leo Goyer dented the hemp at point-blank range on McDonald's pass. Ace Nicholls was penalized for butt-ending and drew a misconduct when he pushed the referee around. His replacement was on when Rochetta scored nicely on a speedy breakaway. Yorke went away for tripping and D. Vitarelli and H. Greenlaw threatened. Bob Greenlaw scored from Godfrey and Ned Vitarelli inside defence, and later Bob got another on fine play in close from Crowley. It ended when Dootch Vitarelli counted nicely from Parnell at 10 paces.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Plumley; defence, V. Goyer and Stewart; centre, L. Goyer; wings, McDonald and Gerow; alternates, Murphy, Williams, Day, Barrett, Reeves, McNaughton and Yorke.

Legion: Goal, R. Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and Hicks; centre, E. Nicholls; wings, A. Nicholls and Burns; alternates, Rochetta, Crowley, R. Greenlaw, Parnell, D. Vitarelli, H. Greenlaw and N. Vitarelli.

Referee, J. Crombie; linesman, R. Wakelin.

Trojanettes Play

Canadiens pulled out a 2-1 decision over the Red Wings in their Trojanettes' girls' hockey game at the Turner Peck rink. Both teams fought hard for the verdict and turned in some good hockey. Marjorie Wood got both goals for Canadiens, with Joan Dunk aiding on one. The Wings fought back in the third period and Linda Jordan dented the hemp to make it close.

Biasetti Signs

TORONTO, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Hank Biasetti, first baseman from Windsor is one of four players who have already agreed to terms with the Toronto Maple Leafs for the 1948 International baseball league season. President Peter Campbell of the baseball Leafs announced Biasetti's signing along with catcher Stan Lopata, second baseman Von Harrington and pitcher Paul Calvert. Contracts of other players won't be sent out for another two or three weeks.

Nashua Gets Win Against De Laval

Nashua edged out DeLaval 4-2 last night at King Edward Park in an Industrial Hockey League tussle, Whitnell counting two goals for them and Conroy and Pryde one each. Boyle tallied twice for the losers in a good showing and Scriver was steady in the net. It was a keen contest throughout with both sides showing some smart hockey and being pretty well-matched. The teams:

Nashua: Goal, Jolley; defence, Cournyea and Campbell; centre, Pryde; wings, Conroy and McMaster; alternates, Whitnell, Delahaye and Condon.

DeLaval: Goal, Scriber; defence, Johnson and Bowen; centre, Boyle; wings, Basciano and Goodwin; alternates, Bell, Dalliday, Angus, C. Shaughnessy, P. Shaughnessy, Burke and Collins.

Trojan Results

Two of the best Bantam games of the season were put into the discard Tuesday night and both games were thrill-packed all the way. Rangers capped the nod over the cellar-dwelling Leafs 4 to 2, but both teams were travelling at a fast clip. Smith, Church and Dauncey did the scoring for Rangers, while Gilmour, Graham and Brioux were the stars for the Leafs.

Canadiens took Detroit's measure 7 to 6 in a wild-scoring spree in a game that didn't know the meaning of the word defence. Curtis in goal for Canadiens saved time and again. Lockie and Armstrong were the marksmen. Guthrie, Henderson and Stewart also were standouts. While Detroit were threatening all the way, the deciding goal was scored with Floyd serving a tripping penalty. He also starred along with Allen, LaRoche and Collins. Evans stopped a puck with his nose and had to be patched up, but was back in a few minutes going strong. The teams:

Rangers—J. Collins, Dauncey, Holbrook, O'Dette, Church, G. White.

Leafs—Panter, Kent, Gilmour, Brioux, D. Graham, Clements, J. Clarke, G. Graham.

Canadiens —Curtis, Armstrong, Guthrie, Henderson, Lockie, Hewie, Jennings, Stewart.

Detroit—Evans, L. Collins, LaRoche, Pullyblank, Floyd, Allen, Burfield, Downer.

London Rink Wins

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 28—(CP) —The London Curling Club defeated Kitchener 26-18 yesterday to qualify for a semi-final berth in the Ontario Tankard. The three other semi-finalists will be determined at bonspiels in Toronto, Oshawa and Kingston Thursday. R E. Wilson's London rnik lost to Perry Hall of Kitchener 11-10 but Russ Miller of London trounced Bert Hall's Kitchener four by 16-7 to give the Londoners a winning margin of eight points.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Dink Carroll runs the copy of a letter from one Sandy McHolt in his Montreal column. A humorous one on curling, but we'll only clip a bit of the following: "Most games, even the most strenuous, are played quietly without noise and yelling by the participants — the spectators do the yelling and the players do the playing. But not so in curling. Here the players do the yelling and the spectators do the playing. You see how crazy this game is. Even the rules of the game are posted upside down. Apparently you have to read them while standing on your head. The quiet and friendly comments of the spectators, ensconced in easy chairs behind plate glass in pleasant, warm surroundings and smoking someone else's cigarettes, are most enlightening. I have learned more of the fine points of curling by listening to spectators than by watching players.

* * * * * *

"Short as my experience of the game is, and limited as my knowledge of the finer points, I could improve the calibre of play 100 per cent without changing the rules or implements of the game or anything else simply by taking all the players off the ice and putting on all the spectators. One record and one only did I establish in my short sojourn into the land of ice and stone—I took up the game and dropped it all in one evening. I plan to go to the club again to take advantage of my peculiar type of membership, but if you're looking for me don't look on the ice. You'll find me upstairs behind the plate glass drinking coffee with Mrs. McSalls. Yours for a longer golf season but a shorter curling season, Sandy McHolt."

Helping The Minors

Fred Scates, of the Petes' puck executive, tells us that the overcoat won recently by Isadore Black—in the Petes' draw—was being turned over by Isadore to Prexy Dick Ouimet of the PMHA, along with a few other articles, for a draw to aid minor hockey here. The coat had been donated in the first place by Ed Riley, the club president. Dick was quite pleased to accept as the kids need the do-remi, playing half their games out of town and with playdowns not too far away. A nice gesture, anyway, by Ed in the first place and Isadore in the second. With Fred Scates getting an assist.

* * * * * *

'Tis trusted that there'll be a big turnout of interested persons at the open meeting tomorrow eve at 7.30 in the Market Hall to discuss plans for a secondary rink. Hockey clubs and fans should be on hand, of course, but also manufacturers, service club members, some of the city council, some of the Centre Committee, and others. So that a thorough constructive discussion may be held and a definite start made to have this needed rink ready for next winter. Such action would halt the hockey outcry for haste in erecting the Memorial Centre.

* * * * * *

Just Nothing To It

It was as one-sided as an argument with the magistrate last eve in Lindsay when Legionnaires slipped Belleville Vets the runty side of an 11-1 count. Moving Legion into second spot alone and shoving the Vets into the cellar. A speedy and clean fray on fast ice before over 700 fans—frigid weather holding down the crowd, same as in Omemee last Friday. The Legionnaires were really flying and they played hurry-up hockey in every department all the way through. Coach Ned Vitarelli changed his mind and got back in harness, as a defenceman, and played a swell heady game. So now both the Petes and Legions have playing coaches on defence, and smart ones at that.

* * * * * *

Quinte crew kept up the pace and worked hard but couldn't click while Legion were in peak form and deadly in close. The Bob Greenlaw-Rochetta-Crowley line had a field day with fine work, Bob being in on six, Joe six and Bill four. While Ned and Dootch Vitarelli garnered a couple of points each. Whole team showed up well in this tilt and were skating easily as fast as the Vets at the finish. They can take Kingston Saints on Scugog ice Friday, too, if they play that kind of hustling hockey. While Belleville didn't have their regular goalie, the sub net-guardian didn't fan on many—he just didn't have any chance on most of the hot stabs at close range. Petes play in Kingston tonight and in Belleville on Friday.

Horses For Johnny

Noted this item by Hal B the other night in the Toronto Star: "At this time of year harness horsemen start looking for candidates for the rich stakes. Already juveniles have made their appearance at Dufferin track and they are a splendid looking flock. Johnny Chapman, youngest reinsman at Dufferin, has received a couple of two-year-olds from Hugh Stewart, Peterborough, both sired by Prince Direct, who incidentally is also the sire of Stewart Direct, the fast pacer Stewart sent to California last week. During the fall season Johnny Chapman had Sleepy Tom in his stable and the gelding won nine dashes for the junior member of the Chapman family. Sleepy Tom didn't show a thing until turned over to Johnny."

AHA Matched Against Swiss At Olympics

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 28 —(AP)— The International Ice Hockey Federation matched the Amateur Hockey Association of America team today against Switzerland to open the Olympic Games Friday at 11 a.m.

The I.I.H.F. thus stood pat on its decision to include the A.H.A. group. Avery Brundage, chairman of the United States Olympic Committee, had opposed the A.H.A. as the official United States representative and had sought to have the United States Olympic Committee's team substituted.

The draw took place while the executive committee of the International Olympic Committee was weighing the arguments of the United States Olympic Committee against the A.H.A. representing the United States.

The A.H.A. team was expected to arrive today from Zurich, where it defeated the town club last night, 11 to 4. The period scores were 5-3, 2-0 and 4-1, the Olympic press bureau said.

The draw for the hockey tournament matched these teams after the opening game:

Hint Fireworks In Toronto Game

By The Canadian Press

All the National Hockey League's six teams are engaged tonight with chief interest centering on the meeting between Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens.

While the second-place Leafs and fifth-place Habitants renew ancient rivalries at Toronto, the league-leading Detroit Red Wings will be at Boston and New York Rangers travel to the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks.

It was the last-place Hawks who bounced Toronto out of a leadership tie by holding the Leafs to a 4-4 deadlock at Chicago Sunday. The Leafs were smarting under this set-back and in none too amiable a frame of mind for the meeting with Canadiens, who beat the Leafs 8-4 in Montreal less than two weeks ago.

The Leafs drilled hard for this one and rookie Sid Smith, who combined with Max Bentley for the two goals that beat Chicago here Saturday, was flying as usual despite a broken nose received in the Sunday game at Chicago.

Generals At Top of League Edge Galt Rockets 4-3

By The Canadian Press

Notice of dispossession was served on Windsor Spitfires last night by Tommy Anderson's Oshawa Generals who took over top spot in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" race with a 4-3 decision over the fourth-place Galt Rockets at Galt. It was Oshawa's 24th win in 30 starts.

The Rockets are one point behind Barrie Flyers and one point ahead of Stratford Kroehlers.

It was anybody's game until the 16-minute mark of the final stanza when Red Sullivan registered the winning tally.

The Generals took an early lead, scoring within the first 10 minutes on goals by Dick Gamble and Joe Lafrance. Galt evened the first period count with George Burcham's goal and when with less than two minutes to go Wiggie Wylie scored on a passing play with Robby Robertson and Harry Pidhirny.

The second frame went scoreless.

Steals Puck

George Scott stole the puck from Wylie in front of the Galt net to beat the Galt netminder, but Wylie redeemed himself at the 15-minute mark with another counter. A minute later Sullivan got the winning goal on a screened shot.

There were no senior games.

Stratford Indians visit Hamilton Patricias in tonight's only senior fixture scheduled. In the junior circuit Toronto St. Michael's Majors go to Stratford, Toronto Marlbors visit Windsr and Barrie Flyers are at St. Catharines.

REALLY FLEW—Bob Greenlaw was really flying at times last night as he amassed six scoring points to help Legion trim Belleville 11-1 in Lindsay. He scored four goals and aided on two more. Bob is shown here in grid attire.

BACK WITH ROUGH RIDERS

Ken Charlton, star halfback of Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four football loop and an eastern all-star selection in 1946 said last night he expected to be back with Ottawa next season.

Tonight May See Whipper Unmask Marvel

Tonight's the night at the Brock Arena when the Masked Marvel wrestles Whipper Billy Watson in a bout that means considerable to both men. Watson, with his campaign for a world title match in the offing cannot afford a loss, while the Marvel will be forced to unmask if he loses The Whipper is the man to do the job if anyone can do it but the is going to be plenty tough. This big strongly-muscled wrestler in the mysterious yellow hood is nobody's fool on a grappling mat. It should be a great wrestling bout to watch with the result quite likely to be explosive.

Ben Sharpe meets Jan Gotch and Don McIntyre will introduce the Hindu wrestler Nanjo Singh to complete the card. Manager Jim Laidlaw urges the fans to come early for the best choice of seats.

TCS Wallops Pickering 5-2

NEWMARKET, Jan. 28 — Bob Moffitt drove in three goals and Nige Thompson the other two as Trinity College School of Port Hope walloped Pickering College, 5-2, in an OHA Prep School junior "B" tussle here. Jim Farrell and Dick Elliott were the Pickering marksmen.

Bears Sparkle In 2-1 Victory

By The Canadian Press

Hershey Bears may not lead the American Hockey League's eastern division but if last night's performance is an indication of things to come, the league-leading Providence Reds had better watch out.

The Bears flashed some of their old-time form at home last night and made the capacity crowd remember the team that swept to the AHL championship last season. Frank Mario, playing on a wing position, notched the first goal and Johnny McGill hit the mark once to give Hershey a 2-1 decision over Pittsburgh. Jack Hamilton was the only Wasp able to beat Goalie Gord Henry.

At Washington, New Haven Ramblers kept two points ahead of Hershey by withstanding a last-period rally by Lions to come out on top 5-3. Ott Heller, Dune Fisher, Harry Bell, Chick Webster and Jean Paul Denis connected for Ramblers. Kent Shultz picked up two goals for Washington with the other one going to Frank Porteous.

Raging Blizzard Ties Up Olympic Runs

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 28.—(AP).—A swirling blizzard raged in St. Moritz today, piling up tons trouble on ski runs and ice rinks and eclipsing in the eyes of most athletes the alphabetical battle over whether it will be AHA or USOC representing the United States in the Olympic hockey games Friday.

Starting at dusk, the storm had frosted the Olympic capital with six inches of snow by midnight.

A week-end snow already had left the games site in not-too-good shape.

Ice rinks yesterday had to be cleared enough to permit full use by hockey players, figure and speed skaters.

Signund Ruud of Norway, technical adviser for ski jumping, directed Swiss officials to remove 18 inches of excess snow from the foot of the jump. Now they have to start all over again.

Every time it snows slalom and downhill ski runs must be packed to provide fast surface conducive to speed.

Mild weather for the past week has hurt skating, too.

Yesterday four-man bobs were not allowed to race on a chewed-up track.

Bad weather did not effect the jury weighing the big indoors pre-Olympic baattle — Amateur Hockey Association vs. the United States Olympic committee.

23 Operations Save Ball Player's Leg

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28 — (AP). — Twenty three operations saved a leg which doctors wanted to amputate from Leland Victor (Lou) Brissie, Jr., 23, the southpaw whom Connie Mack predicts will be greater than Bob (Lefty) Grove.

Brissie signed a Philadelphia Athletics' contract yesterday thus becoming the club's only poetside hurler.

Brissie was wounded in the war in northern Italy and after doctors were reasonably sure he had a chance to live they decided to amputate his leg.

"You can't," Lou protested. "I'd never be able to play baseball again."

So the medics operated 23 times and saved the limb.

Hurlers Discuss Their Jinxes

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Jan. 28—(AP)—Spec Shea and Ralph Branca, opposing pitchers in the first game of the 1947 World Series, were sitting side by side at the Connecticut Sports Writers' Alliance dinner discussing jinxes. . . Shea has been mentioned as a possible victim of the "second-year jinx" that often afflicts ball players and some hot stove talk has concerned the possibility that Branca will be jinxed by his World Series beatings. . . they both agreed to laugh it off, but the solemn-faced Branca did a better job than confident-looking Spec. . "why worry about things like that?" asked Ralph. "We play 154 games every year and I figure I'll win my share. I should be a better pitcher next season than I was last year.

——NHL Chit—Chat——

With the exception of goalie Bill Durnan, Montreal Canadiens have a complete French-speaking team in action when Roger Leger and Butch Bouchard team up on defence and the Habs' rookie forward line of Normand Dussault, Jacques Locas and Tod Campeau take their turn on the ice. Jacques Locas is the only player in the National League who cannot speak a word of English . . . Bryan Hextall, New York Rangers' veteran right winger, has scored 20 or more goals in N.H.L. competition for seven different seasons. No other player performing in the league today can match Hextall's scoring consistency.

British Evacuee Gains Jockey Fame

MIAMI, FLA., Jan. 28—(AP)—Peter Gifford, one of 52 British children who came to this country to escape the London blitz in 1941, is "booting 'em home" on the Florida race circuit and today ranks as one of the top young apprentice jockeys.

Gifford, now 18, is the only one of the group to remain in the United States.

It was by chance that Peter became a jockey. The New York family with which he stayed were friends of trainer Preston Burch, and when Peter showed an interest in horses Burch took him in charge.

Since July he has ridden more than 60 winners.

200 Homes Buried During Earthquake

MANILA, Jan. 28 — (AP). — The central Philippines' disastrous three days of earthquakes wrought damage of $3,500,000 to church properties alone, and vast landslides literally buried 200 houses, latest dispatches today related. The death toll climbed to an unofficial total of 28.

Seven minor shocks were felt yesterday on Panay Island and residents of Iloilo City met in the open air to pray for an end to the quakes "before the whole island is completely ruined."

Bishop Joseph Maria Cuenco, who called the Iloilo folk to prayer, said 15 Catholic churches had been destroyed. It was he who estimated damage to the widespread church properties.

A Major Blow

LONDON, Jan. 28 — (AP). — Government officials said last night the Iraqui Cabinet's resignation was a major blow to Britain's plan for sealing off Communism in the Middle East. The resignation and rioting in Baghdad in which 70 persons were reported killed yesterday, signified the end of Premier Salih Bey's fight for ratification of the treaty.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Bobby Bauer, star performer with Boston in the National Hockey League for almost 10 years, has been granted his release by the Bruins and will finish out the season with the fifth-place Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A circuit, Manager Eddie Schmaltz of the Dutchmen said last night.

Bauer was waived out of the NHL, American Hockey League and United States Hockey League and is expecting reinstatement to amateur status shortly. He retired from professional hockey this season because of business pressure. Bauer will play his first OHA game in Toronto Friday night when the Dutchmen meet the second-place Toronto Marlboros.

Hubert Gagnier, Canadian featherweight professional boxing champion will know his fistic fate within a few days. The Montreal fighter who has been reported as announcing his retirement following a defeat recently in Boston by Jack (Spider) Armstrong of Toronto, will be examined by a brain specialist to determine whether he is fit enough to resume fighting.

Franz Buman, 1947 Swiss slalom champion, fractured a leg at St. Moritz, Switzerland yesterday and was stricken off the Swiss Olympics entry list. He was the fourth casualty among the Swiss. The others were Switzerland's famed Edy Rominger, all-around skier; Paul Valaar, one of their best Alpine racers; and ski jumper Conrad Rochat.

Babe Ruth went home yesterday from the Eneurological Institute where he had undergone a check-up since Jan. 10.

The Australian Lawn Tennis Association decided yesterday to enter a team in this year's Davis Cup competition.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, and, for real results, it is still a most dependable medicine for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Anyone can do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and fill up with syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough medicine—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time. Children take it without the usual struggle.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Pinex Is Fast Relief. Easily Mixed. Saves Money.

Meighen Raps State Help To Universities

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 28.—(CP).—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former prime minister of Canada, last night termed Government assistance to universities "a spreading pestilence in every walk of life," and said mass university education was impracticable.

He told a University of Toronto alumni gathering here that state assistance to universities could destroy their self-reliance.

On mass education, he said: "An alma mater must know her children one by one. Anything of the nature of a mint or an army is impossible."

He said universities should be closed to those unable to benefit from them, even though such applicants be 'smothered in wealth.'

Mr. Meighen said universities have been weakened because subjects which have "a proper place" in either the arts of sciences have been allowed to "creep" into their curricula.

The gathering at which he spoke was a banquet in honor of three University of Toronto graduates who now hold key posts at the University of Western Ontario. They are Chancellor Arthur Ford editor-in-chief of the London Free Press; Dr. George E. Hall, university president; and Dr. J. B. Collip, dean of the medical school.

Mr. Meighen said:

"University's purpose in teaching the arts must be to train an intellect that could differentiate between the commonplace and the excellent, the spurious from the real; and in teaching the sciences it should awaken the imagination to a sense of beauty and the ability to enjoy beauty," he said.

Charges Austerity Program Places Canada In Mess

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 — (CP). — Garfield Case (PC-Grey North) said in the Commons last night that he did not know whether his language would be parliamentary but the country had been in a "hell of a mess" since Finance Minister Abbott announced the austerity program November 17.

No business man could plan for the future. Even the government did not know what was going to happen as a result of the program.

Mr. Case said the government was trying to defend its action in bringing the Canadian dollar to parity. However, when Canada had a 90 cent dollar a reserve of $16,000,000 in American dollars was built up. When the dollar was boosted to parity those reserves were drained off.

The moment one interfered with natural laws, even as they affected the dollar, restrictions had to be resorted to. One restriction led to another and to a consequential loss of freedom.

Mr. Case said that for the first time in history Canada had borrowed from a foreign government. Mr. Abbott interjected that Canada often had borrowed from foreign countries. Mr. Case said that was true, but the loans were from private individuals, individuals who to-day would not make similar loans because they did not think Canada had a good business administration.

Cheap Meat: "Is there such a thing as reasonable meat in Canada to-day? Where on earth can the mother of five husky children get a Sunday dinner without mortgaging the house? Now don't suggest hamburger, I won't touch the stuff."

Best Sunday buy for a large family on a moderate income is pot roast cut from the chuck. A five pound roast, rolled, then soaked in seasoned spiced tomato juice for 24 hours or longer cooks to tender lusciousness. After the soaking wipe, then sear all over. Cook slowly on a rack and tightly covered. It's tender, doesn't shrink too much and the cost is reasonable. For a family of seven—five children, yourself and your husband—you need a five-pound roast. At 33c a pound the cost is $1.65. From that you'll have some gravy and a few meat scraps for stew.

June in February: "I have a chance to go to Los Angeles next winter. Can you tell me the return fare? How many nights on a sleeper? How much will that cost me? What should I tip the porter? Will two dresses do me for train travel? Should I pick up with strangers?"

Aren't you the lucky person—sunshine instead of slush. Your return fare to Los Angeles is $160.45. You will need a sleeper three nights. The cost of an upper berth for the three nights is $17.00 and the lower berth $21.00. The porter will expect about $1.00 a day; your dining car waiter at least 10% tip. Two non-crush dresses will be plenty. The less you have to fuss with the better. Dark, crease resistant dresses with unpressed pleats and white collars are comfortable yet look smart. Pick up friends? Why not, if they look pleasant.

Legal adoption: "I have cared for two children as a foster mother for two years. Now my husband and I want to adopt them. If we do will we still get family allowance? Would we get any additional aid?"

Why not talk the whole problem over with the agency for whom you look after the children? Our understanding is that the agency must be quite satisfied you and husband will make good parents, that family allowance will be continued but your monthly allowance from the agency stops.

NEW IMMERSION SUITS are compulsory of all U.S. navy fliers stationed at Squantum, Mass. These suits weigh about 20 ounces and are made of rubber and nylon material which seals the body completely and retains the body warmth even in icy waters. They allow a man to float in the water quite comfortably and keep fairly warm. They slip over the fliers' regular clothing and when not in use can be rolled up in a small bundle. Without such equipment a flier who comes down in an icy sea could freeze to death in five minutes.

Away From Parents For Years Chlidren Being Returned Home

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(CP).—Institutions which found refuge for thousands of frightened, lonely children during the war are returning them by degrees to normal family life.

From Dr. Barnardo's famous homes for destitute children, an average of 10 boys and girls a week are being sent back to their parents while a similar number are being returned weekly to the national children's homes.

Many returned children have been strangers to their fathers and mothers for five years or more.

Since the war Barnado's alone have restored about 700 children to their homes.

It is a rule at Barnado's that no destitute child is ever refused admission and the institution was so hard pressed for accommodation during the blitz years that 10 new homes had to be opened to absorb the overflow.

In 1942 1,607 children were admitted and the number in residence during that year was 8,149 — the largest family in the United Kingdom.

In addition to children admitted to homes, a number of orphans found foster-parents through the registered adoption societies and a few were adopted by families in Canada, the United States, Australia and South Africa.

"At the present time," an official of the National Children's Homes said, "we do not arrange for children to be adopted. But the matter has been under consideration for some time."

CANADA is heavily "in the red" in present trading with the U.S. dollar area. In our total trade with the world we are in a good position but not in that part which is done with the U.S. dollar countries. Other countries with whom we do business cannot pay us in full, either in cash or in goods, for the things they buy from us.

This situation is made more serious than ever before because so many countries, our regular customers, have not recovered from the war. It may be some time yet before they get on their feet sufficiently to help put things right. Meantime, we must find ways and means of balancing our own books and reducing our U.S. dollar deficit.

There are two things we can do at the moment... cut down unnecessary purchases from the U.S. dollar area and increase our production of goods that can be sold to those countries to balance accounts. It's an emergency and should be treated as such.

Seaway Measure May Become Campaign Issue

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(AP) — Senator George Aiken, (Rep.-Vt.) asserted today the fate of the bitterly-contested St. Lawrence seaway measure "might well be the determining factor in the November presidential election."

The bill would authorize construction to make the St. Lawrence River navigable to ocean shipping and create a 2,200,000 horsepower hydro-electric plant.

Aiken, a staunch supporter of the legislation said:

"If the Republican leadership lines up against this measure, after President Truman has taken the lead for it, I can't conceive of the Republicans carrying next November those central states to which the seaway is so vital."

Truman's support of the gigantic joint Canada-United States development, first broached more than 50 years ago, was contained in identical letters sent Monday to Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.-Mich.) president of the Senate, and speaker Joseph Martin.

He "strongly recommended" the Congress enact legislation authorizing "this great project."

Aiken identified the three states to which he said the seaway is "so vital" as Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Taft Undecided

Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee and announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, again told reporters he is still undecided as to how he will vote.

Asked if the Republicans have a policy on the seaway issue, Taft said that they "did not," It was a non-partisan measure, and "I note that it has even split some Republicans in New York State."

His remark had obvious reference to the conflicting seaway positions taken by Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, like Taft an avowed Republican presidential aspirant, and Senator Ives (Rep.-N.Y.).

Dewey has declared his full support for the seaway, while Ives, a close personal and legislative friend of the governor, announced yesterday he would vote against the project.

Taft said he "hoped" that a vote on the seaway legislation would come "early" next week, perhaps by Monday.

Aiken, however, said he could not see a vote being taken until "next Wednesday at the earliest."

Guest speakers include: Dr. Glen Shortliffe, Queen's University, just returned from a year at the Sorbonne, Paris, France. His subject will be 'Travel in Europe.' Mr. F. C. Hudspeth, who has spent some 30 years in China, will speak on "China Today." Mr. Alex. Edmison, secretary Prisoners' Rehabilitation Society, will give his address on penal reform. Too Many Car Accidents Experts To Check Crossing

Federal Board of Transport is being requested by the council to send a traffic expert (or two) to Peterborough to investigate safety precautions at the CNR crossing on Reid St.

"Three accidents in the last six weeks demand that something be done," said Ald. Gordon Armstrong at the board of works meeting, with Ald. H. Dodds in the chair. "I think we have been extremely lucky that some persons were not killed."

Northbound drivers may be distracted from the railway crossing by the farther and brighter "flasher" warning light at Reid and McDonnel Streets. Ald. Herb Young suggested it be dimmed or "blacked out." Opinion of some of the members was that the street intersection north of the railway crossing may tend to divert motorists going north, but otherwise the railway wigwag appears to be adequate.

Ald. D. Miller said that a bus, filled with passengers, recently had a narrow escape at the same crossing. The board recommended that the council ask the Federal Department to investigate that stretch of Reid St. and report their findings.

Minister Favors School For Guides

Three New Minnow Ponds Built At Deer Lake Hatchery

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 28 — (CP). — The Ontario Government is seriously considering a school for guides, Ontario Lands Minister Harold Scott told the Northern Ontario Outfitters' Association convention last night.

Although many of Ontario's guides are well qualified, some of them are "not so hot," he told the delegates. A book of instructions for guides is being prepared and soon will go to district headquarters of the Department throughout the province.

This may be followed by a course of instructions for guides, he said, possibly with tests and issuance of classified qualifications.

"We must see that tourists enjoy their vacations in comfort and safety and this is a move in that direction," he added. It follows recent discussions with forestry officials at the Provincial Forestry School at Dorset.

Mr. Scott also advocated closing of all lake trout fishing at spawning time. "Why spend the money raising these fish in the hatcheries when we can let them do so naturally by a closed season," he asked.

Control Aircraft

It is the intention of the department of lands and forests to work out some control over the use of aircraft for hunting and fishing, said Mr. Scott. He termed this matter "a joint problem" of the department and conservation organizations such as the N.O.O.A. and he said he anticipated that the outfitters would suomit resolutions recommending certain action to curb this practice.

Recalling the complaints of improper control over hunters and fishers who fly in to Ontario, the minister agreed that something must be done but he reminded delegates that any control plan will nave to be worked out in conjunction with the Federal air transport authorities.

Use Small Planes

He mentioned a new type airplane that is being used extensively now for wild life patrol.

The plane is much smaller, has a shorter wing spread and can land and take off in smaller lakes where previously it was impossible.

"We can't expect these aeroplanes to keep strict order, but must take other precautions and any suggestions and recommendations forthcoming from your association would be welcomed."

Not Needed

Speaking on fish hatcheries, he said that from time to time his department received resolutions asking that more be built but he does not believe more are needed.

"We have plenty of water and space in our existing hatcheries but our problem is to find rearing pools to which we can fly the young fish for planting," he said.

His department was now faced with the problem of finding "swimming food" for the maskinonge. Lunge, he said, feed only on live waterlife "and in this conjunction we are putting in three minnow pool at Deer lake."

Scarcity of caribou in Ontario and recent reports that more and more caribou are coming here was discussed by Mr. Scott.

"We want to set aside certain areas which we know caribou now frequent and from this area try to spread them across the province — and who knows we may possibly have caribou hunting seasons here, not too far away from now," he said.

Rambling Reporter

UNDERGROUND DIDOES

The "Bell" was playing tiddly-winks on George Street shortly after noon. Tuesday at the corner of George and Charlotte a truck from the telephone company was parked squarely in the centre of the intersection, the man-hole cover in the pavement was off, and a barrier set up: "Men At Work". This reporter walked on up George Street. Lo and behold there, plumb in the middle of Simcoe Street intersection was another Bell truck, parked beside another man-hole. A couple men were telling out some cable, which must have had a secret underground communication with the Charlotte St truck. The reporter walked on up to Hunter Street intersection. A Bell truck was there, too but it hadn't yet monopolized the middle of the road. It couldn't for a car just at that moment came to a screeching halt—right in the centre. Did the driver want to get into the game too? No, he was from out-of-town and hadn't seen the red light, soon enough. He departed on the next green light and left the intersection free for the third Bell truck and the merry George Street game continued without interference from outsiders.

Unsliced Bread Up One Cent In Peterborough

Bread has taken another rise and the price has been hoisted 1 cent per standard loaf. This directive from the Bread Makers' Association affected the price as from Tuesday morning and will be operative throughout the province.

Mr. J. Simmons, manager Weston's Bread Company, Peterborough, reported he had received notice of the impending rise late Monday from his head office in Toronto. "The only loaf that will not be affected will be the sliced loaf," said Mr. Simmons.

All bakeries in the city of Peterborough will come under this new price regulation. The housewife will now pay 14 cents for the standard 24 ounce loaf, but sliced bread will remain at 15 cents.

R. R. Faryon, president of the Quaker Oats Co., asked if he knew what was causing the increase in the price of bread, said he did not but he intimated that it was not due to any increase in the price of flour for this commodity had been decreased in price from 30 to 50 cents a barrel.

All types of white bread jumped one cent per loaf in Kingston today and prices now range from 18 cents for second class to 15 cents for first class sliced. Bakery firms said a continued rise in production costs forced the action.

Defeat Attempt To Pare Princess' Pay

LONDON, Jan. 28. — (AP).—The House of Commons Tuesday defeated another attempt to pare down Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip's yearly allowances.

H. Glenvil Hall, financial secretary of the treasury, chided two members of parliament who sought to abolish the Royal couple's $200,000 yearly allowance and put them on an expense account.

"It is not right that we should be picking on Her Royal Highness for this treatment," Hall said.

During the day the Royal couple moved their possessions from Buckingham Palace, where they had been staying with the King and Queen, into a borrowed flat in Kensington Palace.

Simultaneously, the Admiralty said Philip soon would give up his desk job in its operations division. March 1 he will begin a six-months' staff course at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.

The debate in the House of Commons was on an amendment backed by Laborites Ronald Chamberlain and Emrys Hughes. The House already has rejected a move to cut the allowances of the couple.

Chamberlain and Hughes proposed to give the Princess $20,000 a year for her personal expenses and put additional expenses on an account limited to $140,000 more.

Hughes said the present $200,000 allowance was "extravagant and unjustifiable at this moment of our economic crisis."

The amendment was beaten without a recorded vote.

Heating System Saved Plants From Cold

"Business as usual" is the order of the day at the Peterborough Floral Co., Water St., which suffered a $2500 fire loss Monday morning. Cecil Williamson, proprietor, said all orders are being filled; and apart from repairs to the roof and one greenhouse, he is followigg his usual business routine.

Plants in one greenhouse were destroyed but they were not ready for marketing in any case, being slated for spring sale. The heating system continued to function through the sub-zero night and thus saved the remainder of the plants and flowers from frostbite.

The shop section of the building shows no sign of fire which was confined to the rear portion of that structure. Floors have been scrubbed clean of dirt and water stains--the usual aftermath of fire.

Mr. Williamson had a somewhat similar fire back in March of 1928. At that time damage was $2700. Two fires in 20 years are still two many, he feels.

Your Baby and You

Baby's first tooth may start peeking through when he is about five or six months old . . . but if it doesn't, don't be dismayed. Many perfectly normal babies are still quite toothless at the ripe old age of 12 months. Teething is a natural process and should cause little discomfort except when the teeth are actually pushing through the gums. To ease the soreness and satisfy baby's desire to chew something, let him have a hard, white rubber teething ring, sterized, and large enough not to get in his throat. A bone or hard crust of bread will sometimes serve the same purpose. When baby's teeth appear, keep them clean by wiping with a cloth moistened with a solution of boiled water and baking soda. Later, a soft brush should be used.

Gregg Denies Ultimatum To Veterans

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 — (CP). — Veterans Minister Gregg, VC, denied yesterday that any "ultimatum" had been delivered to dissatisfied occupants of 100 veterans' homes in the Windsor area, but promised consideration of a suggestion that their case be submitted to a Commons committee.

He tabled the report of an independent committee which, at the veterans' request, studied the costs they should be charged for homes built on the Roseland and Oliver sub-divisions under the small holdings clause of the Veterans Land Act.

The minister said the committee found that in 54 cases the Veterans' Department had asked more for the houses than the committee thought they were worth. In four cases the figures agreed and in 42 the committee's figures were higher than those set by the Department.

Price Reductions

Answering questions asked on Monday by Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) the minister said the price reductions ranged from a low of $14.03 to $683.71, and that the total decrease on a $694,500 project was $24,581. In the cases where the committee's figures were above those of the Department, the government would stick to its own figures.

However, the veterans still had refused to accept either price and had demanded a further downward revision, although they were satisfied with the $110,000 worth of repairs expended on the homes.

The veterans had been asked "to let the Department know whether they are prepared to sign a purchase agreement or whether they want it on a temporary rental agreement basis pending sale to another qualified veteran." The minister added that "we must bring this situation to a conclusion."

FOR HIS "ADVENTURE" THROUGH FRANCE in 1912, the Duke resorted to the convenient royal practice of the incognito and travelled as the "Earl of Chester." "This fooled no one," says the Duke, "but relieved the French government of rendering the honors due me . . . and I escaped the ordeal of having to respond to them." Above is a photograph of a page of the Duke's album with pictures of the living accommodation he enjoyed in Paris, "far superior," he says "than anything I had at home."

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 15

It was the Oxford part that took me by surprise. The promise of travel in Europe compensated somewhat for the loss of a naval career.

But Oxford was unexpected for the reason that my father who had little sympathy for experiences different from his own, had always taken a dim view of college dons and professors.

In Navy fashion, he regarded them as impractical, unworldly people whose lives and ways were alien to his own.

Wondering, therefore, what lay behind this sudden interest in Oxford, I protested that as I had neither the mind nor will for books, my years at a university would be wasted.

"If I cannot stay in the Navy, please let me go round the world as you did," I pleaded, "and learn about the different countries and their people firsthand."

My father was obdurate, and eventually it emerged that Hansell was the villain of the Oxford plot.

"It was Hansell's idea," said my father, "and you are to go to his old college, Magdalen."

What I had to say to the poor man after I left the library was — to use a highly satisfactory American phrase—nobody's business.

My father was then preparing to leave for his Coronation Durbar in India, and no doubt wishing to make up to me for this quick success of blows to my youthful aspirations, he told me that I could have the run of Sandringham, with its fine shooting, during his three-month absence.

I passed a wonderful autumn and winter there, tramping the fens and marshes with Finch and Mr. Jones, the local schoolmaster.

My grandmother was living in the Big House, with her unmarried daughter, Victoria, or "Aunt Toria" as we always called her.

The great house parties were no more; but I used to walk over in the evening to play cards with Aunt Toria and chat with my grandmother.

She had by then become quite an old lady; elegant and graceful of manner, with delicately chiselled features and high coiffure, she was still recognisable as the lovely young woman whose portrait by Lauchert, painted at the time of her wedding, hangs in the private dining-room at Windsor Castle.

Her charm was irresistible, and overcame such serious disabilities as a stiff leg, acute deafness, and rebellious unpunctuality in a family determined to run by clockwork.

To the end of her life at Sandringham she was attended by her own small court, of which one was General Sir Dighton Probyn, VC, the Queen's Comptroller, a position in which he had earlier served King Edward VII.

If ever a man looked the part of the board chairman of a sound conservative fiduciary institution it was the gallant Sir Dighton; his white beard flowing over his chest would have filled the most suspicious investor with confidence.

Yet it was a matter of painful knowledge to our family that Sir Dighton's cavalryman's bravura, which had contributed to numerous dashing exploits during the Indian Mutiny while he was colonel of "Probyn's Horse," when transferred to the field of high finance had a tendency to produce results comparable with the "Charge of the Light Brigade."

My father watched with unconcealed misgivings while Sir Dighton created at Sandringham costly rock gardens complete with rustic shelters all dedicated with respectful adoration to "The Divine Lady."

During this last Sandringham interlude my constant companion was my brother George, the last but one of the family and late the Duke of Kent.

My two brothers, Bertie and Harry (now Duke of Gloucester), were both away at school, and although George was eight and a half years my junior, I found in his character qualities that were akin to my own; we laughed at the same things.

That winter we became more than brothers; we became close friends.

His death in an airplane accident during the last war left a void in my life.

The foreign phase of my education began in the spring of 1912 with a four-month trip to France.

Hansell and Finch accompanied me on this adventure and, resorting to the convenient royal practice of the incognito, I travelled as the "Earl of Chester."

The fact that I had temporarily ceased to call myself the Prince of Wales fooled no one; but the French Government was relieved of having to render the honors due to me as British heir apparent, and I on my side escaped the ordeal of having to respond to them.

There was, however, no such reprieve from the Press; my public file had begun, and from Paris my second night in a foreign land, I wrote to my father:

". . . . There were a great many photographers at the Gare du Nord, and they let off a flash light as I was getting out of the train, which was very disconcerting. They are a great nuisance, and there were about 10 aboard the steamer and they followed one about the whole time . . . I noticed on the way (from the Gare du Nord) the chairs and tables in front of the cafes which you told me about. But as it was very cold, the chairs were deserted . . ."

LONDON—(CP).—The Admiralty vetoed a suggestion that a memorial be raised at Gaitnip, Scapa Flow, to 800 men killed when the battleship Royal Oak was torpedoed in 1939, but approved a memorial plaque in Orkney's 800-year-old cathedral.

ADMITS UPRISINGS—Nikita S. Khrushchev, secretary of the Ukraine Communist party's central committee, who was quoted in a Moscow radio broadcast as virtually admitting that the Stalin regime is combatting anti-Soviet uprisings in the Ukraine. The broadcast reported by the Soviet monitor London, said that Khrushchev in his speech before the supreme Soviet of the Ukraine on the 30th anniversary of the founding of the Ukraine republic, declared that "the Ukrainian people have already routed a number of Ukrainian nationalists and will root up and destroy their (nationalists) vestiges to the end."

Apple Grower Fined $25, Costs

WHITBY, Jan. 28 — Convicted of selling ungraded apples and apples below the standards set for human consumption, John Pallock, local grower, was fined $25 and costs on each charge today. Appearing in district police court Pallock pleaded not guilty. Charges were laid under provisions of the Produce Grades and Sales Act.

Inspector George Walton, Provincial Department of Agriculture, told the court that he visited the basement of Pallock's home to find 15 bushels of apples that were 46 per cent below standard. "They were in hampers tagged $1.75 each. Twenty-nine per cent of the fruit had severe bruises due to windfall," the inspector stated. The basement was used as a place of sale and while he did not see any one buy a hamper he had previously warned Pallock against selling ungraded fruit, Walton said.

Pallock claimed he had no intention of selling the hampers and that the price tags had been attached some weeks before when the fruit was in good shape. They were just waiting to be sorted. "I always let my customers pick out their own apples," he declared. As he had never sold any in sealed containers or for shipment he had not thought the regulations applied in his case, he claimed.

CARRIED TO PRAYER MEETING—Still weak from his 121 hour and 45 minute fast, Mohandas K. Gandhi is carried on a chair from the main house of Birla, New Delhi, to the garden area to hold a prayer meeting. The 78-year-old spiritual leader of India's Hindus, broke his fast on Jan. 18. He fasted for communal harmony among Hindus, Moslems and Sikhs. Others are unidentified.

Indian Missions Needed Says Rev. Douglas

As guest speaker at the annual meeting of Peterborough Presbyterial WMS Tuesday in Mark St. United Church, Rev. H. G. Douglas gave a true-to-life account of a five-month stay on the Indian reservation Oka, 40 miles from Montreal. Natives there are famous for their agricultural developments, Oka cheese, Oka melons and the Oka hen. They had previously been ministered by the United Church in conjunction with Cognawaga reserve, and this was a trial arrangement.

Quartered in the best Indian home, he was well fed and received many kind attention, especially from the women of the household, who were above the average in intelligence, speaking some English and French as well as Indian. Mr. Douglas is proud of the fact he still hears from them frequently and receives cards on special occasions.

Cautionary advice from an experienced missionary, "Never lend an Indian money or you will lose your friend" proved to be absolutely correct when Mr. Douglas made a loan of a few dollars for groceries, and lost a faithful church-goer from his congregation and circle of friends. A second note of warning, "Keep any promise you make an Indian. It's worthwhile." He also proved out and won the entire population of the reserve to his side.

"These people have one idea—that the Government and people of Canada have robbed them of their lands" he said. In fact, this is true. They have been pushed into rotten lands and live in poor dirty homes. Only for the Indian agent who supplies basic food and clothing they would be in a very poor state. "It is often said that Indians are lazy, but I found many of them are industrious" Mr Douglas stated. "How would your morale be affected if you lived under very poor conditions in shabby huts, trying to work poor land, and only having secondhand clothing to wear?" he asked.

After organizing a special Field Day for the natives, who were only too happy to participate to the last man and avoid working. Mr. Douglas found himself in the midst of an Indian Pow Wow dance at the end of which, to his surprise, he was baptized in a special ceremony and given an Indian name. The chief explained in English that they were calling him "Spirit Diviner" because he knew what was in their hearts. "I consider this the finest compliment I have ever received," said Mr. Douglas.

The speaker urged the WMS to do all possible to train these people to value and love the real things of life. "Whatever you do in His name will bring it's own rewards" he said. He warned that there are strong influences on the Indian people to combat. The first he called the French outlook and tradition in which the Roman Catholic church is the centre of community life and religion is regarded as the authority in all things. The second, the British tradition places the value on personal discipline, a high sense of public responsibility and obligation coupled with the sense of fair play and love of honor. Third is the influence of the United States where the Indians are free to enter at will being the real citizens of North America. "These Indians should not be neglected if we believe in progress" Mr. Douglas concluded.

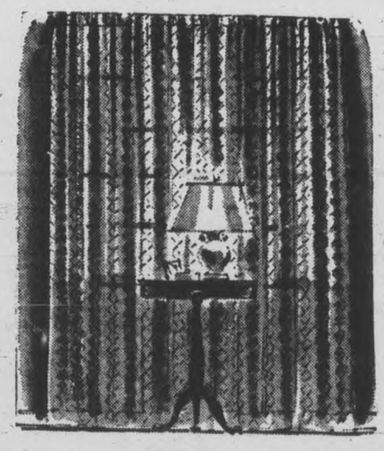
600 At First Naval Ball Hits New Enjoyment Heights

Gayest dance of the mid-winter season, the Naval Ball at Club Aragon Tuesday night "rolled on" till two a.m., gaining speed as it neared the end. Many guests were thinking of the morning gong of their alarm clock and made ready to leave, but the party was too enticing and they were back on the floor, dancing in circles with a group of friends of swaying to the rhythm of the "Conga," still wearing wraps and coats.



Music by Bobby Kinsman's orchestra was splendid, with Del Crary leading in the absence of the maestro. Playing stirring navy songs, some band members led parades around the hall and winding back and forth among tables. Their unique stage shows accompanying some of the latest songs intrigued the audience who called for more. With their leader and soloist Vi Wall looking smart in simulated naval dress, the musicians wearing white sailor hats, were right in the spirit of the occasion.

Guests were comfortably seated on the quarterdeck under a canopy of naval signalling pendants, and dancing was on the main deck with music coming from the "f'c'sle" head. After being "piped" over the gangway and officially "on board" they signed the ship's log and then reported to the "quartermaster's office." Some "land lubbers" may have been slightly confused at the nautical signs "pusserwets" and

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

DERELICT FIANCE
Domineering Widow Warned Against Marrying Man Six Years Younger

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a widow 43 years old and I am fixing to marry a man who is six years younger than I am and whom I have only known for six weeks, but my friends warn me me against doing it for the following reasons:

DOROTHY DIX

(1) The man's age and our brief acquaintance. (2) The man hasn't worked for some time. (3) Drinks to a certain extent. (4) Has no money saved, but I am willing to share what I have with him. (5) Has broken his engagement to a girl much younger than I am because of some misunderstanding, but I hear that he was very much in love with her. (6) My friends say that he is marrying me on the rebound to spite this girl. (7) I am a very dominant person and sort of bossy, while this young man is very sensitive and at times very critical.

I am trying to bring out these little items so that you can judge and let me know whether I should take a chance of marrying him, because I might not get another proposal on account of my age. What are the chances of the success of such a marriage, and what would happen if we tried it?

BEWILDERED WIDOW.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It doesn't take a seeress to foretell that such a marriage will bring you nothing but sorrow and regret, and that its almost inevitable end will be divorce; so listen to your friends' advice and put off marrying until you find some man who will have, at least, one or two of the qualities that qualify him to be a good husband.

Stranger, Too Young

This man apparently has none. To begin with, he is too young for you. He is practically a stranger whose middle name you scarcely know, and you have no idea what sort of character and disposition he has, nor whether he would be livable with or not. n addition, he is obviously marrying you to get a woman to support him. He drinks too much, and why any woman who has any intelligence whatever would ever even consider marrying such an undesirable man, passes comprehension.

The only explanation of your even contemplating such folly is that you are dominating and bossy and, being a widow, you miss having somebody to fight with. Certainly the battle will be on if you marry this derelict.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MIS DIX: I am a junior in high school. My mother and father are separated and my mother, three small children and myself live together. Mom goes out and stays sometimes for days at a time. That leaves me to take care of the children. Mom really isn't a bad sort. She just feels that she has a right to what she calls "a vacation."

But I am desperate, missing school and being asked many embarrassing question. Recently a young man whom I respect very much has asked me to join him in holy wedlock. Do I dare do it? I realize that I am too young to attempt this, but I don't know what else to do.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: My dear child, your parents' failure to do their duty by you and the other youngsters has put you in a cruel position, but getting married won't solves your problem. It will only be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire and adding another line of troubles to what you are are already called upon to endure.

Many young girls who have selfish, frivolous, irresponsible mothers like yours marry to get away from unhappy homes, but it doesn't work. Marriage only makes a bad matter worse because it shuts the door of hope in a girl's face. As long as she is single she is free and can look forward to marrying some man she loves, or becoming self-supporting, but if she has married a man just as a means of escape from unhappy home conditions her doom is sealed.

But can't your father do something to help you?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 16 and engaged to a 19-year-old soldier and we plan to get married soon, but his mother is determined to part us. When he comes home on his furloughs, she has already made so many plans for his amusement that I never get more than a fleeting glimpse of him. Even though I truly love J., I can't see a life of playing second fiddle to Ma and I am considering calling our engagement off. What do you think?

R. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I can't see much happiness for a girl in marrying a man who is so completely under his mother's thumb that she gives him no liberty whatever. So I think you would be very wise to call the affair off.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, January 29

An explosive and unpredictable event of far-reaching consequence may have power to interrupt ambitious plans or projects well under way and having solid indications of gratifying achievement. Under the sway of this sudden disrupting influence aimed at the roots of growth, progress and aspiration, it is obviously futile to waste assets, energies and enthusiasm on what may prove to be "Dead Sea fruit." Conserve all kinds of substance, patiently and philosophically wait until the squall subsides. There could be "a silver lining" at hand soon.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are in line for some sort of sudden visitation, a shake-up or deep uprooting from environs, associations, plans and purposes Unforeseen circumstances, estrangements, an explosive and unpredictable factor may have power to upset all hopes and objectives that seemed to have far-reaching prospects. Conserve funds, labor, energies and postpone funds until the storm blows over.

A child born on this day may have erratic, turbulent and curious impulses, with inclination to indulgent, extravagant and rash behavior, given to sudden change.

With The Girl Guides

1st St. Andrew's Brownie Pack

Saturday afternoon, January 17, found St. Andrew's Brownies working very hard, and many tests were passed. The new golden bar posture test of walking a straight line, was passed by Margaret Horton, Jean Lasenby Lorraine and Patricia Gunn, Meredith Morgan, Sharon Hutchinson, Wendy Collins and Elizabeth Pridham. Sharon Hutchinson passed the three golden bar knots and table setting was passed by Margaret Horton, Jean Lasenby and Lorraine Gunn.

As ae first class golden hand tests cannot be passed by the Brownie's own leader, the cadet captain visited the pack Saturday and passed the following Brownies: Marybeth Darling parcel tieing, skipping and message; Shirley Dobson, skipping; Lorraine Paddock, parcel tieing, and Mary Elizabeth Collins, shoe cleaning and message. We expect that some Brownies will receive golden bars, and golden hands by Boy Scout-Girl Guide week which is less than a month away.

On Saturday afternoon, Pack Leader Mary Curtis was in charge of the meeting in the absence of Brown Owl who was ill.

1st St. Andrew's Guide Company

Held the regular meeting Wednesday night with a good attendance noted. Stripes, patrol emblems, etc., were distributed and Eleanor Gilders passed her sign test, the knowledge of which she put to use on one of the winter hikes. Patrol discussion followed after which games were enjoyed. Captain asked each patrol to take a turn at being in charge of the camp fire program. The meeting closed with taps.

3rd All Saints' Brownie Pack

The pack was very pleased to have Cadet Phyllis Whyte with them for the meeting. Phyllis took a lively game and taught the Tweenies their law and promise. This pack is having a contest for neatness of uniform each week and the results will be known before Easter.

3rd All Saints' Guide Company

Opened the regular meeting Friday night with roll call, followed by prayer. In front of brightly burning candles, a former Brownie, Judy Welch, made her promise to captain and will become a member of the Rose patrol. A knot game was played and the meeting closed with camp fire.

St. Luke's Brownie Pack

This pack now has room for some new Tweenies and would welcome girls between the ages of 8 and 9½.

Immaculate Conception Guide Co.

Is coming along splendidly with the recruits all working hard to learn their tenderfoot. The following patrols have been formed: Rose, Violet, Iris and Lily of the Valley and the acting patrol leaders and seconds are: Patrol leaders, Betty laherty, Sylvia Sullivan, Frances McCormick, Shirley Doherty. Seconds, Rosemary De Noble, Rose Mary McMurray, Isabel Leahy, Shirley Garvey.

The sunny weather a week ago was not wasted with three patrols in First St. Andrew's Company, as, clad in warm skii suits and well filled haversacks on their backs they heid ther first winter hike, lured on by the thought of, perhaps, winning the hiking competition cup.

We hear that some of All Saints' Guides have also been out hiking. Good luck to these early birds. How are the other companies coming along?

Capacity Crowd Greets K of C Minstrels

A capacity crowd filed out of the Collegiate auditorium at the completion of the minstrel show sponsored by the Knights of Columbus on Tuesday night, convinced that top amateur entertainment had been shown. The program featuring the Plantation Minstrels and a 30-voice male chorus will repeat the performance Wednesday, Friday, and a week from Wednesday. The show is directed by Robert Johnson.

Also listed on the immediate schedule for them are trips to Campbellford, Lakefield, and other centres.

Ed Murphy was interlocutor and stage manager and the minstrels, complete in dark trousers, white shirts, red bow ties, straw hats, and of course, burnt cork, ran through a humorous session of wisecracking, patter, and songs.

Costumes and settings were good and the minstrel routine was original enough to draw sustained guffaws from the attentive audience. All of the principals played well, with "end men" Neil Plumpton as "Buzzsaw," and George Sullivan as "Fidgets" turning in standout performances. Other "end men" included, Dominic Marrocco, as "Bones," Robert Baldwin as "Alfalfa," Raymond Young as "Romeo", and Leonard Williams as "Agony."

Harmony singing by the large male chorus showed the many weeks of practice under the direction of Robert Johnson to make it a musical unit. Included were: 1st tenor —E. May, T. Williams, A. De Noble, R. Baldwin, F. Murphy; 2nd tenor —H. Selkirk, Halcrow, G. Dyrun, J. McTeague, J. De Noble, B. Freeman, R. Young, G. Sullivan, L. Williams, H. Masterson; 1st bass—M. Leonard, J. Hodson, E. O'Brien, E. Bartley, J. Quirk, J. Hickey, H. Legros, F. Fitzgerald, P. Moore, P. Caravaggie, E. Murphy, D. Marrocco; 2nd bass—H. Coulson, J. Nolan, T. Cullen, H. McIsaac, G. Mackin, L. De Carlonis, M. Caravaggie, N. Plumpton.

Part two of the program entitled "Uncle Obie's Dream," concerned an old man who returned after 20 years to the scene of his childhood and as he sank into a reverie of fond memories his old friends gathered around to welcome him home.

A quartet consisting of R. Baldwin, A. DeNoble, M. Leonard, and H. Coulson provided some excellent harmony singing at this stage. L. Brown, as Rigger the dancer, entertained with the only exhibition of tap-dancing during the evening. J. Hodson then provided an accordion medley of southern airs. While the part gave little scope for versatility, G. Grady played "Uncle Obie" in a capable manner.

Solos included: E. Murphy, "Minstrel Man's Dream"; N. Plumpton, "Won't You Come Home Bill Bailey"; M. Leonard, "Can't You Hear Me Calling Caroline"; R. Baldwin, "I Ain't Got Enough To Pass Around"; A. De Noble, "My Buddy"; R. Young, "Lazy Bones"; G. Sullivan, "Are You From Dixie"; H. Colson, "Sleepy Hollow Tune."

Numbers by R. Baldwin, and G. Sullivan were particularly applauded; and the more serious solos, by M. Leonard and H. Coulson were equally well received.

Accompanying at the piano was Robert oJhnson. Other members of the orchestra included: J. Minicola, T. Seidel, J. Murphy, B. Wardle, W. F. Skitch, T. Everett, J. Duffus. Old-time minstrel-man J. McCabe and R. Mongrow assisted in making up the participants.

All in all the program showed the care and practice of two-month's work on the part of all those in the show. It is expected that capacity audiences will see the remaining performances.

MP's Raise Constitutionality Of Canada's Dollar Conservation

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Jan. 28—(CP).—The constitutionality of Canada's dollar conservation program was questioned in the Commons yesterday by Opposition members who also expressed doubt that the program would engender a solution to the American dollar shortage. The constitutionality question was raised by John T. Hackett (PC—Standstead), who heard his party colleagues and members of the CCF and Social Credit parties debate the value of the steps taken by the Government last Nov. 17 to conserve dwindling reserves of United States dollars.

Speaking during continued debate on second reading of the Foreign Exchange Conservation Bill, Mr. Hackett—president of the Canadian Bar Association — described the measure as one that was "utterly and completely unconstitutional" and one that could lead the Canadian people "nowhere but to tyranny."

Clare Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) said the program, part of which was aimed at making Canada more industrially self-sufficient, could not succeed as long as Canada remained dependent on the United States for such ital things as fuel.

Must Withdraw

John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) said the program could not possibly succeed as long as Canada was a party to the Bretton Woods monetary agreements and he urged Canada's immediate withdrawal from them to halt further deterioration in the exchange situation.

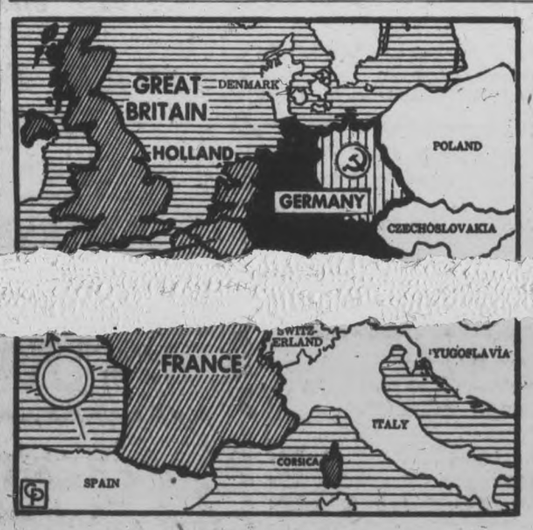
L. E. Baker (L—Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare) expressed the only support for the program, which he described as of a temporary nature to meet an emergency.

Karl Homuth (PC—Waterloo South) said he wondered why so few government members had spoken on the measure and asked whether it meant that they all approved of the bill or that they actually did not support it.

He said Canada had been living in a "fool's paradise."

Mr. Abbott had said last fall that no economic controls were needed. That was his story until he had gone to Washington, where the restrictions were formulated. The government had never taken the people of the country into its confidence.

H. O. White said the government's economic program had confused the country's fruit and vegetable growers. They wanted some clarification of the situation.



Nothing Definite

The government had said simply that the program would remain in effect for a matter of [illegible] program would remain in effect.

Mr. Gillis said he understood that Trade Minister Howe had undertaken to put Canadian industry on its feet and eventually to bring it to a position where it could compete with the United States. There were reasons which made him doubt that such a program could be carried to a successful conclusion.

No nation could stand on its own feet as long as it was dependent on another for essential products.

Mr. Hackett said the Commons was being asked to surrender liberty and freedom and to grant to Mr. Howe, who administers a large part of the dollar-saving program, powers greater than those possessed by the leaders of Soviet Russia.

ALLIANCE TO HALT AGGRESSION — Invitation extended by Great Britain and France to Belgium, Holland and Luxemburg to join the Anglo-French alliance signed at Dunkerque will align the five nations in a pact hoping "to insure peace against a rebirth of German militarism."

Collide With Train

WINNIPEG, Jan. 28 (CP). — Two Winnipeg men were killed yesterday when the car in which they were riding collided with a Canadian National Railways main-line passenger train at a level crossing four miles east of nearby Transcona. The men were Peter Hay and Samuel Shragge, the latter vice-president of the Shragge Metals Ltd., and the former a company employee.

Senators Rap Soviet Aim At Domination

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 — (CP). — International affairs were to the front in the Senate today after the upper chamber embarked on its post holiday session a day behind the Commons.

Criticism of Russia's aim at European domination and a declaration that Canada should have been represented at the post-war peace table were heard from two Senators at last night's opening sitting.

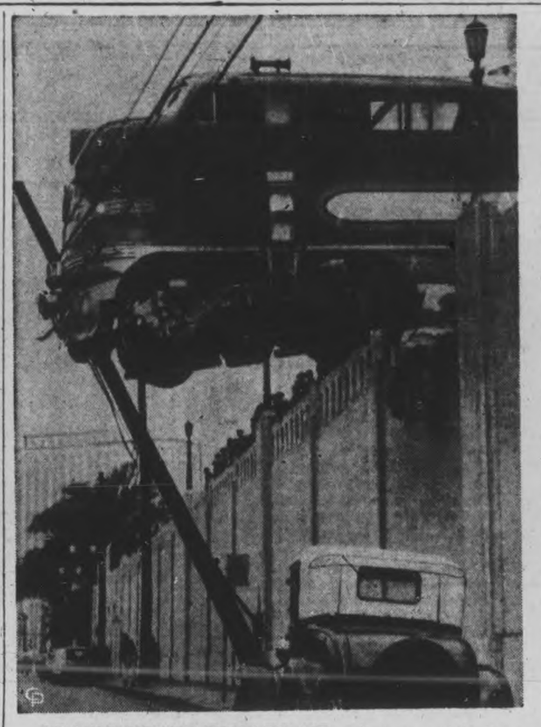
The deliberations received an international flavor in the throne speech debate, continued by Senator Norman Lambert (L—Ontario) and Senator L. M. Gouin (L—Quebec).

Senator Lambert declared he favored a western European bloc of nations—such as suggested last week by British foreign minister Bevin—as an antidote to Russian attempts to "dominate" the European continent.

He expressed belief such an alliance had a good chance of materializing since Mr. Bevin's proposal apparently had been preceded by discussions with the countries which might be expected to participate.

Notes Tension

Senator Lambert, a delegate to last fall's sitting of the United Nations General Assembly in New York, noted there was increasing public tension over a possible break with Russia, but he did not believe open war would materialize.



Armed aggression by Russia — which he regarded as the only way in which war could develop —was "a practical impossibility for her at the present time," he said.

Senator Gouin expressed regret that Canada had not been given a seat at the head table in the peace treaty negotiations.

Not only was the Dominion entitled to such a seat by her "superhuman" efforts in the war, he said, but she also could have exercised a "unifying" effect on the negotiators around the table.

Youngest Is 77

BELMONT, Man. (CP)—Four pioneer women, residents of the Belmont district for more than 50 years, celebrated their birthdays in January. The youngest is 77, and their combined ages total 335 years.

Cripps' Move Steadies Market

By The Canadian Press

The British Government's intention to retain the value of the pound sterling did much yesterday to support an international monetary structure shaken by devaluation of the French franc. Additional support was seen in the French National Assembly's finance commission disapproval of the French government's proposal for free trade in gold within France.

World stock markets, highly sensitive to currency fluctuations, reflected the steadier monetary situation with firmer trends for key stocks. New York's bond market moved up into higher levels while government bonds in London won back part of their losses incurred Monday following devaluation of the franc.

Movement of gold stocks both in London and in Toronto — the former representing the South African gold field and the latter the Canadian—indicated, however, that the problem of currency devaluation was not yet settled. Golds, which stand to gain in direct ratio to currency devaluation, did not retreat from the higher levels established on Monday.

In Toronto, producing gold mine stocks were generally firm, while in London gold share buying reflected continued doubt in the strength of sterling. Even government securities in London, which advanced in early trading yesterday, eased off later.

Rejects Plea Alberta Can't Hear Case

EDMONTON, Jan. 28 — (CP). —Preliminary hearings of charges against a publisher, writer and social welfare authority entered their second day today after the implied rejection by Magistrate Harold L. Hawe yesterday of an argument that there was no authority for hearing the charges in Alberta.

The three defendants — Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto, publisher of New Liberty magazine; Harold Dingman, its Ottawa correspondent, and Dr. Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa; welfare authority — are accused of conspiring to publish a defamatory libel.

Pending their reappearance in court today, Magistrate Hawe allowed Mr. Cooke and Mr. Dingman their freedom on their own recognizance. Each agreed not to leave Edmonton and gave verbal undertakings they would pay the Crown $1,500 if they failed to appear. Dr. Whitton appeared on a summons, and bail was unnecessary in her case.

Many Witnesses

Most of yesterday's proceedings involved calling of witnesses by the Crown in an attempt to prove evidence sufficient to warrant committal of the accused for trial in Alberta Supreme Court on the charge of conspiring to publish a defamatory libel.

The case has aroused widespread discussion on whether the principle of the freedom of the press was involved.

Oscar Cahan of Toronto, who drew the illustrations used with the article in question, said they were based on its text.

The "lead" illustration was intended to show some "force" taking a baby away from its mother. Others were intended to bear out parts of the article which said mothers in Alberta had signed away their babies while still in bed after giving birth, and claimed babies were sent outside Canada without investigation of the adopting parents.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

THE LONG RUN COUNTS

PROBABILITIES are good things to depend on. What occurs some one time is of no importance compared to over-all results in the long run. In fact, probabilities are the result of the cumulative events of both favorable and unfavorable ... So no matter ... before.

... club lead was ruffed by declarer, the diamond Q sent through to the K, the spade K won by the A, the heart J finessed to the K, the spade Q, J and 10 scored to make South trumpless, then clubs run, setting the contract six tricks. Leading diamonds instead of trying the heart finesse could have saved only a trick or two.

"Your comments would be appreciated," writes Joe. Okeh, Joe, here they are—stick by your guns and bid the same contract again in the same situation. It will pay eventually.

Now let's not comment particularly on that bidding, as it is merely faked in, with no plea for its soundness. Just how South got into 4-Spades was not reported by Joe A. Chilsen, ace newspaperman of Merrill, Wisconsin, whose Merrill Daily Herald is rated as highly as his own good game of bridge. Without looking at the East and West hands, let's merely figure out whether that contract appears sound.

First, look at the trumps. With nine, probabilities would indicate one probable losing trick. In Great interest is shown in the case as the issue concerns Canadian laws regarding freedom of the press.

Loretta Young Plans To Make No Apologies

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28 (AP).—Actress Loretta Young, commenting on London press reaction to her recent remarks about conditions in England, today made this statement:

"I have no apologies to make for any accurately interpreted statement I have made on conditions I saw in England . . .

"My every expression has reflected my deep respect for the magnificent courage and unity with which England, rich and poor, shares the austerity restrictions of its present post-war situation.

"I admire the great spiritual strength of the English people and their inspiring devotion to their King and Queen . . .

"Specific replies to such garbled, generalized statements as have been reportedly attributed to me in the London papers will be made as soon as I am fully informed as to what I am supposed to have said in the first place . . ."

Hold Stock Manager For Stealing $30,000

TORONTO, Jan. 28 — (CP) — William Shaw, for 20 years manager of the clearing house of the Toronto Stock Exchange until his dismissal last year was arrested last night on a charge of stealing more than $30,000 in stocks and cash. The charge followed an investigation launched by the Ontario Securities Commission last December.

The warrant for Shaw's arrest was taken out Jan. 7 but he had been out of town since then. He was arrested as he walked along the street to his home.

The transactions which led to the charge were said to have been made in the heavy trading year of 1945 when a large number of stocks occasionally piled up in the Exchange's Clearing House. It was alleged that in the interval between the time when stocks were sold by one broker and turned over to another, Shaw converted some of them to his own use.

The shortages were discovered last August when the annual audit was made and Shaw was discharged at that time.

CONFESSES "DAHLIA" DEATH—Charles Lynch, 23, is shown at the instrument of his downfall — the telephone. He phoned Los Angeles, Calif., police from a Main St. bar to taunt them about their lack of luck in capturing the slayer of Elizabeth Short, the ill-fated "Black Dahlia," Hollywood party girl. Police who traced the call soon had Lynch under arrest. After being taken into custody he made confession, police claim, to the crime. He is said to have confessed that he first met the girl at Lompoc in 1946 while he was AWOL from the army and renewed the acquaintance in a Los Angeles bar just before her death. Lynch has a police record including a short jail term in Arizona for statutory assault and two arrests for morals offences in Los Angeles.

Paper Industry Main Source Of U.S. Dollar

MONTREAL, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Increasing uses for wood waste are being found in Canada through research and new material products are being manufactured from these materials, T. A. McElhanney of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, said here today.

He spoke in a prepared address to the annual convention of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

The three-day meeting of the association which opened here today is attended by 1,000 delegates representing operators, technical experts and executives from 113 pulp and paper mills throughout the country.

R. M. Fowler, president of the Association, said the primary objective sought by Association members is to achieve more efficient operation of our pulp and paper mills and to ensure a more complete utilization of forest resources.

"The measure of success of this group," he said, "is one of immediate concern to this country as a whole and to the rest of the world. Not only is the pulp and paper industry, in many respects, the largest industry in Canada, but is also our main item for export to the United States and our main source of American dollar."

W. A. Delahey of the Great Lakes Paper Company Limited, said many new methods had been introduced to improve the methods of logging and protection of forest resources.

A record production of 610,000 tons of paperboard in Canada in 1947 in comparison with 588,772 tons in the previous year was announced by J. S. Babbitt.

Screen Star Shocks Britain

LONDON, Jan. 28 — (AP). — Hollywood screen star Loretta Young's observations about her recent trip to London hit the front pages today. The reaction generally was a shocked but restrained: "Loretta, how could you!"

Miss Young was quoted as saying British factory workers faint every day around 11 o'clock for lack of food. She said, according to the published quotes, that Englishmen have beards because there are no razor blades available, that people walk on cardboard-patched shoes. She trampled on a lot of toes when she said that fish—the partner of chips—is fried in paraffin because of a lack of fats.

British eyebrows were high.

The Daily Mirror printed Miss Young's comment under the heading:

"The Things Some People See," and suggested she had returned to the United States with "an aching heart for all the hunger and shivering she thought she saw."

The Daily Herald said it didn't ordinarily print "fiction," but thought its readers might be entertained. An editorial gave the actress a sober lecture. It explained, in replying to another story asserted to have been told by Miss Young, about rationing. The actress had said that when she gave a little girl some chocolate, the child replied: "Do I lick it or bite it?"

Mission Progressing Vestry Meeting Told

Walter Bannon moved a vote of thanks to the rector for his leadership, and ministry in the parish of St. George during this period of expansion.

It was decided that a planning committee, to be appointed by the rector, would formulate plans for meeting this enlarged membership and the extra problems presented by this growth.

New People's Warden is A. Green, and the Rector's Warden is C. Harloff. Lay delegates to the Synod were chosen, Dr. H. Carleton and A. Cuff. Envelope secretary is Walter White.

An amusing skit, "Awkin's 'Alo" presented by a group of ex-navy men, led by Benny Ackerman, portrayed the dilemna of able seaman Hawkins who, having been a defaulter while in "sailor's heaven" was awarded "'arping" punishment.

Commander W. M. Clipstone, R.N. (Rtd) president of the association, extended a sincere welcome to the first Naval Ball in Peterborough and asked that everyone enjoy it to the full. Mayor W. G. Ovens added civic greetings and spoke of the fine record chalked up by naval enlistments from the city and district during war time. He also spoke of the comforts and necessities not otherwise available, which were supplied to them by members of the Peterborough and District Women's Navy Auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Frank Merrett, whom the boys still regard as the "Navy Mother." "I know the work that Mrs. Merrett's organization carried on, and I have been given the honor to present a token of your gratitude" said Mayor Ovens as he made the presentation of a sheaf of roses to Mrs. Merrett. On behalf of the ladies of the Women's Navy Auxiliary, the honored guest expressed thanks to the boys.

Canadian Music Thrills Concert-Goers

TORONTO, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Toronto concert-goers last night thrilled to the unfamiliar strains of Canadian symphonic music and left Massey Hall wondering why the music they'd just heard wasn't more widely played.

The Toronto Symphony Orchestra's All-Canadian-composed program, in which the works of seven contemporary writers were played, ended by sweeping the audience off its collective feet.

Conducted by Sir Ernest MacMillian, who, at the conclusion of each composition invited its composer to rise in the audience and share the applause with the orchestra, the evening left a flavor many found unmatched in years of recital and concert attendance.

It prompted the question: "why must works of such stamp await such extraordinary occasions for hearings. They ought to be part of the standard concert repertoire and, in Canada at least, as familiar as Bach, Brahms and Beethoven."

The selections ran from the jarring, discordant, disjointed "Festival overture" of Godfrey Ridout, thoroughly in the modern vein, to the lyrical "summer Idyll' of Leo Smith, a gem for strings and woodwind in the traditional vein.

French Canada was represented by Claude Champagne, Maurice Dela and Jean Vallerand, the last named assuming the stature of a Canadian Dukas or Saint Seans. His "Devil in the Belfrey," taken either as program or as impressionist music, was an experience.

Says Housing Offer Should Include Extras

TORONTO, Jan. 28—(CP).—If the Federal Government is in earnest in the offer by Trade Minister Howe to build 4,000 low-rental houses in Toronto area, then it should guarantee that the additional municipal services that are needed are adequately financed, Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell said in an address. He referred to Mr. Howe's offer to construct the houses if the province would provide suitable land in the Toronto area.

Mr. Blackwell said that with surpluses of $600,000,000 in the Federal Treasury Mr. Howe "conveniently forgot to mention that under present taxing legislation the burden of financing services to new Wartime Houses would fall on the shoulders of other taxpayers."

Miss Grace Veals Addresses YPU

HASTINGS, Jan. 28—(ENS)—The YPU of Trinity United church had charge of an evening service on Sunday night. Rev. J. E. Glover conducted the service, and Miss Grace Veals who attended the Oslo Youth Conference from Peterborough, was guest speaker.

In speaking to the congregations of the conference, Miss Veals mentioned the fact that a noticeable feeling of fellowship and good will prevailed, regardless of color or creed. All worshipped together, and she spoke of the living presence of God among the young peoples.

After the regular service, a fireside hour was enjoyed in the Sunday School room, with the YP president Ron Warner in charge of the devotional period.

Miss Barbara Lloyd told the story "The Church of the Lamps", and Miss Ruth Ball recited "Lamps of God".

Miss Veals told of her interesting experiences to and from the conference. Members of YPU served a delicious lunch following the hour.

Star Produces His Own Show

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28 (AP). —At a time when most film stars are hunting for social and career security, Paul Henreid is climbing out on a limb with his own production. The actor is producing "Hollow Triumph" at Eagle-Lion, and I mean producing.

One of his main concerns is protecting the script from attacks by the Johnston office and Eagle-Lion higher-ups.

"This is the story of an outlaw who commits a series of crimes because he is naturally bad," Henreid related. "They want us to include some justification for his action, but there can be none. He is driven to crime by his warped personality.

"The tendency to-day is to cut or dilute a strong story to make it suitable for both adults and children. Producers are forced by censors to omit or water down episodes in which sex, crime or unhealthy emotions are strongly portrayed. Thus, the public has to go to books and plays for realistic drama."

He advocates two classes of pictures: Light entertainment for all audiences, and adults-only films, with no punches pulled.

10-Second Review.

"To the Ends of the Earth" (Col.) carries the semi-documentary technique of adventure yarn to a world-wide stage. It shows how exciting a film can be if it gets away from the phoniness of Hollywood sets. A believable cast headed by Dick Powell makes the story (an international chase after a narcotics ring)) a thrilling event.

Trying Timber Wolf In Bloodhound Role

SUDBURY, Jan. 28— (CP) — Use of a partly-tame timber wolf as a bloodhound will be attempted tomorrow by the internationally-known animal trainer, Joe LaFlamme, near his Gogoma zoo, some 75 miles north of here.

The wolf—"Maheegan"— will be used to track "Muskeg," a three-year-old bull moose which LaFlamme acquired when it was abandoned by its mother. Both animals will appear in LaFlamme's exhibition at the New England Sportsmen's Show, Jan. 31-Feb. 7, and the New York National Sportsmen's Show, Feb. 14-23.

Each fall, LaFlamme has turned the moose loose since it is better able to feed itself through the winter than can the trainer. Previously LaFlamme hunted the moose himself each February, but this year he hopes to make the "hunt" easier by using "Maheegan."

GRIMSBY HOSPITAL GOES UP IN FLAMES

Finds Senate Just Right Davies Says

Urges Serious Action Against Communism Before It's Too Late

OTTAWA, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Senator W. Rupert Davies (L-Ontario) let loose a verbal broadside against the ranks of Senate critics, to which he frankly admitted he once belonged.

The Senate, he told his approving colleagues of the Upper Chamber, "is all right just as it is; it needs no changes."

It was his experience, after six sessions, that "the less people know about the Senate the more they have to say about it." Personally, he had found it "a very valuable body," 95 per cent non-political.

In his youth, however, and even after he had entered the Chamber, he had had ideas about reforming its rules and methods. To-day he had "no sympathy with those arguments." If people paid enough atention to its activities, the value of the Senate would have a broader appreciation.

Yet even the press was misinformed about it when a magazine said the senators had given themserves a $2,000 increase tax-free.

As one example of the work the Chamber did, Senator Davies quoted the 67 changes it had made in one Comomns Bill, all of which had been accepted by the elective body.

Plays With Fire

Turning to communism, he charged that Canada was "playing with fire" and should do something "very serious" about a force that was alleged to be an ideology, but which was nothing less than a direct attempt to control Canada from Moscow. He was "becoming very fearful about what is going to happen."

Parliament should outlaw communism. It was "ridiculous" when there were professors in the colleges who were out-and-out Communists. He likened Russia to a bear sniffing around the door of the

35 Patients Carried To Safety

Believe Fire Started In Chimney Spread Rapidly

GRIMSBY, Jan. 29 — (CP). — The West Lincoln Memorial Hospital, two miles east of here, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. All patients, believed to number about 35, were removed to safety by staff members and taken to private homes and a nearby village inn.

The fire was believed to have started in the chimney and spread throughout the structure within a matter of minutes. Eyewitnesses in this Lake Ontario town, 20 miles east of Hamilton, said that half an hour after the alarm was sounded the hospital roof collapsed and flames enveloped the stone building.

Grimsby and Beamsville fire departments responded to the alarm sounded just after noon. The hospital was the former Deer Park Golf and County Club and was donated to the town by C. J. Eames, Hamilton merchant, in 1943.

Miss Douglas MacRobbie, formerly of Hamilton, was superintendent of nurses at the institution which served both Grimsby and Beamsville areas.

Governor-General?

OTTAWA, Jan. 29—(CP). —Vague and woolly rumors —largely discredited in high government circles — are floating about parliamentary corridors that Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King may become Governor - General after his retirement as Liberal leader. If this happened, he would be the first Canadian to be named to this post, after 17 British Governors - General since Confederation.

Labor Loses First Seat Since 1945 Election As Conservative Wins

Tops UK Labor Candidate By 395 Votes In Six-Candidate Fight; Four More By-Elections Still Pending

GLASGOW, Jan. 29 — (Reuters). — The Labor Government lost its first parliamentary seat since it took office in 1945 when a Conservative won yesterday's Camlachie by-election here, results showed today. Charles McFarlane, Conservative, was elected to the House of Commons with 395 votes more than the official Labor party candidate John Inglis, in a six-candidate fight. The seat was vacated by the death of Rev. Campbell Stephen, elected in 1945 as an Independent Labor party member.

Mr. Stephen joined the official Labor party a few months before he died, and consequently Labor was defending the seat, and its loss is chalked up as a governmental defeat.

The result was: Charles McFarlane, Conservative, 11,085; John M. Inglis, Labor, 10,690; Miss Annie Maxton, Independent Labor Party, 1,622; R. B. Wilkie, Independent Scottish Nationalist, 1,320; Guy Aldred, Independent Socialist, 345; R. Goodfellow, Liberal, 312.

Miss Maxton, Wilkie, Aldred and Goodfellow all lost their deposits.

Set Record

In the 35 previous by-elections contested since the general election of 1945, the Government had lost none of the 22 seats it already held—a record in British parliamentary history.

In 1945 Mr. Stepehen won the Camlachie seat with 15,558 votes against 11,399 for McFarlane, today's successful candidate. The constituency has alternated between Conservative and Independent Labor for many years.

By-elections are still pending in Wigan, Lancashire, Paisley, Scotland, and Armagh, Northern Ireland.

Coldest Snap Of Winter Said On Way

TORONTO, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Temperatures dropped suddenly today in Northern Ontario as polar air moved south from Hudson Bay and weather forecasters warned temperatures in southwestern Ontario might reach record lows.

The cold wave by mid-morning reached Muskoka airport where thermometers dropped in a one-hour period from 19 to nine degrees above Fahrenheit zero. At North Bay, where temperatures at midnight registered 18 above, the mercury this morning had dropped through 33 degrees to 15 below.

The cold air mass had reached as far south as Ottawa where thermometers this morning registered nine above, a six-degree drop from last night's 15 above. At Killaloe, due west of the capital, the temperature dropped 16 degrees during the night to four above.

Forecasters predicted southwestern Ontario would bear the brunt of the cold snap since the cold air was moving in from the northeast, by-passing the moderating influence of lake waters.

Moving South

All of southern Ontario was expected to be swept by the cold wave tonight. The weather map indicated that tonight and Friday might be the coldest of the winter.

High winds during the night drifted a week's snowfall over highways, blocking several main traffic arteries from here to the north.

Highway department officials at Owen Sound said roads from Shelburne to Collingwood, from Owen Sound to Kincardine, and from Wiarton to Tobermory were impassable but might be opened during the day.

Two buses and 10 other vehicles were stalled last night on Highway 27, five miles south of Midland By mid-morning, however, all but one truck had been removed and the road was expected to be open around noon.

Judge Urges Extradition Of No. 1 Bad Man

KINGSTON, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Extradition of Oscar Campbell, United States-born 50-year-old badman known during the '30s as "Canada's Public Enemy No. 1," was recommended yesterday by County Judge J. C. Reynolds.

Campbell, who recently completed nine years and three-months of a 12-year penitentiary sentence for bank robbery, was escorted to and from court by five husky policemen, led by Chief Constable J. T. Truaisch of Kingston.

He has 15 days to appeal Judge Reynolds' decision to a higher court.

Campbell is wanted in Buffalo, N.Y., where he escaped from jail early in 1938 after conviction on third-degree burglary charges arising from a break-in at the offices of the Jewel Tea Company.

After the jailbreak, Campbell came to Canada, was arrested in the summer of 1938 and sentenced at Ottawa to 12 years for armed robbery of a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Richmond, in the Ottawa district.

Released from penitentiary here after serving nine years and three months of the sentence, he was re-arrested at the penitentiary gates and held in Frontenac County Jail here for extradition hearing.

Black Market Francs Won't Be Called

PARIS, Jan. 29.— (AP).— A government bill to confiscate francs from black marketeers was rejected by the National Assembly's finanace commission today.

Premier Robert Schuman's government sought to withdraw all 5,000-franc notes in circulation, and apparently to confiscate those obtained illegitimately.

The bill was rejected when the finance commission failed to give it a majority approval. The vote was a tie, 20-20.

The government demanded a second reading. The bill will go to the National Assembly with an unfavorable report if the commission maintains its stand on the second reading.

The government proposal was intended as a blow at both inflation and the black market.

Authorized sources said this would grab about $500,000,000 worth of francs away from black marketers. There are 66,000,000 notes of the denomination in circulation, worth about $1,000,000,000, at the free exchange rate. The informants indicated those who could not explain their possession of the notes would have them taken away.

Note of 5,000-francs denomination, economists say, have been used extensively by speculators on the black markeet in currency and by hoarders, notably farmers.

Canadians At Hong Kong Said Inadequately Trained

LONDON, Jan. 29—(CP).—The Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Rifles of Canada, which participated in the unsuccessful defence of Hong Kong in 1941, arrived "inadequately trained for modern war" under the conditions then existing in the island colony, a War Office dispatch said today.

Maj.-Gen. C. M. Maltby, general officer commanding British troops in China when Hong Kong fell Dec. 25, 1941, reported the fact that the Canadians came without transport—it was aboard another ship diverted to Australia—made the already difficul transport situation "much worse."

But he credited the Canadian battalions, under the leadership of Brig. J. K. Lawson of Ottawa who was killed in action, with "many individual acts of gallantry" and "stubborn defensive fighting."

Gen. Maltby, now on the retired list, had six battalions in the Hong Kong garrison but only two "knew their roles in exact and practised detail." There had been no combined training with the newly-arrived Canadians, who reached the colony Nov. 16.

Become Exhausted

In a paragraph of the dispatch about the Grenadiers and the Royals, the latter a Quebec unit, Gen. Maltby wrote:

"These two battalions proved to be inadequately trained for modern war under the conditions existing in Hong Kong.... They found themselves counter-attacking on steep hillsides covered with scrub, over strange country and as a result they rapidly became exhausted. Many individual acts of gallantry were performed, their stubborn defensive fighting at the Wong Nei Chong gap and in the area of Mounts Cameron and Nicholson was marked, the losses they incurred heavy and are deeply regrette

Discover Bodies Of 4 Children

LAVIGNE, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Church bells to-day tolled over this Nipissing district's frozen countryside in solemn dedication to the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Donat Ducharme who died early Tuesday when their tiny farm home became a blazing pyre.

Devout and sorrowing French-Canadians of this northland village, 40 miles south-west of North Bay, slowly trekked across snow-blanketed fields yesterday to watch police sift through the ash-filled basement of the house.

When they were finished a few bones were placed in a rough frame casket to await inspection by Coroner Dr. J. E. Paiement of Sturgeon Falls.

No date for the funeral of the children— Florette 8, Gerard 7, Rosa 6, and Henri 3—has been set.

Relief supplies are starting to flow to the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Barrette where the four surviving children and the parents are staying until another house can be found or built for them.

County Judge H. E. Fuller, who heard the cast last Jan. 9 said in a judgment handed down today that the blow struck by McGirr was excessive under the particular circumstances and, in law, amounted to assault.

Big Power Military Force Urged To Back UN Moves

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 29 (AP) — Senator Vicente Francisco, Philippines delegate on the United Nations Palestine Commission, today advocated a "big power" military force to back UN decisions.

Francisco previously had said immediate action was needed to enforce UN partition of the Holy Land.

Fanrcisco said in an interview he was not free to discuss specific problems now before the five-member commission sitting here, but that he was able to express these general views:

1. "No United Nations commission anywhere in the world should be frustrated."

2. "The United Nations would be converted into a debating club if its commissions find they cannot carry out their obligations."

3. "Some international force should always be present to make the United Nations appear as an effective instrument for maintaining law and order."

4. The five big powers should take the lead in "the formation of an international army to carry out the resolutions of the UN where circumstances make this difficult."

Francisco declined to comment on reports that the other four members of the commission favored referring the Palestine enforcement question to the security council without recommendations.

Meanwhile, delegates looked today into a new proposal for conciliating international disputes.

The idea was laid before the Little assembly by Lebanon yesterday. It would set up a nine-country permanent committee of conciliation. The plan will be taken up Feb. 23 when the little assembly goes back into session.

Federation Rejects Farmers' Day Holiday

Today at the Canadian Federation of Agriculture meeting a resolution was introduced pointing out that June 21 was rapidly becoming recognized as "Farmers' Day," and asked that the date be declared a national holiday.

Members chucked the whole idea out the window after pointing out that city dwellers would probably be the only ones who who would enjoy the day off. Not only that, but some farmhands might get the idea they should get a day off with pay.

Cans of paint could be heard exploding above the roar of the flames as the glaze wiped out entire sections of the plant.

Catch 3 Alleged Thieves As Car Plunges In Drift

NIAGARA FALLS, Jan. 29. — (CP).—Captured when their automobile plunged into a snowdrift after a wild, 70-mile-an-hour chase along icy district roads, three youths were held today in connection with armed robbery of a store at nearby Chippawa and burglary of a Niagara Falls garage.

Police identified the suspects as David Mitchell, 19, and Ernest Nemett, 20, both of Hamilton, and William Williams, 22, of Orillia. A fourth youth, possibly injured by a police bullet, was believed to have escaped.

Two of the trio were arrested as they jumped from their car and the third was discovered hiding behind a bush, police said.

The chase and arrests came on the heels of a holdup at George Bozuk's general store at Chippawa. He told police four young men entered shortly after midnight. One covered him with a gun and the others carried off a cash register containing $100. The bandits also stole a quantity of work shirts and trousers.

Police said an abandoned automobile — reported stolen from Hamilton earlier—contained the clothes and part of the cash register.

The car in which Mitchell, Nemett and Williams were riding during the chase is owned by Andy Reid, Niagara Falls garage operator, police said. It bore license plates issued to Jack McCarter of Niagara Falls, who had placed the car in the garage for repairs, police said.

U.S. Air Base In Tripoli Upsets USSR

Charge Proposal To Reopen Field Contravenes Treaty

LONDON, Jan. 29 — (AP). — The Moscow Radio said today Russia has sent formal protests to the United States and Britain over American proposals to reopen the Mellaha airbase, outside Tripoli.

The broadcast, quoting a Tass despatch from New York, said Russia contended United States operation of the air field in the former Italian colony contravened the terms of the Italian Peace Treaty.

"The American and British stressed the great military strategic importance of this base, making possible the domination of the Eastern and Central Mediterranean," the broadcast said.

"It was also pointed out that reconstruction of the military air base in Mellaha constituted an act directed in the first turn against the countries of the new democracy in Europe."

Service Stop

The United States Air Force announced, Jan. 14, in Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Germany, that the Mellaha base would be reopened. It would be used as a service stop for air transport command planes, the announcement said.

The Moscow broadcast said "official representatives of the American State Department and of the British Foreign Office have confirmed reports on Britain's consent to place the Mellaha air base at the disposal of the United States Government."

"In this connection," the broadcast contended, "the USSR Ambassador to the United States Mr. Alexander S. Panyushin, on Jan. 21, sent a note to Secretary of State Marshall in which, having pointed out the above fact, on behalf of the Soviet Government to the fact that conclusion of a separate Anglo-American agreement on the establishment of a United States military air base in the former Italian colony placed under temporary British administration contradicted the terms of the peace treaty with Italy.

"In view of which the Soviet Government believed the aforementioned agreement to be unlawful.

"A note of similar content has been simultaneously addressed to the British Government."

Believe Canadian Farmers Best Informed On International Problems

By H. DENT HODGSON

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Canadian farmers are better informed and have a keener interest in world problems than those of perhaps any other country, H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said today. Reviewing progress at the 12th annual meeting of the CFA, Mr. Hannam said it had reflected a growing concern over farmers' responsibilities in furthering world peace because of the numerous international conferences Canadians have visited.

"But even before that—at the conferences themselves," he added, "Canadians showed keener interest than delegates from other countries in these responsibilities. This probably was because they have a bigger stake in peaceful world relations than farmers of other lands."

Other countries — even the United States—had internal markets for their goods. Canadian farmers had to export the bulk of their produce.

The CFA president said the two-day open session which concluded yesterday was the most important in the history of the Federation. He agreed with J. A. Marion of Montreal, second vice-president, that a definite step had been made in acknowledgement of the Federation's importance by Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

Eliminate Speculation

In addition, delegates had managed to deal successfully with problems such as a recommendation to eliminate speculation in coarse grains by making the wheat board sole marketing agency. This was a contentious problem in the CFA because if affected the grain producers as sellers and the livestock producers as buyers. But the resolution had gone through in a spirit of compromise.

Professor W. M. Drummond of Ontario Agricultural College said the big problem of our time was to find a means to supply the world's hungry. This need would have to be supplied if a secure peace were to be made possible.

The 200 convention delegates unanimously endored a resolution protesting "the manifest injustice of singling out major agricultural products for the reimposition of ceiling prices without the reintroduction of a general policy of price control.

Rising prices came in for attention in two of numerous resolutions considered at the open meetings. Closed meetings of the board will continue through Friday and the resolutions will be prepared for presentation later as a brief to the federal cabinet.

Canadian Austerity Hits U.S. Fruit Growers

TORONTO, Jan. 29 ((CP)—P. S. Armstrong, general manager of the California Fruit Exchange, said yesterday that Canada's "austerity" restrictions are causing "consternation" among United States fruit growers.

The dollar-saving program—which includes a ban on import of certain fresh fruits—will "cut the volume of our Canadian business in half," he told the annual convention of the Canadian Wholesalers' Association.

"Our Canadian business is more important than all Europe put together," said Mr. Armstrong. "Ten per cent of our orange sales, 15 per cent of grapefruit and nine per cent of lemons are Canadian, and we regard Canada as a domestic market."

Commit Youth To Higher Court

Clayton Eason, 659 Donegal St., was committed for trial on a charge of rape of a 16-year-old girl when he appeared before Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court this morning. The magistrate sent the case on to the Spring Assizes following a preliminary hearing at which four crown witnesses were heard.

The young accused, a factory worker in the city, is represented by W. J. A. Fair. The hearing was conducted for the crown by V. J. McElderry.

Petty Thief

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP)—The meanest thief in this district stole a sled belonging to a 10-year-old boy while the lad was delivering papers. A bag of papers taken with the sled was later found, but the sled--a christmas gift--is still missing.

DIES OF RARE DISEASE

Acute myelitis, an inflation of the nervous system similar to polio, considered very rare but with a high mortality rate, was given as the cause of the death of Paul Edward Meeks, 26, 492 George St. N. Canadian way of life. The door should be shut, and he didn't care if the bear's nose got hurt in the process.

Senator Davies, speaking of reports that the excess profits tax might be reimposed, opposed any such measure. If it did come to pass, he hoped the inequities of the old law would not be repeated. It had worked unfair hardships against many firms which had had small profits in the basic years on which the tax was founded.

He wondered if it was necessary for the Unemployment Insurance Commission to add to its reserves at the current annual rate of $55,000,000 when it had reserves of $370,000,000 and when between 1930 and 1936 the federal government's relief costs had totalled $204,000,000. He objected to a clause in the insurance law which forces employers to continue to pay into the fund for employees who have asked to be exempted from its rolls.

Find 32 Dead In Fresno Crash

FRESNO, Calif., Jan. 29 (AP). —A chartered immigration service plane crashed and burned in Western Fresno County yesterday, killing 28 Mexican deportees, the crew of three, and an immigration guard.

An hour after the airliner appeared to explode over Los Gatos Canyon, near Coalinga, shortly after 10:30 a.m., 19 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage.

Most of those remaining in the plane were jammed into the forepart of the fuselage and mangled almost beyond recognition.

W. L. Childers, a rancher, said the plane was at an altitude of about 5,000 feet when he noticed smoke trailing from the left engine of the two-engine craft. Then the left wing fell off and the fuselage plummetted, nose first.

ICE CHOKES EASTERN WATERWAYS—As a result of the cold wave that has gripped the eastern seaboard, Chesapeake bay is heavily packed with ice that has brought shipping to a standstill in Maryland. Here, the Skagway Victory is held fast in the ice as she waits for the cutter Chinook, in the foreground, to blast a pathway through the frozen waters.

Lindsay Reserves To Get New Equipment

LINDSAY, Jan. 29 — (ENS). — Col. Alex Turner, officer commanding the 4th Field Regiment, R.C.A. (reserve) in Lindsay, says some of the latest military equipment will soon be available to his unit for training purposes.

The new equipment will include heavy duty self-propelled artillery units. Col. Turner explained that had there been suitable storage space available here, some of the units would have been moved in by now.

"Some of this equipment weighs up to 30 tons and there isn't a door on the local armoury big enough to admit them," he pointed out.

In spring, when the equipment can be kept outside, the new units will be brought in from Kingston to train personnel, Col. Turner stated.

Overcutting Must Stop Drew Tells Forest Chiefs

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—The most definite statement on Ontario's future forest policy ever made by the head of a provincial government came from Premier George Drew at the annual dinner of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests when senior officials from all sections of the province met here.

Pointing to the fact Canada was the greatest newsprint producer in the world and at present was turning out more than half the world's newsprint, the Premier declared 'this is only the beginning of a wide expansion of industrial activities which will mean new communities and an increased population."

Then he went on: "We have established a fixed and definite policy with regard to our forests which will be carried forward. Our forest cut will be such, in future, that at no time will we be in danger of cutting more than we can produce. It has been hard to convince many people that we meant it when we said that we are going to curtail exports of our pulpwood so that we will have a continued stand of timber ahead. But that is what we mean.

"This was no unfriendly gesture towards our friends in the United States. We simply want to make sure that in 10, 20 or 30 years from now our forest stands will have been maintained so that we can continue to obtain adequate requirements of wood. There has been, during and since the war, overcutting in every other part of the world and the European countries are not likely to be serious competition for many years to come," he said.

Mr. Drew pointed out that amalgamation of the previous Department of Game and Fisheries with the Lands and Forests Department was so logical that it was surprising "they had ever been apart," and continued: "The attractions of our fish and game depend entirely upon the condition of the forests behind them."

"Importance of research into forest problems is recognized," he said, "by the fact that the province has built an insect laboratory at Sault Ste. Marie, since the next stage after the use of aircraft in fighting forest fires is fighting the many problems of the forest by the science of bacteriology."

Of aircraft—28 of which are now operated by the Air Service of the Department of Lands and Forests, the Premier said: "The finest machine in the world for forestry service is one designed to the specifications of the Department of Lands and Forests. It is going to add at least 20 per cent to the water areas to which aircraft can go. It is interesting to see the by-products from this development, since it will mean a big export business to add to the wealth of Canada as a whole, as well as increased employment. Orders for this particular 'plane are now being received from many parts of the world—and remember, our own pilots and engineers of the Provincial Air Service provided the specifications for that 'plane."

Speaking of recent developments in the pulp and paper industry, the Premier said: "I wish every child in Ontario—and particularly those in southern Ontario—could be given an opportunity to see the new towns of Marathon and Terrace on the north shore of Lake Superior. They would then realize the importance of the forest resources which have built towns, substantial homes, hospitals, schools, all from the primitive forest."

Mine Employee Murdered Woman

DAR ES SALAAM, Jan. 29. — (Reuters).—New details of a coroner's inquest which decided that Mrs. Sydney Thomas, formerly of Victoria, was murdered by an Austrian gold mine employee, reached here today.

The jury's verdict found that Himo Schneider, the Austrian, shot Mrs. Thomas and her African driver, whose charred bodies were found early this month buried in bushland near their burned automobile. The pair carried $29,800 in gold. Schneider later committed suicide after police questioning.

The new details reaching here today said Schneider dug the graves of his two victims a day or so before the murders.

In reaching a verdict of murder the coroner commented:

"To send gold . . . in charge of an unarmed escort is courting disaster and it can only be said that it is surprising something of this nature has not happened before."

Mrs. Thomas, a native of England, who went to Canada with her father, a mining engineer, was the wife of Sydney R. Thomas of Camborne, Cornwall, England, who at one time lived in Halifax.

Following their marriage the couple moved to Britain. When Thomas took a job in Tanganyika as a surveyor his wife joined him last June, leaving two children in Britain.

High water conditions destroyed the former dock.

Police Pick Up Fenelon Youth

LINDSAY, Jan. 29 —(ENS)— Minutes after police here received a phone call from Hamilton authorities asking that a lookout be kept for a wanted man reported in the area, Special Constable Gordon Eberts picked up a 16-year-old youth as he got off a bus from Fenelon Falls late Wednesday afternoon.

The youth, wanted for questioning in connection with clothing theft in Hamilton, was placed under arrest and is being held for Hamilton police. He is from Fenelon Falls and when arrested told police he was Toronto bound, carrying in his duffle bag a large assortment of ties, socks and other clothing. When arrested he carried only $1.50 in cash. This youth according to police recently escaped from the Bowmanville Training School, denied he had ever been in Hamilton. He told police here he was working in Toronto and that the training school authorities knew of his whereabouts.

Pet Animals Ill

COBOURG, Jan. 29—(ENS).—Dogs and cats, particularly the former, have been subjected to a severe disease during the past few weeks, similar to flu, according to local veterinarians. Cause is said to be due to the sudden spells of very cold weather prevailing during the past few weeks. Several dogs have been suffering from distemper and one veterinary had to dispose of eight dogs in a week.

Desk Clerk Laughs At Youth With Gun Saves Money, Tips Police Off To Capture

ORILLIA, Jan. 29 — A 69-year-old desk clerk laughed in the face of a youth armed with a .22-calibre pistol, and then gave police the tip which led to the youth's arrest later in the local railway station.

Homer G. Latondresse, 17, of Victoria Harbour, was charged with attempted robbery and a companion, Kenneth Carl Byers, is being held on a vagrancy count. Both will appear in Orillia court.

The hotel desk clerk, James Shanahan, was at his desk when the armed youth came up and asked for a cigar, at the same time pulling out a sawed-off .22-calibre, single shot pistol. Mr. Shanahan said that when the youth demanded the money in the cash register he laughed and walked behind the desk, asking the youth what he thought he was doing.

The youth said the gun was not loaded, that he was only fooling, and then ran out the door. Mr. Shanahan phoned police, who said later the pistol was loaded.

Car Loses Argument With Panel Truck

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 29 — (ENS).—A car and a panel truck collided at the icy intersection of Rear and Second Streets Wednesday. James Benor, Jr., was the driver of the car, and Bert Winston, Petherick, driver of the truck.

Damage to Benor's car was estimated at $300, while the truck was only slightly damaged. Chief Constable G. H. Hardy investigated.

Our Dependent Fuel Position

Once again the winter weather is rubbing into us the fact that our country is in a dangerously dependent position in many matters relating to fuel. A shortage of natural gas has temporarily thrown 17,000 people out of work in western Ontario, that gas is piped in from the U.S.A. There is much talk particularly by Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire) of an embargo on the export of fuel oil from the U.S.A. to Canada. Every furnace owner knows how dependent we are upon the coalfields of the U.S.A. for winter fuel, and how difficult the coal situation became during the war years. We lean very heavily upon our great neighbour for fuel.

* * *

When Canada was a small nation such dependence did not mean much to the U.S.A.; it could supply itself and us as well without feeling it. But the U.S.A. has grown tremendously, and so has Canada. The U.S. now has to import oil, in addition to producing oil, in order to fill its domestic wants. We need not expect a country in that position to supply us with oil indefinitely. And during the war we found out how shrewdly coal strikes in the U.S.A., over which we had no control, could affect industries which were of the utmost importance to us.

* * *

The Dominion Government has been investigating the coal and oil situation in Canada for many years, but so far no news of great discoveries has been made public. Recently the area immediately east of the Rockies has been seriously investigated as a producer of oil, and the Leduc field has shown promise. Perhaps the governmental expeditions need more money and more encouragement. If that is the case they should have what they need, for it is obvious that Canada cannot get all the fuel she needs from the U.S.A. as easily as in the past, and the sooner we become self-sustaining in this respect, the better off we shall be.

Teachers Are Citizens

McGill is justly famous as a university; it is liable to become infamous if a recent decree of the Board of Governors is not rescinded. The Board of Governors have demanded that McGill professors take no part in politics.

The decree is understandable but indefensible. The Governors are chiefly businessmen with a horror of any liberal movements that have even a tinge of pink. There are one or two moderately left-wing instructors at McGill. There used to be a scientist called Boyer on the staff — and Dr. Boyer was involved in the recent espionage trials. It is up to the courts to condemn men like Boyer. If McGill is going to purge its staff of teachers who have political affiliations, it might as well close its doors as a liberal arts college and become merely a School of Medicine. But even in a School of Medicine, doctors should have citizens' political rights.

Government would lose much if all university professors were barred from politics. Queen's sent a professor of history to Toronto as Minister of Education (the late Duncan McArthur), another to Ottawa as Minister of National Defence (the late Norman McLeod Rogers). The recent Dean of Arts and Science at McGill, the Honourable Cyrus Macmillan, was a Dominion Cabinet Minister. Mr. (now Lord) Lindsay, the Master of Balliol, contested a Labour seat when he was Vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford.

Where is truth more consistently sought out than in universities? Where should freedom of thought and opinion flourish most liberally but in universities? If that freedom is denied in universities, it will disappear in the nation. The first step towards establishing a dictatorship is to muzzle the professors or purge their ranks. Hitler understood this well.

Teachers in the classroom can properly be required to keep their political opinions to themselves, but outside the classroom they should be free citizens with the right to affiliate with any political groups which the laws of the land permit and with the right to speak their minds. The Governors of McGill who supported the decree have misused their office and jeopardized education in Canada.

The Newfies Will Not Be Canadians

The Canadian Government which played host to a Newfoundland delegation during the long summer may be chagrined that its cakes and ale have had so little effect. The Newfoundland National Convention decided yesterday that the colony's voters will be given only two alternatives—continuance of government by commission or a return to responsible government. The voters will not be allowed to say how well or how little they like the idea of Newfoundland's becoming a tenth Canadian province, unless the Governor intervenes.

Since the Convention voted by 26-16 against submitting the question of confederation with Canada to the Newfoundland people, there is little likelihood that a majority would have voted for confederation. Nevertheless, Canadians at least would have liked to see how many Newfoundlanders favoured the proposal.

The Canadian Government cannot be condemned for the terms it offered the Newfoundland delegates. They were generous and cordial. The Newfoundlanders have a political right to remain merely Newfoundlanders, though they may find that status hard to maintain in these times when a small country's trade and security are beset on all sides. We feel that Newfoundland is missing an opportunity. The country seems to be dogged by politicians of small vision, bigoted opinion and stupid prejudice, and by plunder-barons of the type who brought it to economic disaster in the '30's.

We suspect that Newfoundland has more need of Canada than Canada has of Newfoundland. Canadians need not be disconsolate if our eastern boundaries are not to be extended. If a tenth province will make us feel bigger and better, the Government might turn its eyes north-west to the Yukon or the District of Mackenzie.

The French Franc

Before the First Great War the French franc was worth about 25 cents. Immediately after that war, in a period when many European currencies were literally not worth the paper their money was printed on, discourteous tourists in Paris were pasting 1000-franc notes on their luggage as souvenirs. Eventually, the franc became stable, varying in value from 20 cents in 1924 to 6 cents in 1936. During the last war Canadian soldiers had their money exchanged at the rate of two cents for one franc. Until last Monday an American dollar bought 119 francs. Now it will buy 214. In other words a franc is now worth less than half a cent.

As after the first war, France is facing a difficult economic situation. Its government hopes to ease it by devaluing the currency. The scheme has three parts. First, the new official rate of exchange has been set. Secondly, it has approved a free market for free currency. In effect this will give the franc a dual value. Free dealings are permitted in dollars and the Swiss franc. (The pound sterling cannot be dealt in freely; its rate is fixed at 864 francs to the pound.) Exporters will sell half their foreign exchange obtained against their sales at the new official dollar rate and half at the free market rate. Importers dealing in priority goods will buy at the new official rate, importers of non-essential goods will get the necessary foreign exchange (under license) in the free market. The third phase of the scheme is the free gold market, which is now being considered by the French Assembly. It is hoped by this measure to attract gold now illegally hoarded by Frenchmen who put not their trust in paper money. The official rate and the free market in francs cannot be changed by the Assembly. The Assembly has to approve the free gold trading plan. It seems unlikely to do so at the moment.

The Chairman of the Executive Board of the World Monetary Fund (to which France and 45 other nations are party) regrets the French action to which the Board is opposed. The Fund's statutes forbid any member to "engage in multiple-currency practices" without the authorization of the Fund. The British Government is fearful of the effect on the pound sterling and the sterling area markets.

The devaluation means that French exporters will get more francs for their goods; French importers will have to pay more; American travellers' dollars will go 80 per cent farther; foreign (e.g. Canadian) importers will get French goods 80 per cent. cheaper. Devaluation ordinarily leads to higher domestic prices and inflation. The French Government seems to think that domestic wages and costs are sufficiently under control not to be upset drastically. This may prove to be a fond hope.

A Leader In Hospital Reform

By F. M. DELAFOSSE

IT took two of the greatest wars in history to prove, beyond any question, that the most beneficial creation of man's making is a hospital, and that those who toil in or for it are among the most divinely-inspired of mortals. When we look back at the past war years of infamy and horror there is one thing that we can still be thankful for and that is that they caused mankind in all parts of the civilized world to awake from the deadly coma of indifference and thoughtlessness into which it had fallen. Service societies, engaging in various forms of benevolence, sprang into being and Peterborough itself proved fully alive to the same call of usefulness and charity.

* * *

AMONG the projects that are at present engaging the attention of the ruling spirits of our growing city, the new Civic Hospital is undoubtedly the largest and most important. Those who are immediately connected with its erection are men of known probity and judgement who are willingly giving the benefit of their brains, their wide knowledge of business, as well as unstinted time to the completion of the structure. We may be absolutely sure that they are doing excellent service for this splendid city of their adoption.

* * *

WRITING of hospitals makes my mind turn back many years to the days of my youth, when I was sent at the age of thirteen to one of the great Public Schools of England. I met a boy there, much older than myself, whose work in life in after years made a great influence on me at school. He went under the name of Holland-Hibbert. I used to fag for him occasionally at cricket, like many of the smaller boys, because he was in the sixth form, and a prefect in addition. He was never, so far as I remember, a great scholar but he was, without any doubt, a maghificent hand at sports and especially at swimming and rowing. After only one term he left the school and went to Trinity College, Cambridge, and I lost all knowledge of him for many years. He had practised as a solicitor at the Parliamentary Bar and was interested in many public things being, among others, a director of one of the London dockyards. A chance visit that he paid to a sick workman, lying ill in Poplar Hospital, in London, changed the whole current of his life.

* * *

IN passing through the wards on that occasion, he met the head matron strutting along jauntily carrying a pet monkey in her arms. Regarding this as a most unseemly thing to be doing in a hospital he immediately notified the members of the Hospital Board, of which he was a director, and they left the matter of reconstruction of rules in his hands. He was soon afterwards appointed chairman, with the result that in four years he had collected enough money to have the Hospital rebuilt and to find its income quadrupled. Then he turned his attention to the London Hospital, which at that time was described as being "out of date, ineffective, inadequate, a great starving giant, with a kind heart and no power". In 1897 it had only one operating theatre. Aseptic surgery was being introduced and was not popular with the surgeons. There was no X-ray department except a tin shed in the garden, managed by a clerk from the steward's office. Finsen had but lately made his discovery of the curative action of light in the treatment of lupus, and treatment was given by focussing sunlight on to patients through lenses a foot in diameter. Such out-patient treatment as was attempted was given in a few stuffy rooms in the basement where patients suffering from eye, throat and skin troubles were huddled together. There was no heart, massage, electrical or venereal department, no pharmaceutical department, no Tyrnauer baths for rheumatism (the curse of the East End), no provision for maternity cases, no isolation block for infectious cases, a dentist came twice a week to pull out an aching tooth, the smell of cooking was all over the place and only a small amount of washing was done in the basement. There were plenty of other drawbacks, which it would take too long in this article to describe. Suffice it to say that he entirely changed the conditions under which nurses worked. They at last had separate bed-rooms for themselves, their hours were reduced, their holidays increased and their salaries doubled and they had their own kitchens, with a French chef.

* * *

THIS was all accomplished by the undaunted efforts of one man, the boy whom I had known as Holland but who was now the universally known Lord Knutsford, who by wonderful powers of organization collected more than five million pounds for his Hospital. His unbounded enthusiasm occasionally led him into trouble, especially when he got into a wordy argument with the clergy on the question of pulling down some churches in London which did not seem to merit existence owing to lack of attendance and support, and giving the money provided by the spare space to the hospital. Lord Knutsford, the elder of twin boys, came into the viscountcy on the death of his father, the second viscount, in 1914. He died some twenty years ago beloved by all and especially by the poor to whom he always held out the hand of friendship and assistance. No wonder that he went for years under the not unfriendly title of "The Prince of Beggars".

* * *

WHEN one man could achieve such a colossal success through dint of never allowing himself to be thwarted or dismayed by temporary disappointments, it would seem to almost anybody that a band of men joining together anywhere for the express purpose of helping hospitals devoted to every creed or even to no special creed at all should succeed in some degree, for hospitals are always in need of support and always will be.

PATH TO RECOVERY

(Copyright in All Countries)

For Peoples, Not Pedants

(RITCHIE CALDER in NEW STATESMAN and NATION)

THERE were times in the Unesco Conference at Mexico City when I gave the simultaneous-translation knob an extra twist, escaping from English, French and Spanish into ear-muffled silence.

Yet again, during a querulous debate on Section C Roman II little b, I would look up at the harassed face of Julian Huxley on the dais and . . . wonder why anyone like Huxley should exchange the fun of finding out for the thankless, politics-beset job of Director-General.

Indeed, for at least half the time of the Conference, most of us wondered why we were there. Why should anyone like J. B. Priestley, for instance, sacrifice six working weeks at the flood-tide of a creative life (and at considerable loss to the Commissioners of Income Tax) to discussing wearisome administrative details and futilities?

The tragedy of Unesco is that, so far, the peoples, to whose enlightenment it is dedicated by its charter, have remained singularly unenlightened either about its purpose or its importance. And the Conference itself did not succeed in remedying that.

For one thing, there were no rows, which is a news-standard applied to international conferences these days. There was a mild flurry when Priestley, with personal justification, told an American delegate that it ill became an American to try to teach liberalism to a British delegate. There was an attempt by the Poles to transfer the "warmongering" issue of Lake Success to the Unesco arena. And there was "The Case of the Missing Tapestries." It appears that in the Polish retreat the tapestries of Cracow Castle were removed and finished up in Canada. Now the Polish Government want the Canadian Government to recover them and return them, and Ottawa says it cannot trace them. As the Polish Minister said to me: "The Mounties can always get their man, but they cannot get our tapestries."

The big issue on the American side was the failure of Unesco to do anything constructive about the removal of obstacles to the free flow of information and, on the British side, its failure to capture the public imagination.

Since Unesco in its first year had done precious little, apart from excellent surveys of the needs of war-devastated countries, and its programme was bits and pieces which would need skilled mechanics to assemble it and get it airborne, the so-called "Working Parties" of the Conference had a considerable job. Actual projects, like the Haiti "pilot" experiment in fundamental education, the International Theatre Institute, the Hylean Amazon scheme for an international attack on the scientific problems of that vast area involving ten different countries, and, of course, reconstruction of war-devastated areas (for which America has voluntarily subscribed a "Marshall Plan" of 110,000,000 dollars) were endorsed.

Unesco is also going ahead with the World University of the Air which, again on its merits and not as a courtesy to Unesco, will "work its passage" on the radio networks of the world. Imagination is what Unesco needs.

Some will feel that the emphasis on mass communications—on "box-office appeal"—at the expense, inevitably, of the higher levels of education, science, philosophy, arts and letters, etc., is "lowering the tone" of Unesco. Few at Mexico City disputed, however, that the approach next year must be direct to the peoples, either in material help through reconstruction or through tangible evidence of practical work, or through the imagination—through emotion as well as reason. After all, Unesco exists to raise standards and promote understanding and human betterment among the 2,000,000,000 peoples. Education, science and culture, and the experts who practise them, are the means to that end. But Unesco belongs to the people and not to the pedants.

Unconsidered Trifles

A business man called at a friend's office. After a glance round he asked. "How's your new office boy getting along?"

"Fine; he's got everything so mixed up that I can't get along without him!"

The following conversation was overheard in a London club after a siren had sounded:

"What's that, warning or all clear?"

"Don't know; lost count."

"Sounds like an all clear, doesn't it?"

"All right, have it your own way."

"But then, if it's an all clear, why are the guns firing?"

"Oh, don't keeping asking me—perhaps it's the King's Birthday."

After the wedding ceremony the kindly old vicar eyed the shy bridegroom very kindly.

"Well, my friend," he said, "here is your lawful wedded wife."

The young man grew purple and shuffled his feet as he turned to his bride and mumbled:

"Pleased to meet you!"

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And, behold, two blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David. And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace: but they cried the more, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David.

And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I shall do unto you? They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.

So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him. (Matt. 20: 30-34.)

I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman. . . .

Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. . . .

If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.

Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples. As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love. (John 15: 1, 4, 7-9.)

Buck Elk Goaded by Jealousy Kills Young Male In Fight

NORTH BAY, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Snow was churned up by massive hooves and small trees uprooted in a great circle around the battleground of a fight to the death between two buck elk in a scene illustrative of the "survival of the fittest" motif. The primitive animal struggle was fought last Saturday at the fish hatchery a few miles northeast of here where the North Bay Chamber of Commerce maintains a herd of seventy elk.

Principals in the bloody fight were Barney, undisputed monarch of the herd, and a newcomer. Barney, a 900-pound giant, is nine years old.

A few weeks ago, chamber officials brought some new members to the herd. Among them was a three-year-old, 400-pounder, who immediately became the target for abuse from the king of the herd. Most of the elk ranging the grounds of the fish hatchery are in prime condition, but the youngster was no match for Barney's sharp, swift-thrusting horns.

The big elk's jealousy burst into the open last Friday in a brutal attack on his adversary, George Williams, hatchery manager and used to fights among elk, said he had never seen such an attack.

Hearing the familiar sounds of a fight—the thud of hooves in the snow, the clash of horns and the angry snorts—Williams ran to the herd to find Barney standing triumphantly over his fallen foe and preparing to trample him.

The smaller buck was badly wounded and one of his horns had been ripped out. Williams was able to separate the two animals, but the bleeding victim was unable to withstand the attack Saturday which ended in his death.

The following day there were no witnesses to the death struggle, but wood-wise observers reconstructed the scene. It was a short battle—lasting probably five minutes—but a violent one over a large circle.

Barney made several fast rushes at the young buck, raking the already weakened body with his long 12-pronged horns. The smaller animal feebly parried with his one remaining horn to no avail and soon went down before the savage, slashing onslaught.

Some instinct of the wild — possibly jealousy of a younger male—made the winner pound his defeated opponent's body with huge hooves after the kill, for the youngster's body was buried in deep snow, with only the ears and tip of the remaining horn visible.

Williams said, "this is the first time as far as I know that one elk has killed another."

Masked Marvel Holds Whipper To Draw In Main Mat Tussle

The Masked Marvel, at 257 muscular pounds, held Whipper Bill Watson, 230-pound British Empire heavyweight mat champion, to a draw last night in the main bout of the grapple program before a big crowd in the Brock Arena. He bragged afterward: "I'm too big for them—and I can lick any two wrestlers in the country, outside of Watson, one after the other."

It was a battle of giants with the Mask more powerful and rougher, but the champ more agile, experienced and plenty rough, too, when he got aroused. They started it clean enough and tried a show of strength and straight grappling, with the Mask looking a bit stronger. Later he started to rough it up and the faster Whip was willing to mix it. They dished up a dandy duel the last part, with Referee Ernie Powers warning each in turn. It wound up with both fighting furiously outside the ring as the crowd scattered. Both were counted out and the referee ruled it as a fall to each. The majority of the fans were for the champion. The end came after 37 minutes of hard going.

Whip Presses

Watson opened the next round fast with a drop kick and he continued, with a few interruptions, to hammer the powerful Marvel about the ring, even kicking him out of it. Once he had the mask twisted around and was elbow-smashing his opponent, who blindly grabbed the referee and choked him. But the powerful Mask kept battling back and pretty well held his own, though being thrown out again at the gong. His strength saved him as the Whip uncorked a savage attack of smashes, slams and drop kicks, but he couldn't down the durable Marvel and it was ruled a draw.

Don Victor

Don McIntyre, scaling 226—and the people's favorite—won the semi-final in 26 minutes over Nanjo Singh, 230-pound Hindu. It was a lively scrap all the way with the squat and rough Hindu giving McIntyre a tough time of it, with Powers warning Don when he retaliated with a few illegal tactics. Nanjo was thrown clear of the ring once by the infuriated McIntyre after trying to strangle Don with an unconscious hold. While Don was taller, the other was heavier and built better for a wrestler, being short, heavy and powerful. Both were plenty ring-wise and threw the works at each other in a hot tussle.

Hot Opener

The prelim between villainous Jan Gotch, at 227, and 205-pound Red Sims (replacing Ben Sharpe, who has an injured knee) wound up in a win in 28 minutes for Gotch. He played it rough all the way, using the ropes for leverage. Sims used a favorite grip, yanking Jan toward him and smashing him with his shoulder. He had a lot of tricks and agility and turned in a swell effort to please the crowd, but Gotch softened him up with a headlock and slams toward the finish to pin his shoulders for the fall.

Curling News

Tonight will see the semi-finals and finals of the leads' and seconds' competition. These should be real exhibitions and no doubt a large crowd will be on hand.

7 p.m. (semi-finals)—J. Willey vs. L. McNeil; R. Rutherford vs. J. McGoveran. Winners play at 9.00 p.m. in the finals.

And on Friday night we conclude another series. It will be the semi-finals and the finals of the group winners of the first schedule.

Semi-finals, 7.00 p.m.—Dr. R. Clark vs. Brown; C. Lawrence vs. H. Baptie. Finals at 9.00 p.m.

We can take a few more entries for Saturday's bonspiel.

Overheard this bit of conversation on No. 8 Thursday afternoon:

First curler — "Many times while holding the broom for one of my own rink, I'm annoyed by the opposing skip leaning over my shoulder and practically breathing on my bow tie. How can one discourage this abominable practice?"

Second curler—"Your problem is easy to solve, sir. Just eat a few small pieces of garlic before you go on the ice."

St. John's Victors

St. John's juniors of the Separate School League edged out a 2-1 win over St. Peter's on the former's ice. G. Driscoll got the loser's lone tally while Dorris and Kane counted for the victors in the third period. St. Peter's goal was garnered in the initial inning on a neat number. Woodhouse went well in goal. Teams:

St. Peter's — Goal, O'Rourke; defence, O'Brien, Lefevre; centre, G. Driscoll; wings, Bruce, Munro; alternates, Finn, Menard, Board, McCormick, Roberts, J. Driscoll.

St. John's— Goal, Woodhouse; defence, Clarke, Forbes; centre, Dorris; wings, Kane, Demario; alternates. Drummond, Giardino, Blodgett.

Referee—G. Sullivan.

One final appeal for a big and representative turnout at tonight's 7.30 Market Hall meeting when plans for a secondary rink will be discussed. Any way you look at it, such a rink is badly needed here and it's not good business for Peterborough to be without one now, or in the future when the Memorial Centre is built. Merchants lose money, clubs lose money and a lot of dough is going out of the city. Players and fans aren't getting a fair shake at all. Do you realize that the senior "B" Legionnaires have absolutely no place at all to practice now? Can't even crowd onto an open-air city rink any night for a workout, nor can any district rink accommodate them.

* * * * * * *

That's just one hockey handicap here. The OHA junior "B" Oddfellows were dropped from their group, until play-off time comes, because they lived in a rinkless city. Our minors don't see any good hockey — nor do many fans—so they lose out on this experience. These are just a few angles, not forgetting—as mentioned before—how tough it is on hockey followers who won't travel to see "home" games, and how much money goes out of Peterborough weekly with the teams. It is high time we all got in there and really start on this secondary rink project. So that it may be built this summer and fall, and the good old hockey days will return to Peterborough again.

Kingston And Legion

Those rejuvenated Saints of Kingston play the Legionnaires at 8.30 tomorrow (Friday) night in Lindsay, an important OHA senior "B" fixture. After a slow start, the Saints bolstered—especially with the addition of Joe Catlin—and got rolling to get right back in the race for a playoff spot in this hot group. Catlin, Aitken, the helmeted Bill Mortimer, Goalie Udall and others make them a strong squad now (even though they lost last p.m.), and Legion will have to hustle like they did Tuesday to grab a win. It'll be a swell scrap on fast ice and should draw a big Friday night crowd.

* * * * * * *

Mike Rodden of Kingston wrote before last night's game: "Any comparison between the Saints who fell at Omemee and those who do not intend to falter here would be out of line. They are vastly stronger than they were when they whipped the pace-setters here. Win or lose—and they generally lose here—the Petes are colorful and always worth seeing in action. They are smooth-working operators who have mastered the tricks of the trade and they guarantee spirited action. However, it is a matter of record that they haven't won a game here in a long time, although they did during their thrilling playoff series against the Locos two years ago transfer some of their home games to Kingston ice."

* * * * * * *

Cracked That Jinx, Eh?

In view of the above, it is interesting to note that the Petes trimmed the Saints 6-1 last gloaming on Kingston ice. Too much Tompkins for the Saints in this struggle, Honey showing his old-time form to score four goals, three of them in a row. He is playing great hockey again this winter and fattening his batting average each game. The report from the Limestone City indicates the Petes forced the play most of the way, though Kingston fought back. So the Creighton crew now has won six and lost one in seven efforts, while Legion are next with four and four. Kingston is just ahead of Belleville with three wins in eight starts, the Vets having two in seven. Looks like the Petes should romp home in front for the schedule, with a dogfight betwixt the other three clubs.

* * * * * * *

Plenty of hoop activity coming up for the week-end. Girls' standing is in tonight and shows a three-way tie for third place. So it'll be Kawarthas vs. Lock Co. at eight Friday and CGE vs. St. Paul's at nine in the YWCA. First fray is the start of that "bottom four" round-robin series, while the other tilt is to crack some of that three-way deadlock ere commencing "top three" playoffs. Maybe another tussle Monday. Three games at the Collegiate on Saturday p.m. The Bowmanville junior OABA entry has an exhibition with PCI seniors at 6.30, the Bowmanville Rotarians mix with Marines "B" bunch in a Lakeshore Loop number at 7.30, and Joe Krohl's Dalton Furriers of Toronto tackle Marines "A" outfit at 8.30. PCVS senior "B" and junior "B" teams play in Lindsay tomorrow.

Marvel Still Unmasked

The Masked Marvel (he looks too healthy to be the elusive Mickey McDonald) just about held his own with the champ, Whip Watson, in the main mat melee at the Brock last eve. We'd have given it to the experienced champ on points, but 'twas ruled a time-limit draw. And the Mask told us after: "I'm too big for any of them. I go 257 pounds and, outside of maybe Watson, I could take on any two guys in the game in this country one after the other, and beat them." He likes himself, eh? But he is a powerful brute, and there's no fat showing on that 257-pound torso. Don McIntyre won the semi-final over Nanjo Singh, while Jan Gotch took the prelim from Red Sims.

NORWOOD, Jan. 29—(ENS)—Hastings defeated Frankford 6-2 here last night in a speedy and clean TVL contest. It was played on real fast ice before a fair-sized crowd and was closer than the count indicatse as Frankford misses a lot of chances in the third period. A first-period splurge gave Hastings enough lead to carry them through, though they were outscored in the middle stanza. The teams:

Frankford: Goal, Lohnes; defence, Lambert and Farmer; centre, Courtney; wings, Rogers and Darke; alternates, Rankin, Johnson, Hood, Howard, Chard and Foster.

Tompkins Leads The Petes To 6-1 Victory

KINGSTON, Jan. 29 (CP)—Led by the brilliant "Honey" Tompkins, Peterborough last night defeated Kingston Saints 6-1 in an Ontario Hockey Association senior "B" game at the Harty Arena.

After a scoreless first period, the Petes took a three-goal lead in the next session with Tompkins scoring all the counters.

Catlin, on passes from Mortimer and Cameron, scored the lone Kingston counter on a screened shot less than two minutes after the start of the last period.

That made the score 3-1 for the Petes, but the Liftlock City crew started clicking again and 30 seconds after the Kingston goal, Tompkins scored his fourth marker to put Peterborough out in front 4-1.

R. Creighton gave them a 5-1 lead at the 4:35 mark of the third period, taking a pass from Kingdon to beat Udall in the Kingston nets. With 50 seconds remaining in the third period Blewett got the last Peterborough goal, scoring unassisted.

Three of Tompkins' goals were bagged on solo efforts. His third counter was racked up with the help of Parsons and Kingdon.

Fought Hard

The Kingston line of Catlin, Ohlke and Cameron fought desperately but they could not cope with the fast-moving Petes.

The game was marked by clean play. V. Stephenson of the Saints and Horton of Peterborough were the only players to be penalized. Referee Patterson of Toronto, making his first appearance in Kingston this year, ruled with an iron hand throughout.

With Tompkins, R. Creighton and Blewett performed brilliantly and carried the play to a baffled Kingston squad all the way.

Coach Bill Mortimer, set up the play for the lone Kingston goal as he tried in vain to get his team in high gear.

Lineups:

Kingston—Goal, Udall; defence, M. Mortimer, Stephenson; centre, Catlin; wings, Ohlke, Cameron; subs, Farrell, Joe Aitken, Belwa, Goodfellow, Jack Aitken, Casterton, Kerluk.

Petes—Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling, R. Creighton; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins, F. Parsons; subs, Garvey, Blewett, J. Creighton, Reid, Mortimer, Burton, Horton.

5 Teams After Bob Sandberg

WINNIPEG, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Everybody wants to get into the act!

That's the way it appeared today with clubs bidding spiritedly for the 1948 gridiron services of towering Bob Sandberg, who rode to Canadian football fame with sky-rocket speed through his dazzling performance for Winnipeg Blue Bombers in last year's Dominion final against Toronto Argonauts.

Bombers, naturally enough, want the big halfback to return to these climes. Meanwhile, Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four disclosed they have made an "attractive" offer to Sandberg while at least three other teams are believed after the man who covered himself with football glory in the final even though Bombers lost out 10-9 to Argos.

Saskatchewan Roughriders, Hamilton Tigers, and Montreal Alouettes are the other outfits said to be in the Sandberg market.

Although club officials generally are closer than the proverbial clam when it comes to discussing what players make from their grid activities, there has been talk that Sandberg picked up somewhere around $2,500 to $3,000 for his 1947 play. In an open market, its possible that he'll do even better for 1948.

Canadiens Tie Maple Leafs Edge Closer To Playoffs

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

You can quit sobbing about the plight of the once-mighty Montreal Canadiens. Although the Habitants are still down in fifth place in the National Hockey League today, they are not only within reaching distance of the fourth and last play-off spot but they could get into third place with a little luck.

CAN'T DO THAT—Promoter Mike Jacobs, who has been in semi-retirement since he suffered a stroke in the fall of 1946, has announced that he planned to retire for good after the return bout between Joe Louis and Jersey Joe Walcott for the heavyweight title next June. Referring to U.S. District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, who called Jacobs "undesirable" recently, Jacobs said, "They ain't going to chase me down no hill," indicating he won't quit under fire.

With all six teams in action last night, the Canadiens tied the Toronto Maple Leafs 3-3 at Toronto, and Leafs had to come from behind to earn the split in points. Detroit Red Wings defeated the Bruins at Boston 4-2, and New York Rangers just edged the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 at Chicago.

That gives Detroit a two-point lead over Toronto. The middle section now has Rangers roosting in third place, 11 points behind the Leafs. But Rangers are only two points ahead of Boston and the Bruins are only two ahead of the Canadiens. Going right down the line, Canadiens are five full games in front of the Hawks.

The Toronto crowd of 13,933 and the Leafs hockey players too rubbed their eyes when the Canadiens skated out for the pre-game warm-up sporting flaming red fire-chief hats. The Montreal Forum Tuesday had released the laconic information that a fan had warned the Forum would be burned down if Coach Dick Irwin remained on the bench.

Lots Of Action

The first period was scoreless and the second was only two minutes gone when Bob Fillon scored for Canadiens. Harry Watson tied it up, but Roger Leger and Elmer Lach gave Canadiens a 3-1 lead. Butch Bouchard was in the cooler when Harry Watson scored his second goal, and Howie Meeker scored the tying counter. Jimmy Thomson, the 19-year-old defenceman from Winnipeg, earned assists on all three Toronto goals.

That brought Thomson's total assists this season to 22, more than any other player in the league except two forwards—Buddy O'Connor of New York Rangers, the leading scorer who has 25, and veteran Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings who has 26.

Rookie Jim McFadden of Detroit who's been burning up the ice for many weeks scored two goals in the Wings' 4-2 victory at Boston. Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay got the others. Milt Schmidt and Pete Babando were the Boston goal-getters.

Hornets Edge Rockets 3-1

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Hornets today are four points ahead of Buffalo Bisons in the race for first place in the American Hockey League's western section but Bisons have a chance to narrow the gap on Saturday when they meet the flying Wasps in Pittsburgh.

Last night the Hornets rapped home two goals in the final period to edge the Philadelphia Rockets 3-1. Cy Thomas, former Toronto Maple Leaf and Chicago Black Hawk forward, paced the Hornets with a brace of tallies while Billie Benson accounted for the third. Ken Kilrea scored the only Rocket goal.

In the only other game played last night, Cleveland Barons scored twice in the final period to edge the surprisingly strong Springfield Indians 6-4. Defenceman Cy Buller and forward Fred Thurier each hit the mark twice for Barons with Roy Kelly and Bob Carse scoring one each. Bill Gooden led the Indian attack with two goals while Paul Courteau and Ken Hayden scored one each.

Sullivan Scores As Teepees Topple Flyers

By The Canadian Press

The see-saw battle between Windsor Spitfires and Oshawa Generals for the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A top spot levelled out temporarily last night when Windsor moved back into a first-place tie with Oshawa by trouncing the Toronto Marlboros 15-4 at Windsor.

Art Jackson's St. Catharines Teepees notched a surprise 3-1 victory over Hap Emms' third-place Barrie Flyers and joined Toronto Marlboros in sixth place —the last playoff spot. Their win at St. Catharines was their second in four games against Barrie.

Dinny Flanagan with three goals led the fifth-place Stratford Kroehlers to a 4-3 victory over the ninth-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors at Stratford for their third win over Joe Primeau's crew.

In the senior loop Hamilton Patricias and Stratford Indians battled to a 4-4 overtime tie at Hamilton, leaving the Pats in sixth place and the Indians in third.

At Windsor a loosely-played first period gave Windsor a 9-2 lead. Both clubs scored once in the second frame but Spitfires outscored Marlboros 5-1 in the final session.

Take Early Lead

The Teepees at St. Catharines grabbed an early 2-0 lead in the first frame and hung on to their margin for the remaining 40 minutes.

Billy Bushelen and George Sullivan tallied the two first-period counters and Topper Toppazzini scored the other in the final stanza. Sid McNabney netted Barrie's only goal in the second session.

Elwood Small tallied the clincher at Stratford halfway through third period to give the Kroehlers their 16th win in 30 starts.

Joe DeCourcy tallied twice for St. Michael's and Gerry Fitzhenry got the other goal.

Joe Fitzpatrick scored the Stratford equalizer in Hamilton with only seven minutes to go in the third frame. Pats held the play until the final session.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Jan. 29 (CP).—A Union-wide racket in the sale of photographs has resulted in many people being summoned for debt. Some, unwilling and unable to pay, have had garnishee orders issued against them or have had some of their furniture confiscated by messengers of the court.

Canvassers are visiting homes seeking orders for enlarged copies of photographs of relatives and friends, sometimes in color. Customers are asked to sign order forms which, it is alleged, are promissory notes, or documents which have the same effect in law.

When the framed photographs arrive from some other centre of the Union and the people refuse to pay for them because they are nothing like the original specimens, they receive prompt letters of demand from an attorney or financial agent.

A court official said: "The charge for the photographs, which are sometimes practically worthless, ranges from £3 to £30 ($12 to $120) each. Magistrates can do nothing in the matter once the summons has been issued. The debtor has no defence.

"When payment is not made the messenger of the court has no alternative but to attach assets in satisfaction of the amounts."

"NERVES" She Called It

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves", she thought—but it was her kidneys—the filters of her blood—that needed attention. She used Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, backache, headache, lack of energy disappeared. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain essential oils and medicinal ingredients that act directly upon the kidneys—and help restore their normal action. 144

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

The British Amateur Athletic Board declared war yesterday on the newly-created Olympic committee of Eire over which country will get the services of athletes from Northern Ireland.

Jack Crump, team manager of the BAAB, made a side skirmish at the United States during a press conference in which he said Dan Ferris of New York, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, had promised to support Eire's case.

"All Eire efforts, with American support, to bring about a secession of Northern Ireland will be fully resisted," Crump said.

In New York, Ferris said he had made no promise to support Eire demands. He said the battle for athletes of Northern Ireland had been going on since 1934.

Canada's paddling enthusiasts are going to make sure that the canoe team in the Olympic games will not find itself with limited funds like the Dominion skiers. Jack Parnell, prominent in the sport before the war, said a benefit get-together will be held Feb. 28 at Montreal. Doug Bennett and Harry Poulton will carry Canada's colors in the Olympics event.

At Buffalo, State Teachers' College last night defeated visiting swimming and basketball teams of Ontario Agricultural College of Guelph, whipping the Aggie Cagers 49-31 and the Swimmers 66-9.

Eleven countries will compete in Olympic figure-skating events with 33 entries in women's singles, 18 in men's and 13 pairs. Austria, France, Belgium, Canada, United States, Great Britain, Hungary, Italy, Norway, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia are the countries entered.

At least 80 British Olympic athletes already are assured of extra food for the Olympic games, Jack Crump, team manager of the British Amateur Athletic Board, said yesterday. The United States, Scandinavian and British Commonwealth countries have offered that much food already, he said.

Norwood Takes 9-5 Win From Havelock

NORWOOD, Jan. 29 (ENS). — Norwood and Hacelock clashed in a Rural League game in Norwood Tuesday night, with the home team winning 9 to 5. The teams were well matched for the first two periods. Don Andrews, always on the lookout for a loose puck, scored after two minutes of play, and Bob Edwards on a pass from Bedore put in the second for Norwood. Wight scored for Havelock late in the period, with G. Brown assisting.

In the second, Starke, with Robson and Scott getting assists, put in Norwood's first counter of the period. Wight and Green both scored for Havelock to tie up the game. G. Brown assisted on both goals. Andrews put Norwood in front again at 1.30 in the third, with Bedore assisting. Robson scored alone and then Robson from Starke. Wight taking a pass from Green, and Green from G. Brown, both scored for the visitors. Andrews put in the last two for Norwood to end the game.

Cobourg Rink Campaign Out For $75,000

COBOURG, Jan. 29—(ENS).—County-wide drive to raise the balance of funds for the Cobourg Memorial Park and Recreation Centre was announced yesterday by Mayor Joe Smith, who is chairman of the finance committee. The sum of $75,000 has been decided upon as the amount likely needed to complete a building suitable for the purpose. The ratepayers of Cobourg already have guaranteed $50,000 and the service clubs have indicated their willingness to donate substantial sums.

The rink will contain an artificial ice plant and the building will be so designed that it can be used all year round for various community activities. Mayor Smith warns that on account of the shortage of materials and the length of time which will be required to raise the money, the building cannot be completed for use next winter. As each block of money is received, certain steps will be taken to use it.

The plans for a recreational building with artificial ice facilities are being developed for the sole purpose of providing a recreation centre.

In order that people may more readily understand the administration and possible revenue, the committee explains that the year is divided as follows:

Five months of the winter are for the purpose of winter sports such as skating, hockey, curling, etc. Seven months of the year for providing recreational facilities such as dancing, roller skating, boxing, wrestling and basketball. Culturally the building will offer accommodation for concerts, both vocal and instrumental, conventions, meetings, etc., and generally serve as a rallying point for all events which could be of common interest to the community as a whole.

The building will be administered by a board of directors who would have full control of all its activities. It has been recommended that this board, on completion of the building, be comprised of members of the town council, representatives of the churches, service clubs and leading citizens acting as a board of trustees with complete authority to employ and dismiss according to their judgment. The building would be in charge of a competent manager directly responsible to this board of trustees.

75 Rinks Expected At Sudbury Bonspiel

SUDBURY, Jan. 29.—(CP). — Brightly colored tams will dot the streets and thick Scottish accents will mark conversations as the Northern Ontario Curling Association begins its annual bonspiel here next week. After an year's absence at Sault Ste. Marie, which played host to the event in 1947, the bonspiel gets under way Monday and continues through the week.

Largest number of entries on record is expected "there will probably be around 75 rinks," said R. A. (Dick) Demorest, NOCA president. "Playing on six sheets of ice both here and at Copper Cliff we should be able to handle them all right."

The Carmichael O'Brien grand aggregate award along with seven other cups will be offered for competition.

Crawford added one in the third with McAlpine tallying for Rovers.

A battered Kingfish Levinsky fell before the punches of Max Baer after 10 rounds of monotonous fighting at New York 16 years ago tonight. Marmora Takes 11-7 Win Over Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 29.—(ENS). —Marmora hammered Lakefield hockey club squad to the tune of 11-7 in an action-packed TVL battle on Lakefield ice last night. The win keeps Marmora on the top rung of the league ladder, having only one loss, that to Norwood. This is the second time Lakefield has bowed to Marmora and leaves them tied for fifth place.

The invading squad showed plenty of class, with Trumble and Loveless leading in scoring with three goals each. Gus Leonard also turned in an excellent exhibition. For the home crew, Fawcette, Chittick and Birch tied with two each, with Wasson outstanding in goal, cheating the Marmora flashes time after time.

Referee Shannon quit the game at the end of the second period on finding he had made a wrong decision over a goal allowed for Marmora, Loveless having his stick inside the goal crease when he scored. Linesman Tommy Junkin carried on alone as referee for the last session. A protest by the Lakefield club was rumored in the offing. Line-ups were:

Lakefield—Goal, Wasson; defence, C. Birch, J. Jopling; centre, B. Chittick; wings, G. Chappell, E. Jewell; alternates, Montgomery, Stewart, Fawcett, Morin, Hopkins, Henry.

Marmora — Goal, Koski; defence, G. Leonard, E. Leonard; centre, E. Cousins; wings, R. Goodchild, K. Trumble; alternates, E. Trumble, E. McInroy, C. Loveless, R. Brooks, M. Forrester, B. Doyle, S. Brooks.

OF GOOD STOCK—Among the first foals reported this year was this sturdy son of a King's Plate winner and outstanding Canadian-bred, Archworth. The colt was foaled on the Agincourt stock farm of W. H. Wright, Barrie breeder. This youngster is out of the producer of winners, Rose Mahone. The second foal of 1948 on the farm was a filly by Gamelaird, son of Challenger II and out of the matron, Lest We Forget.

Tweed Winners, 9-8 Over Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 29 — (ENS)—With their regular goalie, Stu Donald on the sick list and minus the services of Don. Free, Bristow and Grey, the local hockey team lost 9-8 to Tweed at the Tweed Arena, Wednesday night.

With Hendy and Tanner in front of him for the full 60 minutes, and Hendy playing much below his usual form, McColl had few dull moments.

The second period ended with a 6-3 lead for Tweed and although the Campbellford boys made a desperate effort in the third to even the score, they were beaten by the bell.

Tweed—Goal, Jones; defense, L. Gehan, Alexander; centre, B. Gehan; wings, Meraw, Rivers; alternates, Cotton, Long, Prout, Leal.

Olympic Group Deadlocked On Hockey Teams

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 29 (AP). — The international Olympic committee was reported deadlocked today on the question of which of two rival hockey teams is to represent the United States in the winter Olympic games here.

The Olympic press bureau said the committee ended its morning session in a stalemate. The committee scheduled another meeting for 8 a.m. EST the bureau announced.

Last night the Swiss organizing committee for winter games tossed the disoute from the frying pan into the fire.

The sons of William Tell banged the gavel for an emergency session last night within an hour after the IOC executive committee had given the old heave-ho to the rival United States hockey teams —the Amateur Hockey Association and the official United States Olympic outfit.

Without even a discussion, and with no dissenting vote, the stubborn Swiss yodelled back that "the AHA remains qualified to participate in the ice hockey championship within the first Olympic winter games."

The AHA team, blackballed by the United States Olympic committee, had been accepted by the Swiss as the American entry long ago. The Swiss rejected the United States Olympic team, which was chosen by the Amateur Athletic Union.

That placed the IOC in an unprecedented pickle. What the 27 members of the IOC would do to parry the snub to its executive committee was the topic of hotel lobby conversation throughout this winter Olympic capital.

Chile's 'War Without Quarter' Develops Into Long Siege

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 29—(AP).—President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla's "war without quarter" against the Communist Party seems to have settled into a long siege. In the desert ghost town of Pisagua, abandoned nitrate port about 78 miles from the Peruvian border, 487 Communist leaders are camped in exile from the mines they ruled only a few months ago.

That is one way Gonzalez Videla is trying to prevent, he says, any Moscow attempt to plant an outpost of Soviet empire in South America.

Gonzalez Videla declares his government has "concrete information" that the "international organization of the Communist party" proposed to make Chile the centre for a "revolutionary outbreak."

From Congress he has obtained extraordinary powers to prevent "Muscovite Communism" from "imposing its yoke" on Chile as he says it has done on Poland, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Romania.

He is empowered to declare emergency zones, state of siege, relegate persons to far corners of the country and stop strikes by putting vital industries — especially the copper, nitrate and coal mines—under military control, if necessary.

Gonzalez Videla's "war without quarter" started last August after the president dropped three Communist ministers from his cabinet. He says they worked harder at building up the party's already strong control over labor than they did at solving the country's problems.

Charge Sellout

The Communists in turn accused Gonzalez Videla of selling out Chile to the United States in the hope of getting loans.

A strike movement started in the coal mines spread to the copper mines and nitrate fields before the government stopped it with its new powers, recently extended by congress until July 15.

With its former labor leaders in bleak, arid Pisagua, living on army rations in barrack-like buildings, the Communist party's influence on Chile's workers through the labor confederation headed by Communist deputy Bernardo Araya apparently has been reduced.

Some observers doubt that it has been nullified, however, pointing out that some copper mine unions elected new Communist leaders.

At any rate, the slowdown tactics of some months ago which the government attributed to Communist orders seem ended. Rear Admiral Immanuel Holger, minister of interior, reported copper, nitrate and coal output at record highs at the end of 1947.

BC Mines Set Record

VANCOUVER, (CP)—Production of British Columbia mines in 1947 was more than $100,000,000 far in excess of any previous year, it was announced at a B. C. chamber of mines meeting here. Uprecedented demands for base metals at high prices caused reopening of old mines and development of new ones.

BEHIND THE ANCIENT JALOPY which took them on trips through France is the Duke and his French tutor, guide and friend, Maurice Escoffier. Picture was taken in front of the Grand Hotel in Verdun.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 16.

In Paris I stayed with the Marquis de Breteuil, who had been a close friend of my grandfather.

With his American wife he lived in a fine house on the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, near the Arc de Triomphe.

I had a suite to myself far superior to any accommodation I had previously known at home.

The elegant boiserie rooms on the second floor exuded the flavor of le beau monde.

And the de Breteuils' weekly lunch parties were attended by attractive women and the most stimulating minds in France — statesmen, artists, writers financiers.

The explosive atmosphere of politics and art peculiar to all French salons is a pretty heady mixture.

And while everybody was unfailingly polite to the young British Prince, I am afraid they put me down as just another uncultivated Englishman speaking their lovely language with a barbarous accent.

Few wasted more than a word on me.

A bow, a charming phrase and off they would dart to exercise their powers of logic and exposition with another gifted compatriot.

Now there came into my life yet another tutor, M. Maurice Escoffier, of the Ecole Libre des Sciences Politiques, whose role it was to teach me all things French.

Every morning he would be ushered into my sitting-room, in tail coat, bowler hat, grey gloves and cane, with a formidable collection of books under his arm.

My early life seems to have progressed through a forest of beards, for Escoffier was a "beaver," too.

And after I had overcome my initial distate for the pungent aroma of the Caporal cigarettes to which he was addicated, he and I became great friends.

Whenever I got too entangled in French grammar, he would take me sightseeing—the Louvre, the Invalides, Notre Dame, the Chamber des Deputes, Versailles, Fontainebleau; under his learned auspices I inspected them all.

Along with everybody else I climbed the Eiffel Tower and rode on the roller coaster at Luna Park.

And in company with him, Hansell, and Finch, I toured a good deal of France, visiting innumerable provincial towns, chateaux, and, as a gesture to Hansell's unique hobby, cathedrals.

There were occasions when I felt that my teachers enjoyed the tours a great deal more than I did, for I did not drink, and food as such did not interest me, whereas Hansell and Escoffier loved to linger at restaurant tables over the plat lue jour and vin du pays.

The President of the Republic decorated me with the Legion of Honour—"with death," whispered Escoffier, "the only other thing a Frenchman cannot hope to escape.

I really learned a good deal about France; in any case, enough to love it.

At the same time my tour was memorable chiefly because of my 18th birthday, occurring while I was there, which brought two coveted privileges.

My father, following the Navy rule for young officers, had refused to let me smoke until I reached that age.

Then a birthday gift from him in the form of a cigarette case signified that I could indulge in that habit if I wished.

Also, 18 brought me to the threshold of that magic world in which I was free to drive a car.

Encouraged by some of my young French friends, I was soon speeding along the routes nationales to the terror of Escoffier who, beard flying, clung by his eyelids to the back seat.

I returned to Britain in August and that was the end of the Earl of Chester.

Oxford now loomed as a dreary chore to be finished with the least effort and as quickly as possible.

From my point of view as a human being, the easy conditions under which I took up residence at Oxford in October, 1912, certainly were a vast improvement over those laid down by the Prince Consort for my grandfather some 50 years before.

To prevent his possible contamination from too intimate association with the under-graduate commoners, my grandfather was obliged to live apart in a rented house, to eat his meals apart with his own staff, and to wear a special gown when he attended lectures.

His classmates had to rise respectfully whenever he entered "Hall" or a lecture room.

Fortunately for me, all that had passed when my turn came.

Knox Church Membership Now 460, Report Shows

The annual meeting of Knox United Church was held Wednesday evening, with a splendid attendance. Rev. H. G. Douglas presided and A Pitchford was elected secretary. Reports from all organizations indicated a year of activity. The total membership is now 460. The highlight of the year was the burning of the mortgage, thus leaving the church free of indebtedness. Extensive repairs were also made to the church property and all current obligations met. Total net receipts were $12,000, including generous amounts for missions and church pension fund. The continued good work of the ladies and in particular the Women's Association, was acknowledged.

During the evening vocal solos were contributed by Mrs. N. Hughes and Miss Dorothy Mitchell, accompanied by Miss Eleanor Taylor and Miss Phyllis Kidd. A memorial service was conducted for those who died during the past year. Special mention was made of the late John W. Buyers, who had served as secretary of the Board from the time Knox Church was organized.

As a token of appreciation for his many years of service, Mr. Andrew McKenzie was made an honorary member of all the boards on which he served, and a letter of greeting was directed to him.

The retiring director of the Junior Church, Mrs. Hanscom, received a letter of appreciation for her valued services.

The election of various officials resulted as follows:

Session, for five years, F. Watson, G. Clarke, Thomas Taylor, A. Langford, R. Genge, J. Clarke, E. Clarke, E. McIlwraith, S. E. Mahood, Donald Rose.

Board of Stewards, for three years, H. Murduff, R. Rose, L. Mahood, F. Watson, G. Myles, E. McIlwraith, C. Gardner, R. A. Williamson, W. Logan.

Anson House, Mrs. Londerville and Miss Summers.

Bible Society, Mrs. Morrison, Mr. Barnes.

Auditors, S. E. Adamson, F. Watson.

H. J. McCannan for the Board presented a framed picture taken at the burning of the mortgage. This will be hung in the vestry. A presentation was also made to Howard Clegg by D. M. Hill for his many years as church treasurer.

A vote of appreciation was given various officials for their work throughout the year. Special mention was made of the choirs and also of Mr. and Mrs. Collins, church officers, to whom a practical recognition was made.

Speaking for the congregation, Mr. Barnes moved a vote of appreciation of the services of Rev. H. G. Douglas and Mrs. Douglas, and expressed confidence in the work in Knox through the coming years. At the conclusion of the business session the ladies of the WA served dainty refreshments.

Tiny Piece Of Cloth Convicts Prisoner

WINDSOR, Jan. 29 (CP) — A tiny piece of cloth found at the scene of a burglary clinched the case against Bernard Haggerty who was found guilty by an Ontario Supreme Court jury of breaking, entering and theft. Haggerty will remain in custody until Feb. 5 for sentence.

The piece of cloth was from a handkerchief. Miss Verda Vincent of Toronto, analyst in charge of the medical-legal laboratory for the province, presented expert testimony that it was from a handkerchief carried by Haggerty.

The burglary took place New Year's day at the home of John Webb.

Still Tracing Missing Fliers In RCAF

STELLARTON, N.S., Jan. 29 — (CP). — On March 29, 1943, J. A. MacKenzie of Stellarton received a telegram that thousands of Canadian parents had dreaded and were still to dread: his son was missing in action.

Yesterday, almost five years after that telegram, Mr. MacKenzie learned how his airman son had died.

The letter, from the RCAF casualty officer, represented three years' work by the RCAF missing research and inquiry service to trace the last minutes of the life of Flt. Lt. Daniel M. MacKenzie, a Spitfire pilot, and to find and mark his grave.

Somehow, among the stern details of the letter, could be found the feeling of a nation that had counted nearly 40,000 dead from war. Here it is:

"According to the report of our missing research and inquiry service, who located the grave of your son, they interviewed a fisherman—a former resident of Pula—who stated that he saw your son's aircraft crash into the sea a short distance from the coast of Sardinia.

"He said it was an English, single-occupant fighter aircraft which had been hit by flak from guns along the coast.

Buried Flier

"About 10 days later, on a calm day, he went out to the aircraft which was in about 10 or 15 feet of water. He managed to get your son out of the aircraft but papers of identification had been taken by the Germans. But your son was laid to rest in the cemetery at Pula.

"I realize that this is a very distressing letter, but it is my earnest hope that it will be of comfort and solace to you to know that your son is resting in a British cemetery where his grave will be maintained in perpetuity by the Imperial graves commission (of which Canada is a member). The commission will erect a headstone at his grave."

"Yours sincerely,

"W. R. Green, Wing Commander, RCAF Casualty Office."

Teacher In City 40 Years J. McKone Has Taught 4000

John A. McKone will celebrate his 40th anniversary as principal of the Peterborough Business College, George St., on Friday, Jan. 30. During that time he estimates some 4,000 young men and women have passed through the college at the rate of approximately 100 a year.

For two generations, in an almost constant stream, ambitious youths have been receiving the benefit of his counsel and training as they sought to equip themselves for business careers.

A teacher for almost all of his adult life, Mr. McKone both likes and takes pride in his profession. Commenting on it, he said: "Teaching is very enjoyable when the student shows some desire to get ahead; it is however no pleasure when it is a fight for the teacher to make him work . . . It would be heaven on earth if everyone took the long view and worked."

He was born on a farm in Lambton County in 1884. After farming for five years he moved to the little village of Parkhill in Middlesex. Here he obtained his education at primary and secondary schools; and attended the old Model School at nearby Strathroy to become a public school teacher.

At a small country school just outside Strathroy, he taught all grades from primer to entrance class—an experience which to this day can make or break a potential teacher.

Wishing to improve his position he enrolled at Westervelt Business College in London, Ont. After graduating he instructed at a business college in Wingham for about two years. His next stop was Orangeville where he opened a business college in 1906.

In 1908 he came to Peterborough which he vividly recalls was in the midst of a cold spell similar to the one now being experienced. "I thought I had arrived at the north pole," he said. But through cold and warm spells he has remained for 40 years.

A recent picture in the Examiner showing the intersection of George and Charlotte streets captured his fancy; for it was taken the very winter he arrived —the bitter cold one of 1908. The scene called back many old memories, he said, of a smaller and different Peterborough than the one known today.

The old business college was located in the present Bank of Commerce building on the floor now occupied by a Masonic Order. It was moved to the Bradburn building on George street in 1918 after fire had destroyed several stores in that block; and it has remained there since. From 1908 on he has been the principal of the institution.

From the time the Normal School was opened in 1908 until 1938 he was penmanship instructor there. Mr. McKone is an expert penman—writing with a natural copperplate hand. In fact his accomplishment is so well established that he had been called on as an expert witness in court cases where the validity of signatures was being contested.

One of his chief grievances against modern educational methods is the inability of many people to write legibly. "Modern writing is very bad," he said. "Teaching children the print script is not conducive towards teaching them good penmanship." He said many employers complain of an untidy scrawl possessed by many job-applicants instead of neat legible writing.

Lack Groundwork.

Students today don't have the same groundwork of educational fundamentals, he contended. In many cases, he said, "they are lacking in spelling, poor in arithmetic, very poor in grammar; and punctuation is a minus quantity. They know little geography of either this country or the world."

He suggested that the reason for this might be the modern curriculum which emphasizes the social aspect of classroom learning somewhat to the detriment of individual self-help. And by allowing students to know that they failures in certain subjects detracts from their keenness in mastering a distasteful subject.

Numerous letters from eminent business men and women attest the respect in which he is held professionally and personally, by his student graduates. Among these are included a former private secretary to Mitchell F. Hepburn, one-time Premier of Ontario, and another who is on the secretarial staff of British U. N. delegate, Sir Alexander Cadogan.

JOHN A. McKONE

His hobbies are amateur carpentry and birdwatching. In his business offices are samples of his carpentry work— mainly in the form of repairs to damaged furniture. At his Downie st. home is a recently completed coffee table made from old organ cases.

Birdwatching is mainly restricted to summer time when he can drive out into the open country and spot the different varieties in their natural habitat. He has logged 99 different birds.

In his 64th year, after 40 years of teaching the business-minded youth of Peterborough, Mr. McKone shows no signs of slowing down. On Jan. 31 he will have started on his second 40-year span.

Trinity Church Reviews Work Past Year

The congregational meeting of Trinity United Church was held Wednesday evening in the ladies' parlor. Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon conducted the devotional exercises and presided during the proceedings. The large attendance was most gratifying and the reports which followed were interesting, stimulating and challenging. The financial part of all reports had been prepared and turned in previous to this meeting. These financial reports were available to each person present. This plan seemed to find favor. Representatives — secretaries in the main—spoke for the various organization of the church, and presetned in brief form the outstanding activities of the group.

It is impossible to mention in this brief report all the varied and various activities being undertaken in Trinity. Perhaps the work of the WA, the WMS, the Missionary and Maintenance, the Sunday School and the junior church organizations—not forgetting the Cubs and Scouts, the nursery church, and the girls' groups will suffice. Plans for the reorganization of the work of the Sunday School have been made and will be tried out during 1948.

Trinity people have done a fine piece of work for the Pension Fund of the United Church. The local treasurer reports all pledges for 1947 fully paid.

The presence of so many of the younger people and also the older members was quite noticeable and looked well for the future of Trinity. Votes of appreciation were unanimously adopted to Dr. Gordon and Mrs. Gordon for their faithful and energetic work, to Miss Clarry and her choir, and to Mr. and Mrs. Rolston for their outstanding work.

At the close of the business session, the Women's Association under the direction of Mrs. J. L. Thompson served light refreshments, with Mrs. J. A. Robinson at the coffee urn. Representatives from the various groups of the WA assisted in the serving.

St. Paul's Presbyterian Reviews Activities of 1947

The annual meeting of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was held on Wednesday evening in the Sunday School auditorium. The Minister Rev. C. S. Boyd occupied the chair and conducted the devotional part of the service.

The session report prepared by a special committee noted that the congregation was entering the 115th year of its history and progress had been recorded in all branches of the church's activities. The Sunday School has been re-organized and now meets immediately following the church service on Sunday morning with ever increasing attendance. The formation during the year of a Young Married Couples Club filled a great need in the life of the church.

With increase in population in the city the need of a second Presbyterian church was noted and the session reported that already the matter was being studied.

A special tribute was paid to the work of the organist, Mr. M. B. Chenhall, ARCO who for more than 26 years has been organist and choirmaster. Mr. Chenhall resigned at the end of the year but is carrying on until his successor is appointed. "We desire to place on record the very fine service he rendered during the time of his leadership in the service of praise. His sympathetic understanding and interpretation of the hymns and psalms has done much to make the worship in the sanctuary especially helpful. This is something that is often lacking in church services", the report said.

Rev. Mr. Boyd has completed one year as minister of the congregation and tribute was paid to his preaching and the great work which he is doing in the congregation.

The session reported 1,148 on the church roll with 98 additions during the year and 32 removals. It was also reported the minister conducted 33 funerals, 28 marriages and 45 baptisms.

A. R. Girven chairman of the Board of Managers presented the financial statement of the congregation which showed greatly increased envelope and open collections and a total current revenue of $19,477.79. A large scale plan of renovating the church is underway with new roof, repairs to foundation and painting of the steeple already completed and the contract let for a complete redecorating job. Elected to the Board of Managers were A. E. Chalmers, Donald Hill, Fred Finnie, Leslie Reid and Archie Shearer. Contributions to Missions of the Church set a new high.

Various organizations all reported a successful year with the numerous missionary groups and societies all meeting their allocations. The Ladies' Aid reported a year of great activity and financial support to many of the junior organizations of the church. The ladies also announced a credit balance of more than $3,500.

A. S. Couper and Thomas Mackay were named auditors to audit all books of the various organizations of the congregations.

St. Andrew's United Church Burns $25,000 Mortgage

A spirit of optimism and sincere thankfulness to Almighty God marked the annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's United church Wednesday evening.

Mr. E. F. Reid, clerk of Session, reported an increase of membership and the congregation stood in silent respect to those who died during the year, Mr. R. B. Harle, Mr. Roland Ferguson, Mr. F. E. Kerr, Mrs. T. L. Robinson and Mrs. Wm. Batten.

The minister and clerk of Session gave communion quarterly at Anson House and twice to the nurses at the Civic hospital.

This year the CGIT introduced carol singing, when they sang carols to several shut-ins at the Christmas season.

This was the first full year for a report of the junior choir, which now has a membership of 48, and Mrs. McColl was warmly thanked for her excellent work with these young people. They had a spring festival and an operetta and lead in the service of praise one night a month.

The treasurer, Mr. D. R. Munro, reported the income for 1947 $19,040 as well as $3,900 for missions.

Messrs. J. R. Marshal, J. McColl, J. Richardson, H. Keefer, I. Lillico and Dr. C. B. Waite were elected to board of managers for three years.

Highlight of the evening came when it was announced that the mortgagee had been paid and would be destroyed at this gathering. This was a mortgage of $25,000 which had been taken to build the new Sunday school and install a modern heating plant in the church.

Mr. J. R. Marshal, chairman of the managing board, read the names on this mortgage: Messrs. Geo. Gillespie, Wm. Richardson, R. M. Glover, Andrew McFarlane, Wm. Langford, R. M. Waddell and E. B. Fowler. Four of these gentlemen have died and the remaining three were called to the front to take part in the ceremony of burning the mortgage.

Wiht Mr. Gillespie and Mr. Richardson holding the manuscript, Mr. Glover lighted the match to it and as the flames died away Mr. Northrop led in singing the Doxology.

The benediction by the Rev. Mr. Aiken closed a most interesting meeting.

Telegram Used As Evidence

EDMONTON, Jan. 29—(CP)—Preliminary hearing of three Ontario persons charged with conspiring to publish a defamatory libel moved into its third day today with expectations that it would last at least until late afternoon.

George H. Steer of Edmonton, counsel for Dr. Charlotte Whitton, one of the defendants, is scheduled to be called as a witness by the Crown.

The hearing was adjourned yesterday at the request of J. J. Frawley of the Alberta attorney-general's department.

Sam Shuler, a distributor of New Liberty, Lethbridge, Alta., testified yesterday that a request to withhold distribution of the Dec. 27 issue had come from the royal commission investigating the administration of child welfare in Alberta, not from the provincial attorney-general's department.

Much of yesterday's hearing was taken up with legal argument over the admissibility of telegrams dealing with the distribution of the issue of New Liberty in question.

Defence counsel contended only an original telegram as filed by its sender was admissible as an exhibit. However, Magistrate Hawe permitted a telegram said to have been received by an Alberta distributor from a New Liberty magazine official to be entered as an exhibit. The telegram advised that the the magazine would provide counsel and defence if anyone was charged, and that distribution of the Dec. 27 issued should be resumed.

PEDIATRICIANS RECOMMEND WHEAT GERM CEREALS

A prominent child specialist on the staff of one of the country's largest Children's Hospitals gives this advice: "Many of us, including our children, eat too little thiamine or Vitamin B_1. This is because we use too much sugar and low thiamine cereals.

If we would use whole-grain cereals instead, we would get plenty of thiamine, and in addition we would add valuable amounts of several other of the B Vitamins and of iron to our diets.

Another advantage of using generous amounts of the whole-grain products is that the cellulose in them helps to prevent constipation."

BRITISH AID FOR BESEIGED JEWISH SETTLEMENT—Motorized British soldiers of the Middlesex Regiment and Palestine police are shown in this radio photo halting on a road recently while going to the aid of the Jewish settlement of Yehiam, Palestine, which was under attack by a band of 500 Arabs. The attackers directed mortar and automatic weapon fire against the settlement built amid ruins of a Crusader castle. The settlement is one of 19 Jewish communities outside the boundaries of the proposed Jewish state.

Asks About Aid Plans

OTTAWA, Jan. 29 — (CP). — John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, asked in the Commons yesterday if the government has received any representations from the United States regarding Canada's participation in the European recovery program. He requested that if any had been received the information be made available to the House. External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said he would give an answer later.

Try To Prevent Strike

WINNIPEG, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Action to reduce the possibilities of future strikes in the packinghouse industry has been launched by the Winnipeg Labor Council (CIO) in line with a suggestion made by George Stapleton, International representative of the United Packinghouse Workers of America. The action is taking the form of an appeal to the Manitoba government to "waive legislative powers on jurisdiction of labor relations in the meat packing industry."

Customs Officials Kept On Hop Stopping Food Buyers From U.S.

WINDSOR, Jan. 29. —(CP).— Hundreds of Americans returning to Detroit have been stopped by Canadian customs officers during the last week in a concentrated drive by authorities to check United States citizens taking foodstuff out of the country in excess of the $5 limit.

Many Detroit shoppers, taking advantage of lower food prices in Canada, are disregarding foreign exchange and customs regulations in the amount of meats and groceries they are attempting to take back to the United States, Harold Beardmore, collector of customs, said today.

Mr. Beardmore was critical of grocers and butchers in Windsor "who are not co-operating" and selling more edible goods than are allowed to go out of the country without an export permit. "These merchants know who their customers are and they are certainly not co-operating with us."

"We had to turn back more than 300 cars in one day," Mr. Beardmore stated. He related glaring attempts by United States purchasers to take goods back in wholesale quantities. One man had 40 dozen eggs, another had $80 worth of groceries and others have been caught trying to take whole carcasses of beef and pork through the customs.

In the case of poultry, up to $15 worth may be taken back without an export permit.

One person determined to take a carcass of meat back was stopped three times in one day, Mr. Beardmore said. The first time he showed up with the complete article, next he came with the head off the third time he had it carved up. "We finally permitted him to go back with a hind quarter."

Montreal Studies Wholesale Market

MONTREAL, Jan. 29—(CP)—A proposal to construct a $15,000,000 privately-financed wholesale merchandise market, pending for nearly two years, still provides a live subject in city hall circles and strong city council approval is indicated.

The market would provide a central display-room establishment where wholesalers in household appliances, building materials, articles of decoration and other goods would carry on business with retailers in spacious show-rooms.

Mayor Camillien Houde in a radio broadcast said that in asking for use of a city-owned site in central Montreal, the private group financing the project undertakes to set up an enterprise bringing in an estimated $500,000 annually to the city in taxes.

Construction plans call for a 12-storey building with a floor area of more than 1,000,000 square feet. Except for administration offices and some concession rentals, most of the space would be reserved for show-rooms. There would also be rooms for fashion displays and transient exhibitions.

The show rooms would be rented on long-term leases. Capital required for construction would be guaranteed "by an assured revenue of semi-permanent character," the mayor said.

A. G. Dugal, executive of a large department store, said in an interview that "many industries have left Montreal because we have no merchandizing market; Toronto is way ahead of us."

Those behind the project, which must be approved by city council, recently sent a representative and architect to New York and Boston to study merchandising markets and methods there.

Cancer Methods Arouse Interest

SYDNEY, Jan. 29.—(Reuters). —John Braund, non-medical Sydney septuagenarian whose claims to cure cancer have aroused public controversy, today removed a growth from a woman, diagnosed as suffering from cancer of the ovaries, in the presence of doctors, nurses and reporters.

After his removal of the growth, a cancer specialist examined the wound with a strong lens and declared it was "perfectly clean."

A cancer specialist of world renown recently said: "I have been examining Braund's patients for four years and knew he has something. Until his treatment is disclosed it will be impossible to determine its limitations.

"From what I already know it will mean scrapping possibly millions of pounds worth of equipment. Deep X-ray and radium therapy will go by the board."

Record Construction Program Seen In '48

QUEBEC, Jan. 29.—(CP). — Despite import restrictions, a record peacetime construction program is in store for Canada in 1948, George McIlraith, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, declared today.

Mr. McIlraith, in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Construction Association's annual convention, said the outlook for the year was for an investment program of $2,400,000,000, compared wtih the previous peacetime high of $2,000,000,000 last year.

TORONTO, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Youths who broke school windows and smeared ink over classrooms walls have caused $46,705 damage to the city's school in the last 20 months, the board of education reported yesterday. The board is considering hiring special school guards.

Truman Hankers After Balcony At White House

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (CP) —When President Truman wants a morning plunge he dives into the purified waters of a gleaming private pool; when Washington correspondents get inquisitive they crowd into the President's office and fire questions at him.

But it was not always that way and Truman took time off from more serious matters to tell the reporters about it the other day when they resumed queries about that controversial balcony he wants to hang on the south portico of the executive mansion.

It started when Truman denied any extensive travelling plans this presiential election year and someone suggested perhaps he planned a "back porch campaign" from the balcony the fine arts commissioners don't want him to put on the White House.

That wasn't a back porch, the President reminded the newspaper men. It was the front porch in reality because the south portico once was the main entrance to the White House.

It had a lawn as it has now and at the foot of it was the old Chesapeake and Ohio canal, the President said.

John Quincy Adams, when he was president (1825-29) used to go down to the canal every morning for a swim, the President said.

Warming to the historical subject he recalled that there was a woman reporter those days who had tried in vain to get an interview with Adams.

She Got Her Story

One morning she went down to the canal bank while the President was having his before-breakfast splash, sat on his clothes and announced she would stay there until he gave her an interview. She got her story.

Now the south portico looks over a tree-shaded, enclosed lawn, with avenues and monuments and parklands beyond stretching half a mile to the Potomac. The canal is gone. The former back door is now the front entrance facing on Pennsylvania Avenue.

The President had more to say about that balcony he is determined to build on the south portico as a place to cool off in private during the heat of summer.

Everybody protests when a suggestion is made to change anything in the White House, he complained. It was the same when they decided to put in a cooking range. For a long time the servants refused to use a range and went on preparing meals at an open fire-place.

It was the same again when gas lights, then electricity and later a bathroom were installed. Committees viewed with alarm these newfangled alterations to the historic mansion about 150 years old.

Last year the President had a rather elaborate plan to extend the executive wing and provide more office space. The commission of fine arts won that bout and the plan dropped.

But the President is determined to have this balcony hide-away which is estimated to cost $15,000 and will be virtually invisible to the general public.

BC Sends Boxes Of Food To Athletes

By RAY TIMSON

VANCOUVER, Jan. 29.—(CP). —Monotony and inadequacy of food available in England has prompted British Columbia to lead Canada in a British Olympic parcel fund—victuals for vitality.

Bi-monthly, benevolent sportsmen of the Pacific coast are sending 60 parcels containing 20 pounds of proteins, fats and carbohydrates to 60 Olympic games' athletes in England. And the number of donors is rapidly increasing.

Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, whirlwind of National League hockey three decades ago, originated the nourishment scheme while working as a Canadian immigration official in England last year.

"Calories from Canada, that's the slogan," say Cyclone, fervently hoping all other provinces east of the Rockies will match the move. To Cyclone, the English athlete's insufficient and unbalanced diet was discernible at the 1947 tennis championships.

Not One Finalist

"There wasn't one English finalist at Wimbledon's centre court," he said, somewhat fuefully. And records for the last two years substaniate the remark.

British Columbians think Olympic competition would be unfair unless the English partticipants receive the benefit of muscle-building food. The British Olympic Board suggests that their athletes should have no false pride in accepting food from the commonwealth.

Cyclone Taylor's "pep" plan, which started a few weeks ago, is costing sportsmen here $100 for each of the 60 athletes receiving parcels. England has 250 Olympic stars-in-training—so, 190 still are living on the austerity diet.

Toronto Man Pleads Guilty To Both Charges

Teamwork by city police, coupled with some valuable assistance from citizens cleaned up two break-ins and thefts during the past four days. The climax came in City Court this morning when David Billings 22, Toronto, pleaded guilty to two charges and was remanded to February 4 for sentence. He pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and theft at the Roy Studio last Sunday, and also to breaking and entering with intent to commit theft at Selkirk's Men's Shop on January 20.

In City Court on Wednesday, Lionel Devin, 21, also of Toronto, pleaded guilty to the Roy Studio job, and he too was remanded for sentence on February 4. He and Billings were transient photographers, making a living by photographing children in their homes.

Details obtained from police reveal that the entire chain of events leading to the conclusion of these cases has all the requirements of a story-book detective yarn.

On January 20, when police found the rear door of Selkirk's store tampered with, they did not know any goods had been taken, neither could Mr. Selkirk say that any of his stock was missing. During the investigation by Det.-Sgt. John Stevenson and Acting Det. W. C. Clarke, a small penlight was found inside the back window. This was examined under a powerful microscope and scratched on one of the batteries was the name and address of a Toronto youth. Further investigation revealed the boy had left the penlight in a drawer at Central YMCA, Toronto. Then it had been stolen. Billings was a roomer there at the time of the theft.

When Billings was brought back from Toronto Wednesday night he was wearing a hat, scarf and overcoat from Selkirk's store. The penlight tied him in with the theft, coupled with the fact that it was proven he was a resident of Peterborough at the time.

Similarly teamwork and good work by citizens helped clean up the Roy Studio job. Quentin Avey, a boy living on Brown Street, picked up a camera cable release in front of the local YMCA. His father promptly notified the police after seeing the story of the robbery in the paper. From that point on, it was simple matter to trace the two men from the YMCA to a rooming-house where they were living. Cameras and other equipment were found in their room, and were identified by Roy Pitchford of The Roy Studio. The police waited for Devin to arrive and arrested him, then notified police who picked up Billings in Toronto.

Police reported this morning they recovered three suits, an overcoat and a dressing gown, all stolen from Selkirk's Store. Practically all of the equipment from The Roy Studio was also recovered.

Cow Going On Auctio n Block Delivers Calf Offspring Only Few M inutes Old Brings $100

Farmers from far and near came over winter roads, by rail and car on Wednesday to attend a sale of pure bred Holstein cattle at the Exhibition Grounds Drill Hall. The weather was zero but the auction room was bright and warm. The auctioneer stood on a dais and yelled the merits of the fine animals that bawled and mooed in the ring before him. They were straight fine animals that were used to show ring procedure as they were led into the byre and stood with heads held high while prospective buyers went over every inch and poked them into various stances with stockmen's canes.

Eight-year-old Trent Valley Right Away Daisy owned by the late Frank Kelly was an old trouper and show rings were old stuff to her. It is hard for a girl to attract attention when there is so much competition but Daisy knew the score. To put it delicately on a delicate subject, Daisy was "that way", the stork came in for a landing a few minutes before she entered the ring as Exhibit Three. She made the eyes of the audience bulge when she was followed to the auctioneer's stand by a herdsman carrying her newborn calf. Young Master Right Away could lay claim to to be the youngest calf to go on the auction block anywhere in Canada, or elsewhere for that matter.

For reason that Master Right Away was too wobbly to stand and take a curtain call, Kenneth Eason and Sons of Indian River forked over $100 on the spot for the lusty little trouper and took him home. Mother Daisy went under the hammer to an Ottawa buyer and licked Master Right Away on the nose and bawled at him to be a good boy before she was led out of the door of the hall.

500 Attend Holstein Sale Bidding Brisk, Prices Good

Spirited bidding and a crowd of nearly 500 marked the auction sale of more than 40 head of Holstein cattle in the drill hall at the Exhibition Park Wednesday. There were buyers from many Ontario centres and several from United States farms following the bidding carefully and making a play themselves for the federally tested, fully accredited Holsteins on the block. Total sales for the cattle were $12,690, an average of more than $300 per head. Highest price paid for any cow was $675.

Abou three-quarters of the head offered were from the estate of the late Frank Kelly of Peterborough, well known cattle farmer and dairyman. An added feature was the offering of 10 head of outstanding foundation females selected from herds in Peterborough county.

DEER

We have in Peterborough County one of the finest wild animals in existence. The Deer, harmless, interesting for many reasons. They are good pets, they provide one of the greatest hunting animals that the average hunter can hunt. Their meat is good and their hide makes the finest leather. They do not as a rule do any damage to farms and only slight damage to new forest growth.

How many hunters would enjoy hunting if they had to go out hunting lions, tigers, wolves, mountain lions, and grisly bears. I am afraid there would not be many. Therefore, we owe the deer a great debt.

What can we do to preserve them. Game reserves and Game Wardens are a great help and if it wasn't for them there wouldn't be any deer left. It is said that there are plenty. I feel very confident that close to seventy-five percent of the hunters from Peterborough did not see or kill a deer. I believe in order to save at least fifty to a hundred young deer each year, small feeding stations in the Game Reserve should be established and if the weather is bad in February put out feed such as alfalfa hay, clover, weed seed chop. Not marsh hay or timothy.

We have already made arrangements to feed a limited number. We will build a rough shelter to keep the hay dry in a place where deer congregated for the winter.

Anybody wishing to help or to to subscribe any amount of money, hay, weed seed or any other deer feed, notify the Peterborough Fish and Game whose members will see that it gets to the proper place.

We have some good men in this country who will do everything possible to help the deer providing we co-operate with them.

Yours respectfully,
CHARLES G. KINGAN

200 Telephones Go Dead As Drill Clips Big Cable

More than 200 telephones went dead Wednesday morning when a workman's drill broke into the underground conduit carrying a "1200-pair cable," damaging some of the internal cables on George St., just below Simcoe. Although repair crews were dispatched at full speed, working the remainder of the day and all night long, disruption of service is not expected to be less than 30 hours.

Some time Thursday afternoon or evening it is believed normal telephone communications will be resumed, say Bell Telephone officials.

Recently the Bell Telephone Company has been laying an extra line in a vacant duct of the large 1200-pair cable as part of the speed-up program to accommodate some 1,500 people who want telephones. This is a tricky business as the vacant duct must be unplugged before the new line can be threaded through. And the threading process has its complications too.

On Wednesday the new line became caught in some manner and contractors working for the telephone company traced it to the location about 40 feet south of the George-Charlotte intersection. Digging rapidly they reached the conduit which had a board covering—not cement as was expected — and the drill ripped through this comparatively fragile protection, damaging several smaller cables.

Immediately more than 200 telephones were cut off and the work of splicing the cable began. To do this a large sized hole must be dug so that a sizeable length of the cable can be exposed.

Under floodlights, with a canvas tent hung around the hole, the repair work continued Wednesday night, and it is hoped to finish the job before Thursday night.

Senator Certain UN Quite Secure

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—(CP).—An optimistic outlook on the past and prospects of the United Nations was placed before the Senate yesterday by Senator J. A. Leger (PC-New Brunswick), who watched the international body in action for two months as a Canadian parliamentary delegate.

Regardless of how far apart its major members seemed to be, he saw no threat to its future. "No nation thinks of, no nation wants and no nation would tolerate war," he said. "No nation had manifested its intention of withdrawing and all the 57 member countries had expressed a "fervent desire" for peace.

Senator Leger said the U.N. had a good record of achievement, despite what its critics had to say about it.

In the Security Council, there had been "abuse" of the veto. But it was "intolerable" that this continue.

"Once the peace treaties have been signed," he predicted, "international tension will be less acute" and the U.N. would have better prospects for a useful life.

"The U.N. will survive its present difficulties," he said, "and continue to carry out its duties faithfully and well."

Drifting Bottle Crosses Atlantic

PAARL, South African, Jan 29 (CP). — After drifting across the Atlantic Ocean from the Gulf of Mexico, a bottle was washed up on the South African shore, near Saldanha Bay, about 90 miles north of Cape Town.

Found by J. C. Wolfaadrt, a Paarl teacher, the bottle contained the following message:

"This bottle was thrown into the Mississippi River, near New Orleans, on June 22, 1947, by Ken Christensen, of 1103, 5th Avenue, Moorhead, Minnesota, U.S.A. Please communicate."

The bottle was in the sea for six months and might have travelled between 10,000 and 20,000 miles.

5 Canadian Men–They Cook Too Answer To A Maiden's Prayer

By MARIENNE IZSAK

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 —(CP)—Leap years lady, listen to this:

Across the East River, one subway stop from Manhattan, five young Canadian men live in a two room Brooklyn apartment.

A resounding answer to a maiden's prayer, they are all single, handsome—and they can cook, too.

For the last seven months the five Canadians—four from the Maritimes and one from Toronto—have been living in the apartment, a bedroom equipped with double army bunks and a living room dominated by a crackling fireplace.

The five wizards of Wall St. work in the same office, the New York branch of a Canadian bank. They also: do their own shopping, cook their own meals and attend to all domestic details, including cleaning, washing, pressing and mending.

Fireplace Important

Community life in the apartment revolves around the fireplace and an FM set installed by Ralph Boyle of Kentville, N. S., a 220-pounder who says—and asks to be quoted—that Kentville "is the finest little own in Canada." The suspicion exists that Boyle's muscles may account for the lack of fence palings outside the apartment. Wood for the fireplace comes high in Brooklyn, despite all you read about the tree that grew there.

Strict accounting of all purchases is kept by Herb Murray of Charlottetown, whose parents now live in St. Andrews, N. B. An enthusiastic fisherman, Murray has a collection of about 300 salmon and trout flies.

The other men—Donald Aker, Sydney Mines, N. S., culinary expert; James McEnery. McAdam, N. B., whose father helped install the signal system in New York subways; and John Chesley, Toronto, runner-up in the 1943 Dominion tennis championships—occasionally raise feeble objections to Murray's hobby.

They're Marooned

When Herb spends an evening tying flies, the others are marooned. They can't get past the hall door, because Herb spreads his collection outside.

Shopping is done every day at a neighborhood grocery store where the boys have become an institution. Saturdays, when week-end purchasing must be done, finds other customers cowering in a corner as the five fearsome Canadians raid the place.

All veterans of the Second Great War, the Canadians don't raise an eyebrow when it comes to picking up a mop or a broom and sailing into the housework. They pride themselves on their domesticity.

So you see, leap year lady, these boys have everything. Might as well make that New York trip now.

Ask Government Move Soon To Stop Price Spiral

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Government action to help Canadians meet their living costs was advocated in the Commons yesterday as members resumed the traditional debate on the Throne Speech, a debate which allows private members to air their grievances and views on practically any subject.

The five speakers during the three-hour mid-week sitting agreed that the high cost of living was a matter uppermost in the minds of the Canadian people.

William Irvine (CCF—Cariboo) urged full re-imposition of price controls and a rolling back of current price levels. A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal) urged higher pensions for war veterans and their families to allow them to meet high living costs.

Eugene Marquis (L—Kamouraska) asked if the time had not come for the passing of legislation that would fit a reasonable profit for those dealing in essential foods.

J. A. Ross (PC—Souris) criticized the Government's handling of controls and charged that Canadian farmers had lost $800,000,000 through the Government's sale and marketing of agricultural products.

Good Idea

Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William) said that the Government's proposed house committee on prices was one of the best ways of dealing with the country's "dangerous" price situation.

Mr. Irvine said that the re-imposition of a price control here and another one there would be ineffective in bringing about a reduction in living costs. The government from wartime experience knew how to make controls operative, and it now should make use of that experience.

He said the CCF Party many times had warned that the removal of controls would lead to just such chaotic conditions as existed to-day.

The cost of living "is still mounting and never has gone faster than it has in the last few weeks," he said.

Too Much Profiteering

Mr. Marquis said it was "criminal" the way some profiteers were taking advantage of the people and he urged that the government keep a more vigilant eye on prices. Control of profits on essential food products, if imposed, could be maintained until the provinces were ready to take over a matter that really was in their field.

Before getting around to prices Mr. Marquis advocated a tightening up of censoring of movies and literature and of the parliamentary procedure for the granting of divorces to Quebec couples, the only ones which still come to Parliament for marriage dissolution.

Postmaster-General Bertrand said he plans to introduce a Bill later in the session to extend for another year the supplementary payments initiated during the war for rural mail carriers.

Church Officials Conduct Service

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 29 (CP).—High tribute was paid to Very Rev. Norman A. MacLeod, former moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, at funeral services Wednesday in First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. MacLeod, 79, died Sunday in the church while preparing to conduct the morning service in place of the regular minister, Rev. Henry Cousens. He had retired last year from the active ministry.

The funeral service was in charge of the moderator of the Brockville Presbytery, Rev. J. C. Ross, Iroquois. Lessons were read by the Rev. Dr. Allan S. Reid of Montreal, clerk of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa, and Rev. William Merrilees of Westport, clerk of the Brockville Presbytery. The prayer was given by Rt. Rev. Charles H. MacDonald of Lucknow, moderator of the General Assembly, who also pronounced the benediction.

Mr. Cousens said in his address that the occasion did not call for a funeral dirge, but rather the strains of the "hallelujah Chorus."

"There must be gladness as well as sadness in our hearts," he said. "All are better men and women for having known him. We rejoice in the faith that he possessed and in the knowledge that he has gone to his reward."

Indians Read Newspapers See Way To Make Money

FORT WILLIAM, Jan. 29.—The Canadian redskin can now be written off the "sucker list," the local city council has decided, but it has a growing suspicion that the Mission Indian colony is bent on getting a bit of financial revenge on the white man for assorted deals that are mentioned in history books.

Briefly, the Mission Indians are prepared to part with Mount McKay, which rises in the midst of their reservation for $1,000,000 in Canadian funds or bonds, and the city council can take it or leave it. The city is leaving it, for the time being, anyhow.

The civic white fathers, through its parks board, has been considering purchase of the mountain for development as a park area to attract tourists. A couple of hundred years ago it would have been easy. A few dollars' worth of assorted beads and similar junk, plus some tobacco, would have cinched the deal. Didn't the crafty Dutch settlers diddle the unsuspecting Aquehonga Tribe out of its happy hunting grounds in New York harbor back in the 1660's just this way?

Want Cash.

But the Chippewas and the Ojibways of the Mission Road Band have been reading the newspapers. They want cash on the nose for their mountain. If the city doesn't want to buy it, well, the tribesmen will rent the mountain at $5,000 a year for five years.

The proposed real estate deal came before city council last night, and to describe the reaction of the members as "one of stunned amazement" would be a trifle on the conservative side. Ald. J. O. Booth, finance chairman, took a deep breath and murmured that the $1,000,000 figure was "somewhat fantastic."

Ald. H. M. Limbrick remarked feebly that "thar must be gold in them thar hills." He suggested the council continue negotiations with the Indians and try and get the asking price scaled down to a reasonable figure.

This suggestion found favor with the council. They will try again.

The Indians at the nearby reservation gave out with a "how" when told of council's rejection of their offer. They have the mountain. If the city wants it, they know how to get possession.

But no shiny beads or colored cloth will do the trick.

Gregg Ready To Act Against Contractors

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.— (CP). — Veteran Minister Gregg said yesterday in the Commons that his department would not hesitate to take action to recover from contractors any amount due as a result of faulty construction in veterans' houses.

Replying to questions asked yesterday by A. J. Brooks (PC-Royal) Mr. Gregg said he could not give any breakdown of the costs to the Government and to contractors for correcting defects in veterans' housing, because the work still was going on.

He told Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) he could not yet say whether the matter of veterans' housing would be submitted to a House committee or a Royal Commission.

Replying to Norman Lockhart (PC-Lincoln) and Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC-Nanaimo), Mr. Gregg said that the costs of veterans' housing in Niagara Falls, Welland, St. Catharines and Victoria, B.C., had been or were under discussion.

ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY PROJECT—Sen. Alexander Wiley (R.), of Wisconsin, left, told the U.S. Senate that the St. Lawrence seaway project would strengthen the nation's defence potential both by new transportation and power facilities. Wiley, shown trying to "sell" the seaway project to Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge (R.), of Massachusetts, right, who is opposed to the seaway bill, and eight other members of the senate foreign relations committee supported the executive agreement with Canada for carrying forward the huge project, while four others prepared to fight it.

Tweed Foreman Given Present

TWEED Jan. 29 — Marshall Drinkwater, C. P. R. section foreman, having reached the pension age of 65 years was retired after a lengthy service, this month. He served ten years with the Canadian National and 30 years with the C. N. R.

Mr. Drinkwater started his railroad life with the Central Ontario Railroad at Bonarlaw. This branch line was later taken over by the C. N. R. After ten years' service with the National he accepted a position with the C. P. R. as an extra gang foreman at Norwood. He was then transferred to Cherry Wood near Toronto where he remained for nine years. Twenty years ago he came to Tweed and for the past ten years he has been acting foreman of this section.

The section men of the Havelock Division presented him with a purse of money. He and Mrs. Drinkwater left that same evening for their new home in Colborne. They have three children, two daughters, one living in Almonte, one in Harrowsmith; one son Eligie in business in Cannington.

War Veteran Badly Burned Trying To Rescue Baby

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 29—(CP).—A 23-year-old war veteran lay swathed in bandages in hospital here last night and in a voice hoarse with smoke related how he came within a few feet of saving the life of a one-year-old baby in a fire that swept two emergency shelter apartments here late yesterday.

"I almost reached Billie's crib when the flames met me, I felt them on my arms and legs," said Reuben Ward, who came to London five months ago from Dorchester, NB. His sister, Mrs. Alice Cook, lives at RR 3, Dorchester.

Ward broke down and sobbed, and then explained that Billy Dupont was his "favorite" of the household of nine persons whose flat was destroyed by fire of unknown origin.

The child, son of Michael and Madeline Dupont, died from suffocation and burns in a flash blaze at the Queen's Park Apartment while both his parents were away working.

Leonard, three years old, was rescued by Jack Adams, also a boarder at the Dupon home.

District Fire Chief Ray Moulden was treated in hospital for a gashed hand received when firemen smashed an opening through wooden and fibre-board building to reach the seat of the blaze.

The adjacent apartment of Frank Newman also was gutted, with two adjoining apartments badly damaged by smoke and water.

In all, eight families and 15 children were driven out into the cold by smoke and flames.

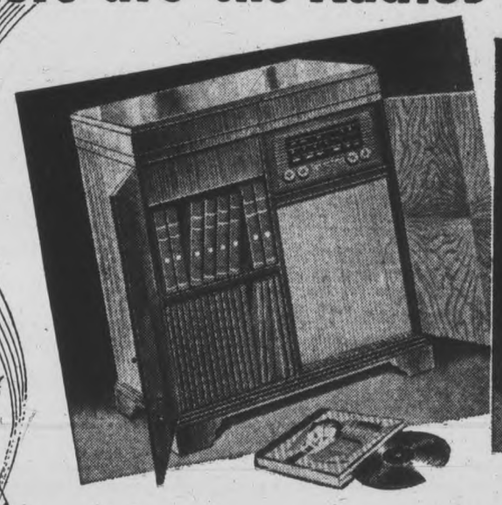
About 30 families live in the Queen's Park emergency city shelters, built up in two lines of former army huts.

Mrs. Dupont was at work in a downtown restaurant at the time of the outbreak, and her husband was working in Westminster veterans' hospital.

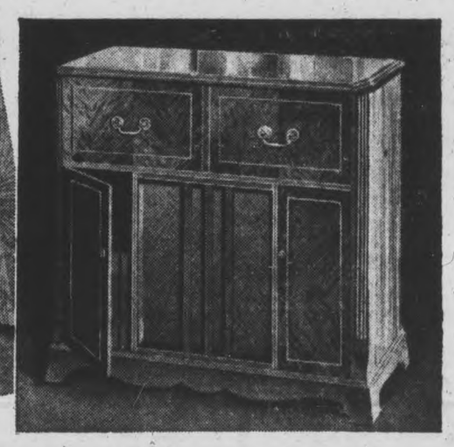
SMUGGLED TEA

Because of the high tax on tea Britain in the 17th and 18th centuries, more than half the tea drunk in England was smuggled in.

GM Workers Get Insurance



OSHAWA, Jan. 29—A contributory group insurance plan, with certain features not contained in the company's previous plan, will go into effect next week for employees of General Motors of Canada Ltd. Ninety-seven per cent of eligible employees have signed up, according to William A. Wecker, general manager.



The amount of life insurance has been adjusted to be more in line with employees' income, the amounts ranging between one and two years' salary or wages. A substantial part of the insurance coverage is continued after the age of 65 without cost, whether the employee leaves General Motors at that age or later if, at 65, he has 10 years in the plan.

The new plan also offers sickness and accident benefits generally much greater than before, and extending over a much longer time. The average employee may receive benefits up to 26 weeks if required, instead of 13 weeks as under the old plan.

The company also has in effect a group plan for hospitalization and surgical care, as well as a retirement annuity plan.

Loan Cupboard, Blood Donations Featured Red Cross Work In 1947

Emphasis was laid on the excellent work that has been done by the forming of the Loan Cupboard, when the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society held its annual meeting Tuesday, January 27, in the Red Cross Rooms on Brock Street.

The Loan Cupboard, convened by Mrs. R. H. Turner, became operative in the spring of 1947, and as its name implies it is in reality an enormous cupboard supplied with all the necessary articles for a sick room. At the present there is on hand a large supply of dressings, sheets, pillow cases, bath and hand towels, bed pads, quilts, blankets, rubber sheets, basins, thermometers, hot water bottles and covers, and crutches. There are three wheel chairs, one large and two small, one Gatch bed and many more articles required in the sick room are always in stock, and for the use of the public. The Gatch bed is already out on loan, as are several pairs of crutches and two wheel chairs.

The hiring of any of the equipment from the Loan Cupboard is a simple matter. Any member of the public may have such articles that are deemed necessary for the patient, and all that is required is a certificate from a doctor testifying that such articles are needed in the sick room. The Loan Cupboard has had many calls upon it during 1947, and it is felt that as this particular service of the Peterborough Branch becomes more widely known, it will be doing a worth-while work in homes that at present lack many things to give the patient greater comfort.

The report of the Peterborough Red Cross Blood Donor Service for 1947 showed that the desire to donate blood in this service has not flagged, on the contrary it has increased in donors each year since its inception in April, 1942.

598 Transfusions.

During the year 598 transfusions were given to patients in local hospitals by Red Cross donors, many of whom started with the Red Cross Branch in 1942 and are still eager to help. The donors are not asked to go out of town, but recently one emergency case in Lindsay was served by a Peterborough donor, when a broadcast over the radio for a special type of B.R. neg. was needed. Within one hour two donors were in Lindsay and a transfusion given. Another emergency case in Toronto was attended by a Peterborough donor. The patients in both these cases, Lindsay and Toronto, are now home and fully recovered.

The Peterborough Branch supplies taxis to and from the hospitals, so there is no delay in the service and no inconvenience to those who go. The report praised the work done by the CGE in respect of the blood donors. The Red Cross staff have the use of the works surgery for the medical examinations of donors who work in the plant, and on October 7 and 8 last year more than 300 men and women were examined. The report also praised Mr. Ian McRae for his special interest in this work and for his willingness to allow the employees of the CGE time off to go to the hospitals. "It would be difficult for us to carry on this service but for the CGE, as so many of the donors work in this plant," the president reported.

A request from the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company was read, asking that the Red Cross Blood Service should visit the plant and examine and organize their donors again, since they feel that they would like to have a part in this community effort.

It was pointed out at the meeting that no patient is charged for the blood given by a voluntary donor. Any charges relating to blood transfusions mentioned in accounts are for laboratory and operating room service. No member of the Red Cross Blood Donor staff in Peterborough is paid. Another point of interest in the report is that the Branch has on file a record of every transfusion given by donors since the service began in 1942, also the date and amount given and by whom.

Outpost Hospital.

The Apsley Red Cross Hospital report for 1947 clearly shows that this hospital is giving excellent service to the district. Reopened in June, 1947, after being partly torn down and rebuilt and having more up-to-date equipment it provides the community with adequate health protection. A new furnace has been fitted, but the old furnace has been kept intact as an auxiliary heating plant in case of power failure. A modern battery is kept charged in the basement and attached to the surgery in case the power goes off, and this battery is connected by an outlet so the spotlight can still be used in an emergency.

Complete X-ray equipment with dark room for developing supplies the hospital needs and also can be used for chest work, thus making it possible to have TB clinics should the need arise. An autoclave supplies the necessary needs for sterilization, while there is a modern delivery table, suitable also for operating, a spotlight for operation work, an oxygen tank, a suction pump, and other necessities of a well-equipped surgery.

In 1947 there were 59 admissions, 16 births, no deaths, 12 X-rays, 12 minor operations, 30 clinics (child welfare). At present there are seven beds, and though the hospital is small it meets the needs of the Apsley district. Under the Community Doctor Service, Dr. J. M. Fetterly from Oshawa has been engaged, and he has been in practice in Apsley since last April.

In submitting her report on the Junior Red Cross, Miss E. Dix advised that at the close of the 1947 school year Ontario had 11,485 branches with 361,000 members. In November 10,894 pairs of shoes were sent to Europe.

Sixty interviews were given to soldiers by the Soldiers' Relief Committee, 12 soldiers were assisted and eight visits to soldiers' homes were made, D. A. Loomis reported.

Sickness in the homes appeared to have been the main cause in requesting relief given by the Civilian Relief Committee, reported R. M. Glover. He also reported that in nearly every case the same families that had been helped from time to time also received assistance again in 1947. Five baskets of fowl and groceries averaging a little more than $7 were distributed. An appropriation for $200 for 1948 was recommended by the chairman of the committee. The cost of Civilian Relief for 1947 was a little more than $100.

Aid European Children

The Women's Work Committee report, submitted by Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald, showed that since February, 1947, 195 articles on Outpost Hospital quotas had been completed, consisting of surgeons' gowns, pneumonia jackets, hospital gowns, bath blankets, sheets, T binders, and dressing bags. Also 150 articles of clothing for children in Europe had been made. The average attendance at the sewing meetings has been 12. Re-opening in the fall after the summer vacation the committee meet two afternoons each week.

Mrs. C. G. Graham, convener of the Purchasing Committee, reported that their expenditure was $114.68, among the items were baskets of fruit for Sunnybrook Hospital and Station Hospital, Ottawa.

A Year of Accomplishment

Substantial progress and expansion was reflected in the general annual report submitted by the Secretary, Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell. Highlighting this was shown the work of the Peterborough Branch in respect to Apsley Outpost Hospital. Insulating, remodelling, reroofing, rewiring and redecorating the Hospital building, modernizing the kitching, fitting new oil burning unit, special modern equipment in the surgery and refurnishings totaled more than $30,000. This was entirely financed by the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The branch also donated $500 and ten kegs of nails to the Coe Hill tornado victims.

It was reported that the Branch had been very loyally supported by the people of Peterborough individually and collectively. The executive expressed their gratitude to the Red Cross and Community Fund and to the many individuals who have helped the work of the Blood Donor Service, the Women's Work Committee, the Junior Red Cross, the Apsley Hospital and in other ways too numerous to mention.

"All in all," said Mrs. Blackwell, "1947 has been a busy year. With the world in the chaotic state it is today, there is a seemingly endless task ahead of an organization such as the Red Cross. It is our privilege to do our utmost, in the hope that better times for all may arrive a little sooner."

In her remarks before retiring, Mrs. F. E. Hooper, the president, expressed her appreciation to each member of the executive for his or her loyal support and generous co-operation during the past two years. Her special thanks were made to the conveners of the different committees, to Mrs. Ray the 1st Vice-President, and to Mrs. Blackwell, the Secretary, for their invaluable assistance during her term of office. "It has been a privilege to hold office in a branch which has been as successful and as active as ours," said Mrs. Hooper, "and for the new executives I ask your continued support and co-operation, in order that we may carry on our work in the future as effectively, as harmoniously and as unceasingly as we have in the past."

TRAINEES FOR JEWISH DEFENSE ARMY—Looking forward to the time when they will have a section of this globe which they can call their own, the people of the Jewish state are training their youths for their defence army, the Haganah. Young high school students, girls and boys are undergoing intensive training, under expert supervision, to protect their homeland, come what may. Since the partition plan was approved by the United Nations, hundreds of Jews and Arabs have lost their lives in bitter skirmishes in Palestine, and when the British finally clear out, the Jews will be, more or less, on their own, hence the importance of the defence army. Pictured above at left a close-up of a high school girl, attired in some sort of military garb. This is the type of girl who is now training for the Jewish defence army. Haganah high school boys, top photo at right, are followed by high school girls as they go for a long march which is part of their training for the Jewish defence army. They, too, are attired in uniforms. Photo below shows youthful Tel Aviv high school girls walking across tight ropes. This also constitutes part of their training for the Haganah.

RETURNS FAVOR — Believing that one good turn deserves another, Capt. Konstantin Flink, Los Angeles, Calif., sends a food package to Helmut Witte, former Nazi submarine commander. In 1942, when Flink's ship, the U.S. freighter Star of Scotland, was torpedoed. Witte provided both freedom and food for the crew. Recently Flink got a letter from Witte telling of German food shortages and he's returning the favor.

103-Year-Old Woman Keeps Her Own House Today

BEEBE, Que., Jan. 29 (CP). — If Mrs. Emma Moir had been born one day later she would be celebrating her 26th birthday next month instead of her 104th.

Known as the grand old lady of Beebe, Mrs. Moir was born Feb. 28 and just missed being a "leap year baby" by a matter of hours. She is the oldest resident of this district on the Quebec-Vermont border although some of her neighbors across the line run her a close second.

Still in good health and able to do her own work around the house, Mrs. Moir is an active knitter and during last year she knit more than 100 pairs of tiny souvenir mittens. Some of these she sends to friends as gifts with a bit of her own poetry attached and others are sold at the Beebe church Christmas sale.

"Hard work and no worrying," is her recipe for longevity.

Mrs. Etta Longeway, a former Bebee resident who now lives at nearby Derby Line, Vt., is another candidate for long-living honors. She celebrated her 99th birthday January 17.

Although her eyesight and hearing are poor, Mrs. Longeway too is in remarkably good health and still gets around her home.

Longevity is a characteristic of her family. Her sister, Mrs. Rosella Tolman of North Bay, Vt., will be 96 next April, and three brothers lived past their 90th year.

Rev. Sister Priscilla, hospital superintendent, conferred the caps. Miss R. O'Hara responded on behalf of the class.

Those receiving caps were: Misses Jean Andrews, Gravenhurst; Geraldine Crough, Omemee; Marguerite Connelly, Shirley Hutton, Madeline Keenan, Lindsay; Clotilde Heffernan, Teresa Garvey, Peterborough; Irene Howard, Englehart; Teresa Latendre, Rosemary Meraw, Tweed; Teresa Mahoney, Campbellford; Helen MacDonald, Kirkfield; Pauline Robbins, Teskard; Rose Marie O'Hara, Alliston; Eleanor Sharpe, Fonthill.

Rev. Sister Mary Agnes and Rev. Sister Mary Cordis of Mount St. Joseph are also in this class.

Next class of probationers will be enrolled February 2, 1948.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 29 — (ENS) — Mrs. Bruce Preston was hostess Tuesday evening when friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill gathered at her home in honor of their recent marriage.

Mrs. John Murphy read an address, while Mrs. Alex Rosborough and Mrs. Clarence Foster presented the couple with a lovely lamp and an electric clock.

Mrs. Rosborough played for the sing-song while the bingo was conducted by Mrs. J. Murphy, Mrs. C. Coons, Mrs. A. Rosborough and Mrs. C. Foster.

Chilly Christmas Spent in Lean-To

HALIFAX, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Christmas Day was saved for Halifax's 90,000 citizens by a former soldier and two bacon sandwiches.

While his wife and five small children waited hopefully for him to arrive for Christmas dinner, Aubrey Brown, ex-artilleryman, spent the day snowbound in a chilly lean-to beside the pumping station which supplies the city with water.

When he left home in the early morning of Christmas Eve, Brown hoped to be home for the tree decorating, but he bargained without Old Man Winter who was working in opposition to Santa.

Three feet of snow fell during the day and his relief could not break through to the pumping station until late Christmas Day.

Brown, was found munching the last crumbs of his two bacon sandwiches, which he had rationed to himself, old-soldier fashion, during his long vigil.

Find Blondes Disappearing

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 29 — (CP) — Fair-haired men and women are dying out, says Dr. Raphael Armattoe, director of the Londonderry Research Centre for Anthropology and Race Biology. And, he adds, the last strongholds of blondes are the Dominions.

Sixty years ago, reported Armattoe, writing in the London Star, 65 per cent of all Britons were blonde. Today the figure has dropped to 25 per cent. Redheads are also on the way out.

Even Scandinavian countries, commonly thought to be well stocked with blondes, are suffering the same fate. A recent tour of Sweden revealed no more blonde Swedes than Britons.

"The last strongholds," wrote Armattoe, "are Australia, New has 38 per cent of blondes and Canada 42 per cent.

"Surprising blonde majority in the Dominions gives the clue to a process which . . . has been depriving the human race of its fair-haired people. It is the old problem of industry versus agriculture or town versus country."

Disappear in Cities

Blondes tend to predominate in agriculture communities and to disappear in industrial centres. The reason, says the doctor, is survival of the fittest. "It is beyond dispute that racially and over long periods blondes are less resistant—physically—than brunettes."

"It is true that blondes are perhaps not so intelligent as brunettes; but they are more adventurous and daring. Brunettes, for all their quick intelligence, are often steady, solid people, unwilling to take risks. They make the visionaries (most clergymen are dark haired) and the poets and musicians.

"Blondes are less rational and more emotional than brunettes, yet, strangely, they are often less nervous and highly strung. Their energy and enthusiasm carry them farther sometimes than dark-haired intelligence."

How is Britain to save blondes? By intermarrying with other countries, especially the Dominions, says Armattoe.

"I should be happy to see Australians, New Zealanders and Canadians marrying our young men and women in large numbers. In time we should see England again the type of hardy man and woman that the Scots used to breed (and perhaps still do)."

IODE Purchases Royal Tour Prints

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has purchased 34 two reel basic prints of the British film "The Royal Tour in South Africa" from the National Film Board, Ottawa.

Prints of this film will go out on the National Film Board's rural circuits across Canada with the regular films of educational and general interest which are shown once a month to people in the outlying and more isolated areas of the Dominion.

It is estimated that approximately 250,000 people will see the pictures of the Royal Family's visit and the beautiful scenes of South Africa.

In purchasing this film the IODE is making a contribution to the entertainment of fellow Canadians, as well as creating a greater interest in the Commonwealth and Empire.

As a further public service, after the film has been returned from the circuits the prints will be donated by the order to Community Film Libraries across the Dominion.

Czech Missionary's Talk Most Inspiring to WMS

"I was a solitary soul who has been set into the large family of the WMS where I am never alone," was Miss Louiza Mayowna's opening remark in her talk during the Presbyterial annual meeting at Mark St. United Church. "I feel as though the hand of God picked me out from somber Czechoslovakia eight years ago and brought me here to be a friend to the newcomer and the immigrant," she continued in somewhat difficult English.

Miss Mayowna is enjoying a furlough after working as deaconess among the new Canadians of the Porcupine mining district for eight years, under direction of the Dominion Board of the United Church of Canada. She had previously been a nursing sister with the Lutheran Church in Europe. On coming to Canada she set out to learn 10 words of English a day, "but they must have been technical terms," she laughs, "for I have heard none of them since." For a time she was stationed in Montreal to receive newcomers to the country but this service was gradually taken over by others.

"Every Christian is essentially a missionary, though many of them do not realize it," said Miss Mayowna. "We look too much at things that fret us to badly, instead of looking up to Him who has said He will keep us in perfect peace. We should feel very important in such work and seek the Source of the spirit which makes nothing too much for us. Whatever forces are martialled against us, we cannot live without God."

When sent to the northern district Miss Mayowna admits she really hated to go for she was used to large cities, but she likes the camp life where work challenges and manages beautifully in spite of the extremes. She felt like a pioneer learning to walk on snowshoes, but in summer she was rewarded with the blueberries, she said.

The new Canadians are far from their friends and glad of the help and friendship of the WMS activities. All the girls in the district belong to the CGIT. Nationalities represented are many including Ukrainian, Czech, Polish and Russian, and all are anxious to learn English languages and customs.

Teaches English

In addition to her other duties, Miss Mayowna has taught English three evenings a week. She says her charges are most eager to learn, "God Save the King," and then "O Canada" for they feel they should be able to join in the singing when among older Canadians.

Proof that the age of chivalry is not dead is found in the mining country where buses are filled with tired and hungry miners returning from a long day of hard work, but should a woman get on board, there are immediately three or four vacant seats for her to choose.

As deaconess, Miss Mayowna extended her services to 36 families near Moosonee who are absolutely isolated. In this settlement, which is the Abitibi power base, they have large fine homes, well furnished, and they burn the electric lights day and night. The river would be a fisherman's paradise if it could only be reached, she believes. Mothers fear only bears and the river for their children.

"Ministry to the new Canadians does not mean much until their friendship is gained," Miss Mayowna stated, explaining that her work consisted mostly of making calls on the large number of families in the section and stressing the spirit of friendliness and kindness. Her experience as a nursing sister helped a great deal in many instances. In one United Church at Timmins there are 17 nationalities attending, and this situation invites a great deal of tact on the part of a missionary.

"He has no other hand but ours, so this work is constructive and aims at the brotherhood of nations," she said in conclusion. "I could not have stayed out there for eight years without the friendly assurance of the WMS, where all are working together for good."

Guests were enjoying a cosy social hour in the tea room and respite from biting winds they had braved to come. Sootheran, president of the WA, was receiving.

St. Paul's Tea Wednesday Mid-Winter Social Event

Socialibility reigned in the tea room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Wednesday afternoon, as members of the WMS entertained. Guests were reluctant to leave the atmosphere of warm hospitality and companionship to face a chilly reception from out-of-doors.

A cloth of silken material sent from India, embroidered with silk thread in bright shades, graced the table. An antique silver candlebra in the centre had spreading arms which help pink and yellow tapers. On either side were low silver holders with jade green candles.

During the afternoon Mrs. Jas. Dutton, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. T. J. Carley and Miss Nina Davidson presided over the silver tea things set on large trays at each end of the table.

Mrs. D. T. Diplock, president of the WMS, was hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. G. Boyd. Serving refreshments were Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. H. Eastwood, Mrs. O. M. Steer, Mrs. J. Marsh, Mrs. A. F. McConkey and Mrs. N. S. Courtney.

Mrs. T. H. Taylor and Mrs. W. A. Burrell were co-conveners of the tea, and Mrs. W. Hinds was treasurer.

Human Cataloque Will Help Nations Seeking Immigrants

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

GENEVA, Jan. 29—(AP)—A human mail order catalogue is being prepared here by the resettlement department of the International Refugee Organization.

Faced with the difficult task of finding new homes for more than 40,000 displaced persons with technical training and skills, the department, under the direction of vivacious, dark-haired Anne Vermuelen of Antwery, Belgium, has begun compiling a list of individual refugees for cirulation to government and interested organizations.

The first instalment of the list, containing more than 120 names, will be sent out early this year. Other instalments will follow at intervals.

The list will provide complete information about each individual, his age, nationality, background, training, experience and other qualifications, as well as similar information about each member of his family.

Potential immigrant-receiving countries will be able to select persons from the catalogue to assist their economic, industrial or agricultural development, to extend their social or medical services, or to train their own technicians in a particular field. Individual displaced persons, however, will be free to accept or reject any offers.

A new registration of specialists among 1,00,000 displaced persons in Europe and Asia is being undertaken by the International Refugee Organization and is expected to uncover more than 40,000 technical and scientific workers eligible for inclusion in the catalogue.

To control the registration of experts, the I.R.O. has set up special boards of refugees in each camp to check claims and give some assurance that the qualifications specified in the catalogue are genuine.

Diverse Qualifications

The first edition of the catalogue runs from agronomist to X-ray technician. It includes physicians, dentists, surgeons, architects, chemists, dietitians, engineers, nurses and other professions.

Their nationalities are as diverse as their qualifications, including Poles, Estonians, Hungarians, Yugoslavs, Latvians, Czechs, Ukrainians and Lithuanians, and others described as "stateless."

The first instalment of the catalogue contains many cases such as that of Mrs. Olena Murachiwska, 47-year-old neuro-pathologist from Poland, who now lives with her 23-year-old daughter, a medical student, in an Austrian D.P. camp. Mrs. Murachikska, a widow, was born in Russia, but became a Polish citizen by marriage in 1928. Now she is classed as "stateless." She was a member of hospital staffs and in private practice for many years before the war.

Then there is 41-year-old Branco Milimesic, a civilian engineer from Yugoslavia, graduate of the University of Zagreb, specialist in soil amelioration, water works, muncipal planning, surveying and railroad construction. He worked on the Yugoslav state railways until 1945, when he fled to Italy where he now lives in a D.P. camp.

While names in the catalogue represent the best-trained and qualified group among displaced persons, they are the most difficult to resettle according to I.R.O. officials who claim that immigration missions, selecting displaced persons from the camps, tend to concentrate on unskilled and semi-skilled manual workers. As a result trained specialists have found their skills a handicap.

Elderly Men Regret Folly Of Divorcing Faithful Mates For Gold-Diggers

✧ ✧ ✧

A woman writes me that she and her husband have been married for thirty years and that their marriage has been unusually happy and congenial. He has been an ideal husband, domestic, home-loving, devoted to his wife, and she fairly worshipped him. He has been a good provider, she a notable housekeeper. They have had the same tastes and the same people. In addition, she has been a real helpmate to him, for when they were married they were a poor boy and girl and her industry and thrift have helped him build up his fortune.

DOROTHY DIX

In a word, theirs has been one of those congenial marriages that, according to the old saw, are made in Heaven. But, all of a sudden and without any previous warning, the snake has entered this earthly Paradise. After years of faithfulness the husband has turned into a philanderer and has fallen in love with a girl, who is young enough to be his daughter, and he is insisting on his wife giving him a divorce so that he can marry the little chit.

Happiness At Stake

Naturally the wife is bewildered and heart-broken over the affair, but she is big enough and unselfish enough to put her husband's interest before her own, and she says: "If I thought that marrying this young girl would make Jack happier, I would not hesitate to give him a divorce, but she is nothing but a pretty little gold-digger who wants the things that money buys and who has not a single thought or interest in common with him. I cannot think that the thrill of looking at a pretty young face can compensate for the years of companionship that we have had together; so I do not know whether I am right or wrong in refusing Jack a divorce."

Whether it is a wife's duty to protect her husband from making a marriage that will wreck the balance of his life is a problem that, of course, every individual must solve for herself. But certainly many a wife has saved her husband from practically committting hara-kiri by refusing to break up her home and half-orphan her children until her husband woke up from his pipe dream that some little bobby-soxer was loving him for himself alone, instead of the mink coat and pearl necklace that she could wheedle out of him.

Among the most pathetic sights at every night club are the tired, worn, elderly men, who sit forlorn and alone at tables, while their pretty young wives are dancing with boys of their own age. It does not take long for the little flare of spurious youth that comes to a man at middle age that makes him think he is a Glamour Boy, to die down. And when it does, if he has traded off the old wife, with whom he had everything in common, for a little flibbertigibbet, who only wanted his pocketbook, he is of all men the most miserable because he knows what a fool he has been.

I often think of a man who once said to me that whenever he saw a happy home, with an elderly married couple chumming together in a companionship that grew closer year by year, that he could hardly restrain his tears. For he, too, had once had a faithful and devoted old wife whom he had divorced for a young one whose only interest in him was as a bill-payer.

"We old men with young wives are the lonesomest people in the world," he said.

For Friday, January 30

The forecast of definite support of those in high places slyly moving into a picture of doubt, disruption and confusion, is more than likely to have hidden factors or peculiar slants of a most intriguing and indefinable nature. Secret agreements, subtle or intangible undercover understandings, may have far-reaching denouements, which may not in any case come into the open. While there is room for treachery or irregularity in such compacts. it is possible to make binding and safe agreements by alert and unemotional tactics, plainly documented for future safety.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which keen discernment, high probity and far-reaching plans for putting over ambitious programs are seen by a shrewd understanding of available assistance from influential sources whose cooperation is obtainable by tacit, rather than open agreements, or peculiar commitments rather than above-board contracts. The subtle, crafty, even illicit, might spell regrettable intrigue, or clever strategies could bear rich fruit of quite glamorous complexion. For surprising results tread lightly on dangerous grounds. Emotions should activate decisions.

A child born on this day, while ambitious and efficient, may be prone to resort to the subtle and strategic rather than logic or forthcoming righteous, in this manner securing aid from high places.

Wife or Pig Often Stake

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 29 (CP).—Native wives on the Pacific island of New Britain are getting worried.

Their husbands are becoming more and more addicted to a card game called "lucky" where a wife or pig is often the stake on the turn of a single card, according to an island missionary now on six months' furlough.

The missionary, Rev. R. S. Browne, said that the natives have developed a desire for all the benefits of western civilization and privileges without a corresponding sense of responsibility.

Mr. Browne escaped from New Britain during the Japanese occupation and went back to the island in September, 1945.

He told reporters on his return to Sydney that gambling and drinking and the sudden acquisition of new freedom among the natives are creating a disturbing situation.

Drink was introduced by the Japanese who encouraged the natives to take part in sake parties, and later the Allied soldiers taught them to gamble as well as drink.

Today they have too much money, a false sense of values, and refuse to work.

According to Mr. Browne, "lucky" is played by from two to six natives using a pack of cards and it is doubtful if any European could understand it.

RED AND YELLOW BEAU-CATCHER—A bright hat to set above your somber cold weather clothes, and one which will do equally well with the colorful light wools of sunny resorts, is this banana colored soft felt hat with the wide flat crown and upturned brim, the latter decorated with nosegays of scarlet geraniums. Bow knots of dark green velvet ribbon are set among the flowers, and the hat can be turned to more tailored drama by the addition of a masque of green veiling.

Old French Flag 'Mistake' Theriault Says

QUEBEC, Jan. 29.— (CP).— Hon. Elisee Theriault, member of Quebec's Legislative Council for 19 years, told the provincial upper House when it met Wednesday the province's new flag was an "unhappy choice and not opportune at all."

"I would like to see Quebec have a flag of its own just as long as it is a Canadian or a Quebec flag, but not an old French flag," said the councillor, who sits as an independent for Kennebec Division.

Premier Duplessis announced last Wednesday that by order-in-council the government had formally adopted the fleur-de-lis as the provincial flag. It has a white cross on a blue field with a fleur-de-lis in each corner.

Mr. Theriault, a Quebec lawyer, said he thought it would have been better for the government to have submitted its flag proposal to the provincial legislature or to a representative committee before its choice was made.

He suggested the provincial flag should display maple leaves, "which are truly Canadian," instead of "French fleur-de-lis, which have nothing to do with Canada or Quebec."

Mr. Theriault termed the government's choice a "wrong one" and "indelicate toward the minority of more than 300,000 English-speaking persons in the province."

Take Art Treasures

BERLIN, Jan. 29 — (AP). — Authoritative sources estimated yesterday the Russians took $20,000,000 in art treasures from Dresden's Zwinger Museum as war trophies.

FORT CHURCHILL C.O. — Major A. J. Tedlie, DSO, of Montreal, who has been named commandant at Fort Churchill with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, it was announced in Ottawa recently.

Divided Over Ruling Quebec Legislature

QUEBEC, Jan. 28—(CP). — A government measure to settle through an arbitration board the question of tramways fare increases in Montreal provoked in the Quebec Legislative Assembly yesterday long debate which wound up in a division over a ruling by the Speaker.

Premier Duplessis, who earlier had explained the bill to the Assembly, proposed then that an Opposition amendment, contending a fare increase would not be prevented and tramways problems would not be settled, be ruled out of order.

Liberal Leader Adelard Godbout appealed against a ruling by Speaker Alexandre Tache rejecting the amendment and the House divided. The Speaker's decision was upheld in the 46-30 vote in which independent members sided with the Liberals.

Gas Shortage Predicted For British Columbia

VANCOUVER, Jan. 29—(CP)— British Columbia faced the prospect of gasoline shortage today following announcement by Imperial Oil Company that imports of the motor fuel into the province would be halted on grounds a government-granted boost in retail prices was "not enough."

R. M. Pidgeon, company manager, said a three-cent-a-gallon boost allowed by the government, to go into effect today, was not sufficient to warrant continued importation of gasoline into British Columbia. Mr. Pidgeon said the government had been asked for a 4½ cents increase.

He added that company losses now were running "at the rate of approximately $2,000,000 a year" and the permitted boost would not relieve the company from its "losing position". New prices will be 32 cents a gallon for ordinary gasoline in Vancouver and 34 cents for premium grades.

Dealers said rationing of gasoline to consumers would be necessary if all oil companies were forced to allocate supplies. Last week an official of Shell Oil Co. said quantity of gasoline products to the BC market would be reduced unless price adjustments were made.

De Valera Wants Union

SLIGO, Eire, Jan. 29 — (AP). — Prime Minister Eamon de Valera said last night he will press for a union of Northern Ireland if his government wins next month's election.

CPC Employee Dies

TORONTO, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Herbert Charles, 58, eastern Canada sales manager for Canada Packers, Ltd., yesterday suffered a heart attack and died on a train near Woodstock while travelling here from Windsor. A resident of Toronto, he was born in Glasgow, Scotland.

Costs Delay Bridges

TORONTO, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Although more than 15,000 bridges on municipal roads in Ontario require replacement or major repairs, bridge construction is being held at a minimum by high construction costs and shortages of materials, an Ontario Highways Department survey showed yesterday.

NEW HOUSE OF COMMONS—A new British House of Commons rises on the site of the old House, which was destroyed by a direct hit during a German air raid on London in 1941. The steel structure is seen here through the gateway from New Palace Yard into Star Chamber Court, with Victoria Tower in the background. Some of the furnishings for the new Commons chamber will be donated by the Dominions, with a carved oak table being the gift from Canada.

Smooth-Talking Attaches Give Reporters Brush-Off

SHILO CAMP, Man., Jan. 29—(CP)—The seven military attaches who this week inspected this large artillery training centre—leaving today on their return flight to Ottawa—give newspaper men a lesson in how to be polite and reveal nothing.

The attaches were asked several questions concerning their missing Russian colleague, barred by the Canadian Government from making the trip because similar courtesies were denied Canadian attaches in Russia.

One of the questions was the following:

"Do you think Russia has the atomic bomb?"

The answers:

Major Chowsik-Nin, China: "It's hard to say."

Lt.-Col. Jaromir Petzold, Czechoslovakia: "How should I know? I'm stationed at Ottawa."

Capt. Jacques Herve, France: "I am not a Russian."

Lt.-Col Max Vaibel, Switzerland: "All I can say is we have no atomic bomb."

Staff Major Necmetin Erguven, Turkey: "Myself, I'm for democracy."

Lt.-Col. August Schomburg, United States: "I haven't been to Russia."

Lt.-Col. B. A. G. Jones, United Kingdom: "I'm an old-fashioned gentleman who prefers not to be quoted."

Husband Missing

HALIFAX, Jan. 29 — (CP). — A 21-year-old Scottish wife with her child of four months arrived here on the liner Aquitania more than two weeks ago and has since heard no word from her husband, whom she expected to meet on the dock, it was learned yesterday. The husband, Conrad William Mansfield, 23, also a native of Scotland, came to Canada under the Ontario government's new immigration scheme last October.

Britain Ready To Increase Cotton Exports

By The Canadian Press.

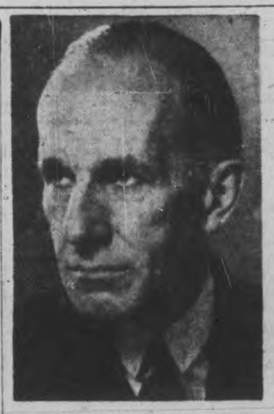
Half the Canadian dollars which Britain gets from export to Canada come from textiles, and this year she hopes to increase them substantially, particularly in cotton fabrics.

The Canadian textile industry itself supplies the greater part of the home market, in ordinary times from about 72 per cent in cottons to almost 100 per cent in some lines. The industry estimates that in normal times it can produce just about enough to meet Canadian needs, and at such times casts a questioning eye on outside competition.

Under present abnormal demand, howeevr, it is agreed that there is a market for imported goods.

Up to 1932 the United States was the chief source of the proportion of cottons imported, but under tariff provisions of that year Britain became the chief outside supplier. Due to the war Britain again fell off and last year the United States supplied nearly all the cotton fabrics imported.

Clearing Out.



Canada imports of chief textiles from the United States last year, not including raw materials, was more than $150,000,000. The Canadian industry felt that some of the high figures resulted from American producers clearing out inferior line of wartime production at low figures.

In any event imports from the United States will be cut about one-third by import restrictions alone, and, if Britain fulfils her hopes, they may be cut further through substitution of British goods.

Britain sold about $85,000,000 worth of textiles to Canada last year, chiefly cottons and woollens. Her woollen exports of more than 10,000,000 yards are about equal to pre-war. In cottons she hopes to raise last year's exports of some 10,000,000 yards to around 100,000,000 yards.

Mercy Trip Fails

VANCOUVER, Jan. 29 — (CP). — George Martin, 41-year-old logger, died in hospital early yesterday after a 200-mile mercy flight during which the plane pilot and a doctor administered blood plasma in an effort to save his life. Martin suffered fatal injuries when pinned by a falling log at a camp on Fraser Creek, Gilford Island in Queen Charlotte Strait.

HEADS NATIONAL GALLERY—Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, whose appointment as chairman of the board of trustees of the National Gallery of Canada was announced recently by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King. Mr. Massey succeeds Hanry S. Southam, who has been chairman since 1929.

Use Liquor Question In Huron Campaign

ELIMVILLE, Ont., Jan. 29—(CP)—For the first time in the provincial by-election campaign in this "dry" riding of Huron, the liquor question popped up yesterday.

Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, speaking here in support of candidate Benson Tuckey, was asked what attitude the Liberals took on the policing of Huron, where the Canada Temperance Act is in force.

Replying to the question from the audience, he said his party had objected to the manner in which Premier Drew's Progressive Conservative administration introduced cocktail lounges in Ontario. However, he said he would expect any attorney-general to enforce all the laws that apply in the Province of Ontario.

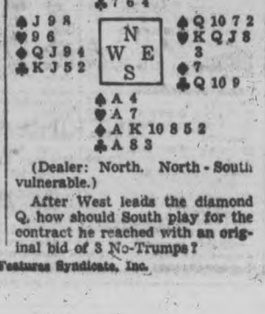
TAKE THE SURE LOSER

AS BETWEEN two ways to seek your contract, suppose one method necessitates trying something which defeats you if it doesn't work. And suppose the other involves the loss of no trick except one you are sure to lose anyway. Is there any argument between which is the better course to pursue? Apparently not, when stated that way. But how about recognizing that the difference between two optional methods may be classified so definitely? The player who tries to be extra rapid may not notice such fundamental considerations.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
6 ♠



It was a shame to see one of those showy-off fast players—albeit a fine chap otherwise—kick that nice slam contract into the bucket. Winning the club 2 lead with the K, he also scored the club Q, led to the spade A, discarded a heart on the club A and then finessed the diamond Q. As soon as West won it with the K, he laid down the heart A and set the contract.

Why in the world did South have to finesse the diamond? He had an absolutely sure way to make the contract, as illustrated by the able declarer at another table of the tournament, Mrs. J. H. Nevitt, of Toronto. She saw that all losers but one could be discarded without chancing any finesse whatsoever.

Mrs. Nevitt, upon winning the first club lead, put forth the heart 5. If West had ducked that, the K could have won and the other heart could have been thrown on the club A, leaving her no loser except one in diamonds. West, however, won with the heart A. Thereafter it was a cinch to discard two diamonds from the closed hand, one of them on the club A and one on the heart K. While you're about it, take a look at that East hand, a real "Yarborough" without any honor, not even a 10-spot.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. North - South vulnerable.)

After West leads the diamond Q, how should South play for the contract he reached with an original bid of 3 No-Trumps?

Springville Church Has Balance Of $1017

The meeting of the Springville congregation was held recently and was well attended. Reports of the various organizations of the church were very gratifying. For the missionary enterprises of the church amounts were contributed as follows: Sunday School, $40; Young People's Union, $20; Woman's Missionary Society, $167; Mission Band, $15; and by the congregation as a whole, $125; a total of $367 for missionary work. For local church purposes amounts raised were as follows: Sunday School, $100; Women's Association, $309; Young People's Union, $308; congregation as a whole, $1,685; net total for local purposes of $2,302. For miscellaneous purposes outside the community $85 was contributed.

For all purposes, by all the organizations of the church, there was raised a total of $2,754, an average of approximately $45 per family; and credit balances carried forward totalling $1,017, an average of $16 per family.

During the year decorations to the church edifice were completed costing above $1,000, and in June the centennial of the erection of the first church was commemorated. Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick is pastor.

Minister Gets Travelling Expenses

The annual meeting of the Fairmount congregation was held January 20, and reports were gratifying. For the missionary enterprises of the church contributions were as follows. By the Sunday School, $70; Woman's Missionary Society, $163; Mission Band, $27; and by the congregation as a whole, $195; a total for missions of $455. For local church purposes amounts contributed were as follows: Sunday School, $200; and by the congregation as a whole, $745; a total of $945. For various purposes outside the community $160 was contributed.

Thus for all purposes, by all organizations of the church, a total of $1,615 was raised, an average of approximately $47 per family; and credit balances were carried forward to about $650, an average of approximately $19 per family.

On Monday, January 26, the annual meeting of the official board of the charge was held, at which, in addition to routine business, on the recommendation of the two congregations, it was ordered that, in addition to the regular salary, transportation expenses of the minister be paid up to $200, and steps taken looking toward the equipment of a bathroom for the manse. Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick is pastor.

Woman, 30, Missing, Fake Detective Calls

WINDSOR, Jan. 29 (CP) — Police today began searching for Mrs. Edna Marquis Eberle, 30, missing from her home here since Tuesday.

Her mother, Mrs. Ethel Bosse, said she feared for her daughter's life because a man who said he was a detective called on her Wednesday to say he had received a telephone call from a woman announcing that Mrs. Erbele "was going to jump into the river."

Police denied knowledge of any such visit.

Mrs. Erbele, who lives with her husband at her mother's home, left home wearing a fur coat, black and white dress, galoshes and no hat. She is just over five feet tall with dark hair and brown eyes.

Mrs. Bosse said her daughter has been nervous and despondent since a recent illness.

Good Diversion

Gen. Maltby said he appreciates that the demands of Empire strategy made it impossible at the time for full provision to be made for the defence of Hong Kong and added:

"I submit that although I and my forces may have been a hostage to fortune, we were a detachment that deflected from more important objectives, such as the Philippines, Singapore or perhaps even Australia, an enemy force that consisted of two first line divisions, one reserve division, a corps of artillery, about 80 aircraft and a considerable naval blockade force.

"Strategically we gambled and lost but it was a worth-while gamble."

Maltby disclosed that British intelligence was inaccurate on the ability of the Japanese troops and said that British embassy cables from Tokyo "did not indicate immediate impending hostilities." The planned defence works were incomplete when the first blow was struck.

The first thin defence line was established on the "Gin Drinkers" Line on commanding ground some miles north of Kowloon, across Victoria harbor from the island. One of the first main bastions fell within an hour, however. Maltby moved over the Grenadiers to try to close the gap but the task was hopeless and the four battalions on the mainland were withdrawn to Hong Kong by the morning of Dec. 13.

Unsuccessful Move.

Hong Kong was under continuous artillery and air attack, and on the night of December 18 the enemy made simultaneous landings at two points on the north shore. A prompt counter-attack by one Canadian platoon on a captured hill near Sai Wan Bay on the north-east shore was unsuccessful. Another by two Canadian platoons two hours later also failed.

From then on the dispatch is a recital of forced withdrawals across the island.

"A" Company of the Winnipeg Grenadiers was at Little Hong Kong, a settlement near the strategic Wong Mei Gap, a mid-island break in the hills through which main roads run. Early on December 19 it was relieved by the Royal Navy men and moved off to strengthen a gap in the defences.

"No evidence has been obtained as to what happened to this company," Gen. Maltby said. "It is believed to have reached the Wong Mei Chong Gap at first light and to have been ambushed by superior Japanese forces, all the remaining personnel being captured."

Brigadier Lawson Killed.

About this time Brig. Lawson was killed near the gap. "In this area confused fighting was taking place, troops of various units participating as well as the Canadian Brigade Headquarters staff. Brig. J. K. Lawson (about 1000 hours, 10 a.m.) reported that the headquarters shelters were overrun, firing into them was actually taking place at point-blank range, and that he was going outside to fight it out after destroying the telephone exchanges, etc.

"He did so and I regret to say was killed, together with his brigade major.

Had To Withdraw

The Grenadiers' officer commanding was forced to withdraw from the Mount Nicholson area just northwest of the Wong Nei Chong gap to reorganize his shattered companies.

Next day, Dec. 2, the Winnipegs made another effort to recapture the Wong Nei Chong gap, but failed. Other Grenadiers pushed westward to Mount Nicholson where they were ordered to hold at all costs. The Royals, trying to force their way northeastward, made "a great effort in spite of handicaps," but gained little ground.

Within a matter of hours, the enemy managed to cut off some of the island's water supply and the situation was rapidly deteriorating. None of the troops had a worse time than the Canadians on Mount Cameron, who were being heavily dive-bombed and mortared.

"They had no tools with which to dig in (although the rocky ground made this in any case almost impossible); no three-inch mortars or bombs, there was no shelter and there was nothing to do except stick it out with small arms fire from behind rocks. . ." said Maltby.

"Morale now had been seriously impaired. . ."

Everywhere the situation was precarious. Water was cut off from Hong Kong's city of Victoria and he was informed that "the town now was helpless." Mount Cameron was lost. So was Stanley Mound, near the south shore, where the Royals suffered "heavy losses" and had to fall back.

Bitter Resistance

"The Canadians felt they could put up a better resistance on flatter ground and on a narrower front where communications would be simpler," Maltby wrote. "The loss of the tactically important high ground was fully realized and very regrettable."

A Dec. 24 defence meeting decided that there could be no talk of surrender, but next day the enemy was advancing rapidly everywhere with full control of the island's communications network.

"Further fighting meant a useless slaughter of the remainder of the garrison, risked severe retaliation on the large civilian population and could not affect the final outcome," Maltby said. The order to surrender was issued just after 3:15 p.m., Dec. 25.

On the basis of incomplete records, Gen. Maltby estimated that the defenders' losses were 1,045 killed, 1,068 missing and 2,300 wounded. The Japanese losses he estimated at 3,000 killed and 9,000 wounded. The Canadian losses he estimated at 90 dead, 409 missing and 244 wounded of a total strength of 2,017.

KITCHENER — A. H. Rowan of Toronto, member of the Ontario highway's department, said that 1947 accidents showed an increase of 30 per cent over 1946. However, he pointed out, the increase in deaths and injured passengers was only six and one half per cent above the year before.

WATERLOO—A Toronto Chinese learned why two fellow countrymen were so anxious to sell him their thriving laundry business here: The building had been condemned and they had been forced to vacate. Now, he can't get his money back. The pair are en ruote to China.

NIAGARA FALLS—Local volunteer fireman took a girl friend with him to a fire rather than desert her on their first date. Leaving her in his parked automobile, he shouted: "I'll be back in a few minutes." Six hours later she hired a taxi to take her home.

HMCS Cataraqui at Kingston, Ont., and HMCS Star at Hamilton recruited 109 and 104 per cent of their quotas repectively.

Rogow's New Store Ready To Go Friday

Ben Rogow is beaming like a basket of chips this morning over the great occasion of the opening of a new ladies' ready-to-wear store that he is opening in a new location a few doors south of his hold stand at the corner of Brock and George Sts. Ben was in his old stand for the past 30 years but he has been a first class tailor much longer than that.

He came from Russia in 1905 and settled in Toronto where he plied his Old Country trade in a cloak factory for five years. He then operated a factory of his own for the next ten and sold out before coming to Peterborough in the early 20's.

Ben built up a fine clientel of discriminating ladies who demanded the best in tailored suits and got it. It is due to their patronage that he is able to move to new premises that are as modern and tasteful as any ladies' ready-to-wear shop anywhere.

The showroom is 40 to 13 feet, well lighted by a full clear vision window and glass door. The birch plywood merchandise fixtures are arranged on either side of the room, well filled with the latest style of garments. The rubber tile flooring in a smart black and white design complement the attractive wallpaper. The ceiling is soundproof and the display room is lighted in its entire length by indirect fluorescent lighting. There are two spacious fitting rooms at the rear and a large shop where Ben will alter merchandise to his customer's satisfaction. Mrs. Rogow, who has been Ben's good right hand in business for many years, will move to her new place of business with son Joseph. The three of them will carry on the tradition of Rogow workmanship in a brand new setting with their combined years of experience behind them.

Had Rheumatic Pain So Bad Could Hardly Do My Work

"Thought For Sure I'd Have To Quit," Says This Well-known Bridgeport Farmer. Friend Advised Him To Try Syntona—Tells of Result

MR. MOSES HUNSBERGER

The great popularity of Syntona in this city and vicinity is by no means accidental, for this well-known Herbal Compound actually does give unusual results, as evidenced by the many hundreds of men and women who tell publicly of the prompt, effective relief they have obtained through taking a short treatment of Syntona.

Here, for example, is the experience of Mr. Moses Hunsberger, well-known Bridgeport, Ontario, farmer:

"I had suffered from rheumatic pains of two years standing. The pain in my back, limbs and joints was getting so severe at times that I could hardly do my work. I thought sure I would have to quit entirely. I felt lame and sore and my kidneys were acting too freely; especially at night. I often got dizzy spells and severe headaches.

"One day a friend advised me to try Syntona and even from the first bottle I felt an improvement. Now that I have been using this medicine for some time I am entirely free from the pains in my back, limbs and joints, the headaches and dizziness are cleared up and I am not disturbed at night as I was before."

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, helping to rid the system of excess acids and impurities and promoting better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy. It is pleasant to take and the results are quickly felt.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Find out how it can help you, too.—(Advt.)

Power Politics Charged To Labor Gov't

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Political observers say they believe the long-suffering Labor Party leadership soon will take some action against Konni Zilliacus, Labor member from Gateshead, who has scolded Prime Minister Attlee and Foreign Minister Bevin about Britain's overseas policies.

When Attlee broadcast criticism of Communist tactics, Zilliacus replied by likening his leader to a governess "rendered peevish by the naughtiness of the little ones confided to her care."

Zilliacus, who served the League of Nations secretariat for 18 years, is considered one of Labour's most Leftist members. He was involved in last year's "revolt" against Bevin's foreign policy, a party rising that brought from the Foreign Minister the roaring complaint that he had been "stabbed in the back."

Zilliacus, a studious, middle-aged man, will enter the coming controversy with support from his local party organization. The Gateshead Labor Party announced it had approved a resolution confirming support of the member.

Zilliacus strikes at the heart of labor's foreign policy in Commons speeches. He has accused the government of returning to power politics and assuming "traditional Tory concepts of what are our interests throughout the world." Russia, as much as the United States, should be considered a partner, and failure of British policies was a leading reason for failure to reach diplomatic agreements with Russia.

He termed Bevin's program an "ill-starred attempt to bash our way through with a Tory policy."

Raymond Blackburn, Labor, King's Morton, in a recent Commons debate, said the Gateshead member had visited Russia and Poland and represented himself as a friend "of what he calls Eastern democracy." Zilliacus had tried to suggest "that we in the Labor party believe in a concept of democracy which includes concentration camps and the terrors of whole parties of secret police which we fought against in the war."

British Hero, 27 Others Feared Lost

Plane 8 Hrs. Overdue At Bermuda, Search Under Way

LONDON, Jan. 30 — (AP). — Sir Arthur Coningham, British air hero of the Second World War, is believed to have been lost with 28 other persons today aboard a British commercial plane en route to Bermuda.

This afternoon this plane was eight hours overdue at the island outpost. British South American Airways said hopes for its safety looked black.

A dispatch from Bermuda said the plane was reported to have crashed 440 miles northeast of Bermuda and seven search planes were looking for the wreckage.

The plane, a British Tudor IV, left London Tuesday, stopping at Lisbon and the Azores. It was delayed at the Azores by "extremely severe weather," the airline announcement said.

Most of the passengers were British. The airline said there were at least 23 passengers and six crew members aboard.

Sir Arthur retired last November. He work with the British Eighth Army in North Africa and former the first tactical air force in French North Africa in 1943. He also took part in Italian operations. He was born in Brisbane, Australia, 53 years ago.

A spokesman for the B.S.A.A. said the plane was not full and some of the passengers might have got off when it stopped at Lisbon and the Azores on its westward passage.

The plane, registered as "G-AHNP," was last heard from when one and three-quarters hours short of Bermuda, the statement said. Everything was reported as "normal" at that time.

A B.S.A.A. spokesman said relatives of known passengers were being informed that the plane was overdue.

TOMMY, AGED THREE, DID IT — Three-year-old Tommy Connolly, son of a U.S. Navy officer, climbed into the family car in Los Angeles recently as it was parked in the driveway. Tommy turned on the ignition, stepped on the starter, plowed through the garage and smashed into the rear of another garage across the alley. Tommy was pulled out uninjured, but very, very scared.

Find 2 Planes Wrecked In Alps

FRANKFURT, Jan. 30.—(AP). —United States Air Force Headquarters reported today the sighting of plane wreckage in the lower French Alps, and said another plane, presumably a B-17 in the search party, had crashed 20 miles east of the wreckage.

The first plane was believed to be a DC-3 transport which disappeared Tuesday while en route from France to Italy. It carried three American women and five children, dependents of soldiers in the Trieste area.

The wreckage of this twin-engined craft was sighted 12 miles northwest of Digne, France, the air force headquarters at Wiesbaden reported.

One of the pilots in the search party said he had seen the second plane crash and explode. It appeared to him to be a Flying Fortress (B-17).

Searchers said there appeared to be no life about the wreckage of the DC-3.

Dr. Raymond Boyer Jailed For 2 Years

MONTREAL, Jan. 30—(CP).—Dr. Raymond Boyer, former McGill University professor, convicted of conspiring to violate the Official Secrets Act, today was sentenced to two years in penitentiary.

Sentence was handed out by Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure in the same courtroom where the tall scholarly professor and former explosive expert during wartime, was convicted.

In passing sentence, Mr. Justice Lazure said he was being lenient because Boyer gave his services generously and freely in wartime and in becoming implicated in the espionage operations had not been inspired by ambition or personal gain.

Dr. Boyer, who had a prominent part in the development of RDX, was named by the Royal Commission in March, 1946. Two trials on the conspiracy count followed. Illness of a juror necessitated discharge of the first jury and the start of a new trial.

Senator Fallis Demands Cut In Taxes

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.— (CP). — Senator Iva Fallis (PC, Ontario) suggested Thursday that Finance Minister Abbott might practice what he preached and stop taking all the tax money the traffic would bear.

While Mr. Abbott warned industry against exorbitant profits, she told the senate in the throne speech debate, he was rolling up a $750,000,000 surplus which would give the treasury "almost an embarrassment of riches.

Urgently, she asked the government to remove these taxes which bore most heavily on the cost of living that was getting beyond pensioners and others in the low-income groups. Income tax cuts would not accomplish this because they would not affect those people.

Senator Fallis said food was the war weapon in the fight for Europe. Its production was of importance to all who wanted to see democracy survive. Yet in Ontario at least the tendency was to grow less instead of more.

To meet this situation, producers must be assured of a stable market and adequate remuneration. A better understanding between consumers and producers was essential. Urban dwellers knew little of the cost of food production.

The chief difficulty in the feeling about high prices was that Canadians traditionally were used to cheap food. It had been made possible by overworked farmers.

War Changes

The war had completely changed that. The young men from the farms had vanished into the factories to work fewer hours for more money. The older men remaining must get enough money

Mercury Dips To 20 Below In Peterborough Area

The punster who greets you this morning with the old saw, "Cold?, what are you going to do when winter comes?" should be examined by a psychiatrist and put away before someone commits bodily harm. Winter is here and no fooling with the mercury squeezing down into the bulk at 28 below at Omemee. The mean low in Peterborough at sunrise was -20, and throughout the district temperatures were below the 20 mark north of the Lake Ontario height of land below Rice Lake.

The official weather man in Toronto says that a very cold Arctic air mass invaded the whole province with the exception of the Bruce and Niagara peninsulas where there was cloudiness and scattered snow flurries. Aside from the universal trouble of car motors seizing up and having service trucks and neighbors come the rescue, the only local tie-up was the Coyle bus service to Curve lake. With the steady north-west wind blowing Thursday afternoon, the highway at the north end of Smith township was plugged with drifts 10 to 12 feet high and neither the township plow nor Coyle's were available to dig out the mile of buried road. The afternoon trip was cancelled and at eight o'clock this morning the Smith plow was still inoperative due to the cold, but was set in running order well before noon. All towns, villages and hamlets situated in river valleys were heavily fogged, and this burned off with the sun by mid-morning.

Forecasters predict clear and cold for the day and we suspect they mean for the week-end as well.

Cobourg and Port Hope were in the "warm" belt with minus 16 and 15 respectively. Gore's Landing, Bewdley, Havelock and Peterborough showed minus 20, Campbellford 21, and Coldsprings and Roseneath -22, Bancroft was

2 Fliers Spend Night On Ice

OSHAWA, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Ontario provincial police said today that two Oshawa men, missing since they took off yesterday in a light plane on a fishing trip to Lake Simcoe, have been found on the lake's frozen surface.

The men—Merle Mackie, 35, and Harry Kift, 22—reached Lake Simcoe, 45 miles north of here, on schedule yesterday, landed safely and fished through the ice for some time. It was when they prepared to leave that they found the engine of their light aircraft was frozen.

Rather than battle a cold wind to reach shore and telephone to anxious relatives and friends, they chose to remain on the lake—in a small wooden shanty—overnight, police said.

Mackie and Kift were spotted from a search plane piloted by George Hurren of Oshawa, accompanied by Provincial Constable Gordon Keast of the Oshawa detachment.

The rescue craft, equipped with skis, landed on the lake ice and flew the two men—one at a time—to Duclos Point, where they prepared to return to Oshawa by automobile.

All Cars Derailed On Flyer, 25 Hurt

OMAHA, Jan. 30 — (AP). —All the cars and all but one of three power units of the 18-car City of San Francisco were derailed at Korty, Neb., at 12.30 a.m. today, a spokesman for the Union Pacific Railroad said here.

Twenty-five persons were taken to the Ogallala, Neb., hospital, for treatment, but a hospital spokesman said that apparently none of them are in critical condition.

The Union Pacific spokesman said five of the cars of the crack train were on their sides, cc leaning. A broken wheel on one car of the power unit was blamed for the derailment.

Any Americans fighting in Palestine will not be entitled to the protection of their government, since they will not be recognized as citizens.

Magistrate Has Intimated Writers To Stand Trial

EDMONTON, Jan. 30—(C P)—Committal for trial was intimated today by Magistrate Harold Hawe for two magazine men and a woman welfare worker on joint charges of conspiring to publish defamatory libel in an article entitled "Babies for Export" and dealing with Welfare administration in Alberta.

The intimation of committal came just before noon adjournment after defence counsel for Jack Kent Cooke, Harold Dingman and Dr. Charlotte Whitton had argued that the Crown had failed to establish a prima facie case. Defence counsel also expressed concern for freedom of the press if the case were sent to trial.

Magistrate Hawe made no definite committal but indicated that at the afternoon hearing he would order the trio to trial.

The adjournment was granted to permit arrangement of bail for the three accused until trial in the Alberta Supreme Court.

The defence started its argument after the crown brought its case to an abrupt end by announcing that it would not pursue its attempt to draw amplified replies from George Steer, one of defence counsel, who refused to elaborate on replies he gave previously about his knowledge of the manuscript for the article, which was critical of welfare administration.

Today's hearing resumed after crown counsel D. B. MacKenzie asked to call another witness, automatically interrupting the testimony of Mr. Steer.

The new witness was John McMahon, court reporter at the recent royal commission inquiry into Alberta welfare administration, a topic covered by Mr. Dingman in an article based on a report made by Dr. Whitton and published in last Dec. 27 issue of New Liberty.

Mr. McMahon read from his notes part of the testimony given by Dr. Whitton at the royal commission hearing.

Shut Schools, Theatres In Gas Crisis

Frost Finds Situation 'Very Acute' Due To Severe Cold

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—(CP). — Mines Minister Frost of Ontario announced today that all gas-heated schools and theatres in sections of south-western Ontario affected by a serious shortage of natural gas have been ordered closed "until the present crisis is over."

This latest move to meet an emergency created by severe cold weather was revealed by Mr. Frost in a prepared statement in which he said he had called a meeting of representatives of affected municipalities to inform them of "the exact situation."

The gas shortage has made some 25,000 workers idle, particularly in Windsor, where the jobless total has climbed to 22,000. Other cities hit by the shortage are Chatham, London and Sarnia.

"In the present crisis, the following additional action has been taken," Mr. Frost said:

"1. All gas-heated schools in the Union and Dominion areas are closed and will have to remain closed until th present crisis is over.

"2. All gas-heated theatres in both areas are closed.

"3. As stated, all industry with (certain) exceptions is off Dominion lines and a large amount of industry is off Union lines.

"4. It is not the intention to interfere with churches using gas, but it is confidently expected that all will co-operate in the conservation of gas."

Acute Situation

The mines minister said the gas situation is "acute indeed." The greatest assistance now could come from individual householders, to whom he appealed "to conserve even the smallest amount of gas."

"People are urgently asked not to use cooking appliances for house-heating and in the case of those who have space heaters, they are asked to confine the heating to as few rooms as possible and to as low a temperature as possible.

"These things are essential if the various systems involved are to come through this very acute crisis."

Mr. Frost said there were two causes for the shortage—the "acute" oil and gas shortage in the United States and the "unprecedented" cold wave which now has lasted for two weeks with "no real relief in sight."

5,000-Franc Notes Called In

PARIS, Jan. 30 — (AP). — The national assembly approved tonight a government measure to permit free trade in gold. It permits Frenchmen with hidden assets at home or abroad to declare them on paying a 25 per cent fine.

The action — its swiftness came as a surprise — followed earlier passage by both houses of France's legislature to a bill withdrawing all 5,000-franc notes from circulation.

The Finance Minister announced that everyone holding the 5,000-franc notes will be repaid. The operation was not "an expropriation." An official source had indicated yesterday that some of the bills might be confiscated as a blow at the black market if holders could not explain their possession.

Premier Robert Schuman's drastic money program cleared another hurdle when the council of the republic ratified by a vote of 167 to 126 the bill abolishing the 5,000-franc note as legal tender. Earlier the National Assembly approved the bill 308 to 288 after an all night debate.

About 66,000,000 of the 5,000-franc notes were in circulation, valued at $1,540,000,000 at the new rate of 214 francs to the dollar.

The Finance Ministry, which first announced the withdrawal plan yesterday, has instructed owners to turn in such notes at banks Monday. A decree that day will tell how small holders will be repaid. Another Feb. 5 will apply to large holders.

Hindu Being Held By Police As Mahatma's Assailant, Reported As Political Slaying

Only Bitter Sorrow Gandhi's Reward For His Fight

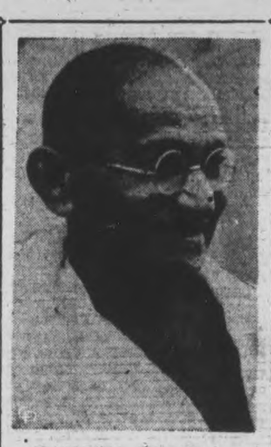
By The Associated Press.

The frail and emaciated Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi led India's 400,000,000 people to his cherished goal of freedom from British Crown rule, but the reward he received was bitter sorrow and disappointment. For the cause he had endured prisons and fasts. His favorite weapons for rousing the masses were civil disobedience campaigns and hunger strikes.

On his 78th birthday in 1947, the year of attainment of Indian Dominion status, Gandhi said he had almost lost all desire to live longer because "what is the use of living when hatred and killing have marred the atmosphere?"

Yet the world saw the unpretentious figure, clad in white loin cloth, shawl and sandals, as that of one of the great men of his time. No mogul or emperor ever had more power in India than Gandhi, who, without rank or post, played on the heart-strings of a people to win their leadership. In prison or out he was the country's most potent figure for more than a quarter century.

Had Detractors, Too.



His fellow-Hindus regarded him as a saint on earth. He once had to act swiftly and strongly to stop a section of them from adding his image to their long list of gods and worshipping idols.

But he was not without detractors. In 1942 Gandhi was denounced as an "arch saboteur" by L. S. Amery, British secretary of state for India, because of his civil disobedience campaign launched while Japanese invasion forces stood at the threshold in Burma during World War II. Winston Churchill strongly opposed independence for India, forecasting "blood and misery."

Even in India Gandhi had his foes. More than once stones were cast at him by Indians who were rebellious against his teachings that only through love and nonviolence could any lasting victory

GANDHI KILLED — An assassin shot Mohandas K. Gandhi at a prayer meeting and he died a short time later. The killer was described as a Hindu.

3 Slugs Enter Gandhi's Body At Close Range

NEW DELHI, Jan. 30—(CP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi was shot to death today by one of the Hindus he led to independence.

The frail and wizened little political and spiritual leader was the target of three bullets fired at close range at his prayer meeting on the lawn of the sumptuous Birla Mansion, the estate of an Indian industrialist who long had supported Gandhi. He was 78.

Police arrested the assassin immediately. They said he was Nathuram Vinayak Gode, 36-year-old Martha Hindu. Gode is known as an extreme advocate of communalism who speaks English well.

An eye-witness of the assassination gave this account of the slaying:

"There were about 500 people waiting for the Mahatma to begin prayers.

"Gandhi walked from Birla house to the little wooden platform from which he speaks, supporting himself with his hands on the shoulders of his granddaughters.

"As he approached the crowd broke into two parts leaving a lane for the Mahatma to pass.

"A young man, probably between 30 and 35, dressed in khaki tunic fired four shots from the hip. It all took place so suddenly that no one realized what had happened.

"Blood showed on Gandhi's white cotton dhoti from the neck to the abdomen.

"Women devotees collapsed or tried to shield Gandhi in their arms.

"Members of the crowd overpowered the assailant and held him for a few seconds until the police took charge."

In Mourning.

Every shop in the old city put up shutters when the news of Gandhi's death started circulating.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Indian Prime Minister, and other Cabinet members were immediately informed.

Viscount M batten, Governor-General o India, was first informed by a Government House

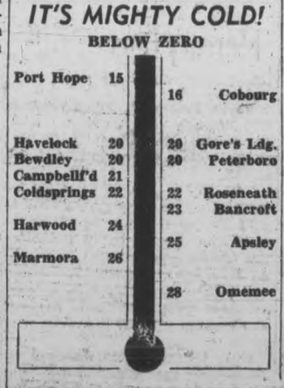
Attlee Plans Indian Appeal

LONDON, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Prime Minister Attlee is expected to appeal tonight to India and Pakistan to bury their differences in the crisis caused by the assassination of Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Attlee will broadcast a tribute to Gandhi on behalf of the British government and people shortly after the 4 p.m. EST news period.

A government official said almost anything might happen in India because of the shooting. The official said authorities there would have to move fast to keep the situation in hand.

"Thank God the assassin was not a Moslem, or all hell certainly would break loose," he said.



Indians and Britons alike in England were shocked. Moslems, as well as Hindus, paid tribute.

Habib Ibrahim Rahimtolla, Moslem high commissioner in London for the Pakistan government, called personally on Krishna Menon, Indian high commissioner, "to give him my personal condolences."

Gandhi's portrait was hung in the domed library of India House. The 400 staff workers there stopped work until Monday.

18 Die In Ship Blast

PARIS, Jan. 30 —(Reuters)—Twelve survivors of the Panamanian tanker Panchito, which had earlier been described as a Canadian vessel, arrived at Lorient, southern French port, today on board the French fishing vessel Robert-Marie. The survivors, including one Canadian, told port authorities that 18 of their comrades were killed by an explosion or drowned in heavy seas off Lorient last night, as the Panchito was steaming towards Antwerp from Spain with a cargo of minerals.

USSR Charges US Warships Violate Italian Treaty

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(AP). — Moscow radio said today that Russia has formally charged the United States with violating the Italian peace treaty by sending American warships in Italian ports.

The broadcast said Alexander S. Panyushkin, Soviet ambassador in Washington, had sent a protest note to State Secretary Marshall Wednesday.

The radio said the Soviet Union also sent the note to the French government "with a request to make its contents known to the Allied and associated powers which had signed the peace treaty with Italy."

It was the second such protest this week. Yesterday Russia complained to the United States and Britain over the proposed re-opening of Mellaha air base in North Africa. This protest also charged violation of the Italian treaty.

The broadcast said Russia contended American warships are visiting Italian ports to support the government of Premier Alcide De Gasperi. The government has been under fire from Italian Communists for some time.

The announcer said the visits constituted a breach of the treaty, which provided for withdrawal from Italy by Dec. 15, 1947, of all armed forces of the Allied powers.

(The treaty says "all armed forces of the Allied and associated powers shall be withdrawn from Italy . . . not later than 90 days from the coming into force of the present treaty." The pact went into effect Sept. 15.)

The broadcast added, "the stay of these ships in Italian ports is also said tod be connected with sending units of American marines to the Mediterranean."

Goes To Refuge For Two Years

KITCHENER, Jan 30—(CP)—Eleanor Springer, 18, who escaped unharmed after being held prisoner for several hours last Dec. 28 by a man who murdered four relatives and committed suicide, was convicted today of being an incorigible and was sentenced to an indefinite term of two years in the Good Shepherd Industrial Refuge, Toronto.

The girl was convicted under provisions of the Female Refugees Act. She appeared in court with her father but did not testify.

Evidence at an earlier hearing was that the girl left school after completing grade five, visited beverage rooms frequently and lived an "irregular" life with no apparent spiritual or moral guidance.

Bandits Enter Bank Find Police Waiting

NAVAN, Ont., Jan. 30.—(CP). —Ontario provincial police, lying in wait in the Royal Bank of Canada here early today, arrested two men as they kicked down the glass front door and entered the bank with acetylene cutting torches, hacksaws and other tools. Navan is 20 miles east of Ottawa.

Gerard Sabourin, 28, and Albert Guay, 40, both of Hammond, Ont., were later charged at Ottawa with attempted robbery. They will appear before a justice of the peace today and will be taken to L'Orignal, Ont., to stand trial later this week.

Job Chances Better During 1948

Labor Department Enthusiastic About Good Prospects

OTTAWA, Jan. 30 —(CP)—The Canadian worker has bright prospects of a job through 1948.

That's the word today from the labor department, which finds current employment better than a year ago and prospects for the year at least as good as 1947.

In releasing its monthly manpower survey last night, the department also reported on its first survey of comparative unemployment — a means of measuring relative light and dark spots in the employment picture—and it found the darkest were two industrial areas in Nova Scotia.

These were the steel city of Sydney with the adjacent coal towns of Cape Breton Island, which at Nov. 27 had 158 unemployed per 1,000 in the labor force, and the Pictou County industrial towns of New Glasgow and Pictou, where the joint rating was 117. Hull, Que., was third with 108.

Prosperity as measured by lack of unemployment was most evident in the neighboring Ontario communities of Kitchener and Waterloo, which between them had only four persons out of work per 1,000 in the labor force. Sault Ste. Marie was in the next-best spot with 14, while in Sudbury and Peterborough it was 18.

For all Canada the average was 36 at the date the situation was surveyed.

Of the unemployment picture generally, Labor Minister Mitchell commented in the report that the seasonal winter reduction in employment has not been as severe this year as a year ago. The 166,000 jobless registered with national employment service represents a decrease of 10 per cent from the same time last year.

However, it is up 31,000 from Dec. 18, as the result of seasonal declines. Jobs open at Jan. 15 —the date of the manpower survey—stood at 36,000, compared with 44,000 a month before. However, there remained a steady demand for skilled tradesmen.

Committee Cancels Hockey At Olympics

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 30 —(CP)— The International Olympic Committee announced tonight that ice hockey has been cancelled from the fifth winter games which got under way today, beneath a cloud created by the hockey controversy involving rival factions from the United States.

The source said he had received the threat "informally" and commented:

"There will be hockey tomorrow. Let us see what the IOC will do."

The disclosure came shortly after the United States Amateur Hockey Association team, which has been involved in a bitter controversy with the U.S. Olympic Committee, bowed to Switzerland in the first hockey match, 5-4.

to buy modrn machinery and to attract help if a scarcity of food was not to develop.

On the other hand, low income urban workers felt a resentment against the producer whom they felt was taking advantage of the current food shortage. The public should be informed of the costs of production of basic foods.

Tens of thousands of Canadians were having a difficult time in trying to live on their pensions or other low incomes. They should get first consideration by the government.

Needs Woman's Touch

Senator Fallis suggested it was high time there was a woman in the cabinet when a group of men could decide that electrical appliances were non-essential and therefore should be subject to the recent emergncy 25 per cent excise tax. This was "the most indefensible tax on any article" she had heard of, and bore particularly heavily on newlyweds.

The Senate, before adjourning until Tuesday night, gave final approval to a bill allowing the Bell Telephone Company of Canada to increase its capital stock from $150,000,000 to $500,000,000. The bill now goes to the Commons.

Thorough committee study of another bill was asked by Senators Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) and J. A. Leger (PC—New Brunswick) after Senator Peter Campbell (L—Ontario) explained its purpose. It would open the way for a 21-year renewal of an agreement under which the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company rents running rights from the Canadian National Railways on 6½ miles of line between Port Colborne and Welland, Ont.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Ontario centres, engulfed in a cold air mass which swept down from the Arctic, today recorded the lowest temperatures in years. At Kitchener, the mercury dropped to 20 degrees blow zero, lowest since 1934. A 20-below reading at Kingston was the lowest in five years.

Galt thermometers dropped to 14 below, the lowest point this winter. Toronto matched its winter record of 12 below, established Jan. 23. Toronto's all-time low of 23 below was recorded Jan. 10, 1859, when official thermometers skidded to 26 degrees below zero.

Other Ontario points recorded far-below-zero temperatures. White River, consistently the coldest spot in the province, lived up to its reputation at 43 below.

Western Ontario, suffering the coldest weather in years, had no promise of any immediate relief which would ease the natural gas shortage, a shortage that has resulted in curtailment of supply to industries forcing the lay-off of thousands of workers at Windsor, with smaller lay-offs elsewhere. More than 22,000 workers were idle at Windsor alone.

Most sections of the province had crisp, bright cold today, but scattered snowflurries were expected in the Bruce Peninsula and in the Niagara belt. Godrich, Owen Sound, Wiarton and Tobermory sections were deeply drifted. Rail and highway snow plow crews were working on various drifts as far as North Bay.

Roy Piett of Houghton in Norfolk County died from a sudden heart attack suffered while shovelling his car out of a drift.

Canadians Win First 3-1 In Olympic Series

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Canada's hockey team, given little chance in the Olympic hockey tournament against such teams as Czechoslovakia and Switzerland, sprang a surprise today in the opening round by coming from behind to defeat the strong Swedish team 3-1.

Sweden scored first at 2.35 of the first period, but George Mara tied the count for the R.C.A.F. Flyers at 4.35 of the same period.

Then Wally Halder, one of the stars of the Canadian team, scored what proved to be the winning goal early in the second period.

In the third period the underrated Canadian team added a superfluous goal when Reg Schroeter counted just 35 seconds after the session started.

Only two penalties were handed out in the first two periods, but in the third tempers flared and a Swedish player, Nurnala, drew two penalties—a minor and a misconduct.

Canadian players penalized were Ab Renaud, Andre Laperrierre, Frank Dunster and goaltender Murray Dowey.

driver who heard the news on the radio.

Sobbing bitterly, Gandhi's personal secretary, S. Kalyanam, told the Associated Press:

"Bapu is dead."

Bapu is the affectionate name for Gandhi, meaning father. To millions of his followers, he was known as Mahatma, or great-souled one. His full name was Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi.

Bystanders said Gandhi slumped forward as the third shot rang out. He seemed unconscious as he was carried to his quarters in Birla House. The secretary said death followed within a half-hour.

A crowd of several hundred persons formed about Birla House, many of them weeping.

Achieved Main Goal.

Death came less than a year after he achieved his life's main goal of independence for the teeming sub-continent of India. Paradoxically, however, Gandhi considered his triumph a failure because India and her 400,000,000 people were divided into separate Dominions of India (Hindu) and Pakistan (Moslem). The partition resulted in bloody, destructive communal warfare between Moslems on one side and Hindus and Sikhs on the other.

It was in an effort to end the bloodshed that Gandhi undertook this month the last of his many fasts. After five days in which he threatened to starve himself to death, Gandhi broke his fast on January 18 on the "pledge and counsel" of friends in both Dominions.

They had assured him of "complete unbroken friendship" between all communities.

Shortly after the fast, a bomb exploded near a prayer meeting, also in the Birla mansion estate, but did no harm. A Hindu was arrested.

Some Hindus, their women violated in the communal upheavals, had resented Gandhi's pleas for peace with the Moslems.

Gandhi said when he ended his last fast that fulfilment of the pledge for peace would double "my intense wish to live a full span of life doing service to humanity . . . at least 125 years or, as some say, 133 years."

Set Up Committee.

The communal leaders in New Delhi adopted Gandhi's program and set up a committee of 150 of all religions to meet nightly and review the progress toward Gandhi's aims.

An associate said Gandhi had intended to go to Pakistan and attempt to apply his principle of "truth and non-violence" in India's sister Dominion.

The two dominions, created last Aug. 15, have been rent by communal rioting fatal to many thousands and have been at swords' points over the state of Kashmir, which, although predominantly Moslem, was acceded by its Hindu Maharajah to India.

Gandhi had laid down a seven-point program as a formula for peace in India — his terms for sparing his own life through ending his fast.

Wanted Fraternization

He required that Hindus should fraternize with Moslems on the next Mohammedan festival, as in the old days. He asked that mosques which had been converted into Hindu temples or dwelling places be returned to their original uses.

He recommended that Moslems be made to feel as safe as they had before India's bloody riots; that those Moslems who fled to Pakistan be invited to return; that Moslems be guaranteed safety aboard trains. He asked that social boycotts of Moslems be abandoned, and that Moslems be given the right to live wherever they chose.

Widespread looting, arson and stabbings started in Bombay tonight two hours after news spread of the Gandhi assassination.

Police fired many times into Hindu and Moslem rioters in the Null bazaar in central Bombay.

Reeve W. W. Dawson, Otonabee, was elected president of the Peterborough County Federation of Agriculture when the federation met for the annual meeting at the Department of Agriculture offices, Thursday night.

The following were also elected to office for 1948: 1st vice president, N. W. McConkey, who is also president of the Holstein Association; 2nd vice, Dave McIntyre; sec.-treasurer, John Kitney, and county director, Lorne Reynolds. The executive directors elected were: Allan Drummond, Henry Sharp, M. Clark, Mrs. Roland Scott, Mrs. H. McFarlane and Alec Huston.

N. W. McConkey moved that the retiring president Lorne Reynolds should again take office for the next year, as he had done such an excellent job for the association during his term of office. Mr. Reynolds declined as so much of his time was taken up on the executive and as he was county director. He felt that he could not attend all the meetings he would wish to as federation work often took him out of the city.

W. W. Dawson who was elected representative for the Peterborough County to attend the 11th annual Ontario Federation of Agriculture held in Toronto on January 7, 8 and 9 gave his report. He said that the most outstanding feature of the meeting was the keen enthusiasm and deep interest taken by everyone in all the debating that took place. "Each day the room was filled to capacity and the harmony and willingness to work together, showed that all present would go all out to further the interests of agriculture, he said. In quoting from general report of the session, he read that the total income of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture for 1947 was $38,774.18, which included $24,326.02 contributed by the county. $8,332.80 by other members organizations and other miscellaneous contribtions amounting to $6,115.37.

The total disbursements for 1947 were $40,064.87.

Lorne Reynolds who had represented the Peterborough zone at the Ontario Executive of the Federation of Agriculture at Brockville on January 26, 27 and 28, said this was the 12th annual convention of the federation. He spoke in praise of the enthusiasm expressed by everyone in the matter of working together in the interests of agriculture.

Halt GM Using Own Insurance

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP).—General Motors Corp. was restrained yesterday by Federal Court order from putting into effect its own employee insurance plan next Sunday with respect to 175,000 workers represented by the United Auto Workers (CIO).

Judge John Bright issued the order on application of Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, who said the company had failed to bargain on the insurance program with the U.A.W.

Denham argued this failure constituted an unfair labor practice on the part of G.M. under the Taft-Hartley Act. It was the first such action against an employer under the Act.

In Detroit, G.M. suspended the plan as it applies to the 175,000 workers but announced that non-union employees or those represented by other than the U.A.W. would be covered as planned after Sunday.

In a statement, the company said it "sincerely regrets that at least temporarily the General Motors employees represented by the U.A.W.-C.I.O. will be denied the improved insurance which was to be effective for them as well as for all other General Motors employees on Feb. 1, and for which so many of them signed up during the last few weeks."

SCOTLAND YARD WOULD LIKE TO KNOW — Thousands of dollars worth of gems, watches, furs, carpets and other looted valuable recovered in recent raids in London, were displayed by Scotland Yard in a special show for insurance company representatives and assessors. It was hoped they would be able to identify some of the stolen goods and aid the Yard in disposing of them. Here two insurance men inspect some of the jewelry.

Jasper Forman Heads Red Cross

LINDSAY, Jan. 30 —(ENS)—Jasper Forman of Lindsay was appointed president of the Lindsay and Victoria branch of the Canadian Red Cross at its annual meeting here Thursday night. He succeeds Mr. D. McQuarrie, who has served as president of the local branch for the past seven and a half years. Mr. Forman, one time member of the provincial executive of the Red Cross, was branch president here prior to his service in the second war.

Mr. W. R. McAdam, supt. of the water safety program for the Red Cross Ontario Division and guest speaker for the evening said the average number of deaths by drowning in Canada is 1,000 each year. Up to 1947, 300 drownings occurred annually in Ontario, but last year the total decreased considerably, Mr. McAdam attributed part of this decrease to the Red Cross swimming instruction program.

"Some persons do not realize the importance of Red Cross work in peace time," he said. "But if we do a fraction of the work that was done in war years we will accomplish much". He said the Ontario Division may establish a training camp for swimming instructors in the Lindsay area next summer. "We have had amazingly few drownings here although swimming facilities are very poor, he stated Mr. McQuarrie. "However, present intentions are to build a public swimming pool in the near future".

Save 18 Patients In Hospital Fire

GRIMSBY, Jan. 30.—(CP). — All of the 18 patients—12 adults and six babies — were rescued when fire destroyed the West Lincoln Memorial Hospital here yesterday with a loss of $100,000.

Official investigation was scheduled to start today into the blaze, believed to have broken out near a chimney in the institution which stood a few miles south of this town, lying halfway between Hamilton and St. Catharines in the heart of the Niagara fruit-growing district.

Publisher James O. (Bones) Livingstone of the Grimsby Weekly Independent, helped spread the alarm after Miss Douglas MacRobbie told him she felt the building must be evacuated. At the first alarms it had been felt fire extinguishers might do the job. Phone calls by the newspaper man sent trucks and helpers to the rambling structure, which had been donated to the town some years ago by C. J. Eames, Hamilton merchant.

Nurses, residents of the town and passing motorists helped bundle patients in blankets and carried or assisted them to safety.

Low water pressure and an inadequate water supply handicapped firemen as they tried to check the flames which spread swiftly through the two-storey stone-and-frame building, a former golf club converted into a hospital two years ago this month.

Staff members managed to save much of the X-ray equipment.

The rescued persons included twins born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vanecke of nearby Beamsville. The babies, a boy and a girl, were rescued separately.

Salvation Army Band Visits Brockville

Twenty-three members of the Salvation Army Peterborough Boys' Band were given a welcome reception in Brockville last Saturday and Sunday where they were entertained during their first evening at a supper at the citadel. His Worship Mayor Fred Reynolds and Mrs. Reynolds and Rev. and Mrs. Gordon M. Holmes were special guests.

Following supper, the young guests participated in a program in the First Baptist Church and ably rendered several selections. In addition there were Scripture readings, prayers and choruses.

Major C. Watt, corp officer, Lieut. S. Williams and Bandmaster Arthur Shadgett were the officials in charge of the boys. The Sunday program started with a broadcast at the local radio station in company with local Salvation Army singers. They took part in three services at the citadel throughout the day, and an after-church program in a theatre during which a tribute of silence was paid to two ex-aldermen, Rev. Norman A. McLeod and J. Ephraim Burns, both of whom passed away over the week-end.

370 New Phones In Lindsay Area

LINDSAY, Jan. 30 (ENS). — Telephones served through the Lindsay and surrounding exchanges increased last year by 370 to an all-time high of 4,000, J. E. A. MacDonald, Bell Telephone manager here, said to-day.

Mr. MacDonald said last year's progress was due to faster installation work that resulted from improved deliveries of manufactured materials. But there are still about 200 unfilled orders from this region on the company's waiting list.

Records show over 1,500 more telephones were in service throughout Lindsay and the surrounding district last year than was the case ten years ago. Lindsay exchange alone added 1,159 telephones in the period 1937 to 1947, while the increase last year accounted for an additional 207 telephones in operation in the town.

Bevin's fear of Soviet ambitions in the Middle East would supersede the problem of Palestine, say British government sources. Other Arab leaders to meet with the foreign secretary were, Dr. Fawzi Mulki, Transjordan foreign minister and Brigadier J. B. Glubb Pasha, commandant of the Arab legion.

Lorne Blodgett, council lecturer, was chaairman. The guest speaker, J. Maurice King, of Stratford, district deputy for Ontario, was introduced by Ernie Wolff, district deputy, Peterborough.

Mr. King spoke of the growing membership of the Knights of Columbus in Ontario, with 60 Ontario councils and a total membership of 14,000. He referred to the K. of C. work along the lines o feducattion, social justice, immigration and higher and better citizenship.

"Dynamic forces," declared the speaker, "linked with irreligion, unbelief and atheism in the world, are not standing by waiting for action, but are right into action. We of the Knigts of Columbus, on the side of Christian belief and ideals, must be ready for that conflict."

Contributing to the musical part of the program were Gordon Fielding and Mrs. Theresa Kelly, of Cobourg, and Mrs. Josephine Lesage of Port Hope. Accompanists were Mrs. Jeannette McGillis and Jack Kewin. Joseph Delanty was song leader. Grand Knights present were J. T. Butler of Cobourg, Harry McGuire of Oshawa and George Hodson of Lindsay.

Libel Laws, Price Ceilings Discussed By Parliament

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Jan. 30 — (CP). — A wide variety of suggestions were placed before the government in the Commons yesterday as members concluded a two-day debate of the throne speech and prepared to return today to discussion of the American dollar conservation measures.

In the debate, which permits members to advance their theories and views on practically any subject, the speakers suggested, among other things, that:

1. Parliament ensure that never again should a publisher or an author be tried for libel other than in the province of publication.

2. Price ceilings and subsidies be restored to bring down living costs.

3. A free vote to be held in the Commons on price controls to obtain a true picture of members feelings on the matter.

4. A special parliamentary committee be established to study ramifications of the projected St. Lawrence waterways scheme.

5. Prime Minister Mackenzie King be appointed as Canada's first Canadian Governor-General once he retires from political life.

6. Income tax be abolished on all incomes below $3,000 a year and generous pensions be paid the aged and disabled.

7. A worker's contributions to unemployment insurance be discontinued after he had paid enough to entitle him to insurance payments when laid off.

8. Amendment of one professional loans act to allow poultry farmers to borrow money for their business.

Libel Question

John Diefenbaker, colorful criminal lawyer from the Saskatchewan constituency of Lake Centre, raised the libel question. He referred to the case now proceeding before an Edmonton court in which Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto, publisher of New Liberty Magazine, and Harold Dingman, the publication's Ottawa correspondent, are undergoing preliminary hearing on charges of conspiracy to publish a defamatory libel.

Parliament, said the outspoken Progressive Conservative member, had a responsibility now to ensure that never against should a publisher or an author be "drawn from one end of the country" to the other to face such a charge as in the New Liberty case. The principle that had stood the test for 60 years was that an editor could be tried for libel only in the province of publication.

In the Commons Mrs. Gladys Strum joined with her C.C.F. colleagues in urging the re-imposition of price ceilings and subsidies to bring down living costs. She said there was no doubt that the Canadian people wanted a return to price controls.

Mr. Zaplitny urged the government hold a free vote in the Commons on the question so that members could express their proper views on the matter. Many members favored a return to controls but would vote with the government simply to sustain it if its retention of office depended on the outcome of the vote.

John R. MacNicol made the suggestion that a special committee be appointed to study the St. Lawrence Seaways question. Nothing that the plan now was before the United States Senate, he said that, if passed by Congress, the project might be "pitchforked" into the Canadian parliament any day.

Wants Tax Cut

Real Caouette made the request for abolition of income tax on all incomes below $3,000 a year. He asked as well for a $60 a month pension for all over 60 and for disabled persons 21 and over.

Benoit Michaud said that with the government heading for a huge surplus this year income tax exemptions should be raised from $1,500 to $2,000 at least for married persons.

Col. Miller advocated the changes in unemployment insurance. He said that at present a worker paid a certain number of contributions to the insurance fund and if laid off subsequently was entitled to insurance. He felt the payments should be discontinued at the point where the worker was entitled to collect and not resumed until the worker had withdrawn something from the fund.

What Are They Paying For?

The evils of government by Order in Council are many, and our readers are thoroughly familiar with them. They may be interested, however, to have a recent instance of the stupidity of this sort of law-making brought to their attention. An Order in Council was given in December which constituted an amendment of the Unemployment Insurance Act, raising the wage ceiling for insured employees from $2400 to $3120 a year; as everyone knows, certain employees may be exempted from unemployment insurance if they so desire; but a new regulation, contained in Unemployment Insurance Commission Bulletin No. 5 reads thus:

> The holder of a certificate of exemption is not insured, but his employer is required to contribute on his behalf at the rate of 24c a week, or 4c a day.

Why should this be? Is there any explanation for it? What happens to the money contributed in this way? The employee cannot benefit from it and the employer cannot reclaim it; why is such a charge made? Is there some legitimate reason for such a charge, or is it just a bit of Government squeeze?

* * *

If this amendment had been made by Parliament it would not be necessary to ask these questions or to make disagreeable insinuations. The matter of this 4c a day charge would have been challenged, and an explanation would have been forthcoming or the clause would have been altered. But as the regulation has been made law by Order In Council there has been no public discussion of the measure, and unless a hullabaloo is created by the newspapers there will never be any explanation of it. It is possible that there is some reason for this measure, though a charge from which nobody can benefit except the government is a very curious one. But as the reason has not been made public a great many people are going to look upon it as an instance of bureaucratic rapacity.

* * *

Unemployment Insurance lends itself to governmental shystering. Before the war the regulations governing unemployment insurance in Britain contained a curious clause to the effect that no one could claim unemployment benefit as long as he had a relative who was capable of standing the charges of his maintenance. This made the insurance worthless to thousands of young people who were earning low wages but whose families had a little money. They paid, but they paid for benefits which they could never claim. Similarly in Canada, under this new regulation, employers will pay for a benefit which their employees will not be able to claim. What is the sense of it? Are the employers of Canada going to put up with it? And why was a patently unjust provision made by an Order in Council, which is the least democratic instrument of government which our parliamenary system affords?

Something To Look At In Peterborough

There are only two things worth looking at in Peterborough, other than the fine prospect of city and country from Armour Hill and the Trent Valley canal below the Lift-lock in spring, which is lovely and reminiscent of the Low Countries. The two things are the Great War memorial designed by Walter S. Allward which stands in Confederation park, and the arches of the bridge at Inverlea.

Perhaps we are being unjust to our fair city in saying there are but two treats for the eye. There are a few doorways, a corner of a wall near the Jackson Park creek, and, if persons are things, some younger females who can be looked at twice or thrice with much pleasure. There is, too, the whole animal kingdom—fine dogs, cats and small children — represented rather well on our city streets. But for structures, we have only the bridge and the war memorial. Two structures for 35,000 citizens and 10,000 tourists to look at.

Perhaps we should be happy in having so few pieces of statuary, for thus we do not risk the blight of ugly fountains, columns and carved creatures which disfigure many towns and cities and should never be seen outside of cemeteries. There are ways, however, of acquiring sculpted pieces for our parks, squares and streets which involve little artistic risk. Annual exhibitions at large art galleries include an occasional good piece which a public-spirited citizen might be tempted to buy for the ornamentation of Peterborough. If there should happen to be money willed or a fund set up for such purposes, a local committee could obtain expert advice and would not be liable to err aesthetically. There could be no condemnation on artistic grounds if some kind person bought a full-sized copy of, say Michaelangelo's David (which is in Florence) and the Council authorized its erection in Victoria Park.

We have no expectation that Peterborough will become as beautiful as Stockholm in one or two generations, but we can at least hope for a few pieces to beautify and enrich the city.

Russia On The Make

The release by the U.S. Senate Department of a large body of documentary evidence relating to the German-Russian pact of 1939, and describing the gradual breakdown of that agreement until 1941 provides a valuable lesson in modern statecraft. Without wasting time in comment on the hypocrisy and bare-faced criminality which these documents reveal, let us get on to the nub of the matter, which appears to us to be this: Russia is an imperialist power, without conscience but well-provided with caution and an ability to weigh the consequences of any act which she may contemplate.

This is nothing new, of course, but we feel that it must be said, and repeated until everybody understands it. There are still people in Canada who insist that Russia's actions are guided by some principle other than that of self-interest. We have seen no evidence of any such principle, and we do not believe that it exists.

There is no reason why Russia's lack of principle, or Russia's imperialist ambitions, should shock us extremely. History is full of similar cases, and neither Britain nor the U.S.A. has a history wholly untouched by greed or duplicity. Indeed, the first thing we must do if we hope to deal intelligently with Russia is to stop making moral judgements upon her as though those judgements had any weight in the international field. We do not need to copy Russia, but it is important that we should know what Russia is. Armed with that knowledge we can treat Russia realistically. There is reason to believe that Russia likes and respects realism.

The documents which are now appearing are bitter lessons in political realism. Let us make sure that we learn our lesson well.

A Martyr To Statistics

Until recently the leading economist of the U.S.S.R. was Eugen S. Varga, and his task was to collect statistics relating to the economics of non-communist countries, particularly those of the Western Hemphere. It was expected that his findings would show that these capitalist countries were headed for irretrievable ruin, but unfortunately they did not do so; Varga could only make the figures show that the Western world was doing pretty well and would probably continue to prosper. In consequence he has lost his job, and all the honours and perquisites of his position have been taken from him.

Poor Varga! The scientific method, and the concept of scientific truth have had many martyrs, and he is one of them. Galileo was broken by the Church because his findings about the universe contradicted Church teaching: Varga has been broken by the U.S.S.R. because he will not support the approved Soviet doctrine that capitalism cannot be made to work. Truth is great and will prevail—but only after bitter opposition.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Where is the January thaw? Perhaps it is being coyly sly and will surprise us by appearing in May, along with Indian summer.

The New York Bowery Comeback Association is having periodically a "Bowery Man of the Month". The selected down-and-outer will be given a haircut, shave, new suit of clothes, a place to live and meals for a month. Peterborough has had "Old Home Week" committees in the past; why not a Peterborough Comeback Association? Prices and housing shortages being what they are, maybe there would be too many candidates for Peterborough's Man of the Month.

The Franc Situation In Paris

By PAUL SCOTT MOWRER

"WHY is it," asked my American friend, "that if, as you contend, France's economy is steadily recovering, most French people still seem so discontented?"

"They are certainly discontented," I agreed. "They are so gloomy they do not even realize the progress France has been making. The other day I saw the results of a French opinion poll. It showed that a year ago about half of the people thought the coming year would be better than last, while this year only a third thought the coming year would be better."

❖ ❖ ❖

"WHAT'S the matter? Aren't they getting enough to eat?"

"I believe that thanks to American aid and France's own production, nearly all the French people are now eating fairly. But they are having to spend nearly all their money on food alone. With prices still rising they don't see any end. It's this continual anxiety that makes them gloomy."

"They are having an inflation," said my friend.

❖ ❖ ❖

"SO is Britain. So is the U.S. So is nearly everybody. In fact, war and inflation seem inseparable. But the French inflation differs from ours. America's is credit inflation. Theirs is currency. Most Americans don't realize either the extent to which they use bank checks for money, or the extent to which other countries use nothing but banknotes. The U.S. problem is credit control. The French is currency control."

"You mean France has been printing too many unsecured banknotes?"

❖ ❖ ❖

"FRANCE has had to stop the process begun under the German occupation. It was by means of unsecured banknotes the Germans demanded from the Bank of France that they stripped and looted the entire country. After the liberation the new government rapidly expanded in all directions and has been living ever since beyond its means. Government spending has helped economic recovery but retarded financial recovery. The present government realizes this and is acting accordingly."

"Do you think Premier Schuman's unpopular tax measures will be successful?"

"What he has enacted amounts to a forced loan of 125,000,000,000 francs. The purpose is to mop up surplus money which is causing price rises. But as most of the food is being bought by workers and others who won't be affected by the new levy, its effect will be limited. The real problem is stabilization of the franc."

"Yes," said my friend, "but at what rate?"

❖ ❖ ❖

"NOBODY knows what the franc is really worth," I said. "Mere government decree will settle nothing. The franc will have to be allowed to find its own level in free world markets before permanent stabilization. Meanwhile the budget must be balanced to avoid printing still more banknotes. And there will probably have to be some outside financial support temporarily. The Marshall plan itself can only succeed ultimately in conjunction with general stabilization of currencies and freeing of exchanges."

❖ ❖ ❖

"THEN you believe France can avoid bankruptcy?"

"In one sense, France has been bankrupt ever since the German occupation. But no government is ever bankrupt in the private sense of the term. Personally I am confident France will recover financially, just as it is already recovering economically. Despite vast losses of capital in two wars, it is still a rich country. Stabilization of the franc at whatever its real value turns out to be will restore France's export trade. It will bring back the lucrative tourist trade. It will bring home French capital that has fled abroad and bring out privately hoarded gold. In short, it will restore the confidence of the French people in their own money so they will once more save and lend.

❖ ❖ ❖

"THE French people," I said, "are naturally just about the thriftiest on earth. They are gloomy now because they have no confidence. Hence they are not saving. Hence they are not happy. In my opinion at least nine tenths of France's troubles are due to this loss of confidence in its money. There's nothing wrong with France that stabilization won't cure."

The class was having a general knowledge lesson. The master turned to Jenkins, noted for the ease with which he wriggled out of tight corners.

"What is ratio?"

"Ratio," replied Jenkins, "is proportion."

"But what is proportion?"

"Why, sir, proportion is ratio."

"Well, what are ratio and proportion?"

"I can only answer one question at a time, sir," replied Jenkins, with cold dignity.

A doctor who had a neurasthenic patient said to him. "Say each morning. "The Mediterranean sun is beating down on me and curing me!"

A week later his patient went to report progress.

"Doctor," he said, "I'm much better."

"Good," replied the doctor, "Go on with the treatment, and don't forget that the Mediterranean sun is beating down on you."

In another week the doctor called on him and was horrified to find the blinds down.

"What's happened?" he inquired of the maid.

"Please, sir, Mr. Robinson's very ill."

"Heavens, what was the cause?"

"Sunstroke, sir."

Letter To The Editor

HEAR THOSE DISDAINFUL CHUCKLES?

Sir: Mr. Russelle's letter to you, of a few nights ago, has prompted me to make a few remarks myself.

Are those individuals who are working on the Community Centre project, or should I say, are associated with it, Peterborough citizens, or are they not? If they are they surely don't show it, but merely indicate that they have little or no interest in the future of Peterborough. Those to whom I refer don't even pay any attention to a half-decent suggestion, such as was offered by Mr. Gordon Hancock not so long ago, along this line, that of a temporary arena. This committee for the bringing about of a Community Centre should either wake up, and do something concrete, or resign as a body, and let true Peterborough citizens take over.

If it is a matter of finances that is holding up this project, allow me to say this. The City Council thinks it is quite alright to pay several thousand dollars to an outside contractor for a haywire piece of town planning, which if carried out would, at the time, make every Peterborough citizen think that he was seeing the rebuilding of Coventry, and not Peterborough, so vast would be the changes.

If the difficulties are arising from legal matters, then why don't several of Peterborough's business men get together, form a syndicate, buy the property, erect a rink with a good-sized ice-surface, with seating for at least a couple of thousand, and run it themselves. Or, why doesn't some wide-awake organization like the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who have some gumption, and who have proven their interest in the welfare of Peterborough, take over and do something.

It isn't very satisfying to think of how disdainfully the citizens of the villages of Lakefield and Omemee must chuckle to themselves when they think that the great city of Peterborough can not even supply one little covered rink with natural ice, for its hockey teams to pay their home games in.

I am a Normal School student, and a strong supporter of my home town of Peterborough. After the football and lacrosse seasons came to an end this past year, I heard many of the some seventy students at the school, who come mainly from small towns all the way from Kingston to Orillia discussing a city with no facilities within eleven miles for anything but outdoor hockey. The only thing that saves the prestige of that city in the eyes of these visitors to our Peterborough, is the wonderfully friendly attitude of its people. I hear students, preparing to go home on week-ends, saying "Well, I'll see a hockey game at home anyway, and that's more than I'll see around here".

Are we going to stand around in the cold, while our neighbours in much smaller places like Sunderland, go head, erect a good rink with a seating capacity of about two thousand, for about $25,000 or $30,000?

Come on, Peterborough, smarten up!

JOHN LEWIS.

Reassurance From Canada

(NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE)

THE demands of two world wars have by no means exhausted, but they have seriously depleted, the natural resources of the United States. The lavish expenditure of our mineral deposits is causing concern to many an expert with his eye on the possibility of another conflagration of like or greater proportions.

A case in point is the foreboding over the shortage today of several strategic metals no longer available in adequate quantity except through import or government subsidy of non-profitable mines. And especially have we been warned that the iron ore deposits of the Mesabi range, the bulwark of our great steel industry, face extinction in a matter of ten to twenty-five years.

But most of this talk has taken little account of our immediate neighbour, Canada, whose huge territory, third largest in the world, contains natural riches comparable to those which we have been exploiting and which are still virtually intact.

A recent special supplement in this newspaper devoted to her resources and basic economic strength suggests a reassurance for the future. Canada, to be sure, is another country and potentially a very great one. But the two of us share the same continent, the same language, ideals and traditions, and for well over a century we have lived side by side in amity and with an ever-growing interchange of goods and population. And as allies in two world wars the bonds of friendship between us have become hooks of steel.

One should have faith that trade between the United States and Canada will become ever more brisk and untrammeled and that in exchange for our finished goods we shall be able to call upon her wealth in pulp and paper stock, in lumber, fur and minerals.

❖ ❖ ❖

Speaking of the last, we should like to mention the newly discovered and developed iron ore deposits along the Quebec-Labrador border. These, according to reports, may turn out to be several times greater and in composition equal to the richest ore ever found in the Mesabi range. Here alone is cause for reassurance.

Let us acknowledge, against the boasts of isolationists, that the United States was never self-sufficient and less so today than ever. What it requires for its needs, then, is an international trade policy which permits generous importation, and especially from Canada, as this survey we have been discussing indicates.

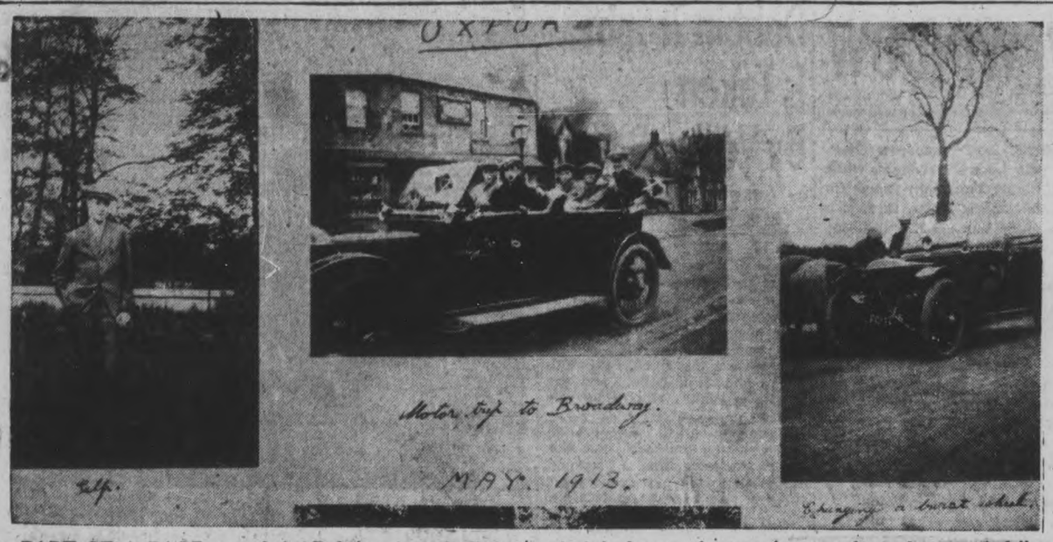
A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And one of the scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him, Which is the first commandment of all?



And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear O, Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these. (Mark 12: 28-31.)

Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. (Rom. 13: 8.)

A BRITISH OPINION

PART OF A PAGE out of the Duke's personal album shows him at various times during his stay at Oxford in 1913. At left the young Prince is acquiring that debonair look for which he became famous. At centre he is shown with fellow-students in his car during a motor trip which featured "a burst wheel," at right.

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

CHAPTER 17.

I took my place freely among the undergraduates — a circumstance which was hailed by the Press as fresh evidence of the innate democracy of the British monarchical system.

But the socialist son of the Glasgow fitter who sat beside me at lectures would scarcely have agreed that I shared the common lot.

I had, after all, special rooms in "Cloister Quad"—not to mention, I believe, the first private undergraduate bathroom to be installed at the college, as well as a fine view of the tower that is one of Magdalen's special glories.

I had a valet, Finch. I had as well my personal tutor, since Hansell, the instigator of all this, occupied a room directly under mine.

To initiate me into the more sophisticated amenities my personal entourage was augmented by the addition of an equerry, the hard-riding Major William Cadogan, of the 10th Hussars.

Finally, Sir Herbert Warren, the President of Magdalen and the Vice Chancellor of Oxford, made me his special charge — an attention which, before long, I would gladly have forfeited.

Yet all these ostensible advantages could not entirely cure my nostalgia for the Navy.

All around me were young men united in friendships formed at Eton, Harrow, Winchester, Charterhouse and all the other public schools.

I was acutely lonely and I was under the added disadvantage of being something of a celebrity.

A crowd of reporters and photographers descended upon Oxford to record for the popular Press the more intimate aspects of my adjustment to Oxford life.

Their vivid accounts in turn stimulated a rush of tourists and for days I hardly dared to go to the window lest I find myself the object of their concentrated gaze.

Nor did I wish to be seen near Addison's Walk until all the publicity died down, for the local guides had spread the story that the college deer park had been restocked to enable me to do a little stalking when my studies palled.

All this vulgar commotion within Magdalen's ancient precincts irritated the dons, but no more than the undergraduates, who showed their displeasure by emptying pitchers of water upon the inquisitive sightseers' heads.

The plain fact is, of course, that I was pretty much of a problem to Oxford.

To be sure, I could box a compass, read naval signals, run a packet boat, and make cocoa for the officer of the watch.

But these accomplishments, which the navy had been at such pains to teach me, were manifestly without significance to Oxford's learned dons.

Moreover, as the following diary excerpt indicates, I judged Oxford a little effete:—

". . . It is amusing to see the difference between an ordinary school and Dartmouth. The boys talk of discomfort, but in their dormitories they have cubicles and they sit about in studies all day. Their life is not half as strenuous as it is at Dartmouth, and we were more contented. There can be no better education than a naval one. . . ."

Indeed, verging on the dissolute:—

Dear Papa,

". . . I went to the Bullingdon Club dinner. It lasted two hour and there were about 60 people. Most of them got rather, if not to say very excited and I came back early.

"There was a good deal of champagne drunk and that accounted for it. It is interesting for me to see the various forms of amusements that undergraduates indulge in. . . ."

To lead me with all possible celerity into the higher fields of learning, Oxford generously gave me access to its best brains.

One of Britain's most distinguished jurists, Sir Willam Anson, Warden of all Souls' College, taught me constitutional law.

From Mr. Charles Grant Robertson, later Vice-Chancellor of the University of Birmingham, I acquired some grounding in Napoleonic history.

The famous Rev. Lancelot Ridley Phelps, later Provost of Oriel College, talked to me voluminously and no doubt from vast erudition on political economy. While pressing upon me the dullest books ever written.

My study of the French language continued under M. Berthon. And Dr. Hermann Fiedler, who later became Taylor Professor of German, was brought in to increase my command of German.

Finally, President Warren, an authority on English poetry, undertook single-handed to fire my interest in the humanities.

As a mark of his favour he included me among half a dozen proteges who foregathered in his book-lined study once a week to read to him, for his direct criticism and comment, essays on various aspects of British literature prepared at his order.

These little meetings were my introduction to serious literature, and I approached them in awe.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Hume Ryreson of Brantford was elected president of the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers' Association at their annual convention here yesterday.

Ford, Reuther Hold Conference

DETROIT, Jan. 30 — (AP).— Henry Ford II and Walter P. Reuther shattered precedent in automobile industry management labor relations yesterday by discussing "general labor policy matters" at a three-hour conference.

Both the 30-year-old president of the Ford Motor Co. and the 37-year-old head of the United Auto Workers (CIO) were accompanied by their top aides. The meeting was initiated by the union and held at the company offices.

It was the first time such a conference was held when no contract negotiations or labor disputes were in progress.

A union spokesman said the conference could not be implied to mean that wage talks would begin ahead of the scheduled reopening in May.

Although negotiations with both General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. are destined to start before then, the meeting was believed significant by industry and labor observers.

Wants Money Saved

KIPPEN, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver charged at a Huron by-election meeting here yesterday that the Drew Government "is building up a spending machine that cannot be operated if we hit a depression on this province." "This is the time," he said, "when the Government should be saving money. When times are good, employment high, and there is a general buoyancy in business — that is when governments should save."

Yugoslav Gov't Denies Killing Woman

BELGRADE, Jan. 30 (Reuters) —The Yugoslav Government, in a sharply worded communique, denied yesterday that Emma Debelyak, an American-born Yugoslav, has been "kidnapped and sentenced to death on charges of having requested and obtained an American passport" as alleged in American press reports.

A Yugoslav Government spokesman confirmed that she was arrested on December 19, 1947, when a wartime Ustasha police agent was captured in her apartment by two Yugoslav security officers after a shooting in which one of the security officers was gravely wounded.

The spokesman said "it is totally untrue that she was sentenced to death, since she was not even put on trial but merely under investigation."

Mrs. Debelyak has a sister, Mrs. Catherine Bobalker, living in Toronto.

The spokesman said the woman was not an American citizen, even though she managed to obtain a passport from American Consul Basil McGowan.

He said she married a Yugoslav citizen; she voted in all the Yugoslav elections; she was employed in the state service after the war, and she obtained Yugoslav citizenship certificate No. 23696 "on her personal request for the purpose of regulating her position in the state service."

It has been affirmed by American officials here that an American citizen may lose citizenship for any of the above reasons except the first. She has resided in Yugoslavia for the last 27 years.

Want Japanese Back

VICTORIA, Jan. 30.—(30).—A new drive to permit Japanese to return to coastal areas from where they were moved during the Second World War may be made unless the B.C. government lifts its order banning them from working on Crown timber lands in the interior, it was reported here yesterday. They would seek to re-enter the fishing industry.

Rector Dies

NIAGARA FALLS, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Rev. John Arthur William Phillips, 56, rector of Trinity Anglican Church, Chippawa, and All Saints' Church, Ridgeway, died yesterday in the Chippawa rectory. He was born in Hawkesbury, son of the late Canon Arthur Phillips.

Hydro Crew Camp Large, Operations In Full Swing

CAVAN, Jan. 30 — (ENS) — A complete little village has sprung up about one a half miles south of Cavan village in a field north of Whitfield's school. It is the camp home of a construction crew rushing the construction of another Hydro lines to ease the power shortage.

This line will run from Masson, Quebec, about 40 miles east of Hull, to a point north of Toronto. Late in December trucks began moving buildings from the former camp site at Malvern. It took about three weeks to take down, move and set up the fireproof buildings which make up the camp.

Bulldozers were used to clear the snow and prepare for the buildings, which consist of five sleeping cabins, a large dining room and kitchen, ttwo storehouses, a washroom and a building which includes the superintendent's and clerk's offices, and a small canteen.

Three cooks provide meals for the 60 men in the gang. There is also a blacksmith to do repair work, and a fireman who keeps the wood fire going in each building continually.

Lamps and lanterns provide lighting. There is a short wave set installed for receiving and sending messages between the camp and headquarters, also connectde with the three camps situated at Pickering, Enniskillen and Pontypool.

A gang equipped with snowshoes makes the survey for the line, followed by the construction gang, which clears the land and erects the towers. When the towers are erected the wires are strung by another gang. It will be several months before the work is completed here.

Business Good During 1947

By The Canadian Press

The successes achieved by Canadian business in 1947 are confirmed almost daily in various annual statements.

Financial statements thus far released already have outlined a pattern of record earnings, substantially increased assets, expanded working capital and, in many instances, decidedly improved reserves.

That business trends for last year were gratifying is indicated by recent statements of industrial leaders.

E. P. Taylor, chairman of the Board, Canadian Breweries Limited: "Your board of directors is happy to report herewith upon the most active and profitable year in your company's history."

W. M. O'Connor, president, National Trust Company Limited: "The volume of business and assets under administration were at record figures and the profits showed a substantial increase."

H. Mowry Sets Record In Men's Loop

In a very fine display of pin-toppling Holly Mowry set up a new season's record for high three when he bowled 407-332-237 for a grand total of 976 to take out the 966 score rolled by Bill Lewis earlier in the season. A corner pin in the second frame of the first game cost him high single held by Maurice Caccavella.

Mowry led the Kawarthas to a six-point win from the league-leading Fashion Crafts as the former team had high pinnage of 3671 and high single game of 1288 in a clean sweep of the high honors.

Shockey's won two games from Clapper's to remain in second place. The Clapper squad failed to hit the hot streak they had the week previous.

Plazas and Ramblers are tied for third place as a result of a four-point victory over Sunocos by the Plazas squad and Ramblers dropped four points to the up-and-coming Empress Old Timers. Fred Scates aided the Empress outfit, filling in for Nelson Routley.

King George improved their chances of catching the top three teams with a 6-point win from Generals. Four-point victories were registered by De Laval, Legion and McGillis from Grant's Spartons and Freeman's.

Bill Harris was the only other bowler beside Mowry to beat the 800 mark as he bowled 860. Harris also had second high single of 352.

Other good single games were Bill Masters 335, A. Basciano 319, Jim Herron 313, Alf Mattucci 307, Phil Pryde 306 and George Walton 300.

The standing of the first six team is: Fashion Craft 94, Shockey's 78, Ramblers 74, Plazas 74, King George 70, Kawarthas 65.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Basketball by the girls and men tonight and tomorrow here. This eve in the YWCA gym, Kawarthas play Lock Ct. at eight, while Electrics meet St. Paul's at nine. Both highly important games for all four clubs concerned. At the Collegiate tomorrow e'en, three tilts are listed. Bowmanville junior OABA entry has a 6.30 exhibition with PCVS senior "A" squad, Bowmanville's Lakeshore Loop team tackles Marines "B" bunch at 7.30, and Dalton's Furriers of Toronto take on Marines "A" crew in an 8.30 exhibition. Joe Krohl—Canada's "Mr. Football"—is coach of the Furriers and may be in the lineup, too. PCVS senior "B" and junior "B" teams are in Lindsay tonight.

Quinte columnist said of last Tuesday's tilt: "Despite every known trick the Vets could not beat Nicholls in the Legion twine. The Legion have not got one goalie, they have two—Godfrey out front being the extra hand. The defeat could not be laid at the door of Goalie Art Plumley. He was swamped with rubber and turned aside the proverbial million. Belleville lost the game because they were impotent in the opposition end. Ned Vitarelli is back and makes quite a difference to the Legion team. MacDonald was moved up and added speed but Gerow was too closely watched to be effective. Stewart went well on defence but in all the plays were not clicking."

Kingston Vs. Legion

Kingston Saints tangle with Legionnaires at 8.30 tonight in Lindsay and it ought to be quite a scrap. Smarting under their reverse at the hands of the Petes on Wednesday—after previously beating 'em—the bolstered Saints will be out to take Legion's measure and stay in the hot senior "B" group race. If the Legionnaires are flying as they were 'gainst the Vets on Tuesday, Goalie Udall will have himself a busy evening, indeed. This game will be well worth seeing, and ought to pack in a hefty crowd.

Despite sub-zero weather, over 500 citizens turned out last night for the public meeting re a becondary rink. And they were all for one this year and for an artificial ice-rink at that. Mayor Ovens, as chairman, recommended that such a project be undertaken at once, saying the city would provide the property and might even contribute a sum up to $10,000 for this badly-needed arena. He will contribute $100 personally, he said—as did Charlie Kingan. J. A. Jebson, on behalf of the Memorial Centre Committee, also promised support. It was a fine representative turnout ranging from the playing kids up to the city fathers and including many prominent citizens in various businesses and clubs.

* * * * * *

Need Some Do-Re-Mi

General story of the meeting is in elsewhere as it concerns others than sports fans, too. But a strong committee was chosen and this bunch will get to work immediately on the site question and then the raising of finances. Figures quoted ranged from about $100,000 to $140,000 for a completely modern artificial ice arena, with the promise that it can be operation by next Nov. 1. The property opposite the George St. wharf was picked as No. 1 site suggestion, with the Park St. at Lake property named as No. 2. We'd like to have heard some more of the Morrow Park spot, but we won't argue about it. Let's just get one somewhere in the city.

* * * * * *

Three prominent OMHA officials from Toronto and Oshawa were on hand to urge action to give the kids a proper place to play hockey. They pointed out that modern arenas can't spare the time or cost to give the youngsters much use of their ice palaces — and that will be the case when the Memorial Centre is built here. Lot of pertinent questions were asked and answered during the open forum. Proposed rink would seat about 3,200 if present plans are followed, and the Recreation Commission—under the City Council—will manage the arena. This was voted with about half the big gathering raising their hands for the "aye" but no "nays" being asked. However, those angles will be worked out. Main thing is we have made a start for a local rink for the 1948-49 season.

Juniors Are Picked

Coach Archie Weir of the junior "B" Triple Link team has chosen his squad, which has a bye into group playoffs about the middle of February. He has J. Byers and D. Brooks for goal, with J. Stock, A. Menzies, K. Anderson and J. Berwick on defence. The forwards include: A. Dugan, J. Conlin, K. Montgomery, D. Pagett, T. Collins, D. Floyd, A. Griffin, H. Vyse, M. Crowley and H. Legrow. A number were with the OHA-ers last year, but quite a few have come up from the PMHA this season. They are a speedy and fairly husky outfit and, if their condition is okay comes playoff time, might make quite a showing this semester.

Bobby Bauer, an all-star right winger in the National Hockey League last season, will give Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen a complete forward line of former pros when he lines up against Toronto Marlboros in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game at Toronto tonight.

The current dispute over hockey at the Olympic winter games in Switzerland may see the end of hockey as an Olympic sport, Prof. N. C. Hart, secretary of the Canadian Olympic committee, said at London, Ont., last night. Speaking as an individual, he blamed "official bungling" for the concusion which arose from the arrival in Switzerland of two rival United States hockey teams

Great Britain's Royal Automobile Club yesterday awarded the Seagrave trophy for 1947 to racing motorist John Cobb for his world's land speed records set up at the Bonneville flats, Utah. Cobb reached a mean speed of 393.8 miles an hour for the kilometre and 395.2 miles an hour for the mile. In attaining these speeds he actually travelled at 403 miles an hour in one direction, a speed never before achieved on land.

Dobbin Trophy Is Taken By Willey Rink

By HERB MARTIN

"A game is never over until the last stone has been played." This has been said so often that no one pays much attention to it, but it was driven home hard to the eight players, and about as many spectators who stayed till close to midnight and braved the zero weather to see the Willey rink score a big five in the 10th end to come from behind and win the Ross Dobbin trophy by one shot.

If the game all the way through was a dandy, that 10th end was a curler's dream, that is as far as the Willey rink was concerned. Just imagine, four down with one end to play, and to be honest it did look bad for the finance minister's rink, but by real clever playing they pushed across enough shots in that last 10 minutes to pull the game out of the fire. As the saying goes, it was a tough game for the Ingram boys to lose and a peach of a comeback for the Willey quartet.

It was unfortunate that so many of the boys went home at 11.30 p.m. They missed a finish that was a finish. We expect No. 8 will be a very busy spot today rehashing the whole game.

Tired Bunch

And maybe those boys weren't a tired bunch coming off the ice. Ask Dr. Morgan, J. Watson, K. Armstrong, A. Metheral — ask them all.

The competition commenced on Monday evening and ran each night. The boys put up some real curling and the spectators on No. 8 got their money's worth. So we congratulate all, winners and losers. It was a good 'spiel and well played all the way through. Mr. N. Hamley was convener of the competition and he did a fine job of it.

Hastings Wins 9-0

HASTINGS, Jan. 30—(ENS)—Hastings juvenile hockey team chalked up their third victory in four games, when they shut out Tweed by a score of 9-0 on the losers' ice. This was their second shutout.

Hastings lineup includes: Goal, R. Nelson; defence, M. Richardson, D. West; wings, J. Morrow, E. Scriver; centre, D. West; alternates, B. Herrington, J. Fairman, L. Thomas, K. Scriver, J. Sullican, K. Oliver, R. Lockhart.

Reds Trip Capitals

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 30 (AP).—A match penalty to Indianapolis centre Lloyd Doran climaxed a stormy American Hockey league game last night as the Capitals bowed 6-2 to Providence Reds. Doran's penalty came in the third period when he clubbed Chunk Scherza with his stick, cutting the Providence forward on the head. The wound required 15 stitches.

WHAT A MUSCLE — The expression on five-year-old Robert McElroy's face tells better than words what he thinks of heavyweight champion Joe Louis' mighty muscle. Robert visited the boxer at the Chicago gymnasium where Louis started training for his four-round exhibition against Bob Foxworth at Chicago Coliseum last Thursday night.

Oshawa To Play In Semi-Finals

OSHAWA, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Oshawa Curling Club will be represented in both the Ontario Silver Tankard and Governor General's Cup play in the provincial curling semi-finals opening in Toronto today.

A. J. Parkhill defeated L. E. Ross of Agincourt 21-9 to give Oshawa a total-point victory after W. J. Brownlee's Oshawa four went down before A. N. Fitzgerald's rink.

In the final, last night, Parkhill defeated Malcolmson and Brownlee came from behind to whip Beattie 12-10. The total 28-24 triumph gave Oshawa a right to enter today's semi-finals.

In the Governor - General's event H. Melvin of Kingston defeated Paul Michael 17-15, but Don Holden won over A. L. McFie to give Oshawa the round 31-40. Agincourt ousted Fenelon Falls when Roy Shadlock defeated Roy Jones 16-14 and J. A. Walton downed Jim Curtis 17-14.

In the final, Don Holden defeated Shadlock 14-8 and Michael whipped Walton 19-7 for a 33-15 victory.

Leafs Suffer Severe Blow As Apps Out of Action

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Toronto Maple Leafs, hotly contesting Detroit Red Wings' leadership of the National Hockey League, suffered a severe blow today with announcement that veteran centre-forward and team captain Sylvanus Apps will be out of action for several days. It came even as the Leafs were preparing for a double engagement this week-end against the Wings, who have a two-point lead over the Toronto squad.

Big Sylvanus, one of the biggest, fastest and steadiest players in the game today, who doubles as commissioner of athletics for the Province of Ontario, was gashed in the thigh in the third period of the struggle at Toronto Wednesday night when Leafs and Montreal Canadiens wound up in a 3-3 tie. The injury at first was believed minor.

But a medical examination yesterday showed that the sharp blade of a skate had pierced his thigh to the muscle. The leg stiffened up and there is little chance of Apps getting into the important series against Detroit.

Scoring Jeopardized

This had to happen when big Syl was in the thick of contention for NHL scoring honors. At the moment he's in third place, with Buddy O'Connor of New York tops at 41 points, Max Bentley of Toronto next with 39 and Apps with 38.

But it's an ill wind, etc., and Leaf coach Clarence Day had things fixed up to use Johnny McCormack of the Toronto senior amateur Marlboros in Apps' pivot position over the week-end. McCormack, 22 years of age, and a native of Edmonton, a gangling young centre player, returned to amateur hockey this season after a year in a seminary training for the priesthood.

There's a full card of six games this week-end, with all teams in action twice.

BASEBALL FIGURE DIES

One of western Ontario's best known figures in amateur baseball, Bertram Thomas Bernard, died suddenly yesterday at his Tillsonburg home at the age of 64.

Louis Teaches Foxworth Boxing Lesson

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—(AP)—"Just how far has Joe Louis slipped?"—the big question that has been puzzling the boxing world for the last two months—remained as puzzling as ever today with this exception:

The Brown Bomber, at the age of 33, is no longer the devastating bomber of old when he knocked out 22 in 25 title defences over a 10-year span. Age is catching up to him rapidly.

The world's heavyweight champion last night engaged in his first test with the gloves since his disputed split decision over Jersey Joe Walcott in New York last Dec. 5 by giving Bob Foxworth a one-sided boxing lesson in a four-round exhibition.

Foxworth, 24-year-old aspirant to the light heavyweight championship, had won 16 out of 18 bouts, 14 by knockouts. However, he offered no line on Louis since he had never met him before; was outweighed by 43 pounds; lacked height and weight to match Louis; was outclassed and obviously scared stiff.

Louis won every round easily, the timid Foxworth was always in retreat, aiming to keep out of danger.

Louis said he weighed 220 pounds, he certainly looked it. There were tiny rolls of fat rippling over his mid-section, but he plodded in from the opening gong and delivered his punches like lightning flashes. He didn't move fast, but his hands did. They wore the big 16-ounce gloves.

Johnny McCormack Holds Scoring Lead

TORONTO, Jan. 30 — (CP) — Johnny McCormack of the second-place Toronto Marlboros took over scoring leadership in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A race with 26 goals and 43 assists for 69 points, OHA statistics showed today. He holds a 10-point lead over his teammate Ike Hildebrand in second place with 24 goals and 35 assists for 59 points.

Leader in total penalty minutes is Harry Psutka of the Marlboros with 87 minutes.

Simplicity Marks Opening Of Olympics

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 30 (AP). — The fifth winter Olympics, wearing the scars of a bitter dispute over which of two hockey teams should represent the United States, opened today in this majestic Alpin valley.

In sharp contrast to the fourth games in 1936, in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, when Hitler presided and the Nazis flaunted their military might, Swiss simplicity predominated.

Enrico Celio, president of the Swiss federation, said these words: "I declare the fifth winter games, as part of the 14th modern Olympic games, to have begun."

An artillery salute sounded, echoing in the mountains, trumpets played the Swiss national anthem, the Olympic flag with its five inter-locking circles was raised and the Olympic torch atop the tower of the main grandstand was lit.

First came the parade of athletes—915 from 28 countries. There were to have been 29, but Palestine withdrew at the last minute.

Greeks Lead

The small Greek delegation of six held as usual first place in the parade out of respect for the land that gave birth to the Olympic ideal 2,500 years ago.

Preceding each national group came its national flag.

The national squads marched in this order: Greece, Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Chile, Korea, Denmark, Spain, United States, Finland, France, England, Holland, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Lybia, Liechtenstein, Norway, Poland, Romania, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Yugoslavia and Switzerland.

Absent, uninvited were Germany and Japan.

Preceding each squad came St. Mortiz school children bearing the national shield and behind the flag bearers walked officials and contestants in this order: military participants, skiers, skaters, ice hockey players (except for the United States) and sledges.

After the torch was lit all flag carriers arranged themselves in a semicircle in front of the tribune. A Swiss, Bibi Torriani, spoke the solemn Olympic oath.

KING EXCLUDED

In Britain, the King is the only person not allowed to listen to a Commons debate, that privilege being last enjoyed by Charles I.

JAP STARLET—Miss Hideko Minura is Japan's newest movie sensation. Her appearance in the recent Jap picture "My Darling Wife," has brought her thousands of letters from admirers which have almost overnight made her one of Japan's sought-after starlets.

World News In Brief

Taken from Wires of Canadian Press

STUTTGART, Germany — About 1,000,000 workers in Wurttemberg-Baden will strike at midnight Monday protesting food shortages. The United States zone state's 24-hour general strike will be the second in less than 10 days involving 1,000,000 American zone workers. That many quit their jobs for a day Jan. 23.

CANADIENS-LEAFS RIVALRY CONTINUED — After an NHL game between the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Montreal Canadiens played at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto on Wednesday night, Coach Hap Day of the Leafs remarked that his players were a "one-period team." All this because Leafs had to spot Canadiens two goals in the last period, and did not play their best hockey until then and judging from the above picture, it looks as though these same Leafs were a "one-man team" too. Shown are Canadiens' Bill Durnan (in goal), Roger Leger and Butch Bouchard. That's Ezinicki, the lone Leaf in the picture, who is apparently taking quite a beating. That's a reversal of form, when said Ezinicki is supposed to be the NHL's bad man!

Says Communists Smuggled Into Canada From Buffalo

SEATTLE, Jan. 30—(AP). — A "smuggling arrangement" operated by Communist Party members between Canada and the United States was described yesterday to the Washington State Un-American Activities Committee in session here.

Manning Johnson, a New York Negro, who said he was a party member from 1930 to 1940, told the committee the smuggling system was set up between Canada and Buffalo, NY, through the use of a Canadian customs inspector after the Communist Party was outlawed in Canada in 1935. The same "two-way pipline," he said, operated at Detroit.

He expressed the belief "that it was the system used for stealing atomic bomb secrets. It worked so well then, why wouldn't it have worked later?"

Johnson claimed the homes of prominent Canadians were used for conferences because "they were least open to suspicion."

He said his first Communist Party job was as assistant organizer, which he described as "like a little czar," at Buffalo. His assistant there was Morris Rapport, who he said now is the party organizer in the Pacific Northwest.

They Are Interested.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30 — (CP). — Federal authorities yesterday expressed interest in the Seattle report, but had no information on the reported pipeline.

"It's news to me," said Dave Sim, Deputy Customs Minister, in commenting on the Seattle statement of a former Communist that "a Canadian customs inspector" had been used in getting the Reds across the border around 1935 after Canada had outlawed their party. The statement came in testimony before the Washington State Un-American Activities Committee.

"There is nothing I can say about it," said Inspector John Leopold, second in command of the RCMP's "special branch," which has the job of keeping an eye on subversive elements in Canada. It was Leopold who, posing as a Red, infiltrated into the high Communist circles and blew the lid off party activities in Canada in the early 1950's.

Likewise silent was Superintendent S. Bullard, assistant director of the Mounties' Criminal Investigation Branch.

"We are interested in the report, but I don't think I will have anything to say on it," he declared.

DISCUSS TRAMWAY

Olympic Games Under Way, Row Unsolved

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 30 (AP). — Opening day of the fifth winter Olympic dawned today with the games still clouded by the unsettled United States hockey controversy.

Conflicting statements had this picturesque Alpin resort in a quandry.

Early this morning Marcel Henninger of Geneva, president of the Swiss Olympic committee, said the United States Amateur Hockey Association team would meet Switzerland today as originally scheduled.

Henninger's announcement came after the international Olympic committee voted, 16 to 10, to bar both the AHA team and the rival United States Olympic committee squad from hockey competition and the Swiss refused to accept the ruling.

Representatives of the wrangling factions conferred until early this morning but apparently reached no settlement.

Ski Difficulties

The Canadian ski squad also ran into last-minute difficulties. Sqdn. Ldr. Sandy Watson, doctor of the RCAF Olympic hockey team, announced that Montreal's Rhoda Wuetele and Three Rivers, Que., representative Lucien Laferte, would not compete in the games due to injuries.

Laferte suffered a broken ankle bone in practice Jan. 11 while Rhoda is suffering from a fracture of the lower part of the tibula.

Other members of the squad, with the exception of Pierre Jalbert of Quebec, in hospital with a broken leg, were reported "all set and ready to go."

Back on the U.S. hockey front, Raymond Gafner of Lausanne, president of the Swiss Ice Hockey Association, declared: "Let the international committee go home. In fact, I think they are on the way out. We have got the Olympic medals in our pockets and we intend to pin them on the people who win."

Outline Ration Plan

However, there appeared little likelihood that Congress would approve. House of Representatives consideration of such a proposal has been put off indefinitely.

Blames Controls For Shortage

OSHAWA, Jan. 30. —Bureaucratic rent controls are the main reason why veterans and others cannot obtain housing, James S. Stauffer, president of the Ontario Property Owners' Association, said here last night.

Addressing the local branch of the association, Mr. Stauffer declared: "Our rental laws reduce space available, prevent new housing being built for rental purposes, produce inflation and encourage objectionable tenants to become more objectionable."

Rental controls have caused trouble on a scale never before experienced in Ontario, the speaker continued. He cited the recent case in Sarnia where a landlady was fatally injured.

"Shotguns are now used to solve housing problems," the meeting was told. "With all the boards and experts appointed to assist in rehabilitating veterans, it is small wonder they marvel how such a mess could arise. Considerable housing have been required to house those that house the experts who look after housing."

Guild Work Highlight At Vestry Meeting

MARMORA, Jan. 30—(ENS)—The annual vestry meeting of St. Paul's Church was held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday. The rector, Rev. J. M. Brownlie opened the meeting with prayer.

He gave a resume of the year's work. He thanked those who had helped with the renovation of the church.

He said there had been 29 baptisms, 6 marriages, 7 prepared for Confirmation and 12 burials. About 100 calls had been made by him to patients in hospitals in Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough. He paid high praise to support given by the church wardens, lay reader, treasurer, Ladies' Guild and C. R. Whittemore, who compiled the financial reports. The financial report, given by G. Kerr, revealed a prosperous year for the church. The report of the Mission Funds was submitted by W. J. Cottrell and showed all obligations met with a balance on hand. That of the W.A. was presented by the rector.

The reports of the Ladies' Guild was again the outstanding report of the session. Mrs. D. McInroy reported the best year in the Guild's history. The Decoration Fund, also handled by the Guild, showed a good balance on hand with expenses of the church's renovation having been fully met.

Reports of the Anglican Advance Appeal, Flower Fund and Altar Guild were presented. The Sunday School report, revealing that branch of church work to be flourishing, was presented by W. J. Cottrell. Donald Robertson reported for the Laymen's Association. The auditor's report was given by C. R. Whittemore.

The rector then reappointed H. R. Pearce as his warden and W. D. Lavender was re-elected people's warden.

R. E. Bonter moved a vote of thanks to the rector and the organizations of the parish for their efforts in the past year. Others were then elected as follows:

Treasurer, George Kerr; vestry clerk, Roy Smith; missions treasurer, W. J. Cottrell; auditors, C. R. Whittemore and L. K. Crawford; lay delegates to Synod—3 years—R. E. Bonter, 2 years—L. R. Rundle, 1 year—C. H. Buskard; sidesmen's body — D. Robertson (convener), J. W. Hickey, C. H. Buskard, R. E. Bonter, C. R. Whittemore, G. Brown, J. Cochran, E. Hewitt, W. Simmons, D.

JOINS POLICE FORCE—The widow of an heroic Montreal constable who was fatally stabbed 16 years ago while trying to capture a homicidal maniac was among the 11 women sworn in as police officers recently in Montreal. Mrs. Paul Beaucage, whose son was born on the day her husband was buried, said "police work just seems to run in our family." Her father was a policeman for 28 years; her husband died in the line of duty, and her son, 16, shown with her above, intends to join the police force soon.

Cattle Prices Unchanged On Dull Market

TORONTO, Jan. 30 — (CP).—Cattle prices remained unchanged on a dull market here this week, while calves were strong to $1 a hundredweight higher. Hogs and lambs were steady and sheep lost 50 cents to $1 cwt.

A moderate run of some 4,500 head of cattle was added to 800 carried over from last week. Buying was indifferent and a few hundred head were unsold at the close, as there was plenty of beef in coolers and butcher stores.

Tops for weighty steers was $17.25 cwt., for one load with others selling mostly $14.50-$17. Butcher steers brought $12-$15.50 with choice up to $16.50 cwt. Butcher heifers went at $12-$15.25 and butcher cows closed at $9.50-$12, with canners and cutters $6-$9. Bulls were $9.50-$12 and fed yearlings $14.75-$17.25. A few medium to good quality stockers and feeders sold at $12-$13.75. Ordinary quality milkers and springers moved at $85-$145.

A small run of some 900 calves sold stronger at $21-$23 for the choice vealers, with plain lights downward to $12 cwt. Grassers for slaughter brought $10-$11.50.

Hogs were in light supply at 2,600 head. Prices for one market session proved unsettled, with higher prices being asked, but then dropped back to a steady trend of $28.50 for Grade A and $28.10 for Grade B1. Shows, however, lost $1 cwt., to $20.50 dressed.

Some 250 sheep left from last week were added to a fresh run of 650 sheep and lambs. Good lambs brought $18.50 with others from $13-$18 cwt. Western sheep closed at $8-$9, with cull locals selling at $4-$6.

Immigrant Finds Toronto Unfriendly

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—(CP). — Miss Enid Smith, immigrant from London, England, who said in an interview that Toronto was a "cold" city and that Torontonians were "smug and dull," said last night that the reaction by telephone and letter was heavy enough to make her think of leaving town.

But she also received a flood of invitations from Torontonians anxious to show her that it's a hospitable city after all. She said she'd stay a while longer.

Toronto newspapers printed photographs of a number of other British newcomers here who disagreed with Miss Smith. Some of them conceded that a Sunday in Toronto isn't exactly like the Mardi Gras, but they said they hadn't found Toronto was the unfriendly place pictured by Miss Smith.

Russians Use DPs' As Wedge Against British

By RICHARD KASISCHKE.

BERLIN, Jan. 30 — (AP). — The Russians and German Communists are using the displaced persons problem in Western Germany to create anti-American and anti-British sentiment among both Germans and DP's, according to United States documentary reports.

The campaign the Communists are waging is a double one. They tell the Germans one thing and the displaced persons another, but all the propaganda is aimed against the Western powers.

In Berlin's Russian-controlled newspapers the approximately 700,000 DPs in the American and British zones are denounced as "pests" and "bloodsuckers" and "parasites on the German economy."

Meanwhile in the DP camps, according to American intelligence reports, the Communists are attempting to creat distrust and unrest in order to make trouble for the Western occupying powers.

DPs "Criminals."

In propaganda directed at the Germans, the Russians depict the DPs a criminal element. Especially heated are their attacks against that majority of the DPs who came from Poland, Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, and who now are resisting repatriation to areas behind the iron curtain.

Russian-controlled newspapers now urge the Germans to demand that the American and British authorities forcibly repatriate these people to native lands now under Russian domination.

Their argument for forcible repatriation is a complete turnabout from the attitude less than two years ago when the Russian prosecution at the International War Crimes trials in Nuernberg heatedly denounced the Nazis for the slave labor policies which created the DPs.

Offer To Give Doctor Funds To Start Clinic

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 30 — (AP).—John Braund, 78, a Briton who claims to have a cure for cancer, was offered $64,000 to establish a cancer clinic in Sydney.

Premier James McGirr of New South Wales announced that his government will set up a committee to investigate Braund's claims.

Braund is attempting to win official recognition of his methods of treatment. Several Sydney people swear he has saved them after doctors had pronounced them incurable. He has attracted attention of the medical profession—and at least one favorable comment from that direction.

The offer of funds to start a clinic was made by E. J. Hallstrom, a Sydney philanthropist.

"Thousands of cancer sufferers cannot afford to wait many months before Braund's treatment is recognized officially," Hallstrom said in an interview.

Earlier, Braund, who has been living in Sydney many years, offered his system of the treatment and his secret formula to the government gratis, if his claims are found to be justified in a test supervised by a panel of physicians. Thus far, no such official test has been made.

A Sydney cancer specialist who watched Braund remove a growth from a woman's back yesterday told a reported the operation was "remarkable." He said the growth could not have been treated by "orthodox surgical methods."

Canadian General Electric announces

PRICE REDUCTION ON GENERAL ELECTRIC RANGES

Canadian General Electric makes a practice of passing along to its customers savings resulting from increased volume and from improved manufacturing methods.

So, effective immediately we are reducing prices on General Electric ranges! On some models these reductions amount to as much as $20.00.

We are taking this step despite the fact that there is a widespread shortage of ranges — a shortage likely to continue for some time and despite the fact that we could sell G-E ranges for many months to come at the former prices.

Now you can enjoy all the speed and convenience of the new General Electric Range at a lower price!

It's a beauty—and so easy to keep clean. So completely automatic too! Gives you handy cooking chart, large warming compartment, complete temperature control, many other features for better, easier and more economical cooking.

If your dealer can't supply you with a new G-E range now, ask him to put your name on his "call list".

GOING UP!

In a side comment during Thursday night's hockey rink meeting, Mayor Ovens had a sad bit of not-so-newsy news for the citizens: the cost of construction has risen. As an example—if one were needed—His Worship said that it is probable that the Memorial Centre will cost $650,000. The original estimate had been $300,000.

HIT BY CAR

Daniel Marrocco, 483 Elm St., received treatment for a cut scalp and bruises of the left leg, when he was taken to the Civic Hospital about 11.15 this morning after being struck by a car at the corner of George and Brock streets. Dr. Robert Bell took the injured man in his car to the hospital and attended him. It is not believed to be serious.

WE WANNA RINK — The Market Hall was nearly filled Thursday evening as 200 boy hockey players, members of the City Council, service clubs and Memorial Centre committeemen and interested business groups got together in a lively meeting on the pressing matter of building a secondary rink. Result, a committee of 16 was appointed to check into a suitable site and the financing of the structure.

Committee of 16 People Named To Investigate Plans For Covered Rink

It was eight below zero at 7.30 Thursday night, but temperatures ran high at the meeting in the market rooms, called to discuss the construction of a secondary hockey rink in the city. More than 500 citizens—including many boys and youths in the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association—attended the meeting.

Outcome of the widely representative gathering was the formation of a 16-member committee to investigate details and formulate a definite campaign of action. The meeting also gave approval to the suggestion that the rink be under the management of the Recreation Commission.

The committee was instructed, by motion, to give first attention as to the site of the proposed rink to the lot opposite the George Street Wharf. Second choice named by the meeting was that of the Park Street area at Lake. Both these suggested locations are owned by the city.

Estimates as to the cost of the rink were given, ranging from $90,000 to $140,000.

Mayor William Ovens was chairman of the meeting, which was opened by William Bennett. His Worship introduced first Richard Ouimet, one of the principal organizers of this show of public enthusiasm to the suggestion.

The audience, which included representatives from every service club, the City Council, and most quasi-public bodies, took a spirited part in the open-meeting discussion period which followed brief addresses.

In his opening remarks, the Mayor congratulated the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association for their initiative in organizing the meeting.

"There is no question but that we need a secondary hockey rink in Peterborough," said His Worship.

Mr. Ouimet, president of the PMHA, stated that the basis of the decision to call the meeting was the difficulties which had been experienced by his organization in obtaining enough ice for practises and games for the boys of the PMHA. There are now 227 boys taking an active part in the PMHA program, he said. At the first of the season, inquiries had been made at 11 outside points to obtain playing surfaces. The Lakefield rink was the only one which they had been able to obtain, he said.

114 Teams Operating

"Peterborough should keep up with the times," said the speaker, who is a member of the Recreation Commission.

The appeal for a secondary rink is being made to the city now, he said, because it is evident that the projected Memorial Centre will not be completed for at least another three years.

There are now 114 organized hockey teams operating in Peterborough, Mr. Ouimet said. Of these, 13 are PMHA. The others are: Trojans, 16; Morrow Park, 8; Church teams, 21; Junior B, OHA, 1; Senior B, OHA, 2; CGE, 13; separate schools, 10; public schools, 20; "outlaw" teams, 10.

A secondary rink could be ready for operation by this November 1st, he said, if the contract were awarded some time in February.

Kenneth Waters, Toronto, president of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, was a visitor who addressed the meeting. Although outdoor rinks are important, he said, they do not have the advantages of accommodations for visiting teams, or comfort of the fans.

Jack Christie, Toronto, secretary of the OMHA, stressed the particular need for a secondary rink for purposes of junior leagues. The high cost of upkeep on a large arena, he said, had the effect of gradually squeezing the younger teams out, as their games could not provide the gate receipts to cover the operation. The smaller rink is the answer to this problem, he said.

City Council To Help

Harold Luke, past president of the OMHA, also spoke briefly endorsing the purpose of the meeting.

Mayor Ovens promised the cooperation of the City Council in the project.

Charles Kingan brought forward the first concrete offer of support when he stated from the floor that he would donate $100 towards the rink. At least two others—Mayor Ovens and Claire Collins—followed later to promise to equal that donation.

Joseph Jebson, chairman of the Memorial Centre Committee, stated that his committee was in complete accord with the rink plan and would support it.

Can't Use Memorial Money

In reply to a question, Mayor Ovens pointed out that it would not be possible, under the conditions of the charter, to use any of the $300,000 Memorial Centre fund towards the rink.

A suggestion advanced from the audience which drew applause was that the Memorial Centre Committee, who will require an artificial freezing unit for their building, donate such a unit to the rink until it were needed for the Centre. The remainder—an estimated $40,000 for the building—could be easily raised by public subscription and council support, it was contended.

The chairman expressed the opinion that there should be no delay in erecting the rink. This was in reply to Douglas Vaisey who asked: "Is there any guarantee that this will not become a second Memorial Centre fiasco?"

Mrs. William Addyman, president of the Local Council of Women, said: "We, as mothers, are very interested in this meeting, and feel that some action will be taken now." She complimented the officials of the PMHA for their manner of presenting the problem by the meeting.

Ald. Hurrell Dodds pointed out that even after its erection the Memorial Centre will not be able to handle all hockey activities in the city, and that the secondary rink plan was worthy of consideration as a need in its own right.

"There is no reason why a city the size of Peterborough should be humiliated any longer by having to go out of the city to play hockey," he said.

Ald. Douglas Miller presented estimates of the cost to the meeting, stating that these figures had been carefully compiled and could be relied upon as accurate. For $140,000, he said, a rink seating 3,000 to 3,500 people could be constructed. Outside size of the building would be 120 by 240 feet, the ice surface could be 80 by 180 feet, and the building could be erected in four months. The price quoted, he said, included the cost of an artificial ice maker, heating, lighting and plumbing installations.

A lengthy and sometimes heated debate took place on the selection of a site for the rink. Motions, amendments and amendments to the amendments flew wildly. Besides the two most favored choice finally left to the committee, many of the youthful members of the PMHA seated on the sidelines took the opportunity of presenting a choice evidently in favor with many of them:

"How about East City?"

A light-hearted remark from the audience drew laughter amid the flurry of site suggestions, when one citizen mildly suggested a compromise arrangement:

"Why not put the darn thing on wheels and move it from place to place?"

Mayor Ovens stated that arrangements could be made to have either of the sites chosen made exempt from city taxation.

Members of the committee to handle the question were nominated from the audience. They are: Ald. Hurrell Dodds, Richard Ouimet, John Russelle, Charles Kingan, Harold Rehill, Mrs. Frank Lundy, Archibald Weir, Ald. Gordon Armstrong, Ald. Douglas Miller, R. Pammett, S. Parkdale, Frank Buckland, P. Killingbeck, L. Calladine, Mrs. William Addyman and Stanley McBride.

Maurice G. Rea Legion Secretary

Maurice Graham Rea, 463 Stewart St., Peterborough, has been appointed by the executive committee of Branch 52 Canadian Legion to succeed Garfield Torrance as secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Rea was born in Peterborough in 1924 and was educated at King George public school and PCVS. Upon leaving school he became a junior clerk in the local branch of the Bank of Toronto and later joined the Western Clock Company as timekeeper. Adding a few years to his age (he was then 17) he joined the RCA in Peterborough in 1942 and took basic training at Cornwall and Petawawa. His age being discovered he was retained as instructor and took special course in physical training at Long Branch.

He later applied for release in order that he might go overseas but on being refused he was transferred to the RCAF as pilot in 1943. Again disappointment was his lot as the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan had stopped training pilots, navigators and bombardiers, so he remustered as air gunner and graduated from Mount Pleasant, Prince Edward Island as sergeant air-gunner in 1944. Mr. Rea was discharged from the service in February 1945 at Toronto.

His brother, Gunner Ivan Albert Rea was killed overseas in April 1943. Until this week he has been employed by the A. W. Robertson Construction Company Ltd. as progress reporter.

2 Face Charges Receiving Stolen Goods

Two young men are in custody here today as a further result of police investigations of two breaking, entering and theft offences in the city in the past ten days. They are Keith Rankin, 20, and Barry Bremner, 19, both of Toronto, and appeared before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, this morning on charges of being in possession of goods, which they knew to be stolen. Both pleaded not guilty to the charge and were remanded on bail of $1,000 each until Feb. 4.

Members of a crew of four travelling photographers from a Toronto firm, their two fellow crewmen — Lionel Devin and David Billing — are facing sentence on the 4th for charges of breaking, entering and theft of more than $1,200 worth of photo equipment from the Roy Studios last Sunday. Both have pleaded guilty to the charge. Billings, 22, is also awaiting sentence on a charge of breaking and entering the Selkirk Men's Wear store.

The arrest of the final pair was made Thursday. Bremner went to the city jail to visit the first two arrested men. On the lookout for more stolen clothing from Selkirk's, it was noticed that he was wearing a new-looking suit (which was later identified as having come from Selkirk's). He was promptly arrested while at the jail and placed in custody. Rankin, also wearing a new suit, was arrested shortly after this on the street.

Y's Men Report Small Balance

A review of six-year-old Camp Kawartha for boys was the theme of the address given by Jack Stuart at the dinner-meeting of the Y's Men's club held Thursday night.

Commenting on the location he said: "We are fortunate in having a camp in one of the prettiest sections of the Kawartha Lakes." He thanked members of the committee who had made this venture a success, and singled out A. J. "Bun" Henry, president of the committee, and Cookson Munro, past director of the camp, for special praise.

He gave a brief resume of the six years in which there had been a camp. The first was a shaky year, he said; the committee did general repairs and replacements; the second year roofs were patched and a motor and boat were purchased; third, general repairs and a new wharf were started despite local skepticism that the latter would be destroyed by ice during the spring breakup; fourth, wiring begun the previous year was completed, and a new roof put on the boat house; fifth, a new skiff was bought, and floors and buildings were painted; sixth, a new boat, and a new motor were purchased, and the existing pump replaced.

Touching on operation of the summer holiday location, he described it as a "tough problem." He

Teachers' Skill Revealed At Display of Handicraft

Work of those who undertook the handicraft teachers' training last October in leathercraft, art metalwork, and pottery is now on display in the Public Library building. As part of the Recreation Commission's plan for adult education during the fall and winter months, prospective instructors signed for the teachers' course in these three handicrafts on the understanding that they would pass their knowledge on to others at future handicraft centres.

The exhibition will run for three days—Thursday, Friday and Saturday — ending on Jan. 31. During that period those wishing to enroll for the courses may do so.

Cleverly constructed leather goods, carefully worked metalware in copper and sterling silver, and attractively finished pottery—makes it difficult to believe that three months ago almost every one of these persons knew nothing of his chosen craft.

Mrs. M. E. Phippen, Toronto, graduate Universal School of Handicrafts, New York, instructed eight willing students in leathercraft. They were: Mrs. A. Frost, Mrs. C. H. Stuart, Mr. Wm. Purcell, Mrs. G. Northey, Mrs. F. Rothschild, Mrs. R. N. Parker, Miss Irma Allen and Miss Ethel Robson. Out of the class of nine, one dropped out before completion of the training. Mrs. Phippen described the results as "very successful."

Had 22 Lectures

Some 22 lectures were spread over the period from Oct. 31 to the last week in January. The first few dealt with the elements of the course; different types of leather, uses of leather, way it is prepared for tooling, and ways of dyeing. Students were shown the use of tools and had the opportunity of using them. At this stage they made comb cases, key cases, painted book marks, wallets, and small change purses.

Instructing the metalwork class was Mr. S. Hayman, Peterborough. Included in this group were: Mr. A. W. Jennings, Mr. E. Westman, Mr. A. Hill, Mr. H. A. Craig, Mrs. J. W. Miles, Mrs. R. Wilson, Mrs. Jack Nicholls, Miss Jean Scott, and Mrs. C. H. Crowe.

All metalwork was done in copper or sterling silver. The method of annealing and pounding, repeated several times, to mould the raw copper into the desired shape and the finishing with fine steel wool, sandpapering and buffing, were undertaken by each student.

Finely worked silver ear-rings, bracelets, brooches, pendants and spoons seemed as flawless as any commercial display, but they were all done by students of three months. Careful engraving on many of the articles showed obvious patience and skill.

For etching, it was explained, the silver is covered with wax The background is scratched out, leaving the design still with the wax covering which protects the surface when the article is put into corrosive acid.

Will Teach Soon

The 10 members of the class hope to start teaching classes of their own in the near future, and thus pass along their hobby.

Eight would-be teachers finished the pottery course. Included were: Mr. F. E. Hambly, Mrs. F. J. Leach, Mrs. W. M. Lampman, Miss Maralin Munro, Mrs. G Reinhardt, Mrs J. Friskin, Mrs Ida Gadz, Mrs. Robt. Scrutton.

Mr. J. Riedel, Peterborough Art Pottery, was the instructor and he had been doing the firing and glazing of students' work. Mugs, bowls, jugs, cream and sugar sets, teapot stands and modelled animals were all made by those under instruction.

Coloring of pottery was done by pouring "engobe" or coloring clay over the piece of wet pottery. Decorations were put on by "sgraffiato" (designs cut into the clay). More intricate work such as colored inlays was shown.

Twelve-week courses in these three lines are planned for the near future and enrollment will be open to any Peterborough adult. Those who find time hanging heavily on their hands or who wish to cultivate a hobby will have the opportunity of doing so by calling in at the Library and adding their names to the list of those interested.

BOTTLE-FED BABIES

Almost five times as much evaporated milk for infant feeding is used today as compared with 20 years ago.

HANDICRAFTS DISPLAY — The City's Recreation program handicrafts section are showing results of their efforts in the adult education program at the Public Library this week. Experts are teaching adults to become teachers in leathercraft, art metalwork and pottery. Shown beside the leathercraft display are, left to Right, Margaret Noble, Mrs. C. H. Stuart, Mrs. M. E. 160 Die In 1947 At Crossings Board Reports

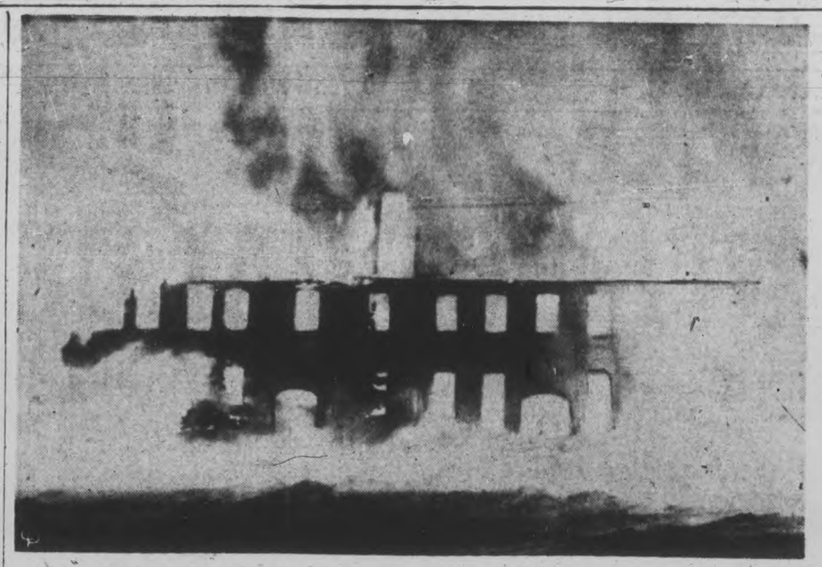
OTTAWA, Jan. 30—One hundred and 60 persons were killed in level crossing accidents in the Dominion last year as compared with 120 killed in the some type of accidents in 1946, preliminary figures of the Board of Transport Commissioners show.



The figures showed a heavy increase in the number of level crossing accidents, 442 last year as compared with 352 in 1946, while the number of persons injured soared to 637 from 427.

Had Clear View

Statistics, still incomplete for 1947, show, however, that a large number of the accidents occurred at crossings where the view was unobstructed, some of them because of panic on the part of drivers after stalling on the crossings; that about 24 per cent happened when automobiles ran into trains already well across the highway, and that where the view was obstructed.

Railway authorities said many of the accidents at crossings where the view was not obstructed were caused by drivers attempting to race trains and that carelessness, drunkenness, or worry on the part of automobile drivers caused the cars to run into the sides of the trains.

Another large proportion of level crossing accidents occurred when automobiles ran into trains. In one case, it was the 40th car of an 80-car train that was hit.

RUINED BY BLAZE—This photo was taken at the height of the blaze in which the Regina Industrial School for Boys was completely gutted Monday evening causing a loss of $100,000. All of the 50 boys escaped unharmed but the school, situated two miles from Regina, is ruined.

Fear Four Dead In Blaze At Inn

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Jan. 30. —(AP).—Four persons were feared dead and at least 12 others were injured early today in a fire which swept the 136-year-old Jesse Welden Inn, causing damage estimated at more than $200,000.

Fire Chief R. H. Sweeney, who estimated damage, said four persons unaccounted for may have perished in the fire.

He added that firemen as yet have been unable to enter the ruins for a search.

Several of the nearly 100 guests in the five-storey 75-room hotel escaped by beating their way through flames or leaping from windows into 16 below zero temperatures.

Royal Commission Men Refused To Reveal Hong Kong Facts-Drew

TORONTO, Jan. 30—(CP).—Premier Drew, who in 1942 acted as counsel for the opposition in the Royal Commission inquiry into the Hong Kong expedition, said Thursday that Maj.-Gen. G. M. Maltby's "statements regarding the Canadians at Hong Kong are entirely in accord with the information before the Royal Commission which was appointed to inquire into this matter in 1942."

In a dispatch written in a Japanese prison camp and made public by the British War Office, Gen. Maltby, who commanded British troops in China at the time Hong Kong fell, said that Canadian units arrived "inadequately trained for modern war," performed "many individual acts of gallantry" and contributed markedly to "stubborn defensive fighting."

Col. Drew, who in July, 1942, charged that the Royal Commission report on the Hong Kong expedition was contrary to the evidence taken at its secret hearings, said in a brief statement yesterday:

"Gen. Maltby's statements regarding the Canadians at Hong Kong are entirely in accord with the information before the Royal Commission which was appointed to inquire into this matter in 1942. The evidence was clear that although the Canadians displayed great courage they were inadequately trained and without some of the most necessary weapons. Nevertheless, they did not hesitate to attack larger forces of well-trained and fully equipped Japanese with the utmost gallantry. The tragic consequences of the inexcusable failure to send the necessary transport vehicles with the ship which carried these two battalions to Hong Kong was fully disclosed at the inquiry. The commissioner's finding in regard to some of the most important details were directly contrary to the evidence."

The Maltby dispatch recalls vigorous political controversy in Canada which followed Hong Kong's fall on Christmas Day, 1941, shortly after the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Rifles of Canada arrived there to join four British units in the garrison.

Following criticism in the House of Commons and outside, notably by Col. Drew, then leader of the Conservative Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff was appointed a royal commissioner early in 1942, to inquire into all circumstances surrounding the expedition.

After lengthy sittings held in camera — at which Col. Drew acted as counsel for the Opposition in the House of Commons — Sir Lyman brought down a report in June 4, 1942, which stated that, subject to certain deficiences in shipping space for transport of vehicles, "Canada sent forward, in response to the British request, an expedition which was well-trained and well provided with equipment."

Col. Drew immediately charged in a statement that the report was not a reflection of the evidence given, and that "secrecy has served no purpose except to hide from the public the evidence of inexcusable blundering, confusion and incompetence which marked every stage of the proceedings . . ." On June 24, the Justice Department announced action against him, based on this statement, under the Defence of Canada Regulations. On July 10, however, when Col. Drew appeared in court in Toronto, the action was dropped, the reason given being that the widespread demand in Parliament and elsewhere for a full and free debate on the commission report made it impossible to proceed with a court action.

Reuther Backs Seaway Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (AP)—Prompt passage of legislation authorizing the St. Lawrence seaway and power project was urged yesterday by Walter P. Reuther, international president of the United Auto Workers Union (CIO).

Reuther, whose organization claims a membership of "almost 1,000,000," telegraphed his plea to Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.-Mich.), president of the Senate.

He said:

"I urge prompt, favorable action on the St. Lawrence project.

"Development of the project will end the risk (of electric power deficits in the northeast area) in the future.

"It will create additional wealth for the whole nation through the expansion of transportation and power facilities and will contribute to the creation of a full production and full employment economy."

In such an economy, he said, the Great Lakes region can have its "rightful outlet to the sea without detriment to the ports and industries of the Atlantic seaboard."

Gas Shortage Worse In Western Ontario

WINDSOR, Jan. 30.—(CP). — Hopes of 22,000 idle workers here that moderating weather might ease natural gas shortages and end industrial shut-downs today were dashed as frigid air settled over most of southern Ontario.

Although not hitting zero as in other districts, the Border City's temperature gave no relief to the industrial paralysis that began two weeks ago when wintry weather halted supplies of gas fuel to major automobile plants.

Today, Mayor Arthur J. Reaume and Lorne R. Cumming, city solicitor are in Toronto to meet with Mines Minister Leslie Frost to review the city's plight. Mayor Reaume said yesterday he had communicated with mayors of Chatham, London, Tilbury, Sarnia and Simcoe, asking them to attend the conference.

Keene United Church Reviews Splendid Year

KEENE, Jan. 30 — (ENS) — The annual congregational meeting of Keene United church was held on Monday with a large attendance and presided over by the Rev. Geo. Murray. The names of those of the congregation who died during 1947 were read, with all present standing and silent prayer offered, followed with prayer by the minister.

Report of the Women's Missionary Society was read by Mrs. Fred Nelson which showed the allocation had been extended during 1947 and $450 given to missions. Mrs. H. Wright read the Women's Association financial report which indicated a busy year and supporting the Victor Home in Toronto; a good balance was on hand. The senior girls' club, C-Amica, report was given by Jean Drummond, who told of this new organization's activities during the year. The Tilicum Class raised a large amount of money and helped needy in the British Flood Victims, Cancer Fund, Triplet Fund, Bible Society and W.M.S. Mrs. Evelyn Anderson read the report. The Young Adult Fellowship Group was reported by Olive Mather, showing a year of activities, sponsoring a musical evening and a banquet for the Young People in co-operation with Tilicum Class.

The Sunday school had a very successful year as reported by Mr. David Edwards, a total membership of 193, money raised $308, $75 to missions, and $31 to China Famine Fund. The church treasurer, W. E. Patterson, read a very gratifying financial statement, also giving to missions whicsh allocation was exceeded. Mrs. A. Rennie reported for Bible Society. Trustee report was read by Stewart Davidson. The work of choir and finance was given by organist Mr. David Potter. Vote of appreciation was given to officers and teachers of Sunday school, also to Mr. and Mr. Rennie and the caretaker. Tom Gall gave an account of boys' work. He referred to the father and son banquet, which was a decided success. A report of the Armstrong memorial library showed new books added and library of much service.

In making a survey of the church work in the parish, the minister stated that much progress had been made. During 1947, 16 new members were added to the church, 23 baptisms, 11 marriages and six deaths. There is a growing interest in Young People's work and all missionary allocations were exceeded. Attendance at church had been well maintained.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the Rev. and Mrs. Murray for their faithful and efficient services during the year. Mr. Murray thanked the congregation for the many kindnesses and happy fellowship both in church and in their homes.

Election of officers was held. Mr. Roy Porter was added to the Session and Dr. H. Wright to the Board of Trustees.

Police Believe Son Killed Father, Brother

LA RIVIERE, Man., Jan. 29—(CP)—The RCMP marked 'closed' today to a case that brought three deaths—the slaying of an elderly farmer and his son and the apparent suicide of another son in this district 100 miles southwest of Winnipeg.

The first two deaths — those of 65-year-old Garnet Sims and 28-year-old Harvey Sims—occurred Wednesday night at the Sim's family home. They were killed by bullets fired from outside the house through the kitchen window. Yesterday the body of 32-year-old Clifford Sims was discovered a few miles away by the side of a river.

An R.C.M.P. officer said Clifford, who had lived on his own farm a few miles from the family homestead, apparently had taken his own life. Police found a .22-calibre rifle beside his body. His brother and father had been killed by bullets from a gun of the same calibre.

ANCIENT SKATES SHARPENED—When Sam Taylor produced a pair of 150-year-old skates at Bert Buott's grinding establishment Wednesday, they caused considerable interest. A Sheffield steel blade fastened to a wooden base, they took a keen edge. Sam says his grandfather William used to use them to skate from Curve Lake to the Methodist Church at Scugog for church services, a distance of 55 miles. Grandson Sam threatens to use them on the occasion of the opening of the city's Community Centre rink, if, as and when. Watching Bert grind the skates are George Robertson, with his daughter Mona Lee and Sam Taylor, Right.

Reduce Waste With Food Checks

Near the top of almost every homemaker's list of new year resolutions should be this one: "I resolve not to waste food nor to let my family waste food."

In a world where there is not food enough to go around, it is shameful for so many garbage pails to be full of still edible things, thrown out in a hasty effort to clean the refrigerator, or because someone in the family complained about having to eat ham for so many meals.

To reduce food waste is a triple effort. First comes careful planning and buying which will do much to solve the left-over problem. Second is careful food preparation, and third, co-operative family effort in cleaning plates and accepting well-prepared left-overs, even if it means ham in some form for a week to use up all of the meat.

Don't buy a large roast or a whole ham unless you are sure your family will eat it down to the last scraps. Only a very foolish homemaker loads up with quantities of perishables, some of which spoil before they can be brought to the table. A bargain is not a bargain unless it can be fully uttilized. To buy a bushel of apples cheap is no saving if half the fruit goes soft before it can be consumed.

Careful food preparation means good cooking, but also, fairly accurate estimates of appetites. If a woman can gauge correctly the amount of food each member of her family is likely to eat in a meal, she has only a very minor left-over problem.

Skill with left-overs comes mostly by experience, but as a rule any food served a second time should appear in a completely new way to keep appetite appeal. Ham, for example, can be prepared in more intriguing ways than almost any other meat. After serving baked ham with sweet potatoes, try starring a casserole of vegetables with just a little ham and a cheese topping. Next time bring the ham out in a more important way again, perhaps as thick slices with an egg on each. The ham bone makes wonderful soup stock, and the fat is a perfect seasoner of baked beans and vegetables.

A family with good food habits won't leave much on the dinner plates, but if there are spoiled appetites to contend with it is the cook's duty to see that lavish portions are not served. If every homemaker would keep a check on the amount of garbage she wraps each day, making an honest effort to see that nothing which is really good food is thrown away, she will reduce her household expenditures and help save food for really hungry persons.

Casserole of Ham and Mushrooms

(Six Servings)

2 cups diced leftover ham
2 cups cooked spaghetti, macaroni or noodles
½ pound sliced mushrooms, sauteed in ham fat
1 cup sliced cooked celery
2½ cups medium white sauce
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 cup grated Canadian cheese

Arrange layers of ham, spaghetti, mushrooms and celery in casserole and add white sauce seasoned with onion (and a little prepared mustard, if you like). Top with grated cheese and brown casserole in 375 degree oven, about 25 minutes.

NAVY AND TANGERINE BRETON—This beautiful big hat is a find for those who are frequently frustrated in the search for a really brimful model which is yet suitable for strictly tailored moments. It is photographed here with a gray sharkskin suit, than which no tailoring can ever be more stark and crisp. The hat is made of fine felt, in a wide Breton shape, the main hat of tangerine color felt, the upper flange of navy blue. Notice the way in which brim is split at one side, and then joined by self lacing.

Cheaper Cuts of Meat Not Lacking In Food Value

OTTAWA, Jan. 30—(CP). — Meat may be necessary on a menu, but these days it also is making a big hole in the housewife's budget.

Home economists urge homemakers to take advantage of cheaper cuts of meat. Tender cuts are expensive, and from the standpoint of food value, they have nothing more to offer than cheap cuts.

Tough cuts should be cooked for a long time at a low temperature, and in moist heat (as in braising or stewing). However, if they are ground, and made into meat loaves or patties, they may be cooked in dry heat.

When it comes to roasts the cook is urged to forget the old-fashioned idea that searing at a high temperature is necessary to keep in the juices. Experiments have proven that searing tends to make the meat dry and cause more shrinkage.

An uncovered shallow pan with a rack is best for roasting. If the pan is covered, steam forms and the moisture which is held in a closed pan gives the meat a water-cooked flavor.

Roast will be well browned, tender and juicy, if cooked at 325 degrees Fahrenheit.

Meat loaf is one of the most tasty and economical dishes a hostess can serve nowadays for luncheon or dinner. The following receipt gives six medium-sized portions:

Ingredients: 1½ pounds minced round steak; two small onions; celery salt; bread crumbs; other seasoning to taste; one tin tomato soup.

Onions, bread crumbs, and seasoning are mixed with the meat which is packed into a loaf tin and covered with the undiluted tomato soup. Baking-time is approximately 20-30 minutes in an oven of 325 degrees.

✧ ✧ ✧

Put that question to any housewife in the know and she'll tell you that when a bird has had at least one birthday its breast becomes firm, its toes show signs of wear on account of scratching for food, and the scales on its legs are dull and dry. Such a bird will be sold as fowl.

Home economists of the agriculture department's consumer section recommend fowls as a good buy. Most of them are small, weighing between 3½ and five pounds, and the meat yield is just as large in proportion to size as from a smaller bird.

Fowl are most suitable for fricasseeing or stewing. While these older hens are not tender enough to roast in an open pan, as recommended for chicken, if braised slowly in a covered roasting-pan, with a little water until almost tender, and then browned with the cover removed, they make good "roast chicken."

A GOOD LINE—The flared, unbelted silhouette means, of course, that the princess line is back again, and most becoming it is too as it is handled today. Here is a simply smart or smartly simple resort dress of black and white dotted crepe, that is sure to be the ticket at home later in the season. The full-skirted princess silhouette uses softly pleated fullness at either side from the nipped in waist. A black button fastening, and a black velvet tie under the pointed collar are other details.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

UNHAPPY WIFE
Bored With Generous, Kind Husband, Seeks Way to End Marriage

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: You are always telling wives what to do ti keep their husbands. How about telling me how to get rid of one? He is a good man, never says an unkind word to me and turns over his entire pay cheque to me. But the trouble is I just don't love him and he gets on my nerves. I have told him this and asked him to leave, but he refuses.

DOROTHY DIX

Sometimes I think of leaving him, but I like my nice, comfortable home and my good bank account. I am so fed up with my husband that sometimes I go for a week without speaking to him and I will not go anywhere with him. What shall I do?

Mrs. H. H. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I should say your technique for alienating a husband's affections couldn't be improved upon. If a cold, peevish, glum wife, who won't go out with him or chum with him at home, doesn't drive a man off in search of the Other Woman, nothing will. Your husband must have the adhesive qualities of a mustard plaster if he sticks to you after the way you treat him.

Flouts Blessings

Certainly your case is a sad one, as it is an unusual one. It is sad because it is pitiful to think of a woman flouting her blessings and having all the material for happiness in her hands and recklessly throwing it away.

Why, there are millions of women who are breaking their hearts over husbands who never give them one proof of love; over husbands who beat and insult and abuse them; over unfaithful husbands, who would give their very souls for a husband such as you have. And there are millions of women who would ask nothing better of Heaven than to have a lovely home and a good bank account like you have.

And you throw them all into the discard! You have no appreciation of your good kind husband, no gratitude for his tenderness and generosity to you and his love for you gets on your nerves. Can you beat it?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 19 years of age. I have a brother of 22 who is out of work. When he was employed he spent all of his money on girls and cars. I work and earn a fairly good salary, and I am trying to save my money as I expect to get married within a year. But my mother insists on my giving half of my salary cheque to my brother. She says he needs the money and that it is not necessary for me to save.

I am so discouraged. What can I do?

DISHEARTENED.

ANSWER: You can do one thing. You can hang on to your money and refuse to give your brother a cent. My advice to you is to pay your mother a fair board and keep the balance of your money for yourself.

HANDBAG OF NEW PROPORTIONS — This new, deep handbag, rather like an unusually large and handsome eyeglass case in shape, is a new model which should be effective rather than concealed by the new voluminous skirts and other current fashion extravagances. Shown here in faille, it also can be had in calfskin and patent leather. The knob lock is gold plated; and the handle straps are slim.

Roasted Meat Cut To The Bone

Left-over roast beef or veal can be given a fresh-cooked flavor if the slices are sauteed in a small amount of butter or drippings for a minute or two before serving them with a sauce or gravy or putting them into a casserole. This trick is usually unnecessary when the meat makes its first reappearance, but for subsequent use it seems to hel pa lot ih making the meat more tender.

When you get down almost to the bare bones of a roast of beef, veal or lamb, try serving the cuttings in a barbecue sauce. In the following recipe a delicious flavor is added when the meat is sauteed in fat after onions have been browned in it.

Barbecued Beef, Veal or Lamb

(Six Servings)

¼ cup sliced onions.
¾ cup drippings
4 cups diced or sliced leftover roast meat
½ cup vinegar
½ cup catsup
½ cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons prepared mustard

Cok onions until yellow in fat, then add meat and brown for a few minutes. Add other ingredients and simmer meat in sauce for five minutes. Serve hot.

Demands Canadian Libel Law Clarified To Protect Press

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA, Jan. 30—(CP).—A demand for the tightening of Canada's criminal code to prevent "circumventing" of the libel law faced parliament today as an outgrowth of Alberta's extradition of two men from Ontario to face trial for conspiracy to commit libel. Charging the Alberta Government action in the New Liberty Magazine case threatened freedom of the press, John G. Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) called on the government last night to close the "gap" in the law that permitted editors to be "drawn from one end of the country to the other" to face libel conspiracy charges.

His impassioned tirade against "evasion" of the principle of the law was ignited by the case, now being heard in Edmonton, of Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto, publisher of the New Liberty Magazine, and Harold Dingman, its Ottawa correspondent, both charged with conspiracy to publish a defamatory libel.

Shortly before he spoke, Justice Minister Ilsley had said in an interview the Government was considering legislation of this kind. Mr. Ilsley heard the speech, but did not comment as the Lake Centre member called on his department for action.

During his half-hour address in the Throne Speech debate, Mr. Diefenbaker was cautioned by Speaker Gaspard Fauteux that he must not infringe on matters before the court.

Wants Law Clear

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was not discussing the facts of the case—"where there is guilt it should be punished," he said—but Parliament had a responsibility to "ensure that the law, as enunciated by Parliament, shall be carried out and shall not be circumvented."

He continued:

"What I have in mind is this: Over the years, freedom in its various forms has been entrenched upon. Freedom of the press is one of those freedoms which must be preserved. Without the freedom of the press, there can be no freedom under parliamentary institutions. There can be no freedom of the press under an autocracy; nor can there be autocracy so long as there is freedom of the press."

Mentioning the Cooke-Dingman accusation specifically, he declared that "in this case a use is being made of the law of libel in this country that was never contemplated by Parliament and, indeed, was denied by Parliament . . . in 1888."

In the Commons proceedings of that year, he said, it had been made clear that libel was subject to trial only in the province where the offending paper was published.

"Responsibility falls on Parliament at this session," he went on, "to assure that never again in our country will freedom of the press be placed in the position where a publisher or an author will be subject to be drawn from one end of Canada to the other to meet charges in various provinces."

The principle that this should not be done had stood the test of 60 years. If it were not honored, no newspaper would dare assert its belief without placing itself in jeopardy of being pprosecuted in nine provinces."

Defeat Amendment

LONDON, Jan. 30 (Reuters).—A Conservative amendment criticizing the Geneva tariff agreement was defeated in the House of Commons yesterday by 256 votes to 111. A government motion to approve the agreements was then carried without further division.

Old Hong Kong Controversy Renewed In Commons

By ROSS MUNRO

OTTAWA, Jan. 30—(CP).—The controversy over Canada's part in the 1941 defence of Hong Kong was revived in the Commons yesterday with a demand that a lengthy 1942 letter by Premier George Drew of Ontario, criticizing the findings of the Hong Kong Royal Commission, be tabled. The demand came from John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, who asked Prime Minister Mackenzie King to table the "Drew correspondence which he agreed to table on July 14, 1942, and which has not been tabled to date."

This letter, dated July 11, 1942, was sent by Mr. Drew to the Prime Minister and the leaders of the three other parties.

On July 14, M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, asked the Prime Minister to table the letter. Mr. King replied that if Mr. Coldwell would, on his responsibility as a member of the Commons, ask him to table it he would.

Mr. Coldwell said he would take this responsibility and the Prime Minister replied that it would be tabled the next day.

However, on July 15, the Prime Minister declined to table the correspondence, explaining that he had obtained legal advice on the question.

This legal advice was to the effect that Mr. Drew's letter contained extract sfrom the evidence presented to the Royal Commission, which was held in private, and to table it would be a violation of the condition under which the United Kingdom Government consented to the disclosure to the commissioner of certain secret communications.

Government legal experts are studying the question now, but it appears that the consent of the British government may still have to be obtained before the Drew letter can be tabled.

The letter was never made public and a government legal authority said tonight he would consider it "improper" to publish it even now, although "prosecution would not necassarily follow such publication.'

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

THE BATH COUP IDEA

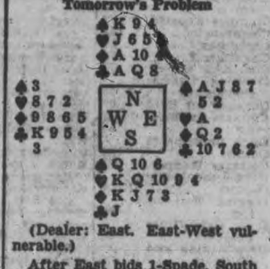
ALL GOOD PLAYERS make use of the device which is known to most of them as the "Bath coup" because it gained its first recognition as a standard maneuver at that famous old European health resort. It consists merely of letting the leader of a king from the king-queen and one or more others win the first trick. If he then repeats the suit, right into the jaws of the ace-jack, the declarer makes two tricks bloom where only one existed before. But have you ever seen that principle applied farther down in the deck?

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	3 NT

Talk about a sudden shot for top! That bid by South was a veritable bridge atom bomb. It blasted the remainder of the auction into smithereens.

West made his natural opening of the diamond Q, since he had no information at all about South's distribution. The declarer did all of his studying before playing from the dummy. He saw that only eight tricks were likely unless West would repeat the diamond suit. Able to read that West almost surely had at least four diamonds, in order to lead them, he hoped it was exactly that number and that East had a fairly high singleton. When the 7 was put on by East, South played the 8.



Since that left both the 5 and 2 out of sight, West reckoned that his partner was giving him an encouraging signal and probably held originally something like the K-10-7-5-2, with South perhaps the A-8.

So West quite naturally repeated, with the diamond J. South won that with the A, used his K and 10 to clear out West's remaining diamonds, also scored two more in the suit and his four side high cards to have his game.

Actually he made a "Bath coup" at one level lower than the play usually is seen, and his entire game depended upon his doing so.

Tomorrow's Problem

After East bids 1-Spade, South 2-Hearts and North 4-Hearts, what is the sound defense?

MR. FRASER QUERIES

Finance Minister Abbott reiterated in the Commons yesterday it was impossible to say how long the current restrictions on imports of lettuce, celery and other fresh vegetables must remain in effect. He was replying to G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West), who asked whether the government could indicate its future plans so growers could determine how much seed to order.

GAS UTILITIES FUNCTIONING

Utilities manager Ross Dobbin says his department has received no complaints from gas consumers in regard to low pressures brought on by the cold weather wave. He points out that certain amounts of condensation and icing in delivery pipes lessens the flow somewhat but the plant output is normal.

told how Cookson Munro had given his services as director without remuneration. The food situation was pretty good there, he said; and he expressed the hope that Bun Henry and his Camp Committee would receive the same co-operation and backing that he received while occupying that position.

The speaker was introduced by Gord Morrison, program committee chairman, and was thanked for his address by President Ken Jackson.

Ted Everitt, Chamberlain St., guest of Errol Wilson, was introduced to the members. The draw prize for the evening was donated by Fred Hill and won by Woody Roberts.

It was pointed out that Peterborough boys had priority in being selected for camp; last year a number of outsiders had their applications turned down. A certificate of camp merit, suitable for framing, was suggested as one way of keeping the group tidy and well disciplined.

Reporting on club funds, Jack Stuart stated that a credit of $342.16 was on hand at the end of the year after camp expenses had been deducted. In 1946 he quoted the figure at $181.67.

As part of the evening's entertainment Bob Simmons and Joe Barnard divided the gathering into two teams and held a quiz-contest. Those giving wrong answers were eliminated leaving the remainder to carry on in the elimination event. The game ended in a draw.

Obituary

ADAM WALKER

The funeral was held on Jan. 17 of Adam Walker, well known stone-cutter of Mount Forest who was active in public life during his 40 years residence there. Since last summer, he has lived in Peterborough. Born in England, he came to Canada in 1909.

He was a member of the former Methodist Church, later the United Church, and of the choirs of both. He was also a member of Garnet Lodge, IOOF and held the office of past grand. He was secretary-treasurer of the fire brigade at Mount Forest since its formation and was a past president and active member in the lawn bowling club there.

Surviving are the widow, the former Alice Ledingham and two sons, Leslie, Toronto and Harold, Fergus. Also surviving are two brothers and three sisters, Robert Walker, Aspatra, England; John, Toronto; Mrs. Edwards (Maggie), Aspatria; Mrs. Robbey (Esther), Flimby, England; Mrs. Alex Patrick (Ellen), Mount Forest.

Cadi Dismisses Assault Charge

LINDSAY, Jan. 30.—(ENS).—"Since you became a grandfather this morning you should bury the hatchet with your son-in-law," Magistrate E. A. Gee told Wilbert G. Hobbs of Lindsay in police court here today. Mr. Hobbs had preferred a charge of assault against Victor Robertson of Lindsay, his 21-year-old son-in-law. Robertson pleaded not guilty of assaulting Hobbs in his home on Christmas eve, and was released on suspended sentence and bonded to keep the peace for one year. His wife gave birth to a baby girl in Ross Memorial Hospital this morning.

Following the alleged attack, Hobbs testified he had to be treated by a doctor. Robertson was apprehended January 25 and was in custody until this morning. He is said to have been drinking at the time of the family quarrel. "I can see no justification for arresting this lad on a warrant and keeping him in custody for six days," said Crown Attorney L. W. Jordan. "He should have been served a summons." A charge against Robertson of non-support of his wife was dismissed.

Hold Funeral For Fire Victims

LAVIGNE, Ont., Jan. 30 (CP).—With the solemn pealing of the church bells and the harsh blast of a January wind as a background, a tiny wooden casket was lowered in the frozen earth here on Thursday afternoon, as the sequel to the worst tragedy ever to strike this Macpherson Township community, 40 miles south-west of North Bay.

The casket contained a few charred bones — the remains of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Donat Ducharme, who perished in the flash fire that completely destroyed their farm home, eight miles from here, early Tuesday morning.

The tiny stone church was almost filled to capacity as Rev. L. D. Bourassa, the parish priest, conducted the simple ceremony. The parents and their four remaining children knelt in silent prayer as the little coffin was carried from the church and thence to the nearby graveyard.

The family lost everything they owned in the fire, escaping the flames in thin night attire.

Plan Mental Tests For Niagara Youth

WELLAND, Jan. 30—(CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury, excluded during two days of testimony concerning statements made to police by two youths accused of murder, was recalled to-day as Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly ruled a decision must be made on the mental ability of one of the pair.

The question of 16-year-old Norman Kindy's mental fitness arose during the "voir dire" session in which defence counsel argued the youth was not mentally fit.

The Stamford Township youth, with 19-year-old Edwin Farrington of Glendale, RI, is accused of the slaying last September 24 of James Bell, 57, who was shot to death in his Stamford Township house. Farrington was removed from the courtroom as the sanity hearing started.

Release Three Men Suspected As Thieves

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 30 (CP).—Police said to-day they had released three men who had been held for questioning since early in the morning as suspected members of a Toronto gang of bond thieves.

The trio in an auto was halted in the east-end after district police were alerted that a car with an armed crew and carrying more than $100,000 in bonds was believed speeding toward London. Police said the suspected trio carried no guns and had no incriminating evidence in their auto.

HOLD SAFETY MEETING

A special meeting for top company officials, under the auspices of the Peterborough-Lindsay section of Industrial Accident Prevention Assoc. of Ontario, was held Wednesday evening at the Kawartha Club. Mr. Ian McRae, C.G.E., was guest speaker and he addressed the gathering on management's part in preventing industrial accidents. He was introduced by Tom Taylor, Canadian Venetian Blinds, and thanked by Geo. Macdonald, De Laval. Harry Baptie was in the chair. Other speakers were Geo. S. Stanton, chairman Central Ontario District, Herb Burley, chairman Belleville-Napanee district, and Bob Holland, past pres. Port Hope-Cobourg section.

BRUCE FREELOVE INJURED

Bruce Edward Freelove, 485 Aylmer St., is in Civic Hospital recovering from a lacerated forehead caused by an industrial accident at a local factory.

Bitter Sorrow

be won.

But friends and foe agreed that Gandhi above all others was responsible for plucking India, known as "the jewel of the Empire," from the British crown.

"Architect" of Freedom

India was divided into an independent Moslem dominion (Pakistan) and a Hindu dominion (India). Earl Mountbatten, governor-general of the latter, referred to Gandhi as the "architect" of Indian freedom. Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, a Gandhi disciple who became prime minister of the Dominion of India, praised him as the "great soul who launched the freedom movement and guided us through the dark period of our struggle."

Fulfillment of Gandhi's dream of freedom saw him weep with sorrow, for freedom meant the division of his country whereas he had wanted it unified. However, convinced that nothing but division would permit a peaceful transfer of power, Gandhi consented to it and it was his word which convinced holdouts among his followers that they also should consent.

When savage communal fighting which had marked the political maneuvrings between Congress Party and Moslem League reached unbelievable fury after the division, Gandhi wept. About him he saw conflict, poverty and ruin.

At a time when he had hoped to enjoy the fruits of his freedom victory he trudged through tropical countrysides in Bengal, Noakhali, Bihar and elsewhere, his cracked feet staining his sandals with blood as he preached his gospel of truth and love, and comforted the victims of the riots.

Spent 12 Years In Prisons

He saw the bodies of men, women and children cruelly slain in those places and in New Delhi. No matter what the world thought of his work, the evidence of violence convinced Gandhi that he had failed in striving for a goal he considered even greater than attainment of freedom — the teaching of his legions of followers to love their enemies as they did their friends.

Everywhere Gandhi was recognized as the master strategist of the Indian independence movement and the engineer of passive resistance and civil disobedience movements which had such an important part in the maneuverings toward independence.

For these and other activities he spent 12 years in prisons and underwent long fasts which sometimes endangered his life.

His Indian followers were countable in the tens of millions, and they gave him devotion difficult for the western mind to understand. In his 1942 passive resistance campaign thousands upon thousands of them courted beatings, imprisonment and confiscation of their properties at his simple call to rise.

Lawyer By Profession

Until the early days of freedom he had influence almost like that of an orchestra leader, firing the people's nationalist spirit or calming them by his call alone. After freedom he once commented that "the time was when whatever I said the Indian masses followed, but today mine is a lone voice."

Gandhi stepped into the world's consciousness from the background of a promising practice as a London-educated young lawyer, after early training in his native India. From London he went to South Africa where he championed Indians and people of Indian descent in their fight for equal rights, and there organized his first civil disobedience campaigns and had his first taste of jail for political activity.

When he returned to India in 1915 he ranked alongside C. R. Das in the India nationalist movement and upon Das' death in 1925 became the recognized leader of the nationalists.

In India as in South Africa he led crusades against conditions which he considered oppressive, but he was loyal to the British crown until Viceroy Lord Linlithgow in September, 1939, declared India at war with the Axis without consulting any Indian legislative body.

Promoted Disobedience

Gandhi's reply was a war-time civil disobedience campaign with independence as its objective. He had halted prior civil disobedience campaigns when his people broke away from his teachings of non-violence, but this time he allowed it to run its course, and it was a course marked by bloodshed

In July of 1942 Gandhi demanded that Britain hand over the government of India to the Indians and then withdraw. The British regarded his political activity as hampering India's resistance to Japan. He was arrested in August when the All - India Congress adopted a resolution advocating civil obedience and Indian independence, but instead of being placed in jail the little leader was held in the Aga Khan's ornate palace at Poona. It was the sixth time he had been imprisoned.

"I always get the best bargains from behind prison bars," he once said.

His hunger strikes often brought about compromises, for the British feared public reaction in event of his death through fasting.

He was interned in the palace for 21 months and then released. His failing health was given as the reason.

Long Hunger Strike

During that period he went on a 21-day hunger strike in protest against "the leonine violence" which he accused the government of using to suppress the civil disobedience campaign, and against the policy of locking up members of the All-India Congress party. On only two of his eight previous fasts since 1918 had he gone that long without food.

Lord Linlithgow tried to dissuade Gandhi from his fast at Poona because of his poor health. He characterized it as "political blackmail for which there can be no moral justification."

When Gandhi was released from interment he wanted to know what the war situation was. Medical advisers tried to persuade him to rest, but the emaciated little man remonstrated: "Let me know what is going on around me. If I am to die, let me not die an ignorant man."

Death of His Wife.

His fasts were for various causes—for pennance, for protest, for attempts to bring about reforms. Two were announced at the start as being "unto death." In 1947 he fasted for three days to protest the Hindu-Moslem strife in Calcutta. That was his tenth fast. He told communal leaders that the one responsible for the next "untoward" incident "must be the first to jump into the fire" and that his own next fast would be "unto death."

During his confinement in the Aga Khan's palace, his wife of 61 years died. She had been in internment with him. Gandhi so overshadowed his wife that she was called "the woman nobody knows."

They were married when both were 13 under what the Indian leader once described as "the cruel custom of child marriage." By the time she was 18 she had borne three children. After the birth of their fourth son their relationship, at Gandhi's suggestion, became as brother and sister.

Gandhi was born October 2, 1869, at Porbander, and was reared in an anti-British atmosphere. His father, who had been premier of several small native states, once went to jail rather than apologize to a British commissioner he had taken to task in public.

Labor Costs Are 38 Cents In Every Newsprint Dollar

MONTREAL, Jan. 30—(CP)—R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, today tackled the question of who gets the newsprint dollar, in an address before the Association's annual luncheon.

His answer, based on replies from 12 companies with total incomes of $400,000,000 was:

"Out of each dollar received in the first 10 or 11 months of 1947, 19.2 cents went to direct labor in the mills and offices; 28½ cents to provide wood. Wood cost includes, woods labor, probably at least two-thirds; is it is fair to say that labor employed directly in the industry, in the mills and woods, received over 38 cents of every dollar that came in.

"Other materials required in manufacture account for 15.5 cents; power and fuel 7.9 cents. Taxes paid to federal, provincial and municipal governments (but not including stumpage dues and other governmental payments included in wood costs) took 12 cents. Depreciation of plant and machinery required 4.8 cents and bond interest 1½ cents. This left 3.9 cents paid out as dividends to shareholders and 6.7 cents held in company funds as a so-called 'surplus'."

Taken At Random

Mr. Fowler said the 12 companies supplying the figures were selected more or less at random from those whose current accounting systems would allow a breakdown to be made quickly and easily. "However, the 12 companies manufactured all kinds of products—pulps, newsprint, paperboard, fine papers, wrapping papers—and their tonnages totalled nearly 60 per cent of the total industry production."

"Surplus account is often regarded as the property of the shareholders, but except in the event of a liquidation, it is no such thing. It is money that is voluntarily left in the business by the shareholders to keep it running and financially sound."

Mr. Fowler gave the following statistics on the pulp and paper industry:

Operates 113 mills in Canada; is responsible for the direction of enterprises employing 50,000 Canadians on a full-time basis and many other thousands as seasonal workers; controls well over $1,000,000,000 of capital; pays out in salaries and wages to full-time employees approximately $115,000,000 annually; produces goods valued at more than $700,000,000 a year, of which more than $530,000,000 goes into export trade; is the largest buyer of transportation and electric power in Canada and is among the largest buyers of fuel, agricultural products and chemicals; is the largest single element in the Canadian economy, both domestically and internationally.

Radio Networks, Petrillo Reach Terms

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 — (AP). — Radio programs originating on standard United States networks may be duplicated over frequency modulation stations beginning Sunday as a result of an agreement reached yesterday between James C. Petrillo and the four major networks.

The agreement also calls for a 60-day extension of the terms of the present contract between the networks and the American Federation of Musicians (A.F.L.) due to expire tomorrow midnight.

Announcement of the developments came in a joint announcement by the musicians union president and officials of the networks — ABC, CBS, NBS and NBC.

The terse statement disclosed that Petrillo is dropping his demand for the networks to try to have affiliated stations employ more musicians. This action and the lifting of the ban on FM duplication of standard radio musical programs were regarded in industry circles as a softening of Petrillo's stand. They boosted hopes for an agreement lifting the union ban on live music for television.

Several points remain to be settled when negotiations are resumed March 1. Among these are Petrillo's demands for higher pay and employment of more musicians by the networks themselves. The networks have demanded that they be exempt from the union's recording ban to the extent of making recordings for one-time broadcasts and for delayed broadcasts.

Record Crowd Attends Hugh Stewart Sale

Rated as one of the largest farm sales in the Peterborough district for some years, a record crowd attended the auction sale at Lakehead Farm, Thursday.

Gordon Hancock, auctioneer, reported that as far as attendance was concerned it was the largest sale he had seen. At one time during the afternoon the Provincial Police controlling traffic on the highway had more than a mile-long lane of cars to shepherd into the adjoining field used as a parking lot. The field adjoining the farm was packed with cars.

Having purchased the estate of the late T. S. Kerr, Hugh Stewart, Hill Top Stock Farm, had a complete dispersal sale. Mr. Hancock said that the stock and equipment on the estate were in first class order and the sale went off without a hitch as far as the bidding was concerned, and which was brisk the whole time.

The sale commenced at 12.30 and the livestock ring was in the yard. So cold was the weather that the selling was transferred to the barn and as this too proved to be a chilly place to stand around while the sale progressed, the sale ring was again moved into the stables.

Included in the sale were 95 head of Hereford and Shorthorn cows and young stock; 150 hogs, all ages; and 500 hens. There was a full line of farm machinery and equipment, all in excellent order. The sale concluded at 5.30 p.m.

Dick's rolling lunch stemmed much of the inconvenience caused by the intense cold by arriving in time to sell hot coffee and sandwiches. Buyers from Oshawa, Bobcaygeon, Campbellford and Port Hope were among many of the bidders.

Two Face Charges

When pleading not guilty this morning, Rankin said:

"I am pleading guilty to having the suit, but I didn't know it was stolen." The plea was registered as not guilty.

Acting Det. Sgt. John Stevenson and Acting Det. William Clarke said this morning that the final piece of stolen goods from the Roy Studios had been accounted for with the discovery of a camera Thursday afternoon on a shelf in one of the rooms of the accused. There had been five or six articles in the loot pawned in Toronto, they said.

NAB YOUTH, RECOVER BLOW PAYROLL

PAYROLL ROBBED HERE—While workmen ate their lunches in a room adjoining the office of the Blow Foundry, McDonnel Street, a robber lifted the $900 cash payroll in the office cupboard. Owner Ken Blow demonstrates how the culprit pried the hasp from the cupboard door with a moulder's tamping rod and shows how the pressure exerted broke the door jamb but not the lock. Arrest Made At 4 a.m.; Cash Intact

Wm. Green, Toronto Pleads Guilty In Court Today

Arrest of 19-year-old William A. Green, 304 George St., Toronto, early today climaxed discovery of theft of the weekly payroll of the Blow Foundry during noon hour on Friday. The youth entered a plea of guilty to charges of breaking, entering and theft when, at his own request, Magistrate W. R. Philp reconvened police court to take the plea. The youth had been remanded, without plea, only a few moments previously. He will appear for sentence on February 7.

An employee of the foundry, where he worked as a moulder, Green was seized by city detective William Clarke about four o'clock this morning.

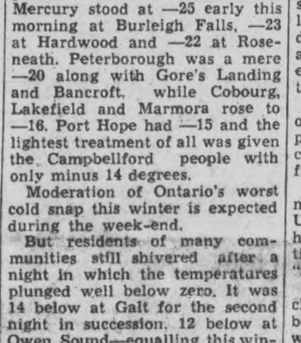
$760.60 Payroll

This plea climaxed a 17-hour period since first discovery of the loss of the $760.60 payroll had been made about one o'clock Friday afternoon by factory manager Douglas Liberty and owner Kenneth Blow. The door to the office had been locked on their return, and the cupboard in which the money had been locked had been smashed open.

The police movements leading to Green's arrest early this morning concluded an all-night tracking and a vigil in sub-zero weather by police constables and city detectives.

First "lead" to the suspect was obtained while questioning workmen at the foundry. Several commented on an unusual occurrence Friday morning. Green had told them he would not be eating lunch with them that day because he had no money. This was regarded with surprise, at a time so close to paying time and when the money could have been borrowed and returned a few hours later.

Traced By Police



Green was traced from that time on. According to police, reward for the long, chilled watch came about 4 o'clock today, when they state that Green drove to the foundry. Hidden watchers, saw him enter the room in the foundry where the carpenters' toolboxes are kept and removed a cardboard box from his locker there.

The arrest and recovery was made a short time later, when, with the

DOWN AGAIN! BELOW ZERO

Mercury Dips To 20 Below For Second Night

The orgy of teeth chattering and furnace stoking goes on apace with temperatures that remain constantly low in thermometers throughout the country. Arctic air is still deep over the Province but temperatures are expected to moderate as the cold mass gives away to a warmer one from the south to-day and Sunday. Omemee and Apsley were the lowest points in the district, both at —30.

Increasing cloudiness with occasional light snow showers are probable in most sections Sunday. Mercury stood at —25 early this morning at Burleigh Falls, —23 at Hardwood and —22 at Roseneath. Peterborough was a mere —20 along with Gore's Landing and Bancroft, while Cobourg, Lakefield and Marmora rose to —16. Port Hope had —15 and the lightest treatment of all was given the Campbellford people with only minus 14 degrees.

But residents of many communities still shivered after a night in which the temperatures plunged well below zero. It was 14 below at Galt for the second night in succession, 12 below at Owen Sound—equalling this winter's low record in that citl — and 30 below at the Grey County town of Hanover.

The official low at Kitchener was 20 below for the second successive night. It was Kitchener's seventh sub-zero night this month.

Intermittent light snow and milder temperatures are forecast for Sunday over most of the province. Temperatures in western and southwestern Ontario are due to start rising this afternoon.

The forecast of higher temperatures was good news to the industrial area of southwestern Ontario where plants in Windsor and elsewhere are in the second week of a shutdown brought on by the gas shortage.

Oil Supplies Adequate For Canada

Ottawa Statement Say Canadians Must Take It Easy

OTTAWA, Jan. 31 — (CP). — Canadian's could look forward today to enough fuel oil for their winter's heating, but they had a government "go slow" signal on their use of the tight commodity for all of 1948.

The assurance and the caution came from Trade Minister Howe, who told the Commons yesterday the Dominion would be able to get by the cold months without hardship generally, though there might be some cases of individual shortages.

Meanwhile Canada, concerned over a move in the United States Senate to embargo exports of petroleum products from that country, was untouched by the first official U.S. action in that direction.

This was a cut of 18½ per cent in shipments of oil and gasoline from the U.S. to foreign countries now getting these products under quota. The step was announced at Washington yesterday.

A Canadian spokesman said this country was not affected, since Canada did not draw her large supplies of petroleum products from the U.S. under quota and was not regarded as a "foreign country" for purposes of this trade.

Canada is permitted to use her own discretion in regulating imports, and in fact just recently decided to slash fuel oil purchases from below the border by half.

Mr. Howe said that the still-remaining flow of fuel oil from the U.S., coupled with what Canada has in storage, will be enough to tide the Dominion over the winter "adequately."

But care would have to be exercisd for all of this year, he said, because the supply situation would remain just as "stringent" as in 1947.

Eats Hole In Wall

MASON, Mich., Jan. 31 — (AP).—A starving cocker spaniel puppy was rescued from a deserted home today after it had chewed its way through the side of the building. Warden William Disler said the six-months-old dog chewed a hole in the gable end of the second floor and made an opening large enough to get its head out.

ON MISSING PLANE — Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham, an Australian by birth and celebrated RAF figure who was a passenger on the British-South American Airways transport plane reported missing on an Atlantic flight from the Azores to Bermuda.

30 Planes Seek Airliner With 29 Aboard

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 31—(CP)—More than 30 aircraft from nearby Kindley Field and other United States air force coastal bases today were scheduled to cover 70,000 square miles of Atlantic waste northwest of here in the second day's search for a Tudor IV airliner with 29 aboard, missing since early yesterday.

Eight planes combed the area all last night after an intensive patrol of 19 aircraft throughout Friday circled over the rough, choppy seas without sighting the British South American Airways liner.

Sir Arthur Coningham, Air Chief Marshal who won fame with the RAF during the North African campaign, was aboard the missing plane.

Another passenger was H. Ernest Brooks, assistant to the secretary of the British treasury, en route to Bermuda on business.

An airways official said last night the passenger list gave a crew of six and 23 passengers. The complete list of names was not released, however.

(In London the Ministry of Civil Aviation said the airliner was "presumed lost." The office announced a public inquiry will be held.)

U.S. Army Air Force officials said the hunt was being made on the assumption that a crash landing had been made successfully with at least some of the crew and passengers able to board life rafts carried in the plane.

Returning pilots reported adverse flying weather had hindered the search.

Sir Arthur, who retired last November, was coming here to visit Sir Richard Fairey, head of Britain's Fairey Aviation Company.

The marshal had worked with the British 8th Army in North Africa and formed the first tactical air force in that theatre in 1943. He also took part in the Italian campaign.

Last word from the plane came at 1 a.m. Friday, two and a half hours after it was due to land here. At that time the pilot radioed he was still 440 miles northwest of Bermuda and was bucking strong headwinds.

Son Lights Gandhi's Pyre As Thousands Sob; India Gripped With Fear

Rioting In Bombay Causes 15 Deaths Assassin Arraigned Secretly Held Without Bail Under Heavy Guard

NEW DELHI, Jan. 31 — (AP). — Mohandas K. Gandhi's youngest son touched off the funeral pyre that consumed the wasted body of the martyred Mahatma today in the Hindu tradition. Tens of thousands of Indians, sobbing and shouting the Mahatma's name, surged forward as Devadas Gandhi, heavy with grief, placed live coals on the pyre just above his father's heart and set ablaze the lower portion of the pile of sandalwood logs.

A tremendous sobbing chant surged from the crowd—a Hindu hymn for India's prophet of peace, who was struck down last night by an assassin's bullet as he went to a prayer meeting. In a mighty roaring unison, the crowd chanted the prayers of the last rites, as police struggled to restrain the grieving people.

Devadas Gandhi's face was taut with the strain as he applied the coals. The sandalwood crackled. Smoke spiralled heavenward. The Mahatma's ashes are to remain at the pyre, on the banks of the River Jumna, for a day and a half. Then they are to be gathered and taken to the River Ganges—sacred to his Hindu faith—and thrown into the waters in the manner traditional with Hindus.

India was gripped with fear of what may come in the wake of Gandhi's violent death. Rioting in Bombay, which took 15 lives yesterday, subsided somewhat, but in Poona, the office of an extremist Hindu newspaper was burned.

Sullen Poona crowds attacked the property of persons known to have opposed Gandhi. Tilak Memorial Hall was set afire as crowds searched for anyone possibly connected with the assassin. Bombay police arrested five persons suspected of being implicated.

New Delhi police disclosed that Gandhi's accused assassin had been arraigned secretly and held without bail for investigation of murder. He was arraigned under the name of Narayan Vinayak Gadse of Poona. The 25-year-old assassin had pumped bullets into Gandhi's chest and leg at close range.

The procession of the Jumna river was tumultuous all the way. At one point, Prime Minister

Two Children Perish As Home Burns

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 31—(CP). —Two small children were burned to death today in a fire which destroyed a frame house in suburban South London.

The children's mother, Mrs. Gerald Donovan, escaped from the blazing dwelling but, because of her hysterical condition, was unable immediately to give details of the tragedy.

The father, employed at a bakery in London, had left the house about an hour before the fire broke out at mid-morning.

Firemen, who said the cause of the blaze was not yet determined, added that they believed the victims were less than 3 years old. Their names were not learned immediately.

Frank Stack Places Sixth

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 31—(CP).—Frank Stock, 42-year-old Winnipeg veteran, placed sixth today in the Olympic 500-metre (547 yards) speed-skating championship, but stole the show with a crowd-thrilling finish, beating out Mats Bolmstedt, the Swedish competitor with whom he was paired, by one yard.

Although tied for sixth place, Stack who finished in 43.6 was only half a second behind the Olympic record time of 43.1 set by the winner, 21-year-old Finn Hegelsen of Oslo, Norway.

Bob Fitzgerald and Ken Bartholomew, both of Minneapolis, finished in a three-way tie for second with Tom Byberg of Norway in 43.2.

Alone in fifth position was Ken Henry of Chicago.

There were 42 competitors and the races went off in pairs. Stack, Canada's "silver fox" of the speed lanes, was behind until 100 metres from home when he overlook Bolmstedt with a flashing drive and held his lead to cross the line by just a little more than a yard.

Stack was the oldest competitor in the race.

World Leaders Shocked Mourn Gandhi's Passing

LONDON, Jan. 31—(AP).—India got an appeal for peace today from Prime Minister Attlee as both British Dominions of the vast sub-continent mourned the death of Mohandas Gandhi. "I am certain his spirit will continue to animate his fellow countrymen and will plead for peace and concord," Attlee said last night in a radio tribute to the famed Hindu spiritual leader.

The British Prime Minister described Gandhi as "one of the outstanding figures in the world today."

Elsewhere throughout the world, leaders expressed shock and grief over the assassination of the little peacemaker.

In Washington President Truman paid tribute.

In South Africa Premier Jan Christian Smuts described Gandhi as "one of the great men of my time."

In China Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek voiced profound sorrow. "A great spiritual leader has been taken away from a world which can ill spare him," he said.

In Durban, South Africa, Gandhi's youngest son Manilal, was grief stricken when he heard the news.

"He was not only my father but the father of all India," he said.

Britain's press eulogized the Indian leader in terms of reverence.

The Liberal News Chronicle expressed hope for a miracle which would "evoke out of this great tragedy the beginnings of peace and unity for India."

The Daily Graphic said: "His murder has relit the fires of hatred and a new outbreak of rioting threatens to undo the work of pacification to which he was dedicated."

The Daily Express commented: "Now truly India stands on the brink of fearful perils."

Plane Inventor Orville Wright Dies At Age 76

DAYTON, O., Jan. 31—(AP)—Orville Wright, 76, co-inventor of the airplane, died last night Friday at 10:40 p.m. in Miami Valley Hospital.

Death resulted from a lung congestion and coronary arteriosclerosis.

Dr. Brower said his patient, experiencing difficulty in breathing, asked to be placed back in an oxygen tent Thursday night. He apparently still was being given oxygen at the time of his death.

The first man to fly in a motor-driven, heavier-than-air machine, Orville Wright was born in Dayton, Aug. 19, 1871, the son of Bishop Milton Wright of the United Brethren Church.

Ministerial careers were planned for Orville and his older brother, Wilbur. However, a toy given them by their father changed all that. A "flying spinner," intended as a boyhood pre-occupation, became the inspiration for their experiments with the airplane.

The primitive gadget, fashioned from cork and bamboo and covered with paper, formed two screws which were driven in opposite directions by rubber bands.

In boyhood, Orville and Wilbur dreamed of the days when they could fly. With maturity, the Wright brothers continued their interest in mechanics and opened a bicycle shop. Their boyhood dreams of aerial flight returned.

They built a wind tunnel and applied the laws of aero dynamics to crude frameworks of wood and metal.

The climax to these experiments came at Kitty Hawk, N.C., on Dec. 17, 1903, when Orville drove the contraption of wood, wire and cloth

Villagers Oppose Bylaw

Threaten To Secede From Township

KAKABEKA FALLS, Ont., Jan 31 — (CP). — So far as the villagers of Kakabeka Falls are concerned, they're mad enough to "secede" from the rest of Ontario.

Residents of this tiny municipality 20 miles west of Fort William are up in arms over a restricted-area by-law prepared by the council of the township of Oliver. They've suggested to the Ontario Municipal Board that Kakabeka Falls dissociate itself from the township and become a village unto itself — the village of Volice.

The situation came to light when W. J. Moore and R. E. Yeats members of the Municipal Board, journeyed to Kakabeka Falls to conduct a hearing into the proposed by-law. There was hardly a citizen of Kakabeka Falls missing at the meeting in the community hall.

The residents hurled a barrage of questions and comment at the two Board members for 90 minutes. Boiled down it meant simply that Kakabeka Falls didn't want any part of the proposed by-law.

The villagers admit that in spirit and intention the by-law might be worthwhile. It is designed to beautify the village of Kakabeka Falls and provides that all future buildings must have an evaluation of $2,000.

Norway, Sweden To Get Medals

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 31 — (CP). —Norway and Sweden won the first gold medals in the dissension-plagued fifth winter Olympics to-day as the bitter hockey war continued to rage.

Despite an International Olympic Committee order cancelling the sport, the hockey tournament continued, and the Amateur Hockey Association team of the United States, beaten in its opening start yesterday, swamped Poland 23-4.

Twenty-one-year-old Finn Helgesen of Oslo, Norway, captured the 50-metre (547 yards) speed-skating title in 43.1 seconds, and cracking the Olympic mark by 3-10th of a second. Frank Stack of Winnipeg placed sixth in the event, one-half second of Helgesen's record time.

Sweden's Martin Lundstroem won the gruelling 18-kilometre (a little more than 10 miles) cross-country ski race in 1 hour 13 minutes 50 seconds. The event was dominated by Swedish and Norwegian skiers.

A 48-year-old London refrigerator dealer, R. E. A. Bott, captured the handicap event in suicidal Cresta bobsled run with a mark of 2:55.8 for three courses down the 1,320-yard treacherously-steep track.

The winter carnival continued on a somewhat stormy course, with squabbles of a minor nature rising alongside the hockey feud.

The United States team posted an overnight guard over its bobsled after discovery that the sleds had been tampered with before yesterday's initial two-man tests. The damage was fixed before the runs were made.

3 Face Conspiracy Charges In Supreme Court Monday

EDMONTON, Jan. 31 (CP). — Unprecedented charges of conspiring to publish a defamatory libel, laid against a magazine publisher, a newspaper reporter, and a welfare authority, will be tried in Alberta's Supreme Court with their first appearance set for next Monday.

In Police Court here yesterday Magistrate Harold L. Hawe ordered the three Ontario persons committed for trial despite defence contentions the charges were an evasion of the Criminal Code and a challenge to the freedom of the press in Canada.

Magistrate Hawe set bail at $1,000 surety filed for each of the accused—Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto, publisher of New Liberty Magazine; Harold Dingman, of Ottawa; and Dr. Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, one of Canada's best-known welfare experts.

As the four-day preliminary hearing wound up yesterday, defence counsel contended that the charges launched by the Alberta Attorney-General's Department were "improper," submitting the conspiracy counts had been laid to evade the Criminal Code and have the defendants tried in Alberta courts instead of Ontario, where the alleged offence occurred.

Defence counsel had arranged with Mr. Justice S. J. Shepherd to dispense, with the formality of having the three accused appear when the Assizes open on Monday, but S. H. McCuaig of Edmonton, counsel for Mr. Cooke, said late yesterday the Crown had "insisted" that Mr. Cooke and Mr. Dingman appear before Mr. Justice Shepherd.

Mr. McCuaig said the defendants would be asked to plead to the charges Monday. Counsel then will discuss a date for their trial, which will be set by Mr. Justice Shepherd. If an adjournment is granted Monday, the trial will be postponed until the April Assizes.

Meanwhile Justice Minister Ilsley has announced the Dominion Government is now considering amending the criminal code to ensure that persons charged with conspiracy to commit libel shall be tried in the province where publication occurred, a stipulation now in the code for trials of persons accused of libel.

It is not known whether such an amendment if passed before the Supreme Court trial begins, would affect the case which grew out of publication in the Dec. 27 issue of New Liberty magazine of an article in connection with Alberta child welfare administration.

Mr. Cooke, Mr. Dingman and Dr. Whitton are charged jointly on four counts of conspiring to publish a defamatory libel—twice under the criminal code and twice under common law — and Mr. Cooke faces the further charge of counselling a magazine distributor to publish a defamatory libel.

At the preliminary hearing, the prosecution concentrated on endeavoring to show there was sufficient evidence to warrant a trial.

Rescue 2 Police In Belleville Fire

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 31 — (CP) — Firemen rescued two R.C.M.P. officers from a window early today as fire gutted the two-storey Chamber of Commerce building, causing an estimated $100,000 damage to the stone structure and an adjoining brewers' warehouse.

Constables W. Christy and T. Hole found the stairs blocked by flames after they had turned in alarm from the second-storey R.C.M.P. offices and were taken by ladder from a window when firemen arrived.

The building is opposite the city hall in midtown Belleville.

Firemen fought the blaze with five hoses for three hours before bringing it under control.

The grey limestone structure is the former Senator Corby building, and is attached to the Brewers' Warehouse by an arcade.

Firemen, hampered by the bitter cold, fought to confine the flames to that block and were still pouring water on the smoking ruins four hours after the blaze was discovered.

Cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

22,000 Workers Hope For Warmer Weather

WINDSOR, Jan. 31.—(CP). — This city's 22,000 workers made idle by lack of natural gas fuel, today took heart in two optimistic statements — one by Mines Minister Frost of Ontario, the other by official weather forecasters.

As the border city entered its third week of industrial paralysis caused when severe cold hit southern Ontario, halting normal flow of gas fuel to plants, Mr. Frost announced formation of a committee representing all natural-gas-consuming municipalities to deal wtih the present crisis and long-range fuel-planning."

Weather forecasters were hopeful that general moderating temperatures across southern Ontario would send the mercury climbing before the week-end—easing domestic consumption of gas and, perhaps sparking gradual renewal of flow to industries.

Miners Draft Referendum

Mine Strike Action Forestalled

GLACE BAY, N.S., Jan. 30 — (CP). — With expiration date of their present contract extended until Feb. 25, officials of District 26 United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) will prepare a referendum to place before 13,000 Maritime coal miners to decide which, if either, of two Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation wage-increase offers will be accepted.

The announcement, forestalling [illegible] strike action if the agreement [illegible] expired at midnight tonight, was announced by Pres.dent Freeman Jenkins of the district after negotiations concluded here yesterday.

Dosco offered a choice between a flat 40-cent daily increase with other benefits or a 55-cent boost subject to six conditions covering working agreements. Either increase would be added to the current daily basic wage of $7.24.

Mr. Jenkins said the accepted proposal would be retroactive to Feb. 1 but he and other union executives declined to comment on the offers.

The district board will meet [illegible] referendum for the membership.

Mob Violence Sweeps Indian Cities

Police Open Fire In Both Cities To Quell Attacks

BOMBAY, Jan. 31. (Reuters)—Grief-maddened crowds, shouting "Burn them out" exploded in sudden scenes of violence in Bombay and Poona today as a minute-by-minute radio description of the funeral of Mohandas K. Gandhi, assassinated in New Delhi yesterday, boomed out over the loudspeakers set up in the streets.

In both cities large numbers of people were attacked and in some cases crowds set on fire a number of premises connected with India's extreme orthodox Hindu political organization—the Hindu Mahasabha which has followed the communal line in contrast to the congress standpoint of Hindu-Moslem unity.

Police opened fire in both cities to quell attacks on the Mahasabha, to which Gandhi's alleged assassin, Antha Rah Godse, at one time belonged.

A curfew had been imposed in one area until 7 p.m. local time.

Police armed with Sten guns patrolled Bombay in jeeps and Gurkha troops manned armored cars and moved through crowded streets as official industrial and business life came to a complete standstill to mourn Gandhi's death.

Meanwhile, criminal investigation department men carried out intensive searches of a number of buildings over the greater Bombay area in an endeavor to find clues of a reported Gandhi assassination conspiracy.

It was learned that they had arrested five persons suspected of being involved in a plot. More arrests were expected.

By early afternoon Bombay disturbances appeared to have halted, though large crowds were still moving through the northern part of the city, where a few shopkeepers who had tried to keep open had their goods dragged out into the streets and burned.

At Poona six people associated with Hindu Mahasabha activities were detained following police searches. The reason was not known.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Jan. 31 — (CP). — Trade in the Winnipeg Grain Exchange featured eastern processor demand in oats with light offerings and a more moderate buying trend from shippers in barley. Offerings were more liberal in the commodity.

Rye trade was irregular as early commission house demand prompted price boosts which later were deflated when selling appeared. The action was attributed partially to sympathy with the Chicago Board of Trade trends.

Export business reported was the allocation of 130,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to the United Kingdom under the wheat contract agreement.

St. John's Paper Never Missed In 100 Years

ST. JOHNS, Que., Jan. 31 — (CP).—The St. Johns News which celebrated the centenary of its foundation this week, boasts of a record that few other Canadian weeklies can claim—5,200 consecutive issues without a break for the past 100 years.

The St. Johns News is also proud of the fact that its editor is the only English-speaking member of the staff, although the paper is published in English.

Despite two fires in 1875 and 1942, the News has never missed an edition.

Messages of congratulation have poured in all week to Editor Lawrence G. Gage from all parts of Ontario, including letters from Prime Minister King, Premier Maurice Duplessis, members of parliament, publishers, business firms and scores of readers.

W. W. Smith founded the News in Phillipsburg, Que., and the first edition was published on Jan. 27, 1848. The paper was then called the Mississiquoi News and Frontier Advocate.

Two years later, Smith moved to St. Johns where the plant has remained since he was succeeded by his son, E. R. Smith. Others who have contributed to the unbroken record of the News include the late Dr. A. H. Moore, who later became president of King's College, Halifax; A. B. Wood, now president of the Sun Life Insurance Company; Sir Herbert Ames, Sir George Perley and Sen. George G. Foster.

for 12 seconds, travelling 120 feet. It was the first sustained flight by man in a heavier-than-air machine.

Four flights were made that day with Wilbur alternating. On one of the flights, Wilbur stayed up 59 seconds and swooped 852 feet across the sand dunes.

In 1908, the brothers formed the Wright Company and began manufacturing planes commercially.

After the death of Wilbur Wright in 1912, Orville virtually retired from the limelight. In recent years, he had been a frequent consultant to Wright Field army engineers.

A bachelor, Orville once was asked why he never took a wife. He pointed to his airplane and replied: "You can't support both."

The early tests "convinced us," Mr. Wright said later, "that our theories were sound. We could control the craft, even if it was largely by shifting the weight of our bodies from one side to the other."

Thus it was that man took to the air as the result of the efforts of two brothers who ran a bicycle shop.

Queen's Blanked

MONTREAL, Jan. 31 (CP). — McGill University Redmen, with goalie Jack Gelineau turning in a stellar effort, last night blanked tail-end Queen's University 5-0 in an Intercollegiate Senior Hockey League game before 4,000 Forum fans.

The victory left Dave Campbell's Redmen still two points behind league-leading University of Toronto, who walloped University of Montreal at Toronto last night.

McGill had a margin in play for the first two periods, scoring once in the opening frame and three times in the middle session, but when Queen's turned on the power in the last heat Gelineau had to be sharp to keep his cage clear while his teammates were adding another marker to wind up the scoring.

Jawaharlal Nehru was reported to have rescued a woman endangered by the crush.

Women Fainted

Women fainted in the tremendous crush of people. Children collapsed under foot. Men bled from wounds inflicted by the flailing stocks of those fighting for a view of the procession.

Hour by hour the crowd grew along the five-mile route from Birla House to the river, until tens of thousands of Indians milled about in turmoil, ceaselessly shouting the name of the Mahatma. The cry "victory to Gandhi!" rang out frequently above the clamor.

People crowded the rooftops, clung precariously on the walls, crushed into any possible vantage point along the line of march as the procession crept ahead, travelling less than a mile an hour.

A large force of Gurkha infantry with rifles slow-marched at the head oof the procession, which grew constantly as spectators fell in at the end. The great mass of humanity oozed toward the river amid wails of lamentation. Every hundred yards or so the procession was forced to halt.

All through the night a great crowd had kept a reverent vigil outside Birla House. This was a brooding crowd, standing silently through the chill early morning in mute tribute to the great leader.

As the sun broke through the morning mist, long files of the people passed into Birla House and through the open door of the room where Gandhi lay on a rose strewn bier.

Gandhi's body had been bathed during the night in accordance with Hindu tradition. At 4 a.m., a simple prayer service was conducted in the flickering light of castor oil lamps burning constantly to light the way of the Mahatma to heaven.

The room was heavy with the scene of roses. Gandhi's relatives and his close friends sat around the bier, chanting from the scriptures of the Hindu,, Mohammedan and Christian religions the passages best loved by the departed saint of India. The women sang simple hymns he had loved.

India braced herself meanwhile in fear of new riots among Hindus, Sikhs and Moslems. Fifteen already had been killed in Bombay.

Gandhi was shot with a pistol in the chest and one leg as he walked into the garden of the mansion last night to hold a prayer meeting.

A 25-year-old Hindu listed as "Nathuram" was booked on suspicion of murder in the assassination. He was held in a secret place for fear of lynching. By law he must go before a magistrate today. The magistrate will decide whether evidence justifies holding him longer.

The Poona correspondent of the National Standard, Bombay newspaper, said the man's name was Nathu Ram Godse and he was founder of Hindu Rashtriya Dal (Hindu National Corps) and publisher of a paper, Hindu Rastsa (Hindu Nation), in Poona.

He reported Hindu Rastra's office had been stoned and an engineering works connected with it set on fire.

He said police had searched 12 houses and arrested four persons. Godse, the correspondent said, was born in Sangli state in the south of Bombay province and his parents and brothers are living.

Crowd Was Unruly

The crowd before Birla House was unruly. Twice it smashed military lines. Finally the corpse, flat on a wooden cot and covered with a white robe, was shown from a second-floor balcony. It lay there three-quarters of an hour.

The procession began through masses of falling flowers and blossom petals.

Many climbed walls and trees to catch a last glimpse of their beloved Mahatma. All night long crowds had gathered to pay a last tribute to Gandhi. At midnight his body had been bathed with water from the Jumna river and decked with flowers.

Hymns were sung and a small lamp fed with ghee (clarified butter) flickered in the room where the body lay.

Five miles away on the banks of the Jumna masons, bricklayers and workmen were busy building a brick platform for Gandhi's funeral pyre.

As the cortege progressed the police relaxed their cordon to allow the mourners to follow the procession. The air was a cascade of flower petals which an attendant gently removed as they fell on Gandhi's face.

Half an hour before noon, four men, traditional in Hindu funerals, carried the cot indoors. Then they took the body out and put it on a flower-covered platform on top of an automobile.

15 p.c. Power Cut To Affect Northern Mines

TORONTO, Jan. 31. (CP)—A cut of 15 per cent in the electric supply to Northern Ontario will be put into effect Feb. 1 to combat the present emergency there caused by shortage of water supplies in the north.

In announcing this reduction from the total of power that was supplied in November, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission here announced yesterday that the order cancels the modified power rationing instituted last Nov. 10. "There will be even greater need for voluntary saving of electricity on the part of all classes of consumers," it warned.

The order affects the Abitibi, Timaskiming, Sudbury and Nipissing districts. The commission noted that representatives of Northern Ontario municipalities, mining companies and other large power consumers had assured the commission of their co-operation in meeting the emergency.

At North Bay Merle Dickerson, chairman of the local hydro commission, said yesterday that from Feb. 1 the city will be permitted to ration power as it sees fit and a meeting will be held Tuesday to discuss North Bay city measures.

At Sudbury last night street lights were not turned on until 8 p.m., and then every second light standard remained dark.

The Northern Ontario power shortage of generating capacity, the commission emphasized. Subnormal rainfall during October and November was the basic cause. Storage basins were not replenished by autumn rains as they are in normal years.

Meanwhile Premier Drew last night discussed the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission's program in the second of a series of weekly Ontario government broadcasts. He declared that extension of power lines in rural districts will bring to more than 220,000 the number of active rural consumers of electric energy.

In the immediate future Ontario Hydro will receive 1,100,000 additional horsepower from plants now under construction at a cost of nearly $300,000,000.

TORONTO, Jan 31 — (CP). — George G. Boughner, president of the Canadian Chinchilla Company Ltd., and James Ross, vice-president, were found guilty by Magistrate Thomas Elmore yesterday on charges of unlawfully trading in securities without being registered as brokers.

The Securities Commission appealed the original acquittal and convictions were registered at the second trial yesterday. Boughner was fined $300 and costs or one month in jail, and Ross was fined $200 and costs or one month.

Quebec Drama Festival Memorable One

MONTREAL, Jan. 31 (CP). — The week-long western Quebec drama festival will conclude tonight after the last three of the nine English entries are adjudicated by British actor Robert Stuart. Five French productions also were staged during the festival.

Winners of the Martha Allan trophy for the best production in either English or French, and of the Arthur B. Wood cup for the best staging of an original Canadian play, will be announced. Four awards will be given for each of the best male and female actors in each language. Four tokens similarly will be awarded for supporting roles.

Mr. Stuart also will announce Quebec province representatives at the National Drama Festival to be held in Ottawa in April. They are expected to be the winner of the Martha Allan trophy and the runner-up, and representative of both languages.

The Montreal repertory theatre, 1947, winner of the Martha Allan trophy, and Les Compagnons last year participated in the national festival in London, Ont. Les Compagnons then were winners of the emblematic Bessborough trophy.

Repertory players will conclude the festival tonight with the staging of "Aria De Capo," a one-act fantasy of Edna St. Vincent Millay. It will be their second production of the festival, having played last night the well-known "Barretts of Wimpole Street," a three-act dramatization of Rudolf Besier of the life story of poets Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning.

Mr. Stuart said of their interpretation that he had "never seen it done better." It was "one of the most memorable events of my theatre life," a verdict similar to that he returned Thursday night after the staging by Les Compagnons of "Antigone," a modern two-act version by Jean Anouilh of an old Greek play.

Commons Votes Approval Dollar-Saving Program; Prices Debate Due Monday

Abbott's Austerity Bill Upheld 84 to 70 Withstands First Major Test; US Currency Reserve Showing Gains

OTTAWA, Jan. 31—(CP).—The Government's dollar-conservation program withstood its first major test in the Commons yesterday when members voted 84 to 70 for the principle of using import restrictions as a United States currency-saving measure. The division, which saw the Opposition vote as a bloc, came on second reading to the Foreign Exchange Conservation Bill. It was preceded by Finance Minister Abbott's statement that the conservation program has bolstered the country's gold and US dollar reserves by some $53,000,000 during the last month or so.

Stepping into the debate after hearing an Opposition prediction that the Government would have to go still further to meet the currency crisis, Mr. Abbott said that between Nov. 17, when the program was inaugurated, and Dec. 17 the US dollar reserves dropped from $500,000,000 to $461,000,000. However, from Dec. 1 to the close of business yesterday the reserves had climbed to $514,000,000.

He said the record was a "very encouraging one" but said he did not wish that this trend would continue without interruption or that a level had been reached which could be regarded as satisfactory.

Undoubtedly there "will be periods when our reserves will fall off for a time," he said.

Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) said that if Canada had not tied her dollar to that of the US she would not have dissipated her hard currency. The restoration of the dollar to parity had been "wishful thinking."

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said his party was opposed to the bill because the import restrictions applied to British goods as well as American goods, because the government refused to lift the ban on fresh fruits and vegetables and because the government refused to put price ceilings on goods subject to embargo.

Besides the debate and the division there were these developments:

1. Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that the first order of business Monday will be debate on the motion for establishment of a committee to investigate causes of increases in living costs.

1. Mr. King and other party leaders joined in expressing Canada's "profound regret" at the "tragic" death of Mahatma Gandhi by assassination.

3. Trade Minister Howe said present indications are that Canada will have "adequate" fuel oil supplies for the rest of the winter.

4. Justice Minister Ilsley said he would take note of representations made with respect to a recent British Columbia order prohibiting persons of Japanese origin from employment on Crown timber lands.

5. Mr. King said the Canadian government will have to consider with the British government whether it would be proper at this time to table the 1942 Drew correspondence regarding the Hong Kong defence controversy.

6. External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said that no definite representations have been made by the United States government to Canada in regard to Canadian participation in the European Recovery Program.

Loan Untouched

Mr. Abbott said that while the government has not yet touched the $300,000,000 loan received from the US Import-Export Bank it may wish to do so "later this year."

"I do not venture to prophesy how long it will be before we will be able to build up our reserves to what I would call a satisfactory or comfortable level as the result of the various long-run measures we are taking to get our economy into a better balance with that of the United States."

He reiterated that dollar devaluation would not help the Canadian situation.

The question had been raised about the protectionist feature of the legislation. This was a "necessary evil."

"Of course, let me say this, that there has been talk here of domination by the United States and some other country. Let me say this, that a nation which loses its exchange reserves loses its independence. There is no mistake about that."

Life And Education Of A Prince....

By H.R.H. DUKE OF WINDSOR

Chapter 18

Compared with most of the people I knew, the president was a man of vast learning; and it was therefore a disillusioning blow to my sense of values to discover that the thing he appeared to value most in the world was his connection with an obscure nobleman, a fact which he managed to insert into every conversation.

It was generally suspected that he was obsessed with the idea of filling Magdalen with titled undergraduates; hence whenever he beamed upon me I was never quite certain whether it was with a teacher's benevolence or from a collector's secret satisfaction with a coveted trophy.

In any case, he struck us as being a bit of a snob.

Yet, despite this formidable outlay of intellect, Oxford failed to break down the resistance to learning that was the legacy of my unbookish ancestors.

And, as if to save his venerable institution from one day being blamed for the absence of higher intellectual qualities in the heir apparent, President Warren published, on the occasion of my leaving Oxford, a generous but somewhat apologetic report upon my progress:

"Bookish he will never be: not a 'Beauclerk,' still less a 'British Solomon'," he warned, adding, however, " . . . all the time he was learning more and more every day of men, guaging character, watching its play, getting to know what Englishmen are like, both individually and still more in the mass."

If by "learning . . . of men" President Warren had in mind that, along with English literature and constitutional law, there was a bright leavening of fox-hunting, beagling, and a mild game of roulette, Oxford certainly lived up to its reputation as a teacher.

While there I rode with the South Oxfordshire Hounds, beagled with the New College, Magdalen and Trinity pack, and got to know some young men whose upbringing had been a good deal less strict than mine.

It would be wrong to give Oxford credit for teaching me how to drink.

All the same, it certainly furnished me with opportunities for tentatively testing the art on myself, as well as for observing the dubious progress and occasional disasters of others.

Excuses for celebration were seldom lacking.

If the college eight had "bumped" itself to a higher place on the River Isis, the Oxford stretch of the Thames, during Eights Week, the feat would be celebrated with a gay "bump supper" in "Hall" that would climax with a bonfire inside the walks, fed with furniture tossed out of the rooms of undergraduates who had incurred their classmates' displeasure.

All 21st birthdays by custom called for a party, the ceremonial smashing of glasses against the fireplace, and, eventually, the carrying out of those who could no longer walk by those who thought they could.

And on certain Sunday nights everybody who counted for something repaired to the small office of the steward of the Junior Common Room, a plump, red-faced, bald-headed old scamp named Gunstone, known to Magdalen men as "Gunner."

We would listen to his rough stories and watch his sleight-of-hand tricks before going upstairs to drink too many glasses of "black strap" port wine which produced hangovers of incredible complexity.

Whatever the occasion, Magdalen celebrations always ended the same way.

Arms linked together, the celebrants would head for the president's house, to stand swaying under his bedroom window, chanting in chorus, "Well rowed, the Pree."

Wholly aside from his literary interests, President Warren's corpulence would have removed him from any conceivable athletic connection; nevertheless all through the night little bands of undergraduates would deviate to pay the president this dubious compliment.

As the following sample from my diary shows, Oxford swiftly opened up a new world:

"Dined at Leander at Henley, leaving at 10.15 again after a most cheery meal and got in at 11.15. Some men, D—— among them, ragged us in their car the whole way back, and A—— dealt with them near Magdalen Bridge. Later he fought D—— in college for being insulting! He knocked him out and it was the finest summary justice I've ever seen. Bed at 12.30."

It is a characteristic of collegiate memories that the hell-raising side, in moments of reminiscence, momentarily overshadow the daily plodding drudgery which I always associated with study.

Oxford is a serious place and the truth is that my Oxford days, by and large, were sober, tranquil and studious. And my space time was given to football, punting on the River Cherwell, and long bird walks.

Best of all, I formed new friendships, which compensated in part for the uprooted attachments of Naval College.

And if I made no "firsts" I studied hard.

My mother often came to see me at Oxford and loved to poke around the historic corners and attractive gardens in the ancient colleges, and in the course of many visits primped and fussed my rooms into a state of cosiness.

THE WAR OF IDEOLOGIES

Petrillo's Ban No Affect On Radio Stations

By JACK McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Radio program directors who got prematurely grey struggling to fill empty ether with an ear-catching succession of sounds, 18 hours a day, seven days a week, didn't bat an eye when James Caesar Petrillo announced that American musicians would quit making recordings "for all time" sharp on the stroke of midnight, Dec. 31.

It has been estimated that some smaller independent station depend on records for up to 90 per cent of their day-time broadcasting. Large private stations and the CBC, able to afford a richer variety of sustainers and network offerings, carry a greater number of "live" programs during the day. But it doesn't take more than one day's listening to detect that even their musical fare is mainly recorded. In the light of these facts, the phenomenon of the unbatted eye deserves elucidation.

It's general knowledge that the recording companies built up an immense backlog—estimated to be adequate for anywhere from one to three years—of master recordings, from each of which an unlimited number of records can be pressed.

Not so generally known is the belief of a number of top-notch radio people that popular hit tunes—in most cases, at least—become hits not by any intrinsic merit, but by high-pressure promotion. The song hits of 1948 have already been picked and recorded and are simply awaiting the chosen month for their debut, said one exponent of this view, a program director and conductor of Dominion-wide fame.

Mexican Recordings?

Whether the roster of hits has been foreordained or not, there's always the chance that some song written after the ban might attain sensational success. And there's an answer to that eventuality too. Wayne Oliver, Associated Press radio columnist, quotes American recording officials as saying there's nothing to prevent such a song being recorded overseas or in Mexico. But he adds: "The big question is whether foreign musicians' performances would appeal to American taste in popular music." Which, of course, goes for Canadian taste as well.

Radio stations and networks are in the same boat as the music lover who buys the odd record for his home phonograph. They don't buy wholesale or record their own (except when they wax complete programs for delayed broadcast). Like John Q. Citizen, they buy their discs from the retail dealers. Incidentally, they get no preference on records available—the old merchandising rule, "first come first served" still obtains — but because they buy in quantity they usually get a fixed discount.

However, program directors seem to agree that there will be plenty of records for everybody. And, they point out, despite Mr. Petrillo's quaint asseration that his ban is "for all time," there is a chance that musicians may be recording again just short of eternity. Some of the more sanguine fellows among them are even whispering—"off the record, mind you"—that eternity may be measured in weeks.

SCANDAL HINTED — Sing Sing prison was threatened with a bribery and gambling scandal following the questioning of a veteran prison guard. The guard, Herbert Vincent Bosquet, pictured shovelling snow away from his home at Croton - on - the - Hudson, N.Y., was arraigned before Police Judge George Beisheim at Ossining and he waived examination on a felony charge and was released on bail, pending action by the Westchester grand jury. He allegedly operated a letter - writing racket on a "service-charge" basis for inmates, who used most of the cash received to buy "special favors," bribe guards and gamble inside the prison.

Gandhi The Martyr

The life of Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi contained many apparent paradoxes and it may prove that, paradoxically, his influence will be greater now that he is dead than it was during his life. The assassin's bullet may have transformed Gandhi from a spiritual leader whose powers and influence were failing into a saint whose influence will be incalculable. Emotion runs high in India and reverence for spiritual leaders is greater than we can understand. It may be that Gandhi's greatest triumphs will come after death.

* * *

Let us refresh our readers' memory of this strange man by a brief recapitulation of the main points in his career. He had an excellent Western education and was called to the bar in England. When he was 24 professional business called him to South Africa, and there he began his career as a protestant against laws which were unjust toward his countrymen. He founded a colony at Durban upon principles laid down by Tolstoy, and for some time he was in conflict with authority. His rebellion, however, was against unjust laws, and not against the government, and it is noteworthy that he raised and commanded a Red Cross unit during the Boer War, organized a hospital during a plague in Johannesburg, and commanded a party of stretcher-bearers during the Natal revolt of 1908. In 1914 the discrimination against Hindus which he had been protesting was righted, and he returned to India, there to protest against the rule of Britain.

* * *

The History of his protests is well known. He never, at any time, urged his followers to violence; his system was one of passive non-cooperation and boycott of all Government institutions. By 1921 this method of protest had achieved some considerable victories, and Gandhi was at the height of his power. But some of his followers became impatient with non-violent protests, and riots ensued; Gandhi tried to atone for these excesses on the part of his people by personal penances. But from that time onward his influence waned, and shrewder politicians (though less saintly men) than he gain influence with the Congress party. It has been obvious for years that Gandhi, though still revered by millions, was not taken with complete seriousness as a political force.

* * *

Political force is not the only force in the world, however. Gandhi, in spite of occasional fits of petulance and pigheadedness, was something very like a saint, and saints are even more powerful leaders than statesmen. What he achieved, he achieved without the shedding of blood; he showed goodwill toward all men and though he hated oppression he gave ample evidence that he had nothing but kindness for his oppressors; he knew, as very few leaders appear to know, the folly of warfare as a means of righting wrong. And all through his life he followed this precept—so strange to national leaders in general: Good ends cannot be reached by bad means, and great aims cannot be achieved by small men.

* * *

A life like Gandhi's is not easy to understand, and the principles of nonviolence which he preached sound strangely in a world which seems to like war—or at least shows no eagerness to abandon war. But our great-grandchildren may understand what Gandhi taught, and as he recedes into the mists of history his legend may become very powerful. After 1921 his people called him Mahatma, which means Great Soul. The influence of a Great Soul does not cease because a hothead has fired three bullets into a tired old heart.

Camp Shilo—Brrh!

The Russian military attache whom our Government did not allow to go to Camp Shilo with other foreign observers this week need not feel too sorry for himself. Camp Shilo is a pretty cold place in January. Thousands of Canadian soldiers stationed there at one time or another during the war can testify to that. So could soldiers of the First Great War who were stationed in a similar area—Camp Hughes. The site of the old Camp Hughes is only a few miles north of Camp Shilo. Shilo is three hours west of Winnipeg on the C.N.R. (the nearest C.P.R. station is Douglas) and an hour east of Brandon. To say that it is "on" the C.N.R. is a misrepresentation. The sprawling camp lies south of the station—a new one replacing a tiny red wooden structure which had to cope with five or six hundred soldiers every Friday night.

Camp Shilo has been set down on the prairie, a military town in the middle of large skies and uneven flat wastes of five months' snow and five months' arid turf. The horizon is empty except for sad clumps of puny trees and an occasional mirage of Brandon. For a month of spring and a month of autumn, Shilo is externally pleasant. In the winter the winds sting with snow, in summer with sand. For gracious living one does not go to Shilo.

It is a town because of its size, but otherwise it is just a military camp. Special characteristics make Shilo a splended training ground. There is no limit to manoeuvring space, it is dry, it is secluded. Special weapons, equipment and tactics can be tried out there without the whole world hearing about them. During the late war it was a training camp for infantry, artillery and paratroopers. The generous quantities of sub-zero weather made possible the testing of special American winter warfare equipment. At Shilo the Allies discovered how not to clothe men sleeping in the snow and without artificial heat of any kind for two days and nights.

Thousands of Canadians have not unpleasant memories of Shilo. The huts were steam heated in winter, and outdoors the soldiers in training wore snowshoes and balaclavas. The dust menace in summer was partly overcome by bringing hundreds of truck loads of turf from the banks of the Red River. (The soldiers on the job of course grumbled that the C.O. just wanted to make the place look pretty.) Meals were good, the messes were comfortable, and there were enough breezy Westerners about the place to keep softies from B.C. and eastern Canada in good humour.

Shilo has now become one of the largest and most important military centres in Canada. It has been well planned, and no matter how much soldiers in temperatures 40 degrees below zero may wail about giving it back to the Indians, it is here to stay. The Russian military attache did miss something—weather that would have made him nostalgic for Russia, and a view of a great Canadian military establishment.

Barbara Ann Scott On Domesticity

The most recent issue of Time magazine pictures on its cover the girl who thirty years ago would have been called Canada's sweetheart. It also contains a long article in which we read that Barbara Ann, aged 19, with the European women's figure-skating championship behind her and the Olympic crown ahead, has opinions on marriage and children.

She says: "What I would like would be to take a degree in domestic science. Some time I want to marry and have children, and I believe that should be organized economically, tidily and exactly, like Olympic skating, or anything else". These seem like very sound desires: to be able to cook properly, to marry carefully and to bring up children "economically, tidily" in an organized way. A young woman with such aims deserves to have the success with husband and family that she has achieved on skates and ice.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Most of Canada's high class cats are owned in Toronto", says the Telegram of that city. We have no comment to offer.

It is estimated that Montrealers put $250,000 into juke boxes every week. The quarter of a million would be peanuts to the revenue the machines would make if they provided slots for a nickel's worth of non-playing time.

When newspapers talk about Cabinet shuffles they are not referring to Ministers who can't lift their feet but to a special kind of dance revived periodically in the best Ottawa circles, a variation of the old parlour game of "musical chairs".

Diary Of A Siesta Advocate

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: An Australian lady was telling me today of her labours to rid herself of her native accent under the tuition of an elocution master. She had to say "How now, brown cow?" over and over again, as apparently this greeting is a very hard one for an Australian to utter with complete purity. This amused her greatly, for it appears that in the Antipodes the word "cow" is applied to any unfortunate person, male or female, and a set of disagreeable circumstances or a distressing personality may also be called "a fair cow". Only in Australia, so far as I know, could a man be a black sheep and a fair cow at the same time....Reflected that a Canadian who wanted to improve his speech would probably have to say

The girl of Cyril the Squirrel
Has run off with a churl named Earl—

as this canstrip contains the sounds which most commonly overthrow us.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Listened to the news on the radio tonight—a thing I rarely do, as it is my experience that good news always seems better the following morning, whereas bad news at night disturbs my sleep. Tonight the news consisted of a list of people who had died during the day in a variety of distressing circumstances. Such harping on death annoys and depresses me. What the C.B.C. needs is a newscaster with second sight (they could probably import one from the Highlands of Scotland) who would give the names of children who had been born each day who would in twenty-five or thirty years, be either great leaders and benefactors of mankind, or notable scoundrels. What we want is not news of who has left the earth, but something resembling the passenger list of an ocean liner, telling us who is joining the human race and what we may expect of them. There is no news about a death; one of the few certain things in life is that we shall all die. But if the radio could, now and again, announce the birth of a philosopher, or a great artist, or a nasty little baby who will grow up to be a Hitler, I would pay my yearly license in a somewhat more sprightly manner.

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: An actor friend of mine left a copy of "Variety" in my office today, and as I looked through it I was amazed to find a full-page advertisement which said "Gabriel Pascal and Bernard Shaw wish all their friend a Successful New Year". I wonder if Mr. Shaw really paid for half of that insertion? It doesn't seem like him to deliver good wishes in that wholesale manner....The magazine also contained an article headed "Is Radio Burdened With Young Fogies?" It seems to me that the probable answer is "Yes". The whole world is burdened with young fogies. Old men with ossified minds are easily dealt with. But men who look young, act young and everlastingly harp on the fact they are young, but who nevertheless think and act with a degree of caution which would be excessive in their grandfathers, are the curses of the world. We have a good many young fogies in Canada—fellows who, at thirty, are well content with beaten paths and reach-me-down opinions. Their very conservatism is second-hand, and they don't know what they are conserving.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: Composed myself after lunch for my noonday snooze, but was called three times on the telephone; in consequence my afternoon was ruined. It has long been my contention that the siesta is needed far more in our cold climate than in the langorous South. Southerners snooze at midday because they are lazy; Canadians should snooze at midday because they still have several hours of hard work ahead of them, including a certain amount of battling with the wintry blasts, and slipping and slithering on the ice. They need to prepare themselves for what lies ahead. But it happens far too often that when I compose myself for fifteen minutes of delicious torpor some fellow who either has high blood pressure or is in a hurry to develop it calls me. He never wants to tell me that I have inherited a fortune, or that a beautiful dark woman is anxious to make my acquaintance; he invariably wants me to do something right away, usually of a vexatious nature. By the time I have lied my way out of doing whatever it is he wants, the shy nymph Snooze has fled, and there is nothing for me to do but begin the afternoon's toil.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: I see that movie connoisseurs are surprised because Charlie Chaplin's film "Monsieur Verdoux" got a prize of some sort as one of the best films of 1947. I suppose it is surprising, really, for the film contained a number of unpalatable truths, and people do not usually get prizes for telling the truth in the movies. And the public has never forgiven Charlie for refusing to be a sweet little buffoon, who could be easily patronized, for the whole of his life.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: A letter today from a man who takes me to task for my attitude toward dogs, who are, he tells me, noble creatures. This grieves me, for the quarrel between me and the canine world was begun by the dogs themselves. I am the sort of man at whom dogs bark, rush wildly, and jump up. People who think that dogs are wonderful judges of character insist that this means that I have the soul of a burglar, or possibly a cat. If dogs think so poorly of me, is it any wonder that I am distant in my attitude toward dogs? I get on well with horses, I mix freely with cows, cats are affable in my presence, and goats consider me one of themselves. Babies (also considered infallible judges of character) gurgle with fascination when I go near them. Old ladies ask me to help them across the street. But dogs dislike me. By a process of reasoning too complicated to go into here, this leads me to dislike dogs, and to regard them as idiotic or dangerous, or both. My household pet is the cat, which was man's friend while the dog was still unable to distinguish itself from a wolf.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: To the movies and saw a piece about Ireland in the 19th century called "Hungry Hill". It was one of those stories which traces the history of a family through several generations, and I saw no reason why it should stop anywhere short of the present year of grace. In the course of it Margaret Lockwood changed from a ravishing beauty of 18, given to wearing very low-necked gowns and dancing jigs in her bare feet, to an old woman wearing very high necks and taking dope. Also in the cast was a fellow with whom I went to school, but as he was killed during the first ten minutes of the film I didn't get much of a look at him....It is odd how the legend persists that the Irish are an impractical and poetical people. I have met a good many Irishmen, and they seemed to me to be about as practical as Scotchmen, though they don't make so much fuss about it. And though they occasionally permit themselves some flights of sentiment they are as hard as nails in practical affairs. I like Irishmen, and know how to get along with them.

CONFUSIN' BUT NOT AMUSIN'

Premier Douglas And The Press

(By BURTON LEWIS in THE PRINCE ALBERT HERALD)

A MAN I barely know startled me this week by making a declaration that went about like this:

"The newspapers stand convicted of the charges Premier Douglas has made against them. If they weren't, they would not let his attacks go unchallenged."

Until he spoke, I had never expected to meet a Canadian, outside the government of Saskatchewan, who would seek to reverse the principle of "innocent until proved guilty" and argue seriously that an individual or enterprise should be presumed guilty on any charge, unless proved innocent.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE 'Whipping Boy'—In any case, if The Herald failed to respond suitably to the premier's two or more attempts to needle the press in the past couple of weeks, it was my fault, and for these reasons:

1—It strikes me as being bad taste for newspapers (or politicians) to do much prating about their own virtues. Most of them (again like politicians) have enough real faults to struggle with, without wasting time either worrying over or answering fairy tales told about them. Occasionally false charges may have to be answered, but it is usually entirely safe to depend upon a piece of dishonest innuendo to kill itself off.

2—Most of the charges heard recently are "old stuff" and required no new answers.

3—When a politician gets most of his exercise out of slashing away at a "whipping boy" (or distorted issue) of his own manufacture, as appears to be the habit of some politicians in all parties, I see little reason for interrupting him. So long as the object of his attacks is a figment of his own imagination, or of his own twisted reasoning I doubt if many readers will mistake that object for the press as it really exists.

✧ ✧ ✧

TWO kinds of virtue — If there is need to talk about them, however, the premier's attacks rest wholly upon his efforts to read sinister, dishonest and ulterior motives into relationships which are, in fact, quite simple, open, above-board and natural.

On January 14, to illustrate, he spoke of his government incurring "the wrath of the vested interests and their hired newspapers".

On January 7, he sought to show that his party's organ, the Commonwealth, failed to secure much advertising because it is "free from control of vested interests", and contrasted its situation with that of other papers which "get advertising from those whose social philosophy they espouse editorially."

The premier's idea then, is that persons, or even governments, selling products such as boxes, boots and blankets, or services like airplane and bus rides, can do so without suffering any impairment of virtue. But newspapers, he tries to suggest, when they sell advertisers the commercial services they are equipped to render, are inclined to do so on a basis involving intellectual or philosophical prostitution.

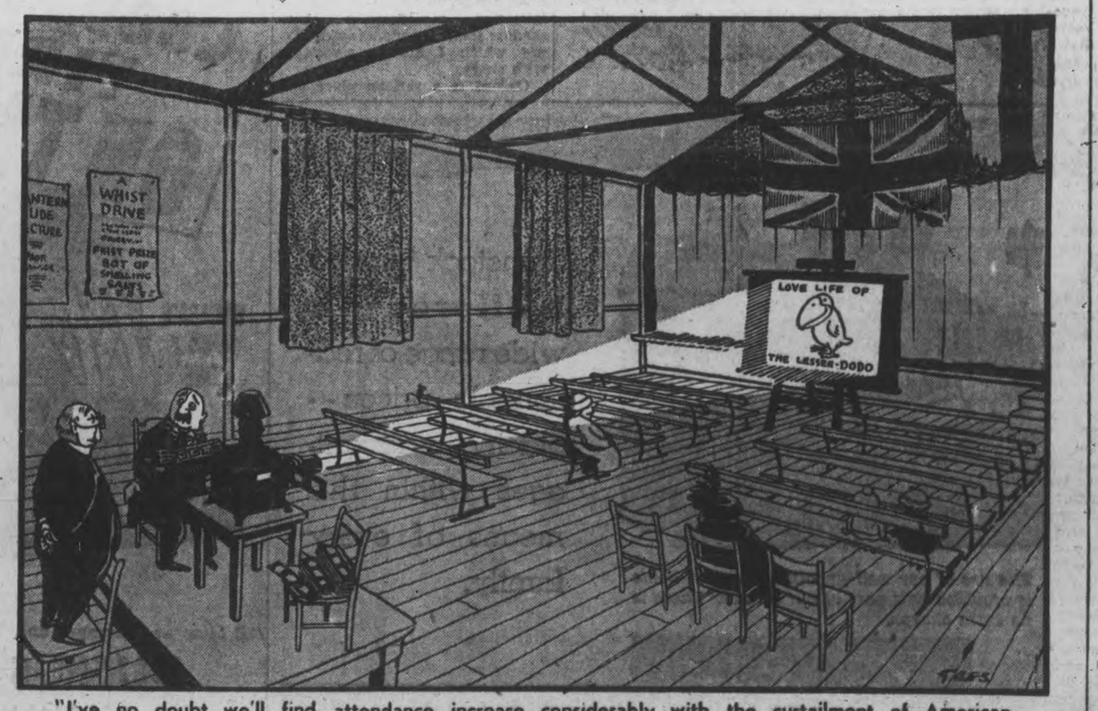
✧ ✧ ✧

THE actual basis — Well, without taking time out for any breast-beating, or anguished denials, I'd just like to give my version of the basis on which advertising is bought and sold. It took shape in my mind last week, in a concise form when the salesman for an eastern paper tried to sell The Herald advertising space in his publication. While the idea was being booted around, I said of his paper:

"It is read with respect by the kinds of persons we would like to reach."

If any advertiser buys space in a reputable paper on any other basis, he is a damn fool and will end up by cheating himself.

If Premier Douglas wants people to believe that papers such as The Herald sell advertising on any other basis, he'd better begin offering some proof.



Of course it is old fashioned—doesn't conform at all with the "line" of the "New Democrats"—but around The Herald we still believe in the principle of being presumed innocent until proved guilty.

✧ ✧ ✧

P.S.—The same basis would work for even the Commonwealth, the C.C.F. organ, which boasted recently, by the way, of "the great strides it has made in the last few years as an advertising medium."

If it arrives at the point of being read with respect by enough persons of the kinds advertisers want to reach, and want to reach for perfectly legitimate reasons, it won't have to become subject to any kind of subservience or suffer any ravishment of whatever it looks upon as virtue, before adding still further to its advertising.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an albaster box of ointment, and stood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.

Now when the Pharisee which had bidden him saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for she is a sinner.

And Jesus answering said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on. There was a certain creditor which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence and the other fifty. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me therefore, which of them will love him most? Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged.

And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head. Thou gavest me no kiss: but this woman since the time I came in hath not ceased to kiss my feet. My head with oil thou didst not anoint: but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment.

Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little....And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace. (Luke 7: 37-47, 50.)

UNCONSIDERED TRIFLE

A schoolmaster, giving a music lesson, inquired whether the pupils had any favourite anthem they would like to sing.

"God Save the King!" said one of the lads.

"Now, tell me, what made you think of the National Anthem?"

"Because," replied the boy, "then it's time to go home."

JULY 1, start of the open season for bass and maskinonge falls this year on a Thursday. That is annoying. It means tourists will arrive July 3, and the resort owners who have only two months to make a killing will lose money. This happens quite often, and recalls a suggestion Perry Alexander made years ago. He wanted the season to open on the Saturday in June nearest July 1. That would often mean an extra week's business for the resort men who live in bass and muskie areas. For instance if such a course was followed the season would open this year on June 26. Already Resort Section officials have appealed for this change. Every resort from Trenton to Georgian Bay on the Trent Waterway, and along Georgian Bay to Parry Sound would benefit. There is another factor to be considered. Canada needs American dollars and needs them bad. Therefore any reasonable move that will bring more American dollars to Canada is desirable.

+ + + + + +

WOULD SUCH A MOVE make any difference to Canada's supply of game fish. I doubt it. If it was a cold, late spring, the bass would be on the spawning beds in July—as they were last year. To compensate for this is the fact that bass are not showing any material decrease. The bass protects the fry until they are able to forage for themselves. That was an unusual spring, and it is reasonable to expect that by June 26, this year the bass spawning will be finished. By June 26 the maskinonge are all through spawning and in deep water. Any harm done to the muskie population takes place during the spawning season. Carrying that theme a little further, I feel safe in saying that if muskie poaching was abolished we could close up Deer Lake Hatchery, because it would not be needed. If the Dept. of Lands and Forests intends to make a change the announcement should be made at once, so adequate publicity can be given.

ON FEBRUARY 2 AND 3, next Monday and Tuesday about 400 delegates will meet in the General Brock Hotel, Niagara Falls, Ontario, for the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. For the past two years I have been a member of the executive, the only one in the entire Kawartha and Haliburton district. There should be at least two from this district. Delegates will represent over 60,000 sportsmen in Ontario and their deliberations are usually long and stormy. Every fish and game organization in this district should be represented—and by the soundest conservationists within their ranks. Peterborough Fish and Game, Campbellford Fish and Game, Kawartha Conservation Association, Ganaraska Fish and Game, and Northumberland Fish and Game will probably have delegates there. This Federation is the official voice for all such organizations when representations are made to the Dept. of Lands and Forests for amendments to existing laws.

THE GREATEST TRIBUTE that can be paid any sportsman in Ontario is to be awarded the Carling Conservation Trophy. This award came into existence late in 1946, and in 1947 at the convention, that dean of conservationists, the grand old sportsman, two-fisted fighter for law enforcement and long-range fish and game management, Peter Turner of Ottawa, was awarded the trophy. Peter Turner is an associate editor of Rod and Gun, and is known to a host of people by his penname "Kushwaup". The award goes to the individual who makes the finest contribution to the cause of conservation in Ontario in any one year. Some day, I hope to qualify for that award. Another award which is made at the close of the convention is the Mary Pickford Trophy. This goes to the fish and game conservation organization making the most notable contribution to the cause of conservation during the year. A few years back with Charles Kingan, piloting the local fish and game organization, the trophy came to Peterborough.

MAKERS OF ANTI-FREEZE for radiators should do some research work on Great Horned owls. These owls get bitten by the loyebug sometime in January, eggs are laid early in February or before and the period of incubation is 28 days. How they keep the eggs from freezing solid is a mystery. Some bird-watchers claim the eggs are visible from the ground, through the maze of loosely woven sticks. Another odd thing about these owls, is that the male and female often sit side by side on the nest. The female lays from one to five eggs, white in color and with very little gloss. They are rounded oval in shape and the shell is thick and coarsely granulated. The horned owl isn't particular about its diet, and will kill and eat anything that walks, crawls or flies, except of course, the larger mammals. It prefers rabbits and field mice. Alex Kay has not spotted any of the owls in this district recently.

LET'S DO A BIT OF STOCK-TAKING. I have been impressed by the amount of publicity given conservation during 1947, and I have been equally impressed by the lack of action on the same subject. Service clubs, fish and game organizations, and county councils and many other organizations have intimated they would certainly conduct some drive aimed at restoration of some natural resource. How much has been done? Wouldn't it be a good idea for heads of the various organizations to call in a reporter and say "Here's what we accomplished in the realm of conservation during 1947, and here's what we plan to do in 1948". That, I believe, would make interesting reading. Fact is, I believe any well-rounded program would attract a flock of recruits who are just waiting for someone to fire the first shot indicating a well-planned campaign. Reforestation, curbing of soil erosion, curbing water pollution, surveying streams, building the pheasant population, deer population, or partridge populations, song bird protection, predator control, or educational work aimed at reducing law breaking, are all admirable ventures.

HERE'S A PROGRAM that should appeal to consistent trout fishermen. Wes Switzer and Jack Hayward are two of a committee being organized to survey Jackson Park creek, Kelly's creek and Cavan stream, with a view to improving the speckled trout fishing, and the brown trout fishing. It is hoped that about 20 experienced trout fishermen will volunteer to join the group and take part in the work. Years ago Jackson Park creek was a speckled trout paradise, and it would not take a great deal of work to make it productive again. Any person interested in this venture is requested to write or telephone me.

William Davis of Bethany, 93 Years Old Grandfather Came to Cavan In 1818

By MRS. ROSS CARR.

Of Irish and English descent, Mr. Davis has a most interesting ancestral background. His grandfather, Arthur Graham, came to Canada from the County of Cavan in Ireland, arriving here in 1818, when 19 years old. Like all pioneers, he crossed the Atlantic in a sailing vessel, the trip taking 16 weeks and he finally settled in the township of Cavan. He was not only one of the first settlers in the township, but his marriage later to Miss J. Morton was the first to be recorded in the township. The farm Mr. Graham cleared is now owned by Mr. Morgan Bigelow, and there he raised his family of nine children. The oldest daughter, Prudence Graham, married William Davis Sr. and became the mother of William Davis of Bethany. Among his early memories are tales told to him by his mother of the hardships of the early settlers. Many times she had to rescue calves and pigs from bears and wolves.

Mr. Davis' father also came from "The Old Land," from the county of Devonshire, near Plymouth, when just a young man. His parents did not want him to come to Canada, but his determination overruled their objections. After landing at Quebec and a short stay at Port Whitby he came to Manvers township and settled on the east half of the farm now owned by Mr. Thomas Morton. He cleared the land and built himself a log house and married the above mentioned Prudence Graham in 1854. In this log house which has since been torn down, their son William was born on February 1, 1855.

Education Not Neeessary

Mr. Davis received his education at the local school, at that time situated across the road from his home, on what is now Milton Weatherilt's farm. He recalls how the old schoolhouse became too small for the large attendance and the subsequent building of the school at its present situation in the year 1876. "An education was not as essential in those days. A child only went to school when not needed at home. After you could read, write and do arithmetic, you were supposed to know enough and would be kept at home to help on the farm. There was no business necessitating an advanced education like there is today."

When just a young man, Mr. Davis was employed by the government as a rural mail courier. Every day, excepting Sunday, it was his duty to meet the one o'clock train arriving at the Grand Trunk Station at Bethany, receive the mail bags and deliver them by horse and rig to the other post offices at Ballyduff, Lotus, Burton, Newry, Janetville and Lifford, a distance of 32 miles. Quite often during the winter when the snow was very deep the train would not arrive until late in the afternoon, but "His Majesty's mail must go through" and he wold start out on his long journey, often not reaching home until midnight or early morning. Roads were not ploughed out then and often there was no track ahead. In the winter months he used a horse and cutter, in the summer, a buggy or cart and during the spring floods he delivered the mail on horseback. He tells a humorous story of his "Mail Carrying Days."

"Back about 1872 Major Sam Hughes of Lindsay taught school at Lifford. Previous to this time Major Hughes had won prizes as a fast runner. On this particular day, Mr. Davis drove up to the Lifford Post Office, picked up a sack of mail and went inside to deliver it, neglecting to tie his horse. When he came out, the horse had evidently got tired of waiting and had started for home. Major Hughes had been in the office and noting the dejected expression of Mr. Davis, enquired what had happened. Hearing the story he said, "Never mind, William, I'll catch the horse and you follow along." He dashed off, leaving Mr. Davis to follow at a more leisurely pace. And true to his word, Major Hughes caught the horse and drove it back until he met him. Major Hughes as everyone knows became Major-General Sir Sam. Hughes and was Canada's Minister of Militia in the First World War.

Mr. Davis recalls much of the early history of the village, remarking particularly on the building of the churches. It was his father who gave the land on which the Anglican Church was erected in 1876. The first rectory, now the remodelled home of Mr. Robert Morton, was constructed the following year.

How Village Was Named

He speaks with authority as to how this village received its name. A meeting was called for this purpose with a large number attending. He recalls the names of David McMullen and Michael McAllister, along with his father, William Davis Sr. Various names were suggested, but Bethany was voted as the most suitable. "We have settlements by the name of Zion to the south, Ebenezer to the east, Mount Horeb, Hebron and Bethel to the north and west, let us call the place Bethany in accordance with all the other Biblical names, for it has an appropriate setting among the wooded hills and is nigh unto the others as it is stated in the Bible."

WILLIAM DAVIS

On March 21, 1883, Mr. Davis married Adeline Twigg, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Twigg. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev Henry F. Burgess, Anglican rector, at the home of the bride's parents, which is now occupied by a grandson, Morton Davis. Following their marriage they moved to a farm on the 2nd concession of Cavan township, known then as Duck Hollow. Two years later they returned to the village and resided in what is now the residence of Mrs. Ona Thorndyke. During their stay in Bethany, which lasted for several years Mr. Davis followed the occupation of carpenter. About 1890 he purchased the farm now owned by Mr. George Page and cultivated it until 1917 when he and his family moved to Manvers Station. In 1920 they returned to Bethany and took up residence on Glengarry Rd., where Mr. Davis still resides and where his wife died on May 5, 1932, at the age of 79.

Staunch Orangeman

Mr. Davis is a staunch Orangeman. He joined the order in 1872 and during his membership he has taken five degrees in the Orange and eleven in the Black. He has been an honorary member of Bethany LOL No. 1022 for the past 20 years. He remembers the numerous Orange celebrations held in Bethany in the old exhibition grounds which were situated in the vicinity of Pidgeon Creek and how at one time there were 300 members in this lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis' five children were born: one son, Byron, who resides in Lindsay; and four daughters, Ada (Mrs. Harry Rogers) of Lindsay, Myrtle (Mrs. Harold Thompson) Manvers Station, Josephine (Mrs. James Boggs), Manvers Station, and Miss Lila Davis, Bethany, who resides with her father.

There are five grandchildren: Mrs. Rogers' family—Gladys (Mrs. Vernon O'Connor), North Bay; Byron Rogers, Toronto; Elmo Rogers, Lindsay. Mrs. Boggs' daughter—Miss Madeline Boggs, employed in the Quaker Oats, Peterborough. Byron's son—Morton Davis, Bethany. Mr. Davis is very proud of his five great-granchilden: Larry O'Connor, North Bay; Donald Rogers, Toronto, and Jack, Betty and Doris Rogers of Lindsay.

Mr. Davis has one sister living, Jame (Mrs. William Boggs) Manvers Station, who is now in her 86th year. The other members of his family, John, Fannie, Jeffrey, Arthur and James all died some years ago.

Courtship Flight of Owls

By The Canadian Press

The courtship flight of owls — a phenomenon very few bird lovers have the good fortune to observe — has been seen by a man who lives in Credit Valley, just west of Toronto, and reported to a neighbor, Mrs. Cornell Mitchell, naturalist and author.

A pair of snowy owls — the male an immaculate white, the female a larger and darker bird — had been wintering in the fields near his house. They spent the chilly months in well-defined territories about half a mile apart.

On a late March evening, however, they approached each other in the same field. At dusk, but while the sky was still clear, the two owls suddenly took wing and "rose gradually . . . up the clear stair of eternal sky." As they ascended they "fought"; that is, they came together, grappling and tumbling in mid-air. Then, when they reached a great height, though still in excellent view of the watcher in the field, they set their course northward toward the semi-polar tundra, and, flying side by side, vanished from sight.

They have not been seen since and there can be no doubt that this was a "courtship flight" culminating in migration. This takes place hundreds of times every season among many species of birds; but it is seldom that the birds, the time, the place and the intelligent watcher are on hand with such happy coincidence.

Five thousand acres in extent, the Royal Forest at Windsor, England, during the war supplied about 300 tons of timber every month for the construction of military camps, airfields, air-raid shelters and the thousands of bunks which furnished them.

Altogether, there are about 3,000,000 acres of woodlands in the British Isles, and the Canadian Forestry Corps handled a substantial share of woodcutting therein when importations from Scandinavian and other sources were cut off.

But the Canucks did more than tree-felling. They planted literally millions of seedlings and saplings to replace the trees sacrificed to the needs of warfare.

Even in peacetime Canada was taking the lead in helping to reforest Britain. Over a 10-year period, for instance, 32,000,000 Douglas firs, one of the Dominion's finest timber trees, were planted on suitable sites throughout Britain. All the seeds for the transplants were furnished by the government extraction plant at New Westminster, British Columbia.

Sitka spruce from the Queen Charlotte Islands and other coniferous trees from Canada's sunset coast thrive in Britain because of similarity in climate and soil. Needless to say, the sight of vast acres of flourishing "Christmas trees" gives delight to British children.

One of the most fascinating albino specimens ever preserved has been added to the collection of the Royal Ontario Museum. It is a snow-white peacock — every graceful feather on its body and outspread tail is immaculately white.

Richard Hudson 1st Teacher In Asphodel

By HELEN MARRYAT

"A man named Hudson kept a private school on his homestead on the road between Westwood and Norwood.... and my older brothers, James and John, went there, having to walk four miles through the woods". This interesting bit of historical information was given to the Examiner by the late Henry Humphries, of Asphodel and Keene. Mr. Humphries always contended that the Hudson school was a private class, and that the school built by his father, Robert Cayford Humphries, on Lot 3 Con. 3. was the first public school in Asphodel. This excludes, however, the school at Keeler's Mills (Norwood) for which the teacher, Mr. J. Wilkins, reported an attendance of 22 pupils in his school return for the year 1832.

There was always some confusion regarding the exact site of the Hudson school, but the Registry Office at Peterborough records a grant to Buttle Hudson of the west half of lot 12 in Concession 4, thereby establishing the location. Apparently they may not have paid for the lot and taken title to it until after the school had passed into history, for the grant was made on July 13, 1844, and on April 1, in the following year, Buttle Hudson sold the land to Thomas Messenger of Peterborough, the founder of the short-lived "Chronicle", started in December, 1842.

The building in which this early class of students was instructed was the Hudson home, one of the ordinary log houses of the day. It stood near the Norwood-Westwood road until thirty odd years ago, and most people over that age can remember having the decaying buildings pointed out to them in passing.

Richard Hudson, the first teacher, was a brother-in-law of Richard Birdsall, as he had married his older sister, Ann Birdsall. Born in 1786, Mrs. Hudson died at her home in North Thaneton, Yorks, in 1817, the year her brother Richard came to Upper Canada. Richard Hudson, himself, who came to Asphodel to live with his son, William, was born in North Dalton, Yorks, in 1776. He was a yeoman tenant on the Wold Hills estate of a son of the Duke of Devonshire (possibly the 4th Duke). He was at one time a woollen manufacturer in Manchester, and also at a later period, schoolmaster at Osboldwick, two miles east of the City of York. The date of his coming to Canada is uncertain, but it was probably some time in the middle thirties. He, no doubt, saw the necessity of educating the children of his son, William, and so began his school. His family consisted of his sons, William, Charles and Buttle, and his daughters, Harriet and Emma.

William Hudson was the first of the family to come to Asphodel, and the date of his arrival is fixed by a letter written April 8, 1831, to Richard Birdsall, lent by his great-grandson, Lt.-Col. F. E. Birdsall. In it, the writer, a cousin, Margaret Thorpe, of Londesboro, Yorks., says in part: "Your nephew, William Hudson, is the bearer of this (letter). He is a nice young man. I hope he will do well."

On Road to Norwood

At first, William Hudson lived near his uncle at Rice Lake. His granddaughter, the wife of Lt.-Col. W. Gordon Hall of Peterborough, remembers the late Frank Birdsall showing her the place; but now she is not sure where it was. She also knows the school was on the road to Norwood. Mrs. Hall says her grandfather moved into Otonabee and lived on part of what is at present the farm of Mark Burnham. He died very suddenly about March 29, 1871, and was buried in the old cemtery, behind the Peterborough Civic Hospital.

William Hudson married Elizabeth Wilkinson, and their children bore much the same names as the previous generation . . . Richard, Mary Ann, Buttle and Emma.

Another son, Buttle, was living with his uncle, Richard Birdsall, when, on January 8, 1838, he was mustered for service in the Rebellion. He was single, and volunteered. His age was given as 22 years; consequently he was born in 1816, the year before his mother's death. He was the youngest of the family and possibly came to Canada with his father. He went to Peterborough, and in 1872 was listed as a cabinet-maker; he was also a portrait painter.

The best known of the Hudson family was the first mayor, after Peterborough became a town, and he succeeded Thos. Benson.

Charles Hudson, Esq., on September 27, 1851, laid the foundation stone of the Town Hall and Market Place, an account of which ceremony may be found in Dr. Poole's "History of Peterborough." Dr. Poole also tells the story of how a whole ox was stolen, spit and all, as it was being roasted, barbeque fashion, for the entertainment of "all and singular, who might choose to accept the hospitality of the town." The persons whose guilt was never verified appear to have been connected with the defeated candidate, and in "Our Old Home Town" Mr. Dobbin adds further details of the event, mentioning "considerably rivalry between Benson and Hudson." The new Mayor, Chas. Hudson, resourcefully arranged "a sumptuous dinner at the Commercial Hotel of Thos. Chambers, which was followed by speeches and the usual conviviality."

Charles Hudson married Hannah Everett, and that family is therefore twice connected with the family of Richard Birdsall and his second wife, Charlotte Everett.

Perhaps in some obituary of the Hudson family other details about the school in Asphodel may be discovered.

Children of Robinson Settlers.

While it is useless to speculate about the children who went to the little school in the backwoods, besides the Hudson children and John and James Humphries, it may be of interest to state that in that vicinity alone, there were 28 children of Robinson settlers of 1825; while in 1838 there were more than 100 children under 16 years living in the first four concessions of Asphodel.

There seems no way of determining the exact years in which the Hudson School was in operation. Robert Harrison, recorded that he and Henry Fowlds, who were at that time living on Lot 14 in Concession 2, built a school on Cameron's Hill in 1839, but this was in Otonabee. Probably the Hudson School was about that same time, and the Humphries School on Lot 3 in Concession 3 a year or two later.

Desire To Watch and Study Replaces Desire To Kill

As a boy of sixteen the writer of this article was the proud owner of a Stevens Favourite Model .22 rifle which was a companion on innumerable hikes in the woods behind his home and for years provided the kind of fun that a boy of that age likes.

One day he took it out along a trail that wound below a range of hills in the neighborhood to try out a box of the cheap little cartridges known as BB caps. He had not gone far before a blue jay swung across and alighted in a maple tree 50 yards or so from him. Its vivid plumage and the fact that it was alive made it a perfect mark on which to try out the range and power of the little shells. Loading his rifle he crept up to within 75 feet of the bird and fired. It rose, fluttered uncertainly for a moment and fell, dead, a short distance from the tree. Running forward he retrieved and held in his hand the limp body of what had been a short time before a living creature, capable of the miracle of flight. How soft it felt. He pulled out the wings and saw the lovely sheen on the blue and white feathers; he saw the wings as delicately fashioned mechanism with wonderful power to hold the bird in air and allow it to swoop and veer at will. Suddenly he realized that the power was was gone, driven out by a new power, the power to kill at a distance, exercised by a boy through the mere crooking of his finger. He had proven the keenness of his eye and the effectiveness of his cartridges; but the price he had paid was the life of a creature that had given the sudden beauty of movement to a little woodland glade. He was the poorer and so was all nature for his irrepressible act. With a shock of horror he saw himself as a murderer and a destroyer.

But he was slow to learn the lesson that Nature's creatures are more interesting alive than dead. A short time afterward on a simlar trip he saw a crow perched on top of a tall spruce tree. Here was fair game, which he was justified in taking because everybody said that the crows were pests and ate corn out of the farmers' fields. He began to stalk it, keeping in the shelter of small poplar and cedar trees that intervened. But this time he had to deal with a wilier bird. The crow spotted him in spite of all his care, flapped its wings as though it were about to take off and cawed loudly the warning that an enemy was near. Immediately a whole flock of its kindred rose with raucous cries and winged into the distance. But the fellow who had given the warning still sat on the spruce tree top making a terrific clamour. He stayed a few seconds too long, for once again the rifle cracked. He lifted into the air, weaved and staggered a few yards, and, plunged helplessly into the bushes at the base of the spruce.

Only then did the boy realize that this was a sentinel crow, which had given its life for the security of the flock. He felt again that shock of horror which he had known after the killing of the blue jay. This time it sank deeper into his mind, for though the little rifle accompanied him on many trips afterwards, it was never again turned against any but game birds. A subtler change followed. The heroism of that sentinel crow woke in him first a respect and then a love for birds, and the desire to kill was replaced by the desire to watch and study. A pair of cheap field glasses turned the black blur of a mere bird in flight into a blue backed, ruddy-breasted bluebird, or a yellow and black goldfinch—and a new and absorbing hobby was his.

Legionnaires Defeat Kingston By 5-1 Count In Neat Contest

Legionnaires closed the gap more on the first-place Petes when they took a 5-1 triumph over Kingston Saints in Lindsay last night before some 600 chilled fans. While the Petes were losing in Belleville, the Legion kept well up in the OHA Senior "B" race with their handy victory as the schedule nears a finish.

It was a fast, tight tussle on good ice all the way, roughing up some in the third. The Saints were always in the hunt but the Vitarelli crew always looked a goal or so better on the play. One of their goals was pulled in carelessly by Goalie Udall and was strictly a gift. The count was 1-0 for Legion in the first and 3-1 for them going into the third. Of the seven penalties handed out, three went to Kingston, one of them a misconduct.

Bob In There

Bob Parnell and Johnny Godfrey led the Legion scorers with two points apiece. The latter and Ned Vitarelli again turned in a nice chore on defence, and Ross Nicholls was solid in goal all evening. The whole club clicked well and had a margin on play in every period. Udall only fanned on one and Mortimer played fine hockey for Kingston. Catlin was held well in check, and they all worked hard in a losing cause.

It was fast and even for a space until Rochetta blasted one home after five minutes on Godfrey's pass as they teamed up neatly to go through defence in close. Kerluk was robbed by Nicholls as Kingston came back, and Ace Nicholls came close with play even and hot on the speedy surface. Bob Greenlaw pulled a good rush as the Legion had a little edge, but Mortimer got in for a Kingston shot that went over the net. Play was fast but scrambly, and slowed down the last five minutes.

They Pressed

Kingston threatened early in the second but Legion secred scored again when Parnell batted home a corner passout from Dootch Vitarelli at close range. Both goalies had to hurry as play swept up and down fast and fairly evenly. Godfrey and then E. Nicholls made nice tries, and Belwa almost beat Ross. But Ned Vitarelli got credit for the next goal when Goalie Udall took his shot and calmly tossed it back in his own net instead of around the post. He was plenty burned up at his carelessness. Aitken tested R. Nicholls and Jarrell came close as they fought back. Godfrey went off for interference but Legion checked them to a standstill till his return. But they kept boring in and Bill Mortimer counted on a swoop around defence and hot close-in corner shot. Belwa was hurt and didn't return.

Hemmed In

Kingston pressed to open the third and hemmed Legion in for nearly two minutes in their own end. They were playing fast shinny. Then Bud Goodfellow drew a penalty in a high-sticking exchange between him and Ned Vitarelli. It wound up with Bud having a cut on the forehead and getting the penalty. He started pushing the referee around, as the Saints argued hotly, and he was handed a misconduct penalty. Play roughed up and Dootch Vitarelli went off for interference.

HELPED CAUSE — Bob Parnell was in on two goals to help the cause last night as Legionnaires defeated Kingston Saints 5 to 1 in Lindsay in their OHA senior "B" game.

It was hot and even and Dootch returned in time to see H. Greenlaw count a nice one in close on a pass from Parnell. Then Burns and Catlin tangled and they got it for high-sticking. Bob Greenlaw raced in to score with a hot shot from Godfrey, on nice stick-work by Johnny. Crowley came close as Legion kept in there and then Stephenson and D. Vitarelli were gated for high-sticking just before the end.

The teams:

Kingston: Goal, Udall; defence, Stephenson and Mortimer; centre, Catlin; wings, Ohlke and Aitken; alternates, B. Goodfellow, T. Goodfellow, Jarrell, Belwa, Kerluk and Laird.

Belleville Vets Upset Petes Winning 7 to 3

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 31.—Army, Navy, Air Force "Vets" jumped back into the running here last night by upsetting the Peterborough Petes, 7-3, in an OHA Senior "B" fixture in the Belleville Memorial Arena.

The "Vets' turned in their best effort of the current season to outplay the visitors in every department. Led by Timmy Williams, who scored three goals, and Vern (Jumbo) Goyer, who scored one goal and was credited with three assist, the "Vets" staged a blistering attack that increased as the game progressed.

"Honey" Tompkins, with two goals, was the top Peterborough marksman. Only three penalties were handed out, with Belleville serving two.

While the high scoring of Williams, Gerow and Vern Goyer get the credit for majoity of the goals, every member of the Veterans team turned in a superlative performance. Collectively they checked the Petes off their feet. Opportunists, they scored when the opening presented itself and Harding could be beaten. Big Vern Goyer was the hero of the piece for the Veterans, with Timmy Williams and his three goals standing out. Don Barrett, Keith Macdonald and Doug Day performed brilliantly, while Stewart, Williamson and McNaught turned in good efforts defensively.

Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon and Mortimer were dangerous and with Red Creighton and the rest battled nobly in a cause that was lost after the first period. The actual star of the Petes squad was Harding in the nets. He alone kept the margin of difference of the score to what it was.

Joe Krol, Canada's greatest gridder, appears here tonight as a basketball coach, leading Dalton Furriers of Toronto against the Outboard Marines "A" [illegible] at 8.30 in the Collegiate. Haven't heard if he'll be playing or not, but he may get in the lineup. The Furriers are leading the Toronto intermediate "A" loop at present. Marines "B" bunch have a 7.30 Lakeshore League fixture with Bowmanville Rotary before the big game, and PCVS senior "A" cagers have an exhibition at 6.30 with Bowmanville's OABA junior entry. A large hoop evening for fans. Results of last night's basketball numbers should be in elsewhere tonight. We hope.

Time magazine features Barbara Ann Scott in a colored cover picture and runs a lengthy and complimentary article on Canada's hope for the figure skating title. It says: "Barbara Ann does not jump higher or skate more daringly than her rivals. She just does it better. And, after her turn, instead of hurrying off to her dressing room, she sits and applauds those, who perform after her. All her life she has been taught to be a little lady." Yes, Barbara Ann is also a little workhorse, practising many hours a day to keep perfection. We've seen her in Ottawa on the way up, and we hope to again when she is Olympic as well as world's champion. She has an uncle in Peterborough.

Belleville Vs. Petes

Belleville Vets play the Petes at 8.30 Monday — not Tuesday — night in Omemee, an OHA senior "B" fixture. A highly important one for the Vets. They were sailing along nicely in second place when they ran into reverses at the hands of Kingston and Legion, so now they're in the cellar. Though still within striking distance of both Kingston and Legion, if they snap out of their slump against the Petes, they'll be right back in the thick of it. But the Petes are plenty hot right now. It should be a swell scrap on fast ice and rates a big crowd.

Church Hockey League playoff setup has Mark St. playing St. James at seven Monday at Riverside rink in bantam playoffs. They meet at seven also on Wednesday at King Edward and at seven the next night at Riverside. In midget finals, Mark St. mixes with All Saints at eight Monday at riverside, at eight Wednesday at King Edward and at eight Thursday at Riverside. Haven't got the senior setup yet, but it should be announced soon. The loop isn't taking chances of ice going out of the open-air rinks toward the end of February—which is quite possible—but wants to get all playoffs staged properly and soon.

Too Much Abuse In It

Bill Shannon of Marmora phones to explain why he left the Marmora-Lakefield game in Lakefield last Wednesday in Lakefield. He says Lakefield officials strongly protested a Marmora goal, claiming a player was in the crease. Bill says he did not think so, and also the creases were poorly marked. He ruled it a goal and took quite a panning as the period ended. To cap it all, he states someone in the gallery spit on him as he skated off. "I thought that was too much, and I quit," he said; "perhaps I'm not thick-skinned enough to be a referee but I don't feel the abuse a referee gets on all sides is worth it, so I'm through." Apparently constant criticism got him. In any case, we do think that officials, players and fans often are much too tough on these arbiters who are out there calling them as they see them. After all, hockey is just a game.

* * * * * *

Those Legionnaires are still in the hunt. They knocked off Kingston Saints 5-1 as Petes were taking an unexpected beating in Belleville, so it's anybody's guess yet. Our guess is that the Saints will wind up outside the playoffs unless they get their halos on straight and right smartly. They put up a fine fight all the way last night on fast ice before a small and cold crowd, but they didn't have enough. Legion outplayed them by two or three goals—though they got a soft one when Udall chucked one into his own net. But we'll give 'em credit for fighting. And they had a 170-mile trip, detouring via Sharbot Lake for a player or two. Lorne Cooke and Dingo Haynes are digging into their own jeans to carry the club.

* * * * * *

They Had To Hustle

Legion were in good form and had to hurry all the way in a fast fray. Clean, too, till they got bumping each other in the third. Bud Goodfellow, a chap with a chip on his shoulder, ran into trouble when he tangled in a corner with Ned Vitarelli. Bud got a penalty and then a misconduct for pushing Referee Maurice Walsh—bad business, boys, we keep saying — and he still doesn't know who cut him across the forehead. For a price we'll tell him, but is wasn't Ned. Anyway, it was good shinny as most hockey is today, fast and exciting but not much real hockey shown except in spots. The whole gang went well, Ross Nicholls being strong in goal and Bob Parnell and Johnny Godfrey top scorers with two points each.

UP AND DOWN SPORTS' RIALTO: Just learned the girls' cage scores, CGE edging St. Paul's and Kawartha getting a nod over Lock Co. . . . No further playoffs in this loop till next Friday . . . . It's getting to be quite a scramble and they're taking it pretty seriously, too . . . . And there's quite a battle betwixt the two local senior "B" clubs over Montgomery, a junior; it may go to the OHA yet . . . . Somebody said last night in Lindsay that Catlin was getting plenty to play for Kingston, but he didn't earn too much last eve . . . . TVL and PMHA results should be in elsewhere if they arrived in time for an early Sat'day deadline . . . . And the skiers are busy on plans for a hefty Ontario meet here in a short time . . . . Got to go now before the printers start swearing.

Want Goal Judges To Stand Behind Nets Old Timers Say New Set up Misses Too Much

WINNIPEG, Jan. 31.—(CP). — Remember when the hockey goal judge used to stand on the ice behind the net?

That's a good many years ago, but at least two coaches in the Manitoba Junior Hockey League maintain it's a system that should be restored. Coach Bill McKenzie of Brandon Wheat Kings and Hoss Nicholson, the mentor of Winnipeg Canadiens, insist the judges miss a lot from their spots behind the wire netting.

Both hold that this is particularly true since hockey, in recent years, developed into a helter-skelter affair where players often jam around the net. They think these milling masses often mean that the judges are unable to see what goes on.

McKenzie, who once served a spell with the old Montreal Maroons in the National Hockey League, was first to come out in favor of placing the judges back on the ice. Nicholson chipped in with the opinion that "Bill has something there."

McKenzie insisted that while it might seem "bush league" to suggest that the judges be placed on the ice, he felt it was "the only accurate way of ruling on goals."

Both coaches feel that the only alternative to stationing the goal judges on the ice surface would be to instal a raised platform directly behind the fence where the judge would be placed.

Norwegian Wins

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 31.—(CP).—Fin Helgesen, 21-year-old Norwegian youth, won the Olympic 500-metre (547 yards) speed skating championship today in 43.1 seconds.

Frank Stack of Winnipeg, 41-year-old veteran member of the Canadian team, finnished among the leaders in 43.6.

Keen Contests Run Off In Girls' Loop

Two exciting girls' basketball games were run off in the YWCA last night. Kawarthas defeated Lock Co. 16-10 in the opener, the start of their playoffs, while CGE took a 21-28 win over St. Paul's in their exhibition nightcap before a fair-sized gallery. Plenty of good basketball was dished up in both tilts.

In the first half of the first fixture, Kawarthas were leading 7-3 but Lock Works outplayed them in the second half and the K's couldn't find the basket. It was speedy and interesting all the way with the issue very much in doubt. Mamie Sullivan, Edith McIlhagga and Marion McKee went best for Kawarthas, while Yvonne Harvey, Jean Johnson, and Wilma Floyd stood out for the losers. The teams:

Kawarthas: M. McKee, 3, E. McIlhagga 7, M. Honour, M. Sullivan 6, J. O'Brien, J. Smith; D. McFadden, A. Metheral, D. McNeely.

Lock Co.: J. Johnson 3, Y. Harvey 4, J. Reynolds, J. McIntyre, B. McIlwaine 1, W. Floyd 2, A. Firth, M. Knox, B. Cook.

Second Game

The second scrap was plenty exciting before the Electrics pulled out the nod. They were well ahead the first half to finish 15-5 at the breather, but St. Paul's snapped back strongly the second half but couldn't make up the deficit. They had a good margin on play the last session and clicked better on foul shots. Irene Stewart was outstanding for CGE with Mary Perrin and Marg Kennedy close behind. For St. Paul's, Bev Pringle, Dorothy Allen and Eleanor Whittaker were the best. The teams:

St. Paul's: J. Abbott 2, B. Pringle 10, D. Allen 4, C. Raper 1, E. Whittaker 2, M. Beggs 2, L. Coones, J. Smith, B. Luther.

CGE: I. Stewart 11, B. Stewart 3, M. Perrin, Mary Perrin 6, T. Stewart 3, H. Gardner 1, M. Kennedy 4, J. Meadows.

Referees, J. Stewart and I. Cipin; timer, A. Neiman.

Dutchmen Clip Marlboros 4-2

By The Canadian Press

It was a case last night of Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen drawing an ace and Toronto Marlboros losing one.

Joe Primeau's Dukes lost their crack centre and the league's top scorer, Johnny McCormack, to their parent club, Toronto Maple Leafs as a replacement for Syl Apps and the Dutchmen this week signed up Bobbie Bauer, National Hockey League all-star last season.

Net result was that the second-place Marlboros were defeated 4-2 by the fifth-place Dutchmen in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A tilt at Toronto last night.

At Hamilton the wily Tigers strengthened their hold on first place with a 9-0 blanking of the sixth-place Patricias.

In the junior loop Barrie Flyers broke their third-place tie with Stratford Kroehlers by a 6-5 victory over the eighth-place Guelph Biltmores at Barrie.

Faiers Gets Six As May's Victors

R. Faiers led May's Juniors to a 6-1 Public School Hockey League triumph over Central. He counted all six markers in a fine showing, getting two in the initial inning, one in the middle canto and three in the big third frame. Central's lone tally came in the second period. The teams:

May's: Goal, Marchen; defence, Heron, Dumitt; centre, Faiers; wings, Collins, Byrd; alternates, Clark, Schweier, Chambo, Godfrey, Greeniss.

Central: Goal, Gibbs; defence, Gray, Brooks; centre, Cooper; wings, Gardner, Patterson; alternates, Heffernan, Mills, Burrows.

WITH THE GREATEST OF EASE — Perfect form is shown in tthis ski-jump at St. Moritz, Switzerland, by Walter Bietila of the U.S. Olympic team. The pre-Olympic practices have caused so many accidents that Olympic officials are concerned about the adverse publicity given to skiing. A Swedish trainer of Olympic skiers, Coesta Olander, has publicly criticized the selection of St. Moritz as a site for Olympic games, saying that climate and snow conditions make it unsuitable.

Two PCVS Teams Win In Lindsay

The PCVS Senior "B" outfit last night dropped in Lindsay a 33-25 decision to the Lindsay seniors, the PCVS Bantams won by a 20-2 count and the PCVS Junior "B' outfit won 21-14. All three games were loosely played and showed the effects of a week of examinations at the PCVS.

The senior game was close all the way, with Lindsay taking an early lead and being headed off only twice in the second quarter. Lindsay checked well and their shooting was right on. The thirty foul shots of this game were split between the teams, with PCVS making eight and Lindsay seven. The teams:

Lindsay Seniors (33)—Centre, Preston 6; forwards, Battersley 16, Eggleton 2; guards, Elliott 6, Laidley 2, Skitch 1, Kennedy.

PCVS Senior 'B" (26)— Centre, Hugh Dibben 5; forwards, Dave Dibben 5, Hempstead 4; guards, Masters 1, Thomson 2, Hill 1, Payne, Chapman 3, Taylor, Archibald, Manbeck 5.

Junior "B" Game

In the Junior "B" game the teams showed little or no polish. Batchelor was easily the star, but his team mates gave him little support on defensive play. High PCVS scorer for the night was Ackford, with eight points. The teams:

Lindsay Juniors (14)— Saval, Bellamy 5, Dawkins, Dick Walling 7, Wilkinson 2, Haugh, Dave Walling.

PCVS Junior "B" (21)—Bailey 2, Grant, Jopling 2, Ackford 8, Hall 1, Batchelor 6, Evans, Coon, Woodcock, Murphy, Stacey 2, Hamblin.

Playing the second game in their home and home series for group honors the Bantams took a seventeen-point lead to Lindsay with them, and proceeded to drub the Scugog team 20-2 and take the round 45-10. The losers didn't get a single field goal in the whole game, and Ash, Cunningham and Bryan Young led the winners with a flashy attack. The teams:

Lindsay Bantams (2) —Richardson, Maidens, Puffer, McCabe, McGee, Fosher, Smith, Lewis. Hardly 2, Pinney, McFadden.

PCVS Bantams (20)—Young 7, Doughty 4, Jameson 2, McIlwraith, Ash 2, Brown 1, Hendren, Cooke, Cunningham. 4, Braund 2, Pulley.

U Of T Victors

TORONTO, Jan. 31 — (CP).— University of Toronto swamped a much weaker University of Montreal senior hockey team 12-4 last night to retain their leadership of the four-team Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League.

A crowd of 2,100 fans at Varsity Stadium saw the Varsity Blues, paced by Bill Spence, Harry Boyd, and Don Bark—with two goals apiece—fly through the Montreal Carabins from the 34-second mark of the first period to stretch a first-period lead of 5-2, to 8-3 in the second frame, and win easily.

The other Toronto goal-getters were Johnston, Kryzanowski, Larmer, Brown, Winslow and Turcott.

The Mask Agrees To Tackle McCready and Ben Sharpe

BEN SHARPE

Something quite unusual seems to be in store for Peterborough wrestling fans next Wednesday night according to word this morning from Brock Arena Manager Jim Laidlaw. The local match-maker has signed the Masked Marvel to wrestle in a special handicap match against not one, but two opponents. The Mask has agreed to meet both Ben Sharpe and Earl McCready in the feature bout of the weekly card.

The unusual match grew out of a boast by the mystery-man that he "could throw any two wrestlers (outside of Watson and Longson) both on the same night." Well Mr. Mystery-Man will have the opportunity to prove himself as an iron-man when big Ben and the Aurora Farmer get at him. It should prove a rare treat for the mat fans.

Hockey Goes On At Olympics

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 31 (CP). — The International Ice Hockey Federation announced to-day that hockey wil continue to be played in conjunction with the fifth winter Olympic Games. Shortly after the decision the disputed Amateur Hockey Association of the United States team took the ice against Poland.

The federation announcement was issued in defiance of the International Olympic Committee which yesterday struck hockey from the official program and withdrew recognition from the federation.

This brought new complications to the dissention-riddled Games. An authoritative source said the IOC has threatened to call off the Games of hockeyIcontinues.

Already other fodder for argument was thrown at the IOC as this crowded winter sports resort ushered in the speed skating and skiing events as well as hockey.

Eleven countries, including Canada, presented a protest to the IOC and the International Skating Union against the use of the Skating Union's rules in the Olympics.

Reports of "sabotage" to three American bob-sleds before the opening of Friday's Games, but caught in time, were confirmed by a United States Olympic bobsled team member.

The International Federation's decision was announced by Mr. Fritz Kraatz, president, who said after an emergency meeting:

"A letter has been written by the Swiss Olympic Committee, as reorganizing committee of the Olympic Games, to the International Olympic Committee, and we are waiting for the answer before taking further action.

"Meantime, the ice hockey tournament will carry on."

Meantime, four hockey games were scheduled for to-day. Canada, after its surprising 3-1 triumpt over Sweden's strong team drew a bye for to-day's second-round competition. The other games, if played, were: Poland vs. United States, Czechoslovakia vs. Sweden, Switzerland vs Italy, Britain vs. Austria.

The 11-country protest in the 50-metre speed skating race, today's opening Olympic event, was disclosed by Benjamin Agdade of Detroit, who said the skaters wanted the pairing for each race to be made on an individual basis, without regard to how the competitors finished in previous events.

The Skating Union rules provide that the faster skaters are paired against each other in subsequent meetings. Thus the first and second finishers in the 500-metre would be opponents should both compete in the 1,500-metre event.

Under Olympic and Skating Union rules, the skaters compete in pairs against the clock.

The protest, however, will not interfere with the race in which Frank Stack and Gordon Audley of Winnipeg, Ab Hardy of Edmonton and Craig McKay of Saskatoon will represent the Dominion.

Seventeen countries, including Canada, are entered in the 18-kilometres (slightly more than 10 miles) cross-country ski event, with the Swedish four-man team the favorites.

This event will be followed by a long-distance phase of military ski pentathlon.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Dit Clapper, captain and defenceman of the Boston Bruins in the NHL, suffered a severe heel injury when he collided with Bingo Kampman of Toronto, six years ago tonight. The Bruin captain's Achilles tendon was severed and he had to be assisted off the ice. Big, likable Dit hung up his skates last year and is now coaching the Bruins.

MOVES UP — Johnny McCormack, the free-wheeling star of the Marlboros, will move up to the Maple Leafs' NHL team, following the injury to Syl Apps in the Wednesday game with Canadiens. McCormack, who was on the Maple Leaf roster in 1945, will be allowed a three-game trial with the Leafs without losing his amateur status. He refused a berth in the NHL last year and entered a seminary to study for the priesthood, but changed his mind and joined the Marlboros this season. Apps is expected to be out of the game until next week-end.

Spare Goalie Shuts Out Hastings 13-0

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 31. — The honor of the first shutout of the season for any Trent Valley Hockey League goalie went to Sid Hopping, a spare netminder for Campbellford, while his teammate tallied 13 against Hastings last night at Davidson's Arena. This was Sid's first time in the nets in a league game in ten years, and the opinion of many fans who saw him perform, is that he should be seen there more often. Stu Donald, the regular goalie, and Bud Peloquin a sharp shooting wing man, were both unable to play because of flu.

No penalties were drawn by either side in the first and second periods but in the third, tempers flared several times in a rough period of hard checking hockey.

SO GRACEFUL, SHE MAKES IT LOOK TOO EASY — Grace on skates such as this comes only to those willing to work for it. Barbara Ann Scott, shown at Davos, Switzerland, has been practising since she was a little girl and the difficult turns and jumps she makes are so natural they look easy. At many of her exhibitions, spectators are disappointed because the more difficult of the figure skating motions are accomplished with such ease they look simple and unspectacular.

National Loop Teams Hit Home Stretch

By The Canadian Press

With two-thirds of the schedule completed, the National Hockey League teams this week-end break into the last 20 games of their schedule of 60 games apiece. And on two of this week-end's contests the league championship could easily be settled.

Those two are the clashes between Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs. Detroit are at the top, one victory in front of Toronto, and Detroit and Toronto collide twice this week-end. Two victories for Detroit would put them six points in front of the Leafs. Two victories for Toronto would put the Leafs ahead by one game.

Toronto fans were none too helpful. The Wings arrived in Toronto with a great road record, while Leafs have lost veteran Captain Sylvanus Apps, high-scoring centre-forward, whose leg injury suffered in Wednesday's game against Canadiens will keep him out of action for a week or more.

The schedule tonight has Detroit at Toronto, the third-place New York Rangers at Montreal Canadiens, and the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks at Boston Bruins. Sunday the Leafs are at Detroit, Montreal at Boston, and Chicago at New York.

Upper Canada Trims TCS 9-1

O'Sullivan, with three goals, led UCC ably supported by Kent on the defence. Bazos played hard, giving UCC a well deserved win.

UCC—Goal, Orr; defence, Corby, Bazos; centre, Hewitt; wings, White, Kent; alternates, Ball, O'Sullivan, Hadden, Barkley, Addison, Frame.

TCS—Goal, Goodboy; defence, Bruce, Hall; centre, Fullerton wings, Austin, Little; alternates McPherson, Moffitt, Wood, Drummond, Kingman, Robarts, Stratford.

Snowshoe Brigade Invades Ottawa For Race

By H. DENT HODGSON,

OTTAWA, Jan. 31 — (CP). — Colorful characters who consider snowshoeing fun — even in the below-zero weather promised here for to-day — flocked into town in dozens of special trains this morning for the international snowshoers' convention.

A rare and peculiar sport, snowshoeing on a large scale has not been seen in this Capital since 1937, when, 2,500 delegates recall, they "took the town over."

Hotel managers still remember the scene with a grimace, since the high-spirited hardy convention took the town by storm—a storm which swept to near-riot proportion.

This time, officials promise the "raquetteurs" will be good. All participants have been warned of severe reprimands for any misconduct, and each will wear on his left sleeve a number which will identify him in case of any horseplay.

At any rate, they have convinced civic officials. Mayor Stanley Lewis of Ottawa and Mayor Raymond Brunet of Hull will present the snowshoers with the keys of their respective cities at ceremonial pauses in the festivities.

Highlight of the convention is a 10-mile snowshoe Marathon, which must be run off in any weather. Last year the snowshoers clompled around in snowless Manchester, NH, and came in with bruised and bleeding feet. To-day's sub-zero weather was not likely to set them back.

The race caught civic snow-cleaning officials off guard. They had just cleared piles of snow off the boulevard on King Edward Avenue where most of the races will be held. To-day saw them piling the snow back on the boulevard again, in preparation for the races.

Both men's and women's races will be held in the afternoon, but the high point of the day is expected as the Marathoners come snowshoeing along downtown Rideau Street in the stretch of the 10-mile gruelling contest.

With the gaudily-garbed "raquetteurs" in town, it is generally conceded that anything can happen. Old-timers well recall a 10-mile race at Lewiston, Maine, where 30 of the 32 racers lost their way and reached the finish line after travelling only five miles. The other two were conceded victory.

WOMEN LIVE LONGER

The expected life span of a one-year-old Canadian girl is 68.73 years and that of a one-year-old Canadian boy, 66.14 years.

AUTO PLANT CLOSES DOWN IN FUEL SHORTAGE —Workers stream from the huge Dodge motor car factory at Detroit, Mich., at 4 p.m. as the current cold-induced heating gas shortage forces the big plant to close down. Thousands are out of work in the Detroit and Windsor, Ont., areas as plant after plant closes its doors because of the lack of heat.

S. Africa Starts Huge Scheme

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa Jan. 31 (CP)—Believed to be the biggest single housing scheme yet to be undertaken by any authority in South Africa, the National Housing and Planning Commission's £1,000,000 ($4,000,000) suburb in Bloemfontein will be started in March, when work begins on the first 400 houses.

The suburb is planned to be a model village in all respects.

Last year was a record for building projects in Bloemfontein, the total value of plans passed soaring to £1,581,353 ($6,325,412).

Annual Report Features Deloro Employees Suggestions

MARMORA, Jan. 31 (ENS)—Twenty-three years of safety operations at the plant of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited were reviewed at the annual public meeting and entertainment held in Deloro Hall on Wednesday. C. H. Buskard, chairman of the Safety committee, presided. Following a sing-song led by Al Harvey, MC for the entertainers of the evening, the chairman gave his report.

By rights of best records, N A. Kilpatrick and W. Chrysler are the foremen to represent employees at the industrial accident prevention convention this year, with W. Dickson representing the staff. M Buskard also outlined the functions of the trustee relief fund and commented upon the social serviceability of the plant bulletin. He noted that no deaths had occurred in the plant staff during the year. He stressed the point that while industry was striving to eliminate accidents, accidents in the home were on the increase. This, he contended, called for continued effort in safety education. The secretary's report given by H. A. McNally, furnished a record of the work of the various sub-committees. He pointed out that 101 sugestions had been received by the suggestions committee, of which 77 had been carried out, 20 rejected and four in course of completion. The competitive committee reported one major accident and 10 minor accidents for 1947, with 49½ lost days.

The general division holds the star, emblematic of the best cumulative record for every month of the year. This was their second successive year. The inspection committee submitted 168 suggestions to operating departments regarding safety improvements in equipment or methods. Eight suggestions were made regarding improved health conditions and all have been completed.

Representatives from departments for the general committee were elected for 1948 as follows: Silver and cobalt metals plant, Fred Spry; cobalt oxide plant, Sidney Barnett; stellite plant, James Robertson; engineering department, Jules Ethier; general division, Leslie Gazley, Harold Dalton. A. V. Yates, general manager, moved adoption of the report. Each felt the responsibility for the safety of others. In that way it was possible to build up an organization for the general good.

The program of the evening followed, proving to be one of the best seen at this annual affaair. The cast of the entertainment program was: Al Harvey, MC; Rex Slocombe, magician: Thelma Peach, singer of comic songs; Gus Mauro, accordion player; Lou Skuce, shadowgraph cartoonist; Harld Rich, pianist.

The meeting was preceded by the annual banquet for the committee in the staff dining room. It was served by Mrs. Charles McInroy and her staff.

Executive of the Deloro Safety committee for 1948 are: Chairman, C. H. Buskard; vice-chairman, J. A. Paquet; secretary, H. A. McNally; assistant secretary, G. H. Rennie.

Look To Africa For More Cotton

LONDON, Jan. 31 (CP) — Scientists of the Empire Cotton Growing Corporation are visiting Nigeria and the Gold Coast where there is hope of increased production of American-type cotton, the secretary of state for the colonies informed the Commons recently.

In East Africa also, Mr. Creech-Jones said, there is room for the expansion of cotton on new areas by better methods, greater use of fertilizers and the control of pests. Experiments in fertilizers and insecticides are to take place and steps to open up new areas are being considered. Cotton so produced will be suitable for Lancashire mills.

Declare Threats Void Confession

KITCHENER, Jan. 31 (ENS)—Threats of suspension made by an inspector of the Ontario Liquor Control Board to members of the staff of the liquor store in neighboring Waterloo constitute duress and make void any admissions of tampering with liquor, Magistrate H. R. Polson ruled today.

The ruling was contained in a written judgment on a defence application for dismissal of theft charges against Eldon W. Weber of Waterloo, a former employee at the store.

Weber's counsel, Kenneth Sims, said last week there was no evidence of theft beyond a statement made by Weber after the staff was addressed last November by Peter Beaton, senior inspector of the Liquor Control Board.

The inspector said in court that Weber made the statement after he (Beaton) threatened to suspend the entire staff unless the party guilty of liquor thefts admitted his guilt. If the admission was made, the offender would be given a chance to resign, Inspector Beaton said he told the staff.

Magistrate Polson voided one charge of theft of six bottles but asked for a defence on a second count of theft of one bottle. He said the second theft was covered in evidence given by other employees, apart from the "confession" testimony. The case was adjourned a week to enable Mr. Sims to prepare a defence on the second count.

Missing Widow Found By Alert Detective

Mrs. Williams was spotted by Morality Officer Louis Kingerley on a downtown street and was taken to headquarters to await the arrival of Toronto detectives.

The young woman was married overseas and came to Canada in October, 1946. Her husband was killed four months ago in an accident. A daughter is cared for by the Children's Aid Society.

Regret Felt At Illness Of 2 Church Workers

MILLBROOK, Jan. 31 (ENS)—The WA of St. Thomas' Anglican church at the rector on Monday with Mrs. A. E. Chevis, president, in charge, assisted by Miss M. L. Collins, who read the lesson. Regret was expressed for the illness of Mrs. C. M. Westmacott of the organization for 16 years whose home had been the meetin-place each month for some time, and for the illness of Miss Isabelle McCorry, for 15 years superintendent of the Junior WA, now a patient in the Civic Hospital, Peterborough.

Reports for 1947 were received, showing pledges all paid, a balance in the bank, special offerings in October and November. Mrs. J. W. Hilton reported on the Dorcas work.

Mrs. C. M. MacLean and Miss Collins will attend the combined executive meeting to be held at St. Andrew's parsonage on Wednesday, to plan for the World Day of Prayer on Friday, Feb. 13 Mrs. MacLean discussed a chapter of the study book.

Miss Collins and Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke were the supper hostesses for the social hour which concluded the meeting.

What We Know About Jesus

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Isaiah 53:4-6; Matthew 1:21; 5:17; 20:26-28; Luke 19:1-10; Hebrews 4:15, 16

Jesus, in His Sermon on the Mount, said, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill."

"But whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant."

Zacchaeus, being small, climbed into a tree that he might see Jesus pass; but He beckoned him, saying, "Today I must abide with thee."

Zacchaeus received Jesus joyously, but others murmured that the Lord would be the guest of a sinner.

MEMORY VERSE—Luke 19:10

God's Glory in Sympathy Not in Power and Might

By REV. E. R. JAMES.

Moses said: Lord, I beseech thee, show me thy glory. The Lord said: I will make all my goodness to pass before thee. Exodus 33; 1.

A confession. this writer, when a boy, had this chapter for his Scripture lesson. He thrilled at the question: "Lord, I beseech Thee, Show me thy glory." He read eagerly for the answer. "The Lord said: I will cause all my goodness to pass before thee." Disappointed was a mild word. On the other hand let us remember that this revelation was made to Moses not when he was a young man, but in his mature old age. The experiences of life made him fit to understand more or less this revelation of the character of God.

Moses had been brought up by Pharoah's daughter; borught up in the royal court; trained in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. We see God's guiding hand in all this fitting him to be the ruler of a barbarian people. Moses had seen all the power and glory of the most important nation of that age. Is your highest thought of God, four thousand years later that of might and power? This is the popular idea. It is seen in the question:— "Why does not God stop war?"

Very probably this revelation of God was a shock to Moses. Hidden in the clift of the rock he is privileged to hear the Voice proclaim:— "The Lord, the Lord God merciful and gracious; long suffering and abundant in goodness and truth."

Dr. Davidson, a foremost Hebrew scholar, says that this is the most moving description of the character of God in the whole of the Old Testament. God's glory and greatness is seen not in physical force but in goodness and mercy. This is not attractive to the ordinary man who finds it hard to think of God as full of mercy and loving kindness.

It is instructive to remember what an influence this revelation of God had on Moses himself. He was hot tempered when he slew the Egyptian; when he smote the rock instead of speaking to it. But slowly and gradually a change takes place. In his old age be becomes noted for his meekness. Hearken to the Scripture:—"Now the man Moses was very meek above all the men that were upon the face of the earth." Num. 12; 3.

Nearly two thousand years later the Lord Christ clearly says:—"I am meek and lowly in heart; Come unto Me" and learn of Me." Think of His last act in the Upper Room:— "Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into His hands, and that He came from God and went to God; He riseth from supper and laid aside His garments— and began to wash His disciples feet and to wipe them with the towel wherewith He was girded." St. John 13; 3. Here is the fulfillment of the revelation given to Moses. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" is His clear claim.

God's glory is seen not in power and might but in sympathy and mercy. Have you not discovered this in your own experience? Truly you should be able to say:—"Lord, Thou hast dealt graciously with thy servant according unto Thy Word". It is your privilege to ponder upon this revelation of God's character. It is a very hard lesson that God's glory is seen not in power and might but in goodness, loving kindness and mercy.

My heart hath talked of Thee: Seek Ye my face: Thy face, Lord, will I seek.

What Do We Know About Jesus' Work of Salvation

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

(The International Uniform Leson on the above topic for February 1 is Isaiah 53, 4-6, Matthew 1, 21; 5, 17. 20, 26-28; Luke 19, 1-10, Hebrews 4, 15, 16, the memory verse being Luke 19, 10: "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost."

Isaiah, the prophet, wrote the first words assigned to our lesson, presumably, in Jerusalem about 710 or 712 BC. "Surely He hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows, yet we did esteem Him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.

"But He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes were we healed.

"All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and Jehovah hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all."

Seven hundred years from the time this prophecy was written, Joseph of Nazareth was told by an angel of the coming of a son to his affianced wife Mary, "And thou shalt call His name Jesus, for it is He that shall save His people from their sins."

Seven hundred years passed before Christ was born at Bethlehem, and more than 1,900 years have gone and we still are (many of us) "like sheep that have gone astray." When will we heed the Saviour's voice and follow His teaching and example?

Not as a law breaker came Jesus to the world, as He said Himself: "Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets: I came not to destroy, but to fulfill."

Every disciple of Jesus and every minister of the gospel should bear in mind constantly the words of Jesus when He said: "Whosoever would be great among you shall be your minister. And whosoever shall be chief among you, let him be your servant;

"Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many."

All Should Serve

Whether your talents be great or small; whether you are beautiful or plain, rich or poor, great or one of the "little people" of the earth, to serve should be your motto. If Jesus, Son of God, could do such a humble task as to wash the feet of His disciples, to prepare food for them, etc., why should we, His followers in any walk of life, think we are too fine or dainty to do work with our hands? Think what a difference it would make to the world if everyone, from the smallest to the greatest, children to men and women, took as their motto, "I serve;" and lived up to that motto.

Jesus was passing through Jericho, and many people must have been following Him or lining the path by which He walked to see this man of whom they had heard such wonderful stories. One man, a tax-gatherer named Zacchaeus, a very short person, wanted to see Him, and so climbed into the branches of a sycamore tree to look over the heads of the crowd.

Jesus looked up and saw Zacchaeus and called to him, "Zacchaeus, make haste, and come down, for to-day I must abide at thy house."

Now Zacchaeus was, as we said before, a tax-gatherer; that is, he was working for the Roman rulers, which made him a Jew, very unpopular with his own people. He was chief tax-gatherer of that district, having others under his charge, and these men were required only to turn in to the Roman authorities so much money per person in the district. This was a temptation for them to collect more than they had to turn in and pocket the difference — which many did.

Thus when Jesus chose Zacchaeus to be His host in Jericho, the people whispered one to another, "He has gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner."

Zacchaeus, however, received the Lord most joyously, and, standing before Jesus, he said, "Behold, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have anything from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold."

Jesus said to him: "This day is salvation come to this house, forso much as he also is a son of Abraham."

So was converted Zacchaeus, the Jewish tax-gatherer, and Paul, in his letter to the Hebrews sums up Jesus' mission on earth and attitude towards His people, when he says: "For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.

"Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need."

"Tempted like as we are," but stainless, and our aim must be to be like Him.

Seek To Check Slaughter Of Song Birds

Morley V. Powell was elected president of the Peterborough Nature Club at its annual meeting Friday night. Featured on the program was a showing of color slides of flowers of Peterborough district taken by the new president. The meeting also moved to sponsor an educational scheme in the city's schools to acquaint students with requirements of the Game and Fisheries Act.

Other officers elected were: Vice president, J. L. McKeever; secretary-treasurer, L. H. Bird; committee, Mrs. M. V. Powell, Mrs. C. C. Pilon, Miss M. Eastwood.

The resolution passed stressed the needless slaughter of wild native songbirds with air guns and small-bore rifles in the hands of juveniles.

The club recommended that the attention of all pupils be called to sections of the Act dealing with air gun licences, age of licensee, non-transfer of licences, and clauses protecting the shooting of wild birds.

The club will ask the assistance of the Boy Scouts of the city and other youth groups in carrying out this plan.

City Plumbers Find Fewer Frozen Pipes

Plumbers in Peterborough are finding a sharp increase in demands for their services in ratio to fluctuations of the thermometer. A survey shows that conditions in house plumbing have improved over the past years during cold spells due to better insulated homes. In depression times when families were of necessity conserving fuel, service calls were far greater. These days frozen pipes in most cases stem from a cellar window that has blown open and flooded the basements with freezing air.

Some jobs, if caught in time, can be remedied in half an hour, others that go unnoticed require five hours of labor and broken part replacements. Unlike some of the cities and towns in Northern Ontario that are built on rock and have plumbing installations above ground, Peterborough's plumbing problems are not acute.

WOLF NEAR BURNHAM'S WOODS

Hungry wolves are prowling closer to the city these cold days Friday afternoon Harold Lancaster, RR 7 Otonobee, near Burnham's wood, together with a companion spotted wolf about 100 from the barn. Their attention was drawn by the animal by the frantic barking of a young puppy who scented the intruder but had enough sense not to dash in and "see him off." Tracks in the snow showed that it had come from Burnham's wood and struck out to the next property, when frightened off. Mr. Lancaster had no gun on the premises and so lost the chance of getting himself a bounty.

Ohio Hunters Come For Bear

The Kawarthas have not only become known as the best summer playground in Canada, for summer visitors come back again regardless of cold weather on hunting trips. Wallace Urban and Paul Smith, both of Cleveland, drove through Peterborough Tuesday to a rendezvous with Don Tanner at Ohio Lodge on Paudash lake. Their quest, black bear.

Regardless of low temperatures, that show minus 30 degrees this morning in their vicinity, the hunters and guide Don have crisscrossed the country on skiis and have located a bear den. They hope to smoke out the sleepy bruin and take home a brand new rug. They hope it will be two rugs, maybe.

The two visitors are aircraft mechanics working at the Cleveland air terminal on the maintenance of A26 bombers and cold weather holds no fear for them. They admit our brand of cold is something different.

Instal Officers Of Samaritans

Installation of Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans was held Friday evening in the Oddfellows Hall. Supreme Monarchon H. C. Wilmot of Schenectady, N.Y., C. E. Jolly of Geneva, Ohio, D.G.S.M. F. Gore of Toronto were in attendance. The installation staff were from Xerxes No. 1 of Toronto and jointly installed Mycerenous No. 41 of Lindsay and Cyzicus No. 24 of Peterborough.

Newly installed officers of Cyzicus are: Venerable Fliar, W. Alberry; Grand Monarch, E. McKinstry; Vice Grand Monarch, Frank Barrie; Registrar, W. Wood; Banker, Ken Throop; Grand Counsellor, E. Bestard; Grand Chief Guide, K. Pearson; Grand High Executionist, A. Price; Grand Herald, E. Fowler; Grand Senotros, W. Blair; Grand Director, F. Batten; Grand Monitar, B. Devolin; Grand Steward, R. Murduff; Police, Constable Weir.

After the ceremony, Supreme Monarchon addressed the gathering giving the welcome news that almost 2,000 members were initiated last year with even brighter prospects in sight for 1948.

All shieks and tribesmen, numbering more than 100, gathered in the dining room afterward for a banquet prepared and served by the ladies of Rebekah Lodge.

Examiner Photographer Has 4 Pictures In New Book

For the second time within a month, Nick Nickels, staff photographer for the Peterborough Examiner, has learned that photographs taken by him have won recognition. This latest honor award is the using of four pictures from Canada's north in a book called "The New North," a pictorial masterpiece sponsored by the Hudson's Bay Company, depicting life in Canada's colorful and storied northland. Not only were four of his pictures used, but one of them, a winter scene reproduced above was rated as the best "Still" in the entire book.

Reproduction on newsprint does not reveal the beauty and artistry the same as is done on coated paper, but still the picture has sufficient detail to show the touch of the master outdoor photographer. Mr. Nickels spent many years in the north, and while there was busy with his camera recording the scenic beauty. Other pictures in the book by Mr. Nickels are "Jackpines," a still showing snow-laden pines; "The Crying Papoose," a shot of a Cree family with the papoose registering his objection to the activity by bawling lustily; the other shows a man on snowshoes, lying at the edge of a brook taking a drink. These four fit beautifully into a picture continuity that will delight not only the lover the outdoors, but those with an artistic turn of mind who likes anything beautiful. It is published by Ryerson Press.

When a company house organ changes from a staff publication to a magazine published entirely for people outside of the company, it must deal with a tremendous subject indeed. The subject, as displayed on the masthead of its Magazine of the North, The Beaver, is the Canadian Northland and its publishers, the Hudson's Bay Company, have known it intimately for the past 278 years. The magazine's historical articles, beautifully illustrated, as well as its presentation of present-day articles of life in the North, has become the most reliable source of information on the subject produced anywhere.

In September, 1947, magazine editor, Clifford Wilson went a step much farther and was responsible for compiling and editing a large book of some 223 pages of the best "Beaver" photographs that had appeared in his Company's magazine over the past decade. The results were beyond all expectation. The book tells of the ever-changing scene in Canada's amazing Northland in pictures that each reveal more than thousands of pages of print could accomplish.

Fine Bird Pictures

The book is aptly divided into sections. It starts with "Nature," wild bird and animal life taken by professional and accomplished amateur photographers. The wildfowl pictures deserve special mention and were taken by a woman, the late Lorene Squire, who recorded bird life in the Arctic breeding grounds of the MacKenzie Delta and shores of the Beanfort Sea. Hers is the most authentic record of its kind ever filmed.

Following this series comes a section on the Eskimo, toddlers, children, hunters and old cronies whose Mongoloid faces are so real, they fairly speak from the pages. The mystic beauty of the northland is shown in a series that gives a complete picture pattern of the silent land, sparkling lakes, lazy and turbulent rivers, the bush and barrens country and the weird display of the nightly aurora.

Indians are shown in every phase of their way of life, tribes from Great Slave Lake to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. They are shown at work, at play, at spiritual devotions. Character studies of Northern men and women are shown and a spread devoted to "Babes," be they huskie puppies or little papooses trussed up in their cradle boards, or Eskimo children playing with the litter of a sled dog mother, is cleverly handled. A series on the Primitive Man records the faces of the hunters of the ice floes, faces that make one shudder a bit, but they too are Canadians.

The Hudson's Bay Company are justifiably proud of their neat fur trade posts that are all "shipshape" and yet retain relics of the past and modern construction features of the present day. Both the better and lesser known establishments offer a wide variety of subject matter and show the stamp of the Great Company's penchant for orderliness.

Each photo was chosen as a record in its own right, needle-sharp in detail and story telling at its best. The publishers, editor and printers have turned out a volume the like of which has never before been assembled. It shows fellow Canadians in the south for the first time what life is like in their changing North, the largest section by far, of their Home and Native Land.

Hugh Stewart New Head Of Fair Board

Hugh Stewart, well-known local horseman, was elected president of the Peterborough Agricultural Society Friday night at the first meeting of the newly-elected Board of Directors held in the committee room of the Department of Agriculture offices. The remainder of the executive positions were filled; and a start was made on the task of holding an agricultural fair this year.

Mr. Stewart had advocated holding a fair this year at the annual meeting a week ago. Success of this venture will now largely depend upon his leadership. In accepting the presidency, he said he did so chiefly because he had fought so hard for an agricultural fair and felt he couldn't refuse when responsibility was thrust on him.

Norman McConkey was elected 1st vice president; and Donald Milburn, of junior farmers, 2nd vice president. Both Gordon Hancock, president, and Stanley Lowe, secretary, offered their resignations due to the press of business. However, both offered to help the society in any way possible, and Mr. Lowe agreed to stay on in his office until a suitable successor could be found. Richard Ward was re-elected treasurer.

Ex-president Hancock congratulated Mr. Stewart on his office, expressed confidence in his enthusiasm and drive, wished him the best of luck, and asked members to co-operate in making the year a success.

Three-Day Fair

On a motion by John Kitney, and after long discussion, it was decided that a three-day fair would be held on Sept. 16, 17 and 18. As many Ontario centres hold fairs around that date and an overlapping was almost bound to occur, the choice was a difficult one.

While the exact program for the three-day period was not drawn up, the general tendency seemed to be in the direction of an emphsis on agriculture rather than on professional entertainment—such as midways and trick performances. Norm McConkey led the anti-midway faction while Harold Rehill stuck to the opinion that light entertainment was necessary if the city people were to support the show.

Gordon Hancock, Norman McConkey, Bruce Sargent, and president Stewart were appointed to attend the Ontario Fairs Association meeting to be held in Toronto, Feb. 12 and 13. Voting delegates are to be Norman McConkey and Hugh Stewart.

The same committee was empowered to look into the appointment of a secretary-manager who would be able to give the position his full-time attention.

It was decided that in addition to the afternoon events, a horse show and horse racing would take place in front of the grandstand at night.

To nominate the chairman and members of the numerous committees necessary in arranging for the fair, the following nominating committee was appointed: Bruce Sargent, Dr. Harold Worton, Arthur McIntyre, Norman McConkey, Charles Moore, Vern Campbell, Harold Rehill, Merton Storey and Mr. Stewart.

It was agreed that a complement of associate directors from industry, Chamber of Commerce, City Council, and other civic bodies be named.

Mr. Rehill moved that the honorary members be the same as last year, except that the name of James Humphries, Warden of the county, should be added.

An application by Kinsmen for use of the Exhibition grounds for a horse show on June 11 and 12 was granted.

The Board will meet next Friday night to hear reports of committees and get on with the task of organizing.

Council's Pension Plan For Civic Employees Ready For Necessary Bylaw

More than five years of study and research of various types of pension plans will come to completion with the expected passing by the City Council on Monday evening of the necessary by-law establishing a pension plan for the civic employees. The establishment of the pension plan takes in all the 250 employees now on the payroll, including the office staff, fire department, police department, and employees of the various works departments. Later it may include those employees of the Board of Education at present not included in the teachers' retirement plan, and also employees of the Public Library Board and the Civic Hospital.

For a number of years members of the City Council have been convinced that there should be a plan for retiring aged employees from the civic service, and that retirement allowances should be properly calculated and established and not continue on the former "catch as catch can" basis. The plan as adopted by the City Council is similar in many respects to the pension plans now in operation for the benefit of employees of many of the industrial plants in the city, and also contains the main features of plans adopted for civic employees in numerous cities of the Province.

Anual Cost is $15,000.

The basic provision of the plan is that the employees contribute to it. All employees joining the plan must contribute five per cent of their salaries, these deductions from their salaries being equalled by a similar contrition by the employer, which is the City of Peterborough. The funds so gained are being invested by the city in an annuity for each employee under the Dominion Government Annuities Plan. It is estimated that the city's contribution annually will be $15,000.00.

The plan has been delayed time and again to overcome the main financial obstacle presented by the adoption of all pension schemes, namely, the large financial outlay required to take care of the past service of employees. When plans were submitted several years ago to the City Council the most of the past service feature was estimated to be anywhere from $150,000.00 to $250,000.00. The City Council in its present plan has been able to overcome any such major expenditure by taking advantage of a provision in the Muncipal Act which permits the Council to pay a retiring allowance to any employee who finds it necessary to retire because of age or infirmity, providing he has had at least 20 years continuous service with the municipality. Under this provision the adopted plan of the Council sets out that each employee will receive a retiring allowance in addition to the annuity purchased by his and the Council's contribution, such payments for past service to retired employees to be placed in the estimates annually and to be paid monthly direct from the City Treasurer in addition to his annuity cheque from the Dominion Annuities Branch.

The employees are assured under the plan of a definite pension scale since any employee who reaches a pensionable age and who has had at least 20 years' service will receive a minimum pension of at least 35 per cent of

Three Girls Hurt Sleigh-Riding

A tobagganing party Wednesday night resulted in slight injuries to three members of the group, the savings department staff of the Bank of Montreal here. Coming down the Prince of Wales hill, one of the sleds appeared to get out of control and the passengers "just sort of got scattered around," according to one description. Three were taken to a nearby house.

Most serious inuries were to Miss Helen McCarthy, 212 Perry Street, who is still in hospital. Her injuries to her back have since been X-rayed and are said to be slight.

Others injured slightly were Miss Jean Mailing, 491 Water Street, who suffered a sprained thumb, and Mrs. Mark. Seabrook, 73 Lansdowne Avenue, with slight back injuries. Both the latter are back at work now.

World Leaders Praise Gandhi's Work

By The Canadian Press

Tributes to Mohandas K. Gandhi and expressions of horror at his assassination in New Delhi today were voiced by prominent people in various parts of the world.

From his country home at Sandringham, Norfolk, King George sent the following message to Earl Mountbatten, Governor-General of India:

"The Queen and I are deeply shocked by the news of the death of Mr. Gandhi. Will you please convey to the people of India our sincere sympathy in the irreparable loss which they and indeed mankind have suffered."

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India describes the assassination as a "great disaster," the all India Radio said. The National Broadcasting Company monitored the broadcast in New York.

The dominion leader, his voice heavy with emotion, announced the body will be cremated in accordance with Gandhi's wish, the broadcast said. The body will be taken from Birla House tomorrow at 11.30 a.m. Indian time (1 a.m. EST) and cremation will be at 4 p.m. Nehru designated Saturday as a day of fasting and praying for all India.

Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime Prime Minister, said: "I am shocked at this wicked crime."

In Washington President Truman was said to regard the Indian leader's death as "a tragic loss to the whole world."

Habib Ibrahim Rahimtoola, Pakistan High Commissioner in London, said "I am too shocked to say anything except to condemn it (the assassination) in the strongest terms."

Herbert Morrison, Britain's Deputy Prime Minister, said: "This is terrible news and a tragic end to the life of a great and remarkable man."

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, expressed his "grief and horror." of Gandhi, he said: "he devoted his life to win men from violence to peace and brotherhood."

Gandhi Assassinated By One of Millions He Led to Independence

THESE POSES SHOW GANDHI DURING RECENT 121-HOUR FAST FOR PEACE

Bombay saw the biggest crowds since Independence Day when Mr. Gandhi ended his 15th fast in 35 years on the sixth day of his fast—after it had lasted nearly 122 hours. A million and a quarter cardboard pictured of Gandhi were distributed by processionists and grabbed and pinned to coat lapels by sympathizers along a seven-mile route which took the procession five hours to cover. The procession halted momentarily in Mahomedali Rd. in the heart of Moslem Bombay, and Hindoos and Moslems embraced cordially in the streets. Women seen in this section of the procession are wearing the cardboard pictures.

Scantily-Clad Shoppers Irk Merchants

DURBAN, South Africa, Jan. 31 (CP).—Durban shopkeepers are to ask city council to arrest visitors from Johannesburg and other parts of the country who go shopping here in bathing costumes.

During the Christmas and New Year shopping season a number of young men and women were seen walking through department stores in short costumes.

Some of the girls wore a short coat over the costumes, and sandals, but other appeared entirely in a state of "beach undress."

Some shopkeepers refused to serve them, but no bather was ordered out of a shop.

"The city police are supposed to keep a state of order and decency in the streets, and it is for them to arrest these shopping nudists," said on department store manager.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31 (CP). — Old Mother Hubbard will be able to stock up on all kinds of canned fruit and jams this year, but when it comes to canned vegetables her cupboard may go bare.

Rate Jumps Protested At Phone Company Hearing

MILLBROOK, Jan. 31 (ENS)—W. P. Near, vice-chairman of the Ontario Muncipal Board, was commissioner at the hearing on Wednesday of subscribers in favor of or opposed to the application made by Docon Telephones Ltd., to increase its rates, which it announced in December, the increased rentals to begin January 1.

Also present, representing the Municipal Board, was J. A. MacDonald, provincial inspector of telephones; and for the company, H. A. Coon, president, and E. T. Downs, secretary, both of Toronto.

The Docon Company purchased the local system in 1941. The area served including Millbrook and the area within a radius of ten miles.

The council chamber was filled for the hearing and the meeting was thrown open for discussion. The need for the application was given by President Coon as due to increased costs, listing that cost of materials were up 100 to 150 per cent; wages, 50 to 75 per cent; maintenance, supplies, and repairs 50 to 75 per cent. Since 1942, the system has shown a loss each year.

There is a direct loss in operating expenses, and it was stated that the increase asked would compensate for such loss, and allow dividends on capital.

"Since 1942 no dividends have been paid by this company," said Mr. Coons, "but we have tried to give the best sermvice possible. This is a general over-all picture of the situation, and you can see that an increase is imperative, or we face bankruptcy. We could cut down on Sunday and night services, and meet demands, with the rates being charged at the present time, but we prefer to continue 24-hour service, as in the past."

Two hundred signatures of subscribers opposed to the application had been obtained on a petition circulated previous to Wednesday's hearing. Councillor A. G. Woods, Millbrook, their spokesman, registered a strong objection to the proposed increase, particularly in the case of rural subscribers, where rental would be stepped up from $15 to $24 per year. Comparison with figures quoted from Manvers, Clarke, and other systems as far east as Oshawa, and as far west as Cobourg, showed this increase to be excessive, said Mr. Woods, and added that many phones would be withdrawn if the application were granted. Criticism of the common battery system was also expressed.

If no agreement could be reached, Mr. Woods advocated that a Board of arbitration be set up, with a view to the municipality buying out the present owners of the system, and running it as a municipal enterprise.

Among those who asked questions, or registered objections not to the increase in rates, but to the amount set, were Reeves H. D. Bigelow and Harold Cathcart, W. W. Wiltshire, W. S. Seward, Lawrence Winslow, G. F. Harrington, W. J. Reynolds, D. Olan, J. H. Might, A. V. Thorne. Opinions differed as to the service, some expressing satisfaction, and others criticism. Mr. MacDonald explained a number of points at issue, and the Commissioner, Mr. Near, stated that all the material submitted would be placed before the Ontario Municipal Board whose decesion on the question will not likely be recorded until some time in the week following.

President Coon gave assurance that, should the increase be granted, much needed maintenance work would be undertaken immediately.

Are You Asking These Questions About Saving Electricity?

IS IT STILL NECESSARY TO SAVE ELECTRICITY?

Yes. Not nearly enough saving is yet being made, especially in the home. Result, for some time past several large industries have had their power supply cut off for lengtny periods in the 24 hours.

IS IT NECESSARY TO SAVE ONLY AT CERTAIN HOURS?

No, it is vital to save at ALL hours. While electricity cannot be stored, water that generates it can be stored. The water storage for the five Hydro plants in the Niagara area is provided by the Great Lakes. This assures a continuous flow of water sufficient to enable these plants to go all out 24 hours a day—still there is not enough power. In 48 other Hydro generating stations throughout Ontario the water supply must be very closely guarded — if too much electricity is demanded one day, the next day's power supply must suffer. This condition is aggravated by the abnormally low rain fall last Autumn.

MUST HOMES DO ALL THE SAVING?

Not by any means. ALL consumers must play their full part. Modified rationing has to some extent reduced the consumption of electricity in stores and by other commercial consumers, but still greater voluntary savings are urgently needed.

HOW CAN I SAVE MORE ELECTRICITY?

...n't leave lights burning in unoccupied offices. Turn idling motors off. ...e range elements as short a time as possible. Turn off verandah and all other lights when not needed. Use electrically heated water sparingly. Do not use electric heaters or grates.

Trinity Church Omemee Reviews Year

OMEMEE, Jan. 31—(ENS).—Reports of the annual congregational meeting of Trinity United church, Omemee, on Wednesday evening showed steady progress in all branches of church activity.

Following supper the business was conducted under the direction of the pastor, Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt. Mr. D. Weir was appointed secretary.

Mr. Zufelt's outline of his year's work showed nine young people had joined the church on the Omemee appointment and there was a net increase of eight members. On the circuit he had conducted 17 funerals, seven weddings and 25 baptisms and visited 330 homes. Outside his pastoral work he conducted a week's leadership course at Oak Lake and taught religious knowledge to 28 classes in public schools in Omemee and vicinity.

Reports were submitted by church officials and representatives of the various organizations. All showed favorable balances, the general trend being increases.

Mr. P. Race, who has held the office of treasurer of the board of stewards for 27 years, stated that '47 was the best yet, both in liberality and systematic method of payment. The anniversary offering also showed exceptional generosity.

Special tribute was paid to Mr. J. Johnson for his long and faithful service as SS superintendent. Appreciation was expressed to the organist, choir leader and choir members, for the assistance of the WA in renewing the church basement and for the beautiful flowers which adorn the church every Sunday, winter and summer.

Attention was called to the missionary effort of the YPU who hold the unique position of first place among the YPU organizations of the presbytery in that respect. The WMS and the M and M fund of the church are each considerably over their allocations. The pension fund is also well over with still more payable at later dates. These organizations have also contributed to relief work in Europe and the Far East.

For all purposes the church raised in 1947 about $5,300, not including pension fund or relief work.

It was decided to give the organist a $50 raise in salary and to raise the insurance on church property.

A motion also went through to withdraw evening services during months of July and Aug. and to change the hour of evening service to 7.30 while fast time is in effect on such Sundays as evening service is held.

Mr. Race was authorized to have church reports printed.

The following retiring stewards were re-elected: A. Lang, E. Bradburn, E. Rodman, C. Best, H. Bullock and G. Werry. C. Graham resigned and H. Deyell was appointed to fill that vacancy.

Prime Minister Outflanks Two Reporters

By DOUGLAS HOW.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31 — (CP). — A couple of British reporters, new to Capital Hill, have had their baptism in the elusive ways of one, William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Individually, they came to the conclusion that a fitting debut to their role as Ottawa correspondents would be a private interview with the Prime Minister.

Accordingly, each drew up a list of questions and sent them off by mail as tentative guides for the occasion of meeting. The other night they chanced to be together and the results came out.

Said the man who got his questions in first:

"Through the mails there came back a nice letter from the PM's secretary and a file of papers inches thick which turned out to be his speeches for years gone by. The letter said politely that I would find my answers in there."

Said the second: "I'm still awaiting my answer."

Entirely without compassion, the first chuckled: "Ah, that explains what happened a day or so ago. The secretary wrote to say he wanted the speeches back. I presume your 'interview' is coming up."

Talks.

The Senate Banking Committee was told this week that Canadians outtalk Americans, at least on the telephone. Frederick Johnson, president of the Bell Telephone Company, testified that the ratio of telephones in the United States was higher than in Canada, but said Canadians' conversations lasted longer.

Later he told a reporter that no race in the world out-talked telephoning Canadians.

WARM RECEPTION was given Constable Kift by his wife when he returned to his home yesterday. Mrs. Kift spent worried night with Mrs. Mackie waiting news of missing husbands.

The woman whose husband has been the object of a wide search since he escaped from Kingston Penitentiary last August, was arrested in the city Thursday night. She was remanded in custody one week for further investigation.

Friendly Animals Roost In Basement

SALT SPRING ISLAND, B.C., Jan. 31 (CP).—Peace appears to have come to at least part of the animal kingdom. On a trip to his basement to stocke the furnace J. B. Asland found:

Three Norwegian elkhounds and a stray cat sound asleep: nearby, feeding on grain, were several large rats; perched above the lot were three bantam cocks and surveying the whole scene was a visiting robin.

Acland's clanking at the furnace only raised a sleepy eye as the menagerie completely ignored him.

MEDAL WINNER — Mary Priscilla Reefer, four months old, seems to be cooing her thanks to Nicodemus, her pet cat, who saved the lives of the Reefer family of Pittsburgh. The cat roused the Reefers after gas from a leaking line had seeped into their apartment. Nicodemus has a couple of medals pinned on him by the Humane Society.

CANADIAN BULWARKS OF DEMOCRACY

FREEDOM OF PERSON

"DEMOCRACY NEVER FAILS US, IT IS WE WHO FAIL DEMOCRACY . . ."

Time: 1947. Place: A country across the water. This is an incident in the life of one John S——. John was a stone mason . . . a good one. His father had taught him the craft. John liked his work . . . relished, with solid satisfaction, the beauty, utility and permanency of shaping things with his own hands. Tomorrow, thought John, he would start work on the archway . . . a labor of love for John.

That night, three uniformed men called on John, gave him ten minutes to pack, bid farewell to his wife and three children. It seemed the Director of Labor needed John, and several hundred other "Johns," for labor on a project in the interior. That was the last the village saw of John.

In Canada, no uniformed bully-boys direct Tom Smith, the carpenter, to labor in the North West Territories. Tom may go to the bush, if he wishes. But, he'll go in his own sweet time. In this country, we may move when we wish, where we wish. We are free men . . . free to turn our hand and brain to what we will. With us, freedom from compulsion is a sacred principle . . . the state is the servant, not the master. Let us keep it so . . . see to it that government does not usurp that right.

In a dangerous world, constant, alert, aggressive vigilance of our liberties is a "must" for all Canadians. Let us resolve to work towards bettering our democracy . . . by co-operation, understanding, of all people, in all fields. Our democracy was builded by humans . . . none of whom was infallible. So, it is obvious, we cannot expect perfection. In the future shaping of our democracy, let us see to it that we preserve for ourselves and the future generations our blessed inheritance, freedom from complusion . . .

FREEDOM OF PERSON.

Student Nurses' Formal Ball Satisfies All Anticipations

When an event is enjoyable, no one wants it to end, so, Civic Hospital Board of Governors were assured that the student nurses really liked their dance, held Friday evening at the Kawartha Club. Announcement by Mr. John Hornal, superintendent, that arrangements had been made to keep the party going longer than anticipated, was greeted with cheers. Flags, streamers and clusters of balloons were in the decorative scheme, but the latter were soon reduced to bits at the hands of playful guests. Music for dancing was by the Sevenaires, and card games were enjoyed in the lounge. Lunch was served at intermission.

Miss Alicia Langley, social director, had arranged attractive novelty dances. Mr. and Mrs. Hector Bousfield won the birthday dance. Eastern Panthers Back In Maritimes

FREDERICTON, Jan. 31 (CP) —Wildlife is coming back into its own in New Brunswick.

First it was announced that the eastern panther, believed extinct for the last 60 years, had reappeared in the province.

Then came word that the bounty on wildcats had been raised from $5 to $10 because the vicious cats were gaining in numbers and killing off young deer who made easy prey in the heavy winter snow.

Panthers were discovered in the province last year, but the find was kept secret from the public because forestry officials feared impulsive trophy hunters would rush out and kill the last survivors.

There are no game laws prohibiting the killing of the eastern panther—known as "Indian devil"—but officials have appealed to hunters not to kill the animals.

"New Brunswick has a responsibility to preserve the panthers," Bruce S. Wright, director of the North-eastern Wildlife Station of the Wildlife Management Institute said.

"They are shy and harmless, and have not been known to kill livestock. From a natural history standpoint it would be as great a shame to kill an eastern panther as to destroy a mastedon should one ever be found alive," he said.

Once, the eastern panther existed as far west as Minnesota and Wisconsin, and north to Southern Ontario and Quebec, but no reports of the animals have come from the latter provinces in the last century.

Hazel Harte-Maxwell Weds Bruce L. Campbell Today

A double ring wedding ceremony today in St. John's Anglican Church united Hazel Harte-Maxwell, former member of the RCAF, Women's Division, and Bruce L. Campbell, formerly with the Merchant Navy. The bride is a daughter of Mr. C. S. Harte-Maxwell and the late Mrs. G. L. Harte-Maxwell, and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Campbell, all of Peterborough. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson officiated and Mr. F. G. Mann was at the organ.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attired in a two-piece dress of navy bengaline, in street length, with matching accessories. She carried a nosegay of red roses and white snapdragon. The maid of honor was Miss Violet M. Wilson who served overseas with the bride. She was wearing a two-piece dress of rose wool serge with brown accessories, and carrying a nosegay of spring flowers. Mr. Herb Campbell attended his brother as groomsman.

A reception was held afterward in the green room of the YWCA Mrs. Fred Johnston, sister of the bride, received, wearing a dress of figured silk jersey, black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Campbell who was in midnight blue crepe dress with matching accessories and wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Toronto and Windsor. For travelling the bride chose a grey wool suit, black topcoat and accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will reside in Peterborough.

DOUBLE-DUTY DRESS — A soft, crease defying fabric which looks very expensive, but which is not, is used in black and white stripes for this new play suit. Shirt and shorts are joined by a broad, fitted girdle of black grosgrain. Add the long, full, well cut skirt, and your skirt and shorts outfit becomes a very pretty shirtmaker dress for the street.

TORONTO, Jan. 31 (CP). — Silver-locked Mrs. R. J. Marshall, one of Canada's prominent women, has successfully combined the careers of clubwoman and homemaker.

Mrs. Marshall, who lives in Agincourt, 14 miles east of Toronto, considers her second allegiance is to the hundreds of women she leads as president of the Canadian Association of Consumers and the National Council of Women. She does all her own baking, grows hyacinths and has brought up four children.

The two national organizations as well as many other club duties keep Mrs. Marshall working full time on a voluntary basis. How she remains serene through all her club work and homemaking is a source of amazement to her friends.

She tries to keep her evenings free of appointments in order to spend as much time as possible with her husband, an industrial engineer. Her children are all grown up and married, but while they were living at home Mrs. Marshall made sure they never came into an empty house.

"I've always tried to give my children a feeling of security," she said.

Clear Thinkers

Mrs. Marshall loves working with women because they are "clear and constructive thinkers and if well informed and united, could hold the peace of the world." Her only criticism of women is their lack of persistence —"so often we don't finish what we start."

However, Mrs. Marshall could never be accused of quitting halfway through a job. Her club activities started with the Alumnae Association of McMaster University, Hamilton, her alma mater before she was married. While her family was growing up she devoted herself to local church and women's organizations.

Since then she has gone into the provincial and national field and has been president and honorary president of "more organizations than I can count."

She is past president of the Toronto branch of the Federation of University Women, honorary president of the Women's Home Mission Board of the Baptist Convention of Ontario, homemaker representative of the Zonta organization, on the Royal Commission on education in Ontario, on the national executive of the Canadian Committee of Refugees, and many others.

OLD AGE TIPS
Friendships, New Outlook Necessary To Happiness In Later Years

✧ ✧ ✧

When we speak of providing for our old age, we are always thinking in terms of money. Doubtless that is our basic necessity, for we have to eat and be clothed and have a roof over our heads and someone to nurse us and doctor us when we are ill, and unless we have been foresighted enough to lay up something for a rainy day, our case is desperate, indeed.

DOROTHY DIX

But while able-bodied men and women should feel it their duty to safeguard their old age by putting aside enough money to keep them from being pensioners and burdens on others, there are many other ways in which they should prepare themselves for the lean years when youth and the joy of life will be gone, and they will be miserable unless they have been wise enough to prepare themselves to meet the situation.

Chief among the precautions against having a tragic old age is for parents to preserve their financial independence. We have beautiful myths about parents who spend every cent they can rake and scrape and borrow giving their daughters expensive debut parties, and sending their sons to high-priced colleges, and who justify themselves in their folly by saying their children will take care of them in their old age.

Greedy Children

And we all know greedy sons and daughters who haven't even been willing to wait until their parents died to get their property. They sing a sweet song to Mother and Father about how they will cherish them, and how they shall have the best room in the house when they come to live with them, but no sooner do they get the old people's money than Mother is turned into a cook and baby-sitter, and daughter-in-law can't stand having Father around. Between parents who have gifts to make and those who have already given everything away there is a great gulf fixed.

The next way in which parents should prepare themselves for age is by modernizing themselves. Keeping up with the times is an absolute must if they want to escape being pests. For we are living in a different age, with different habits and standards and tastes, and if we want our children to love us and enjoy us we have to adopt their standards and give up our own.

And we can lay up a lot of amusement for our old age if we will just pay the price, which means if we will give plenty of parties, send flowers, write notes of congratulations or sympathy, and if we will cultivate an interesting line of conversation, instead of telling about all our troubles. When we are young and gay and beautiful, people will seek us out, but when we are old we have to throw in a bonus with our invitations.

One of the perpetual grouches of old people is that they are lonely. Their children pay them pop-in calls and act like Christian martyrs if they have to spend a whole evening listening to Grandpa reminisce. They miss the old friends to whom they could say: "Don't you remember?" An old man once said to me, with tears in his eyes, that he didn't know a single soul who was young when he was young.

That can't be helped. Death takes its toll. But the loneliness of the old can be lessened if they will keep adding new friends to their list. If, as wise Ben Franklin said, they will keep their friendships in repair.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, February 1

Sunday's horoscope is for a lively, pleasant and stirring course of events, in which there may be much exciting moving about, travel, fresh contacts and agreements, with the energies and mentality keyed to quick action and progressive performance in whatever direction the interest lie. Press forward with vim and determination, sustained by an open mind and keen evaluation of sound opportunities presented.

On the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a particularly active and profitable year, in which fresh ideas and sound marshalling of energies and skills make tangible mark on present progress as well as future prospects. A determined combination of head and heart may go far in attaining important objectives, which are likely to involve change, travel, new agreements and pleasant contacts, of more than passing significance.

Affairs of the young and eager thrive, and literary and creative thinking may find particular recognition and a progressive future for trained effort.

A child born on this day has a happy combination of energies and faculties for a progressive, fruitful and pleasant career, with much activity and high adventure. It is particularly versatile and ambitious.

For Monday, February 2

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather contradictory and intriguing combination of circumstances, in which a more than customary insight into underlying conditions may eventually decide important issues. It may require especially astute judgment, and keen insight into exceptional situations or events, in which stratagem and a familiarity with hidden factors may in the last analysis decide the procedure for breaking up static conditions or moving stubborn opposition from influential sources. Sharp and tactful operations, in which the charm and glamor of personality are of major importance, are seen, not only in putting over plans but in manipulating budgets in business as well as domestic relations. Shun conflicts and arguments.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a vivid unsual and intriguing state of affairs, the final outcome of which depends upon the astute and far-seeing vision, with an insight into subtle and hidden factors may be called upon to break down stubborn opposition as well as undercover and secret forces. This by sound conclusions based upon good reasoning as well as peculiar undercurrents, cloaking affairs with mystery, possibly glamor, and vague and intangible aspects. Practical attack of queer phases may reach farther than "hunches" or emotional urges. Hard-headed insight rather than dreams should decide the course of action.

A child born on this day may have a strange combination of the practical and concrete highlighted by strong intuitions or profound imagination. Its dreams could be based on sound logic and rationalizing.

Careful Research Produces Popular Breakfast Foods

By ARNOLD J. PEARSON

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 31 (AP). —That chatty breakfast food you virtually inhale in a few seconds in order to catch the 7:52 for the office might have as much as 10 years' research behind it.

The simplicity of shaking out a few kernels or flakes from a package belies the trials and even tribulations behind development of today's breakfast time-saver so the breadwinner can get off to work and the little woman can complete her chores in time for the big afternoon bridge date.

Research as extensive as that associated with highly technical scientific problems has gone into some of these cereals which virtually "speak" to you during the morning meal.

There are no hit-and-miss tactics or "pot luck" results in the companies producing the cereals. big testing kitchens of milling

One household breakfast favorite has 10 years of research behind it. But all of the testing wasn't performed in the laboratory. The public itself, with its critical taste buds, took part in the development.

One company, in 1931, decided it would like to market a ready-to-eat oat cereal. The first problem was selection of the proper type of grain. Market analysis supplied that answer when a survey showed that rolled oats as a porridge was one of America's oldest and favorite dishes.

Consumer Tests

How to prepare it for quick serving in the home and how to shape the individual kernals were among a host of problems. Consumer tests by the hundred were conducted. The cereal was developed first in disc form.

Later it was decided to produce the cereal in the shade of tiny doughnuts. The new look gave it more customer appeal.

Meanwhile, engineers in the mechanical division of the milling firm were busy over the drafting boards designing and testing special processing equipment, a gigantic task in itself.

The result was a special "gun" in which the cereal is puffed, after being cut into the tiny doughnut shapes.

There were many side-excursions in research on the nutritional value of the product after the ingredient specifications had been decided upon. Extensive tests in this phase of the development resulted in the addition of vitamins to enrich the cereal.

Among other major problems were those of efficient plant production of the cereal. Another task was the design for a package attractive to the customer.

Though a product becomes a breakfast-time favorite, the researchers still aren't finished. Constant changes in the public's eating habits and tastes means testing must be continued and a new product added if advisable.

Criminal Code Amendment CDNA Request

TORONTO, Jan. 31. — The newspapers of Canada today asked the Dominion Government to amend the criminal code to provide that charges of conspiracy to commit libel be tried in the province where the newspaper involved is published.

The code now provides this protection to newspapers when charged with publication of defamatory libel but not when charged with conspiracy to publish it.

The Canadian Daaily Newspapers' Association, through its president, H. G. Kimber of The Toronto Globe and Mail, petitioned Justice Minister Ilsley for the change in a letter sent to Ottawa yesterday. The CDNA also suggested a possible amendment to the code in a resolution of its board of directors.

The resolution said the current prosecution in Alberta of Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto and Harold Dingman of Ottawa for conspiracy to publish a defamatory libel "shows that the purpose and intent of section 888 of the Criminal Code may be evaded" and that publishers and editors will be deprived of the protection intended to be given them "if the Crown officers arbitrarily choose to resort to the device" of charging conspiracy rather than the substantive offense of publication of a defamatory libel."

The resolution noted that section 888 now reads: "Every proprietor, publisher, editor or other person charged wtih the publication in a newspaper of any defamatory libel shall be dealt with, indicted, tried and punished in the province in which he resides or in which such newspaper is printed."

The CDNA resolution urged Mr. Ilsley to introduce "at the forthcoming session of parliament" an amendment to make the section read: "Every proprietor, publisher, editor or other person charged of any defamatory, seditious or blasphemous libel or any false news or tale contrary to section 136, or with conspiracy to publish in a newspaper any defamatory, seditious or blasphemous libel or any false news or tale contrary to section 136 shall be dealt with, indicted, tried and punished in the province in which he resides or in which such newspaper is printed."

The CDNA also sent Mr. Ilsley excerpts from the Hansard report of the 888 in which Sir John Thompson, piloting the bill for the government, said its intent was "that the place of trial in criminal prosecutions for libel... shall be within the province in which the newspaper is published—the publishing office of the paper."

LEFTISTS IN JAPAN—Like practically everywhere else in the world, post-war Japan is a camp divided between Leftists and Rightists. The Social Democratic party, meeting in convention, was split wide open and left-wingers won an important victory, which, some observers believed, jeopardized the job of Party Leader Tetsu Katayama, premier of Japan. Here you see K. Matsuoka, Speaker of the House, who is a middle of the roader, chatting with M. Suzuki, who leads the left-wing element of the party, in an attempt to bring about harmony at the convention in Tokyo.

New Brunswick Expanding Her Fisheries

By IRVING WHYNOT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FREDERICTON, Jan. 31 (CP).—New Brunswick, a comparatively small producer of fish among Canada's sea coast provinces, is making a determined effort to put her fisheries into the realm of big business.

The sardine industry has been encouraged to an extent where it now brings fishermen more than $1,500,000 a year and the government is subsidizing efforts to introduce modern draggers into the Bay of Fundy.

With government financial assistance, a dragger was put into operation in the stormy Bay of Fundy early this year and was termed a "major experiment" in the fight to expand Fundy fisheries.

Success of the trip might lead to an additional $1,000,000 income in the cultivation of the rosefish industry alone and would almost definitely bring additional draggers into the strip of water between the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia shores.

The dragger, which is the first to operate in the Bay of Fundy, might also be used in the scallop fisheries which fishermen from Digby, N.S., now control almost without competition.

Provincial officials say scallops are available in large quantities in deep Bay of Fundy waters and say the dragger is the "ideal vessel" to bring them up from the deep.

The dragger, which catches fish by trolling a cone-shaped net behind, is considered a much more economical method of fishing than the more generally-used method of trawling and handlining.

Catches Less Trash

The dragger, too, is a more comfortable ship and catches less "trash" or non-marketable fish because the net can be lowered to the depth which scientific investigations have proven are the best spots of the type of fish wanted.

The fisheries industry in New Brunswick is already a $20,000,000 business and officials say it can be "expanded greatly."

If the Fundy experiment is successful, the provincial fleet which operates in the Gulf of the St. Lawrence during ice-free months may also be shifted to the Fundy during winter months.

The five-vessel fleet that was introduced last year out of Caraquet has already doubled fishermen's income in that area.

The draggers, however, have met opposition. J. Fred Belyea, a member of the Saint John city council and a fishermen himself, told the council that draggers deplete the fisheries and kill off young fish. This cuts into the livelihood of the majority of provincial fishermen, he said. Instead of draggers, he suggested that artificial fish culture be introduced in an effort to expand the industry.

The sardine industry, although 25 years old, has just begun to bring New Brunswick fishermen a measure of prosperity during the last seven years. During the first 11 months of 1947, record catches netted sardine fishermen $1,457,000.

Sardine fishermen say they expect an even better season during 1948 and hope to dig into the big market now satisfied by the $481,994 worth of sardines imported from Norway during the past year.

Hotel School Attracts Students From 25 Countries

By PATRICK CROSSE

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Jan. 31 (Reuters).—Students between 17 and 18 years of age from 25 countries including Britain and the United States, have enrolled for the next course at the famous Hotel School here.

They will spend the next three years in an intensive course which deals with every branch of hotel keeping.

Altogether 124 foreigners and 62 Swiss are enrolled. The foreigners are divided as follows: Britsh 31, American 10, South African 4, Irish 5, Cypriot 4, Indian 1, Egyptian 2, Hungarian 15, Czechoslovak 14, French 10, Norwegian 4, Palestinian 3, Austrian 2, Italian 2, Luxembourg 2, Dutch 2, Belgian 2, Danish 2, Icelandic 1, German 1, Algerian 1, Portuguese 1, and Yugoslav 1.

The students are divided up into three sections — cooking, waiting and service, and secretarial — and each section looks after the appropriate needs of the others.

The course in each of theses sections lasts five months in the school, with six months' paid apprenticeship in a first-class hotel afterwards.

Thirty-nine student-cooks, working under three expert chefs, prepare the meals which 54 waiters, under three maitres d'hotel serve to 91 young receptionists, secretaries and accountants, who in turn look after the administration of the school.

All-Round Training

The waiters' and secretarial sources are the most varied. Each student waiter must know enough of three or four languages for his work and is trained in wines, in running a bar, in laying a table and in handling all the complicated table accessories of a first-class restaurat, in running a service pantry and in waiting with the maximum of suavity.

He attends weekly lectures on the psychology and technique of salesmanship, on the composition of menus, on the organization of restaurants, on the drawing up of bills, and on professional hygiene.

The secretarial course includes lectures on accounting, commercial hotel technique, arithmetic, law, tourist publicity, tourist geography, correspondence, hotel furniture, managership and psychology.

Welcoming the students for the next three-year course, the director of the school, Georges Duttweiler, told them: "If I am asked the reason for the good conduct of our students, I say that it results chiefly from the fact that the largest numerical group is of Anglo-Saxon origin. This is a compliment that I gladly pay to the Anglo-Saxon system of education."

More Homes Built

Canuck Plowman Takes Second In Empire Match

WORKINGTON, Cumberland, England, Jan. 31 — (CP). — John Capton, a member of Canada's four-man plowing team entered in a series of United Kingdom matches, yesterday finished second in the empire match at this north of England town.

The event, at Stainburn Hall farm, was won by an Englishman, F. S. Thompson of Carlisle. Glen McFaddin, 38-year-old tractor plowman from Wellesley township in Waterloo County, Ontario, did not place in the event.

Capton, a 21-year-old Cayuga Indian from the Oshweken Six Nations reserve near Brantford, won the silver medal for second prize in the horse-plowing class in the Canadian International match last year at Kingston. McFaddin won the tractor plowing award of a gold medal.

The other Canadian plowmen are Alfred Brunton, 31, from near Tara, Ont., and Russel Hart, 42, from Walpole township, Haldimand County, Ontario. Team manager is William Lyman Clark, 57, of R.R. No. 2, Gormley, Ont.

The Canadians later will compete in the British International event at Belfast and in a match in Scotland.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

RUFFER LEADS A TRUMP

HAVING RUFFED one trick on the defense, you of course want to put your partner in the lead to give you another ruff. Such being the case, it is not customary for you to consider leading a trump, since that would use up one of the cards with which you hoped to trump something else. But suppose you see the aces of the other two side suits in the dummy. And suppose you do not see the trump ace there. Also suppose you have two little trumps left. Isn't it worth a trial to see if your partner has the trump ace? If he does he can return to suit you ruffed before, thus giving you one more trick.

	♠ K 9 4 ♥ J 6 5 3 ♦ A 10 4 ♣ A Q 8
♠ 3 ♥ 8 7 2 ♦ 9 8 6 5 ♣ K 9 5 4	N W E S	♠ A J 8 7 5 2 ♥ A ♦ Q 2 ♣ 10 7 6 2
	♠ Q 10 6 ♥ K Q 10 9 4 ♦ K J 7 3 ♣ J

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

West led his spade 3 for two ideal reasons. First it was his partner's suit. Second it was a singleton, and might enable him to win one or more tricks by ruffing. East won with the A, returned the 7 and West got the trick with his heart 2. He looked over the dummy, wondering which suit would be better to return, and in view of having the club K himself decided that diamonds afforded the better chance. So he next led the diamond 5. The 4 was played from dummy and East put in the Q in the hope that West had led away from the K. But South had that card and used it.

Now it was easy for South. He led the club J, which West covered with the K, and put on the A. The club Q enabled him to discard his last spade. Then he led the heart 3 from dummy. The A won, and East now fired back another spade for West to ruff. But South put in the heart K, much too high for West. The Q took out the defender's final trump and South ran blithely on to his game, raking in solid tricks.

"Why didn't you return a trump after ruffing that spade?" asked East. "I could have won it with the ace and returned another spade for you to trump and beat the contract."

"The idea of leading a trump didn't even occur to me," answered West, "when I was so interested in using my trumps for ruffing."

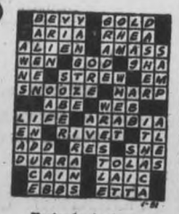
Your Week-End Question



What difference should there be between the manner of playing a suit with the A-K-9-7-2 opposite the Q-10-6-3 and one with the A-K-9-7-2 opposite the Q-8-6-3? What basic principle governs the difference?

6—In Memoriam

COONES—In loving memory of Mrs. B. F. Coones of Apsley, who passed away January 31, 1945.

Surrounded by friends we are lonesome,
In midst of our joys we are sad,
With a smile on our face we've a heartache,
Longing dear mother for you.
—Ever remembered by her daughter Clara and family.

JAMES — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, L.-Cpl. Stanley James, C78063, who died of wounds in Italy, 4 years ago today, January 31. Buried in Morro River Cemetery, Ortona

Just when his days seemed brightest,
Just when his hopes seemed best,
God called him from amongst us
To His eternal rest.
—Sadly missed by his Mother, Father, Brothers and Sisters.

In answer to Miss Hartz's call, J. D. Findlayson, Health Inspector of the unit, slid into the rear of a British - American gasoline truck when the driver Raymond Beggs, stopped near Keith Bounds residence on Rear St. Damage to Findlayson's car included left fender, headlight, grill, radiator and hood. There was no damage to the truck.

Discuss Statements In Murder Trial

WELLAND, Jan. 31 — (CP).— A ruling on the admissibility of a statement allegedly made to the police by Edwin Farrington, 19, of Glendale, RI, one of two youths accused of murder in the rifle slaying of James Bell last September 24, is expected to be made Monday by Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly.

"If there be variance between the Farrington statement and the evidence of police officers, I will believe the officers," Mr. Justice Kelly said yesterday.

The Ontario Supreme Court jury was excluded for two days while opposing counsel argued over the admissibility of the statements of Farrington and the other accused youth, Norman Kindy, 16, of nearby Stamford Township.

His Lordship yesterday ruled inadmissible as evidence a statement made by Kindy to Police Chief R. W. Worm of Stamford Township. He said "Kindy appears sub-normal to the degree that there is doubt that he was aware of the seriousness of the statements."

However, the jury ruled Kindy fit to stand trial.

The Crown sought only to have admitted the statements made by the pair to Chief Work at Niagara Falls. The two were arrested at Terkley, Okla., eight days after the 57-year-old Bell was found shot on the stairway of his Stamford Township home.

Council's Pension

his annual salary and a maximum pension not to exceed 50 per cent. The normal retirement age is fixed at 65 years for men and 60 years for women. However, those employees on the civic payroll now between ages of 55 and 65 will not retire util their 70th birthday.

Features of Plan

Other features of the plan are as follows:—

Any person joining the City's service after the adoption of the plan shall be required as a condition of his employment to join the plan and make contributions to it.

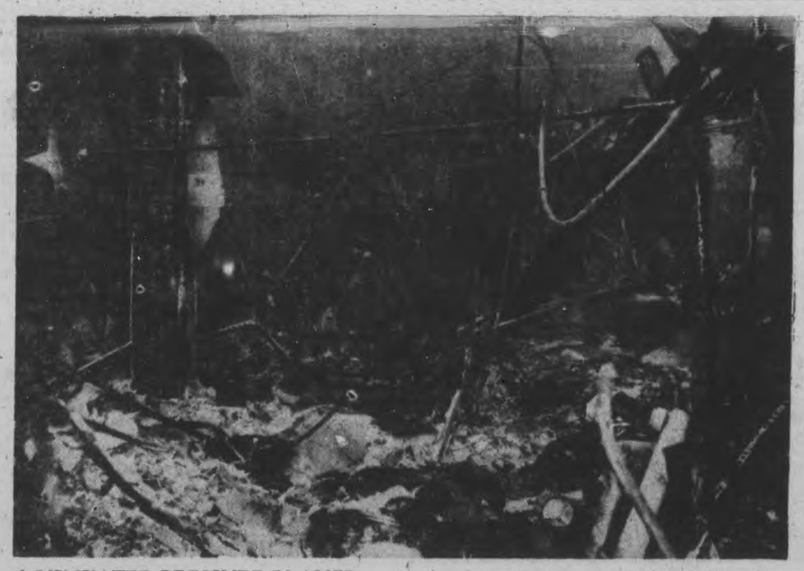
Employees must have worked for the City at least two years before they can join the plan. This provision is made to overcome the details of bookkeeping required because of the turnover of employment usually experienced during the first two years.

Any employee who desires to be retired before his normal retirement age on account of disability or other cause must submit his claim to the Council who shall rule upon the merits of the case.

Employees joining the City staff after the adoption of the plan cannot come within its scope unless they are 45 years or under in the case of men and 40 years or under in the case of women.

The minimum age for men joining the plan is 21, and 30 in the case of women.

No one may join the plan without signing the proper application form which authorizes the required deductions from his wages. No employee can withdraw from the plan without the consent of the City.



$1,200 a Year Maximum

Present employees who are over the normal retirement age at the time of the adoption of the plan will be retired at a date to be determined by the City, and will receive at the date of retirement the amount of annuity determined by his years of past service. The maximum annuity paid under the Government Annuity Plan is $1,200.00 per year to any individual. If the contributions for any employee exceeds the amount required to purchase the $1,200.00 annuity then the excess amount will be invested in an annuity plan in some insurance company for him. The annuity will be paid to the retired employee in monthly instalments as long as he lives. In case of death the annuity will be paid for 5 years but only that part contributed during his employment. An arrangement may be made also that an annuity will be paid so long as the employee lives and in the case of his death to his wife so long as she may live.

If for any reaon an employee ceases his employment with the City before his normal retirement age, the total contributions made by him will be used to purchase an annuity, payment of which will commence at his normal retirement age. This means that an employee who has worked for the City for 15 years and who quits the service at the age of 55 will commence to receive at age 65 (which is the normal retirement age under the pension plan) payments under the annuity purchased for him by the City during his 15 years of service.

LOW WATER PRESSURE BLAMED— Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the West Lincoln Memorial hospital at Grimsby, Ont., causing damage estimated at $150,000. All patients, 12 adults and six babies, were brought to safety within half an hour. Twisted metal and pipes are all that remain inside the gutted hospital as can been seen in this view. Quick spread of flames is blamed on lack of water pressure; civic officials agree fire protection was inadequate.

Anglican Parish Self-Supporting

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 31 — (ENS).—The annual vestry meeting of Christ's Church was held in the Parish Hall after a pot-luck supper served by the Ladies' Guild.

Rev. W. J. Lennox opened the meeting with prayer during which departed members were remembered with special reference to Archbishop D. T. Owen.

J. P. Archer was named vestry clerk and Mr. Lennox occupied the chair. In his address, the Rector pointed out 1947 as a year of advance in all departments of church activities. He referred to some of the outstanding events, particularly the 93rd anniversary last June when several gifts were dedicated by Bishop Beverly of Toronto.

Christ's Church became once again a self-supporting parish. Several improvements were made in the property including redecorating the interior of the Parish Hall. He also referred to the growth and development of the Sunday School and the Chi Rho society.

Mr. H. Beatty presented the annual report which showed an increase of $400 over 1946 in giving through duplex envelopes and a record was established in direct gifts to the church. All accounts had been paid including the missionary allotment, leaving a balance, including bonds, of $1,310.

This money is invested by the Toronto Anglican Synod, who forward the interest to the wardens and rector twice a year.

Film On Soil Shows Danger Of Erosion Across Canada

Guest of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, at their weekly luncheon in the Empress Hotel, Major B. K. Ketcheson, Secretary of the Carling Conservation Club presented a technicolor film aimed at teaching Canadians a much-needed lesson.

Before showing the film, Major Ketcheson explained in a short address that there can be no form of life without food, shelter and water. "The film that I am going to show," he said, "will depict the methods that have been adopted to bring these depleted lands back into productivity."

The film entitled "Soil for Tomorrow" showed the potential dust bowls and deserts that were forming in Western Canada due to lack of knowledge in the correct tillage and conservation of the soil. In the first place land was ploughed that was not suitable for crop bearing, this was then allowed to remain fallow without re-dressing or re-cropping with soil saving grasses and cover. The result was erosion and the soil drifted leaving thousands of acres of bare ground. Another mistake was the habit of summer fallow. This land, allowed to lie idle for so long and having no top cover in the form of protective stubble, became a victim to the strong winds and resulted in more soil-drifting. Even before 1920 soil-drifting was becoming a weighty problem. Attempt were made to anchor the stubble in the soil and thus prevent erosion. One bushel of wheat requires at least from 30 to 35 tons of water, and the permitting of fibre and weeds with the stubble will retain the necessary moisture in the soil. Without this the soil will become powder dry and drift with the winds as they come in season. Drought conditions lasted in Canada from 1929 to 1939 and thousands of farmers were left destitute. Their land had become barren and soon became a wasted waterless desert.

In 1935 the Rehabilitation Act was passed. This Act set up committees of men who worked among the farmers and took samples of different soils, endeavoring to find what soils could safely carry certain crops, and what soils were entirely unfit for the plough.

Special machinery was supplied by Gordon Hancock and which on ploughing the land left the stubble safely anchored in the top soil, and thus gave the ploughed area the protection needed against soil-drifting. Re-grassing, strip-farming, soil culture, location of dam sites, and plans for canals to supply water to irrigation area were some of the tasks these committees performed.

It was learned that crested wheat grass and sweet clover, not only put back into the land the necessary fibre to give life to the denuded soil, but also was the best known remedy against soil-drifting. In 1943 more than 1,500,000 acres were re-grassed and used for community pasture. They were fenced in and together with the community pasturing, better methods for improving the breed of the cattle were adopted. Large holding dams were built, and forest and mountain streams were harnessed in such a manner that they flowed into dams and channeled into the irrigation area.

One of the major problems was the farming of more than 50,000,000 that must be farmed dry. Experiments were conducter by specially built ploughs that would leave the ground in a lumpy formation and not harrowed too fine so that it would powder quickly through the attacks of rain, sun and wind. This was found to be the best method of stopping that enemy, soil-drifting. These acres were re-grassed first with chested wheat, sweet clover and other legumes. They were then ploughed with special machinery leaving the land lumpy. The stubble was allowed to remain and thus provided the starved soil with the life-giving fibre so necessary if the land was to produce an abundant crop. The fibre in the soil was the only safeguard to the soil for the retaining of the moisture for the crops.

The lesson learned in those terrible 10 years of drought must be impressed upon the farmers in Western Canada. The soil must be sanely ploughed and not mined, the fibre must be put back, and the country must plan for a long time agriculture for the generations to come.

Major Ketcheson was introduced by Gordon Hancock and vote of thanks was moved by Ben Myers. A vote of thanks was also passed to Mr. D. J. Delaney, local representative.

Farmers Seek Compensation

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 31 —(CP). — The board of directors of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture approved yesterday a resolution asking the Federal government for some form of compensation for growers of oats and barley who had marketed their crops before ceilings were cancelled on coarse grains.

The directors asked also for some indemnity for livestock dealers who paid 50 to 70 per cent more for their seed grains after ceilings were lifted, and before British food contracts were readjusted with their higher compensating prices.

The last session of the week-long meeting produced a decision to hold the 13th annual meeting next year in a western city, probably Edmonton or Saskatoon.
